"Legislation should orig[illegible] the Legislature," continued Senator [illegible]. "Our government is all [illegible] based by public opinion and should be properly expressed by [illegible] party. The executive should lead, but a question more or less [illegible] is to change our form of government [illegible] abolishing the legislative body. I don't believe that change will come, but we have got to improve the legislative branch.

"We expect the executive to recommend, but there it should end. The Legislature should do the work. I favor the English system of taking representatives from any locality not the particular one in which I live. What we want are men who will stand and [illegible] wider and larger points."

AGED HOSTLER BEATEN; FUGMAN IS ARRESTED

On the complaint of Adolf Limon, a hostler employed at Hugo Maul's Hotel, Watchung, Peter Fugman, a brother-in-law of Mr. Maul, was arrested Monday night on a charge of assault and battery, and a hearing was fixed for Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Winfield S. Angleman represents Mr. Limon.

The alleged assault took place Sunday night at the hotel, following an argument between the men as to the ownership of a lot of pigeons in the barn. Up to that they had been pets of the complainant, it is said, but on Sunday night, it is alleged, he saw Fugman descending a ladder at the barn [illegible] asked Fugman, it is said, what he had and where he was going, and according to Limon's story this angered Fugman, who immediately proceeded to strike and beat the latter.

The hostler's face presented a sorry appearance after his encounter. His eyes were practically closed for two days, one tooth was knocked out, his lip was cut, and his chest was [illegible] from the alleged beating [illegible] since he has been raising [illegible] Limon says that Fugman claimed that the pigeons belonged to the latter's wife.

MACHINISTS MAY STRIKE

Unless Demands are Granted by Friday They Threaten to Quit.

Unless the local printing press manufacturers accede to the demands of the International Association of Machinists, District No. 47, for an increase in wages, by Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock, a strike will be declared in the shops. The action was approved at a meeting of District 47, in Newark, on Sunday, and the official sanction of the general executive board at Washington has been received.

The manufacturers have been notified of the intended action by registered letter. The shops affected here are those of the Walter Scott Printing Machine Company, the Potter Press Works and the Hall Printing Press Works; also the shop of Fuchs & Lang at Rutherford.

The demands of the association are a $3 rate for inside work and $4 for outside work with an allowance [illegible] for expenses while on the road. This will mean an increase of between 10 and 15 per cent. Some men in the mentioned shops [illegible] a $3 rate and a 10 per cent. [illegible] is demanded for them. At [illegible] the average rate for the in[illegible] is between $2.50 and $2.70 [illegible]

Charles Callahan Arrested.

While patrolling his beat this morning at 2 o'clock Officer Meyers discovered a man lying near the bridge on Grove street just this side of the brook. Alongside the prostrate figure was a revolver which had apparently fallen from the man's pocket. Later he was identified as Michael Young from Watchung and he appeared to be dazed and unable to give an account of his predicament. Charles Callahan, who was seen in his company at about 11 o'clock at night was later apprehended by Patrolman Flatley. Callahan was turned over to the North Plainfield police this morning.

Plainfield Graduates at Stevens.

Among those who received degrees at the thirty-eighth annual commencement exercises of Stevens Institute yesterday were David Napier Mauger and Daniel Duclos Van Mater, of this city. The Cyrus J. Lawrence prizes of $50 and $25, for the members of the senior class showing the greatest activity for the betterment of the class and college, aside from recitation work were awarded to Mr. Mauger, of this city, and Charles M. Cunningham, of Paterson.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Curley and Miss Elizabeth Curley, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Westervelt, Allen and Stewart Westervelt and Miss Marie Hacker, of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. W. Verschurr, of Canada, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Leveridge.

MRS. J. R. TRUELL DEAD

Proprietress of Truell Hall, Inn and Court Passes Away.

Mrs. John R. Truell, owner and manager of Truell Hall, Truell Inn and Truell Court, which resorts were conducted by her for many years, died at her home in Truell Hall late yesterday afternoon. For a year she made a gallant fight against failing health, but the best of medical skill proved of no avail.

Mrs. Truell was born May 15, 1842, in County Roscommon, Ireland, coming to America when a child. She had never revisited the place of her birth until last summer, when, with her husband, she went to her old home and had a delightful visit with her few living relatives. Soon after coming to this country she was taken into the home of Jonathan Maxson, of Westerly, R. I., father of Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield Public Schools. Here she lived until her marriage with Captain Henry R. Jennings, of the 21st Regiment, Connecticut Volunteers, when she was seventeen years of age. Her maiden name was Rose B. Fallon.

During her husband's service in the Civil War, Mrs. Truell spent much time with the army at the front, becoming greatly endeared by her voluntary administrations to the soldiers in the camp and the hospitals, finally returning home with the body of her husband who died in the service. These experiences made devotion to the army one of the passions of her life. She was a constant attendant at the great reunions of the veterans, becoming widely known to the members of the Grand Army of the Republic.

In 1878 she married John R. Truell, of Lawrence, Mass., and in 1883 took up her home in Plainfield. Mrs. Truell was a woman of unusual executive ability in business. During her widowhood she gained a wide experience in various commercial enterprises, rising to one of the highest positions in the establishment of Field & Leiter, of Chicago. Her commercial instincts led her to start a model boarding-house on Madison avenue which she extended in time until it reached around Fourth street and through New street. This family boarding-house she named Truell Court. She appeared to develop real genius for inn-keeping which led her later to take over the old Park Avenue Hotel. With its unsuccessful past career, she transformed it into a successful family hotel and filled it with guests, naming the resort Truell Inn.

About four years ago, Mrs. Truell took charge of the old Netherwood Hotel and refitting and remodelling it, named the place Truell Hall, making the place an attractive high-grade hotel, open throughout the year. Throughout her hotel career Mrs. Truell tried to make her guests her friends. Her ambition was to make them happy and comfortable.

Mrs. Truell had a large and generous heart and there were but few public enterprises that did not receive her support. No one in need was turned from her door. She enjoyed a wide acquaintance and was generally esteemed.

Mrs. Truell is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnson; two brothers, Thos. and Andrew Fallon, and one sister; also by five grandchildren, the two children of Mrs. Johnson and the three children of her older daughter who was the wife of Franklin Butler, of Lawrence, Mass.

The funeral services will be held from the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of which she was a devout member, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Catharine McCarthy.

The death of Mrs. Catharine McCarthy, wife of Owen McCarthy, which occurred this morning came as a shock to a wide circle of her friends. Mrs. McCarthy was in her seventieth year and had lived for some years at 963 South Second street. She is survived by four children, Charles J. and Catharine McCarthy, of this city, and Mrs. Mary Lippitt and Mrs. Margaret Beaney, both of New London, Conn. The interment will take place in New London. The funeral services will be announced later.

Cost $5 to Throw Stones.

William Peel, seventeen years old, of Washington street, was arraigned before Judge William N. Runyon this morning by Railroad Detective Regan on a charge of malicious mischief, and was fined five dollars. The offense consisted of throwing stones at the glass insulators on the railroad company's wires in the local yards.

ON TRIAL FOR HIS LIFE

Young Buckley Faces the Charge Murdering Mrs. Fred V. Covely.

John V. Buckley, the alleged murderer of Mrs. Fred V. Covely, was arraigned before a jury in the Somerset county court this morning with Judge Parker on the bench.

Alvah H. Clark represented the defence with Robert Newton Crane as his assistant. Prosecutor Pope opened the case for the State detailing the crime and saying he would ask the jury to render a verdict of murder in the first degree. Walter Richardson was the first witness called and produced a diagram which was marked as an exhibit in the case. Alfred Fritch, George B. Alling, John Y. Barrett, street comissioner of North Plainfield; Emil Compton, all testified to the circumstances of the finding of the body and the story of the crime as they knew it, and at 2:30 o'clock Theodore Englund, a driver for Henry Nischwitz from whom Buckley got a ride, was still on the stand.

A delay of half an hour marked the opening of court owing to the non-appearance of former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, whom it was reported had withdrawn abruptly from the case. After a wait Judge Parker dispatched a messenger to Mr. Clark's office with the result that the latter reached court at 10:30 o'clock.

John V. Buckley was brought in the court room by Detective Totten. He presented a dapper appearance, attired in gray coat and light trousers. Many of the spectators believed him to be a young lawyer instead of a self-confessed murderer.

Buckley's hair was neatly combed and he appeared considerably heavier than when placed under arrest for the crime on April 21. Buckley failed to exhibt any signs of nervousness but on the contrary he appeared interested in the proceedings.

During the delay before selecting the jury Buckley smiled and nodded to acquaintances in the courtroom.

The youth of the prisoner and the cold blooded nature of the crime attracted a large crowd including a large representation of North Plainfield citizens. The spectator included scores of women who occupied seats in the main room and in the galleries. James Moore, a brother of the murdered woman, was also among the spectators.

The task of selecting the jury occupied fifty minutes. The foreman Howard F. Stryker, of Somerville, a young man who bears a resemblance to the prisoner in size and looks. The other jurors are Martin Jenning, Warren township; Harry J. Brokaw, Bridgewater; Austin Wright, Bernards; Peter S. Terhune, Montgomery; John Hulick, Bedminster; Andrew B. Corzine, Franklin; Chris Conover, Bridgewater; Robert Garrabrant, Bernards; A. V. D. Williamson, Hillsboro; James Flynn, Branchburg; Harmon P. Sutton.

Judge Parker's charge to the jury was brief and recess was taken at 11:30 o'clock to 1 o'clock.

Lawyer Crane expressed himself as highly satisfied with the jury. In the makeup of the body are seven farmers, two blacksmiths and one retired merchant. In completing the jury the defense made nineteen challenges.

Simon Mantz, of North Plainfield, was acceptable as a member of the jury, but he was challenged by the State. Charles Lyman was also challenged by the State.

Gave a Luncheon.

Mrs. Charles H. Leveridge, of 432 Spooner avenue, gave an informal luncheon to a small number of relatives and friends yesterday afternoon at her home on Spooner avenue. Covers were laid for ten. Among those present were Mrs. Walter Leveridge and daughter, Miss Dorothy Leveridge, of Brooklyn; Mrs. John Curley and Miss Elizabeth Curley, of Newark; Mrs. Isabelle Harradon, Mrs. Edward Fincke and Mrs. Charles H. Leveridge, of this city.

Waldron Case Postponed.

At the request of Walter Hetfield, this morning counsel for Michael Crowley and Robert Wallace, of the West End, the charges against the two men for alleged assault will be heard next Wednesday. The postponement was made to permit of the subpoening of other witnesses in the case. John Waldron, also of the West End, is the complainant.

SOMERVILLE

Memorial Day was celebrated here Monday by the closing of all places of business and the usual exercises by the General Wadsworth Post, G. A. R. The comrades met at the post rooms at 8 a. m. and delegations were sent to Bound Brook, Millstone and other cemeteries throughout the county to decorate the graves of fallen comrades. The delegation to Bound Brook was escorted by the Somerville Band and a firing squad of cadets from the Military Academy. The delegation to Millstone was accompanied by a firing squad from Company M. At 2 p. m. the post, in a body, marched to the Somerville cemeteries, escorted by the Somerville Band and a firing squad from Company M. Having paid all honors to comrades lying there they returned to the armory of Company M, where they listened to an address by Dr. Younglove, of Elizabeth.

The congregation of the First Baptist church at a meeting held on Sunday morning unanimously extended a call to Rev. Frederick J. Soule to become pastor of the church. Mr. Soule is a native of Michigan, a graduate of Union Theological Seminary and has just completed a post-graduate course at Columbia University.

The engagement is announced of Miss Mae Taylor, formerly of this place, but now of Los Angeles, Cal., to Judge Frazier Salee, of San Jacinto, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garretson, of Newark, spent Sunday and Monday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Culver Garretson, on High street.

Paul Anderson, of East Orange, spent the holiday with his mother, Mrs. E. J. Anderson, on Cliff street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Griggs have returned from Washington, D. C., where they spent a week.

Miss Elizabeth Littell, of Orange, is visiting Miss Amelia Porter on Davenport street.

Miss Green, of East Orange, is a guest of Mrs. E. J. Anderson, in West Cliff street.

EDITORIAL!
"Convenience" as Exemplified By Our Store Arrangement.
To make the purchasing of merchandise an easy and economical process for you is the great aim of this store.
Have you ever studied the arrangement of the departments? If you have not, upon your next visit note the manner in which they lead one into another.
This is no haphazard grouping of merchandise, nothing has been left to chance. The position of each stock has been selected with care and calculation.
Allied goods—those which you are apt to require at the same time—materials needed for the same garment—articles which go to make up the same outfit—have been brought as near together as possible.
In this, as in all else, we have sought how best we might serve your interests and convenience.

BAMBERGER'S

THE ALWAYS BUSY STORE

MARKET, HALSEY & BANK STS.

Her's What An Eliabeth Man Says:

We trust we are not divulging any "LODGE SECRETS" by publishing the following letter, which came to us one day last week: "Timber," whoever he is certainly has the interests of the BAMBERGER SORE at heart, and we take this opportunity of thinking him for his communication—it shows WHICH WAY THE STRAWS ARE BLOWING down in Elizabeth.

Elizabeth, N. J., May 26, 1910.
Advertising Manager, L. Bamberger & Co., Newark, N. J.:

Dear Sir—This may interest your "Between Ourselves" writer:

While being initiated into the mysteries of a certain fraternal organization in this city one day last week it was necessary for all the candidates, numbering seventy-six, to take off their shoes at a certain stage of the ceremonies pertaining to the degree, and some of our guides thinking to have fun with the candidates gathered together the seventy-six pairs of shoes, piled them up in a large heap in the centre of the room like a miniature mountain and made us scramble afterward to get our own shoes. I myself felt secure and unconcerned about being able to quickly identify my own shoes, as I had purchased them from your store and knew they had your name on the straps on the back, but imagine my "concern," however, when I found thirteen other pairs with similar straps and Bamberger's name on them. I thought I was the only one in Elizabeth who appreciated your good shoes. A pretty good percentage for Bamberger's in that lot, wasn't it? I'll charge you nothing for this item, as I am fully repaid by reading your other notes. The above is a true fact.

Yours truly,
(Signed) TIMBER.

WANTED—Several competent saleswomen for our women's shoe department. Liberal salaries and a percentage on all sales. Apply to superintendent, fifth floor, before 10 a. m.

WEST END FIELD CLUB HUMBLES PATERSON.

The West End Field Club easily defeated the Paterson A. C. Saturday afternoon on the Clinton avenue grounds. The score was 16 to 1. Earl Fulton, the New Market phenom, twirled a fine game for the West Ends and made nineteen opponents fan the air. Dixon caught him in fine style. Apgar and Gunzelman starred for the Patersons.

SLEEPER FALLS FROM THIRD FLOOR; UNHURT.

Jersey City, June 1.—That he has a charmed life is the belief of Alphonse Dombuski, twenty-nine years old, of 161 Morgan street, this city. Dombuski went to sleep Monday night sitting by an open window in the front room of his home on the third floor. He awoke early this morning to find himself supported in the arms of a policeman, while an ambulance surgeon was busy looking him over. The man while asleep had fallen from the third floor to the ground and, according to the ambulance doctor, was unhurt, not even bruised.

"You're a lucky fellow," said the doctor. "I guess I am," said Dombuski. "I think so, too," said Patrolman Kelleher, who had found the man.

Frank McKaig, of New Egypt, was committed to the county jail at Toms River in default of $1,000 bail, charged by the Pemberton and Hightstown Railroad Company with larceny of a motor car belonging to the company, which was damaged while in his possession.

power of her voice and the clearness of her enunciation made listening a pleasure and added a wonderful charm to the whole drama.

During the Second Act of the Christian Festival there was a perfectly wonderful exhibition of the most delightful dancing ever seen in Plainfield. The girls were trained by Miss A. C. Grant and her pupils reflected greatc redit on her efforts. The "Temple Dance," the "Silver Belle Dance" and the "Dance of the Roses" were done with a precision and a grace which would be expected only from professionals.

The drama was concluded, amid the deafening plaudits of the people, by a magnificent "Hymn of Victory" and a grand tableau illustrating the words of St. Paul: "This is the victory that overcometh the world—our faith."

The curtain descended and arose almost immediately on a most beautiful scene. Grouped at the rear of the stage were all the children of the performance and in the center were seated the Rev. Jubilarian, together with Mr. Joseph Noonan and the Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. J. Lavelle, Vicar-General of the Arch-Diocese of New York. Mr. Noonan made an excellent address of congratulation to Father Bogan and on behalf of the congregation presented him with a purse of one thousand dollars.

On arising to respond, Father Bogan was obliged to wait several minutes till the applause ceased. When his voice could be heard, he showed his thorough appreciation of the magnificent proofs of affection and esteem shown so unmistakably before him. He refused, however, to take it as a mere personal tribute to himself. He represented a principle; he was a man bearing a message, and that was a message from God. He was one sent by constituted authority, and the great heart of the people rose up to show their reverence and their love for the message he brought and the church which sent him.

Monsignor Lavelle closed the evening's festivities with a neat speech. His love and respect for Father Bogan had begun many years ago and was still in full vigor. No one among his many friends was dearer to him, because no one so exquisitely combined in one character the ability, nay, the gift of being a wit who never wounded the feelings of any, who like his Divine Master had always a word of commendation for even the lowest of the low, and was always, under all circumstances, a true, devoted, edifying priest of God.

To Mr. Walter Sherwin is due much of the success of the dramatic presentation. In the few rehearsals he was able to give them, the young thespians found his tactful direction an inspiration, and the result of his helpfulness was a real tribute to his theatrical ability.

Miss Mary A. Smith, in charge of the music, gave on this occasion a splendid rendition, adding new laurels to her record as a musical director.

The following cleggymen occupied the boxes at the theatre: Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. J. Lavelle, of New York, Rev. John E. Burke, Rev. Wm. Livingston, Rev. Thomas M. O'Keefe, likewise of New York; Rev. Wm. Miller, and Rev. Father Baldwin, of North Plainfield, and Rev. Father Butscher, of Newark, with Father Hogan and Father Sciolla of St. Mary's. Wm. L. Saunders and many of the cast of "Trelawny of the Wells," occupied Box C as interested members of the audience.

MRS. A. G. THORN DEAD IN HER 81ST YEAR.

Cornelia Van Duyn, wife of Albert G. Thorn, died suddenly this morning at her home, 620 East Front street, of apoplexy, in the eighty-first year of her age. She was ill a week. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Van Duyn, and was born in Bound Brook. She was of Holland-Dutch stock, her ancestors being among the early settlers in Somerset county. She was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Besides a husband, Mrs. Thorn is survived by one daughter, Miss Thorn, who lives at home. The funeral will be held from the late residence, 620 East Front street, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie will have charge.

Dr. F. C. Ard returned this morning from Westfield, N. Y., after a visit with his father who was dangerously ill.

Snow This Morning.

Did anybody besides the ever wide-awake cops see the snow flurry this morning between 1 and 2 o'clock? There was one and it lasted for three minutes. In Pittsburg the children had to be sent to their homes because there was no heat in the public schools and the thermometer registered 39 above zero this morning. And it is all blamed on the comet.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The anticipated visit of the Coburn Players to this city has awakened much interest both in artistic and social circles and the demand for tickets to their out-of-doors production of "As You Like It," on June 7, which they will give at the Plainfield Country Club, has exceeded the most sanguine expectations. In the leading colleges of the country the enterprise of the Coburn Players in seeking to produce Shakespeares in a manner approaching the simplicity that is consistent with their proper presentation, is recognized as educational as well as entertaining. They have appeared at Yale, Harvard, Columbia, Princeton, Smith, Bryn Mawr and Radcliffe as well as at many of the Southern universities, where they have given Al fresco performances.

—Use Press Want ads. They pay.

—Harry Nash, of DeLacy avenue, has gone to Washington on a business trip.

1.39 and 2.00 Kimonos 79c

How Many Will You Have Please?

We are greatly elated over this purchase of kimonos—not that we rejoice in the maker's loss for he was compelled to sell these cheaply because of the backward season and cancellation of orders, but because we are able to bring you such a splendid lot of kimonos at such an absurdly little price.

These kimonos come from one of the best New York makers. They are full length and are in both loose and fitted back styles, shirred at waist line, with ribbon belt; made of such materials as Crepe in pretty flowered and Oriental designs, with grounds of light blue, pink, lavender, navy, and red, and of Challies in pretty Persian effects; trimmed down the front and on sleeves with satin borders inself or contrasting colors. There are also kimonos of sheerest lawns with light grounds and large and small figured patterns, in light blue, pink, lavender, and black and white. Sizes run from 36 to 46. They are wrappers that we retail at $1.39 to $2, yet we are going to offer the entire lot at the one low price, 79c.

No 'phone, mail or C. O. D. orders accepted.

Important Suit Clearance

300 Handsome Suits

For Women, Small Women and Misses to Be Closed Out at Little Prices.

Fine Tailored Suits of Serge, Fancy Mixtures, Panama, Rajah, Shepherd Checks and Novelty Weaves; coats cut in three-quarter lengths, handsomely lined; deep shawl or notched collars; full braided or strictly tailored models; cluster of full-plaited skirts; almost any shade you could wish for, as well as black; a goodly variety of the best sizes to be closed out immediately at these little prices—

Suits that were $12.98 to $17 go at $7.75.
Suits that were $19 to $21.50 to go at $12.75.
Suits that were $22 to $26.98 to go at $16.75.
Suits that were $30 to $35 to go at $25.75.

French Serge and Panama Suits—handsome models; sizes up to 54 inches; former prices $27.75 to $139.75; all offered at greatly reduced prices.

Smart Washable Dresses for Women and Small Women, including the extra sizes; pretty checks or plain chambray effects with the new border trimming, in matched or combination colorings; sleeves in three-quarter lengths; skirts full plaited; all the newest shades as well as white and black; dresses we have seen offered elsewhere at $3; special priced Thursday $1.98. No special orders taken.

Handsome Dresses of Chiffon Taffeta or Rajah in plain or pin striped effects; fine lace yokes; tunic or full plaited skirts; all the best shades; sizes for women and misses; regularly sold at $15.75; special priced at $8.75.

Smart Linene Skirts—new tunic plaited models; finely tailored; perfect fitting; value $2.50; to go Thursday at $1.29.

Washable Skirts—tunic or plaited effects; tan, white or checks; 98c to $5.98.

3-Hour Sale—9 to 12 o'Clock

3.75 and $5 Silk Waists 2.43

There'll surely be a rush for these waists tomorrow and we advise you to be one of the first here to get best choice tho the lot is large and should afford all an ample opportunity to get one or more of the waists at the price we name for this 3-hour sale. All of the waists are new, just opened up, and are perfect in every detail. They are in the Dressiest Models made of White China Silk, and in smart Tailored models of Black China, Taffeta and Messaline of elegant quality.

The White China Waists have yokes of real Renaissance; some are elaborated with Irish or Venise laces; high or Dutch neck styles; three-quarter length sleeves.

The Tailored Models are of Black China and Taffeta and have open front or back. The Messalines have a 10-inch side frill front with narrow insertion of cluny.

The sizes are from 34 to 44. The variety of style is large. They are waists that should retail at $3.75 to $5; bought so we could sell them at $2.43.

No mail, C. O. D. or 'phone orders accepted for these waists.

"I see, madam," said I, smiling, "that still I am only asleep and dreaming. But how exquisite a dream, here in this wild country! How unfit here am I, a savage, who introduce the one discordant note into so sweet a dream!"

I gestured to my costume, gestured about me as I took in the details of the long room in which we stood. I swear it was the same as that in which I had seen her at a similar hour in Montreal! It was the same I had first seen in Washington!

Impossible? I am doubted? Ah, but do I not know? Did I not see? Here were the pictures on the walls, the carved Cupids, the candelabra with their prisms, the chairs, the couches! Beyond yonder satin curtains rose the high canopy of the embroidery-covered couch, its fringed drapery reaching almost to the deep pile of the carpets.

Yet not quite the same, it seemed to me. There were some little things missing, just as there were some little things missing from her appearance. For instance, these draperies at the right, which formerly had cut off the Napoleon bed at its end of the room, now were of blankets and not of silk. The bed itself was not piled deep in down, but contained, as I fancied from my hurried glance, a thin mattress, stuffed perhaps with straw. A roll of blankets lay across its foot. As I gazed to the farther extremity of this side of the long suite, I saw other evidences of change. It was indeed as though Helena von Ritz, creature of luxury, woman of an old, luxurious world, exotic of monarchical surroundings, had begun insensibly to slip into the ways of the rude democracy of the far frontiers.

I saw all this; but ere I had finished my first hurried glance I had accepted her, as always one must, just as she was.

"Yes," said she at length, slowly, "yes, I now believe it to be fate."

She had not yet smiled. I took her hand and held it long. I felt glad to see her, and to take her hand; it seemed pledge of friendship; and as things now were shaping, I surely needed a friend.

At last, her face flushing slightly, she disengaged her hand and motioned me to a seat. But still we stood silent for a few moments. "Have you no curiosity?" said she at length.

"I am too happy to have curiosity, my dear madam."

"You will not even ask me why I am here?" she insisted.

"I know. I have known all along. You are in the pay of England. When I missed you at Montreal, I knew you had sailed on the Modeste for Oregon. We knew all this, and planned for it. I have come across by land to meet you. I have waited. I greet you now!"

She looked me now clearly in the face. "I am not sure," said she at length, slowly.

"Not sure of what, madam? When you travel on England's warship," I smiled, "you travel as the guest of England herself. If, then, you are not for England, in God's name, whose friend are you?"

"Whose friend am I?" she answered slowly. "I say to you that I do not know. Nor do I know who is my friend. A friend—what is that? I never knew one!"

"Then be mine. Let me be your friend. You know my history. You know about me and my work. I throw my secret into your hands. You will not betray me? You warned me once, at Montreal. Will you not shield me once again. Come, can you betray a people of whom you can say so much?

"Ah, now you would try to tempt me from a trust which has been reposed in me!"

"Not in the least. I would not have you break your word with Mr. Pakenham; but I know you are here on the same errand as myself. You are to learn facts and report them to Mr. Pakenham—as I am to Mr. Calhoun. Meantime, you have not reported?"

"No, I am not yet ready."

"Certainly not. You are not yet possessed of your facts. You have not yet seen this country. You do not yet know these men—the same savages who once accounted for another Pakenham at New Orleans—hardy as buffaloes, fierce as wolves. Wait and see them come pouring across the mountains into Oregon. Then make your report to this Pakenham. Ask him if England wishes to fight our backwoodsmen once more!"

"You credit me with very much ability!" she smiled.

She dropped into a chair near by a little table, where the light of the tall candles, guttering in their enameled sconces, fell full upon her face. She looked at me fixedly, her eyes dark and mournful in spite of their eagerness.

"Ah, it is easy for you to speak, easy for you who have so rich and full a life—who have all! But I—my hands are empty!" She spread out her curved fingers, looking at them, dropping her hands, pathetically drooping her shoulders.

"All, madam? What do you mean? You see me almost in rags. Beyond the rifle at my cabin, the pistol at my tent, I have scarce more in wealth than what I wear, while you have what you like."

"All but everything!" she murmured; "all but home!"

"Nor have I a home."

"All, except that my couch is empty save for myself and my memories!"

"Not more than mine, nor with sadder memories, madam."

"Why, what do you mean?" she asked me suddenly. "What do you mean?" She repeated it again, as though half in horror.

"Only that we are equal and alike. That we are here on the same errand. That our view of life should be the same."

"What do you mean about home? But tell me, were you not then married?"

"No, I am alone, madam. I never shall be married."

There may have been some slight motion of a hand which beckoned me to a seat at the opposite side of the table. As I sat, I saw her search my face carefully, slowly, with eyes I could not read. At last she spoke, after her frequent fashion, half to herself.

"It succeeded, then!" said she. "Yet I am not happy! Yet I have failed!"

"I pause, madam," said I, smiling, "I await your pleasure."

"Ah, God! Ah, God!" she sighed. "What have I done?" She staggered to her feet and stood beating her hands together, as was her way when perturbed. "What have I done!"

"Threlka!" I heard her call, half chokingly. The old servant came hurriedly.

"Wine, tea, anything, Threlka!" She dropped down again opposite me, panting, and looking at me with wide eyes.

"Tell me, do you know what you have said?" she began.

"No, madam. I grieve if I have caused you any pain."

"Well, then you are noble; when look, what pain I have caused you! Yet not more than myself. No, not so much. I hope not so much!"

Truly there is thought which passes from mind to mind. Suddenly the thing in her mind sped across to mine. I looked at her suddenly, in my eyes also, perhaps, the horror which I felt.

"It was you!" I exclaimed. "It was you! Ah, now I begin to understand! How could you? You parted us! You parted me from Elizabeth!"

"Yes," she said regretfully, "I did it. It was my fault."

I rose and drew apart from her, unable to speak. She went on.

"But I was not then as I am now. See, I was embittered, reckless, desperate. I was only beginning to think—I only wanted time. I did not really mean to do all this. I only thought— Why, I had not yet known you a day nor her an hour. 'Twas all no more than half a jest."

"How could you do it?" I demanded. "Yet that is no more strange. How did you do it?"

The Telephone a Convenience in Emergencies

MY LADY is dressed for calling or for an afternoon or evening party, and a shower makes a conveyance necessary. If there is no telephone in the house, how may a carriage be obtained?

The ability to use the telephone when such a real emergency arises is worth the cost of the service many times over.

The Bell System reaches every metropolitan center in the country. It renders efficient telephone service through fair and foul weather, day and night, anywhere.

Have you a Telephone?

HOME NEWS.

Of Interest to Everyone in Plainfield.

In every newspaper in the country you will read statements made by people living in out-of-the-way places, who are supposed to have been cured or derived great benefit from some wonderful remedy or "cure-all." But here in Plainfield we only publish statements made by Plainfield people—the testimony of your friends, neighbors and fellow-townsmen.

Mrs. C. Rosseter, 127 Watchung avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I had severe backaches and occasional attacks of rheumatism. Being told that Doan's Kidney Pills were very effective in cases of this nature and believing that my trouble arose from disordered kidneys, I procured a box of this remedy from Randolph's Pharmacy. I soon found relief and since that time I have always kept Doan's Kidney Pills in the house. Whenever I feel out of sorts, I take a few doses of this preparation and I am soon feeling good. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

REFORMED CHURCH'S GENERAL SYNOD MEETS

The 104th annual convention of the General Synod of the Reformed church in America opened in the Hotel Bristol, Asbury Park, this morning. The Rev. Dr. James I. Vance, pastor of the North Reformed church, Newark, the largest congregation of that communion in the State, is being advanced as a successor to the Rev. Dr. W. H. Demarest, of New Brunswick, as president. It is understood that a majority of the delegates to the convention favor his candidacy.

Those who are present as pastoral and lay delegates include John Venters and L. Floss, of Newark; J. T. Landsdale, of Oak Tree; Frederick B. Pullan, of East Orange; the Revs. John B. Church and John Smith, of Paterson; the Rev. J. S. Hogan, of Jersey City; the Rev. John Rudolph, of Hoboken; the Rev. John Bombin, of Hackensack; the Rev. Edward Dawson, of West Hoboken; the Rev. Thomas Powell Vernoll, of Paterson; the Rev. Abram Duryee, of North Hackensack; Hamilton V. Meeks, of Weehawken, and J. R. Vanderbeck, of Paterson. Rev. John Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, this city, is present as a spectator.

The business session of the body is being held in library Hall and the special religious services will be conducted in the Grand Avenue Reformed church.

Plainfielders in Golf Tournev.

Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton led the second eight in the qualifying round of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association championship at Montclair, yesterday, with a score of 99. Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers was also in the second eight with a score of 101. The play is being continued today.

GOVERNORS MEDDLESOME

The members of the local Princeton Club gathered at the hunt club about 9 o'clock, and prior to the smoker, a short busines meeting was held to receive reports of the secretary and treasurer, C. Ames Brooks, and elect officers. Henry J. Cochran was elected president, J. Whitney Baker vice-president and C. Ames Brooks secretary and treasurer. Duncan W. Taylor, J. P. Murray and D. H. Barrows were appointed a nominating committee for next year.

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan was chosen toastmaster for the evening's festivities which followed, and he made a capital one. In a purely informal manner he introduced the various speakers, frequently eliciting shouts of laughter and applause by his witticism. He had a gentle knock for various members of the club and all were received good naturedly. After the speechmaking a buffet lunch was served and at an early hour this morning, the happy affair terminated.

A feature of the evening was the instrumental music furnished by Fred Van Epps on the banjo and Joseph Denny on the piano. The spirited playing put everyone in good humor for singing popular college and other songs.

A Vesper Service.

The Sunday vesper service of the Young Women's Christian Association will be held on June 5, at 4 o'clock, on the piazza of the association building. There will be an informal song service. F. H. Andrews will speak on "Silver Bay" and there will be a violin solo.

Miss Brugiere's Recital.

Inadvertently a premature notice of a song recital by Miss Mathilde L. Brugiere appeared in this paper last night. Miss Brugiere's recital will not take place until Saturday evening, June 4, at the Hartridge auditorium. A classic program will be rendered by this capable artist.

Council Meets Tonight.

The Common Council will hold a special meeting this evening to consider several ordinances that could not be taken up at the last meeting of that body.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Soverign, of Regent street, have returned from an extended trip in Pennsylvania.

To The People.

From an examination of the Fire Department and the reports of the Chief, it is believed that Plainfield is lacking in sufficient equipment for fighting fires.

If a big fire were to occur, Plainfield might be wiped off the map. Complacent apathy will not accomplish anything. We must have these things and better lights for our business district.

Come to the Board of Trade meeting Thursday evening, June 2, at 8 o'clock, 109 Park Avenue. Join in and hear the discussion.

An authority on Fire Fighting from Brooklyn will address the Board.

Our officials should act in these matters right now.

WILLIAM JEFFERY, President.

THE HORSE IS KING IN PLAINFIELD TODAY

Annual Three Days' Exhibition is Begun with Over 400 Entries to Be Judged.

Lowering clouds during the early part of the day, threatening rain at any minute, indicated a small attendance on the opening day of the seventh annual exhibition of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, but when the first class, No. 15, three pairs of harness horses (novice), was called, there was a prospect of a large assemblage of patrons.

The handsome show grounds on Woodland avenue and Randolph road never looked more attractive. Everything was as spick and span as one could desire. The dense foliage and trees surrounding the ring and clubhouse stood out in all their beauty, and making an attractive background for the blooded equines as they passed in review before the judges and spectators.

The threatening weather had an appreciable effect in preventing the usual show in handsome gowns, raincoats being in order as a preventive from the elements. However, before the week is over society women will doubtless have ample opportunity to display their finery.

This year's show promises to be the best in the history of the club. This is no doubt due to the fact that Judge Moore and J. W. Harriman will not be here to take all the big prizes. In consequence the competition is sure to be keen among the other exhibitors, who have made many entries.

Among the well known exhibitors are Paul A. Sorg, Tichenor-Grand Stables, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, George Watson, John Doyle, C. W. McCutchen, W. J. Buttfield, Udo and Carl Fleschmann, Peter Hauck, Jr., Tonzo Sauvage, Miss Mabel P. Hooley, J. E. Davis, Frederick Bull, Mrs. L. A. D. Percival, Rufus C. Finch, Joseph Ryan, Edward Griffith, Emil Seelig, DeWitt C. Flanagan, Hugh Gormley, Robert A. Fairbairn and Mrs. J. B. McKay, in addition to a host of other exhibitors.

Those who have taken boxes for the week are Carl Fleischmann, S. A. Cruikshank, H. C. Irons, J. C. Gilbert, Gilbert Fletcher, C. Wesley Holland, Rufus C. Finch, L. W. Serrell, Andrew Morrison, E. H. Ladd, Jr., D. F. Ginna, Charles J. Fisk, E. S. Hooley, L. K. Hyde, George P. Mellick, L. E. Waring, Frederick Bull, Harry G. Runkle, Paul A. Sorg, Otto H. Kahn, C. W. McCutchen, W. J. Buttfield, Edward F. Lowe, Robert A. Fairbairn, Tonzo Sauvage, Benjamin A. Hegeman, Mrs. Chapman Fisk, Henry L. McGee, William L. Saunders, George G. Rohlig, O. T. Waring.

FORTY BIRTHS IN MAY AND THIRTY-TWO DEATHS

Reports showing the sanitary condition of the city to be good were presented at the June meeting of the Board of Health, last night. These cases of communicable disease were reported:

Scarlet fever, 5; diphtheria, 3; chicken-pox, 4; tuberculosis, 1; measles, 5; total, 18.

The following inspections were reported for the month of May:

Plumbing and sewer, 123; milk supply, 108; general work, 829; total, 1,060.

The regular sample of city water was taken for analysis, and the result showed it to be of the usual excellent quality. Thirty-three samples of milk and eleven samples of cream were analyzed during the month. The milk was of better quality and the bacteria lower than at the preceding month. The new milk ordinance, which was adopted by the board at the April meeting, will go into effect June 6.

Enamel permit signs have been obtained to be placed on all ice, milk, garbage, offal and scavenger wagons in Plainfield, similar to the ones used by the city, except that the color is yellow. These returns were made to the office during the month: Marriages, 15; births, 40; stillbirths, 1; deaths, 32.

Plumbers' bonds were received from the following and ordered filed: A. S. Giles, A. M. Griffen, Daniel Hogan, Edward C. Houseman, P. F. Kane, Louis Morel. The following permits were granted:

Barber shops—Harry G. Porsello, Brown & Hill, E. B. Maynard, George Richter, Frank Caruso, Joseph Tumolo, Demenico Lombard, Donato Di Lonardo, Frank S. Trivigno, P. F. Keiderling, Joseph Clement, Joseph Bamberger, George Kesselring, W. B. Randolph, W. T. Bowzer, Charles Suhr, Antonio Scavuzzo, Ferrerro Pontelio, Spencer Kelly, Alfred Seidel, Raffey Tozze, Charles G. Mann, William Feiring Nicolo Rocco. Milk—W. W. Wilson, Peter Zimmerman, G. W. Henry, W. T. Seal, Miles S. Wilson, Charles F. Debele, Milton Miller. Garbage—John Giles, Freeman Strait. To remove dead animals—An application was received from the Trenton Rending Company, to remove dead animals. This was referred to the assistant health officer, with power to grant permit if the apparatus was satisfacory.

During the month, twelve houses with forty-six rooms, were disinfected.

Borough Police Court.

On a complaint of Mrs. Rebecca Levette, Michael Condon was arraigned on the charge of disorderly conduct before Recorder Dolliver this morning. At the request of William G. DeMeza, Condon's attorney, the case was postponed one week. Sentence was suspended on Michael Young, of Warrenville, who was arrested for drunkenness on Tuesday night. Lewis Levine, on the charge of collecting rags without a license, was held for trial on Saturday morning. Levine was represented by S. S. Swackhammer.

SANE FOURTH ORDINANCE

Only Three Voted Against Passage of Measure in the Common Council.

OTHER IMPORTANT ACTION.

Proposed Ordinances Favorably Acted Upon Are One for Amusements' Fees and Another for Combustibles.

The Common Council in special session, last night, with all the members present except Mr. Buxton, passed the ordinance on two readings providing for a "safe and sane Fourth of July." The ordinance was modified considerable from the original one, the principal change being that it permits local dealers to sell fireworks of certain descriptions, but the discharge of firearms or fireworks is prohibited on the public streets or highways. Private property must be used for that purpose, and displays are restricted.

The Mayor is given authority to issue permits within twenty-four hours of July 4, for displays of any kind, during the hours of 6 a. m. and 12 p. m. on July 4, and a fine of $20 is provided for violations of the ordinance.

This ordinance was passed on two readings after the members gave a hearing to local dealers in fireworks. It was understood that after this year the sale of fireworks would be prohibited here, the amendment to the ordinance now being for the purpose of allowing the dealers to dispose of their stock not only in this city but to outside nearby towns. Councilmen C. C. Randolph, Frank Randolph and F. L. Montgomery voted against the ordinance.

Harry Dreier, who was present when the ordinance was passed, afterwards thanked the members for their consideration, adding that after July 4 he would be glad to meet with the committee and give such information as desired regarding dangerous fireworks and firearms that their sale in the future could be prohibited.

An ordinance intending to regulate and control the storage and handling of gasolene, naptha and other combustable materials was introduced by Councilman F. L. Holt and was placed on first reading. A public hearing will be granted on July 5, and notices will be sent to the owners of the local auto garages, as well as the dry cleaners, so that they may have an opportunity to express their opinions.

The ordinance regulates the storage of gasolene, etc., in any amount, and safeguards the interests of not only property-owners, but those who use gasolene, naptha and similar oils. It also provides for the kinds of tanks to be used, and the material of which they are to be made. The code is drafted after the one used in Louisville, Ky.

Another ordinance offered by Mr. Holt and passed on two readings and ordered advertised, was an amendment to the dog ordinance. The

SLIDING SCALE TICKETS

New Arrangement for Commuters on the Jersey Central Railroad.

THE SCHEDULE OF INCREASE.

One Cent a Day More Says General Passenger Agent but the Monthly Rate Will Be Gradually Lowered.

Commuters on the Central Railroad of New Jersey have been notified that they will have to pay more for monthly tickets beginning July 1. The company filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington yesterday a new schedule of rates to go into effect on that date.

There is to be a general advance all along the line ranging from about five to twelve per cent. over the present rates, and, as in the case of the increases made by other railroads running out of New York, the new burden falls heaviest on those who travel the shorter distances.

In the new tariff filed the company announces it will continue to sell monthly tickets on a sliding scale, the rate decreasing with each succeeding month of continuous travel.

W. C. Hope, general passenger agent of the company, said the increase meant an average of one cent a day to each commuter.

The increases of interest here are shown by the following comparison of the rates for monthly tickets:

	Old Rate.	New Rate.
Fanwood	$7.25	$7.50
Netherwood	7.55	7.80
Plainfield	7.60	7.85
Grant Ave.	7.90	8.15
Clinton Ave.	7.95	8.20
Dunellen	8.10	8.35
Lincoln	8.35	8.60
Bound Brook	8.55	8.80

MUNICIPAL WATER PLANT ADVOCATED

An agitation for a municipal water plant is being made at Cranford, and to give the voters an opportunity to express their opinions a public meeting will be held in Grant School there next Wednesday evening.

This was arranged for by the Township Committee last night, when a report of the Board of Health was read stating the present supply is free from impurities.

Committeeman Smith said that he had data in his possession, showing the advantages of municipal ownership. He stated that from what he was able to learn, the expenses of building the system there would not exceed $250,000. At the public meeting several engineers will make addresses on the subject.

Township Clerk J. B. Warner, who yesterday became postmaster, resigned his office in the committee. Alvin R. Denman was named to succeed him.

HE PLEADS SELF-DEFENSE

Counsel for Youthful Slayer of Woman Claims He was Attacked with Knife.

BOY LED ASTRAY, HE SAYS.

Offer of Plea of Murder in the Second Degree is Refused by the Prosecuting Attorney.

(Reported by Thomas M. Muir.)

The second day's session of the trial of John V. Buckley for the alleged murder of Mrs. Fred Covely presented a surprise not alone to the spectators but to the prosecuting attorney in the Somerset County court room in Somerville today. This official as well as those who have heard the preliminaries of the trial expected that a plea of insanity would be entered by Counselor Robert Newton Crane as a special line of defense. But they were all disappointed when Mr. Crane claimed in his opening address to the jury that Buckley had acted in self-defense and that he would proceed to show that fact as well as the reasons.

Lawyer Crane, who is being assisted in the trial of the case by former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, declared this morning that he would produce evidence proving conclusively that the young man was the victim of a woman's wiles and corroborative statements would be forthcoming. He held up to ridicule the alleged attitude of Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, excoriated Chief Marshal Weiss and the others of the North Plainfield authorities for holding the lad up to the gaze of the populace which it was alleged wanted to hang him to the nearest telegraph pole and further declared that no youth of the years of Buckley could have contemplated the crime.

The courtroom was hushed as the tones of Mr. Crane's torrent of words was let loose. "How," he asked, "could anybody doubt that this boy was misled by the woman whom he is accused of wantonly slaying? Here she had led him on to believe that she would become his wife, taught him things about life of which he was ignorant and finally threatened to carve him to pieces with a butcher knife as he approached on the morning of the alleged murder. No! gentlemen of the jury, the young man whom some people of North Plainfield claim to be a cold blooded murderer simply defended himself from the attack of an infuriated and jealous woman." Mr. Crane finished his opening speech at 1:30.

Lawyer Crane called seventeen witnesses to prove Buckley's previous good reputation. Then he put the slayer himself, on the stand. Buckley was cool and collected and made a good impression as he told his version of his deed and his flight.

The first witness called this morning was County Detective George W. Totton, who described in detail his connection with the case from the time he was called by the North Plainfield police. He stated that he was present when Buckley was captured at the Menagh farm and that one of his first remarks was that he had killed Mrs. Covely and had intended to do away with himself, but that his nerve had failed. The witness identified a statement shown him by the prosecutor as one Buckley had made soon after he was placed in a cell. The prisoner gave it voluntarily, he said, and it was taken down by Borough Clerk Fred Martin with Chief Weiss acting as witness. Alvah A. Clark, of counsel for the defense, objected to the admission of the statement as evidence, on the ground that it conflicted with similar testimony given yesterday.

The court ruled the statement in and it was ordered read. This was the first that any of the contents had been made public and they bore out numerous suppositions that have been advanced as to Buckley's reason for the shooting.

In it the prisoner said that on November 2 last he kissed Mrs. Covely and then she kissed him back, adding "you know the rest." From then on, the statement continued, the two had been intimate for nearly six months. Mrs. Covely practically put her husband out of the house for Buckley, and the latter said he worked night and day to get enough money to secure a divorce for her so they could be married. She started going to dances and other social affairs and staying out nights against his wishes, he said, and this led to frequent quarrels.

He blamed Lizzie Novotny for inducing Mrs. Covely to go to social affairs and declared that had it not been for her intervention they would have continued good friends.

POLITICIANS STIRRED BY CAMPAIGN CIRCULAR

Both the "organization" and the "progressive" leaders here are accusing each other of being responsible for what they term "underhanded mud-slinging campaign tactics," in sending broadcast through the district a circular containing an editorial appearing last Sunday in a Newark paper scoring Charles N. Fowler. The editorial flays the Fifth district congressman as a sore-head and each voter in Union county at least has received a copy through the mails with a New York postmark.

"I want to say right here," said Reupblican County Chairman Frank H. Smith, the chief lieutenant of Senator Kean, "that the first knowledge I had of this was when I got a copy through the mail yesterday. I want to say that I had nothing to do with it, neither did the county committee. No, I don't know where it came from or who is responsible for it."

City Clerk James T. MacMurray, Mr. Fowler's chief lieutenant, stigmatized is as "a dirty piece of business," adding: "I think I know where it came from but I do not care to say at this time. It has made hundreds of more votes will be gain- and if they keep up those tactics, hrundreds of more votes will be gained for him."

The editorial from the Newark Sunday Call follows:

"It is an amusing illustration of the vagaries of current politics that Representative Fowler, of this State, is advocated for re-election as a particularly meritorious person, because he is opposed to the majority of his party in the House of Representatives and has been refused advancement in committee appointments. The plain truth is that Fowler is a kicker because he was turned down for his inefficiency and neglect of duty. He has given his duties no proper attention, his absenteeism has been notorious, his foolish proposals for currency reform have been laughed out of the House, his attempt to influence voters by promises of public gifts have been a scandal, while his failure to keep these promises has been ridiculed throughout the country."

THOUSANDS FOR CHARITY

Mrs. M. A. Edgerton Bequeaths $156,000 to Local Benevolences and Also Handsomely Remembers Her Advisors and Employees.

HOSPITAL RECEIVES $50,000.

Never have the charities of the community been so well remembered as they have by the will of Mrs. Minnie E. Edgerton, whose funeral took place yesterday and whose last testament will be admitted to probate next week. In all, she has bequeathed One Hundred and Fifty-six Thousand Dollars to local benevolences.

Muhlenberg Hospital, the Charity Organization Society, the Children's Home, the Young Men's Christian Association, the Young Women's Christian Association, the King's Daughters' Baby Camp, the King's Daughters' Day Nursery, the Plainfield-North Plainfield Anti-Tuberculosis Society, the Plainfield Playground Commission, the Police Pension Fund, the Firemen's Pension Fund, Grace Episcopal church and other worthy causes are the objects of Mrs. Edgerton's generosity. Large Large amounts are left, by other bequests, to private individuals for the relief of those in sickness and distress.

Moreover, Mrs. Edgerton remembered all those who had had confidential business relations with her as well as her close personal friends and her employees. Among the number who will be benefitted are her physicians, her spiritual, legal, medical and confidential business, advisers, her nurse, coachman, gardener and other household servants.

Following are the public bequests:

Muhlenberg Hospital ... "$25,000 of which to be applied to building a Maternity ward, and $25,000 of which to be invested and the net annual income applied toward the maintenance of the ward, the ward to be called 'Closson-Edgerton Ward,' in memory of my brother and my son."	$50,000.00
To the Misses Isabel, Mary and Florence Tweedy, and Mrs. Dexter Tiffany, in trust for the benefit of such poor as they may deem worthy	25,000.00
Charity Organization Society	10,000.00
The Children's Home	5,000.00
Young Women's Christian Association	10,000.00
Young Men's Christian Association	10,000.00
Grace Episcopal Church	10,000.00
King's Daughters' Baby Camp and Day Nursery	10,000.00
Plainfield Tuberculosis Society	10,000.00
City of Plainfield for use of Board of Play Ground Commissioners	5,000.00
Plainfield Fire Department Pension Fund Association	5,000.00
Chief of Police and his successors in office, in trust for sick and disabled policemen, &c.	5,000.00
To Misses Isabel, Mary and Florence Tweedy, in trust for special purpose	1,000.00

No one is in a position to state with any degree of exactness what estate Mrs. Edgerton left. It is estimately, however, that her fortune amounted to at least one million dollars. This included the handsome home, "Norwood," on East Front street. This estate, one of the show places of the city, is devised to Joseph Tate, of Tate & Hayes, New York brokers. He is named as the executor of the will and in the event of his death, Mrs. Edgerton's counsel, Craig A. Marsh, is appointed to serve in that capacity. The property on East Front street, left to Mr. Tate, is said to be worth over one hundred thousand dollars. Mr. Tate was the cashier in the late James T. Closson's business house in New York for years and when the banker died a little over a year ago he bequeathed the business to him. Arrangements are being made by Mr. Tate to take possession of Norwood in order to be on hand to administer the estate.

When Mr. Closson died he left his entire estate to his only surviving relative, Mrs. Edgerton, his sister. Mr. Tate was the executor. Since then until her death, as during the life-time of her brother, she has given generously to local charity. She was unostentatious in her benevolences and while all her friends were aware of her splendid deeds the general public never had any inkling of it.

Mr. Closson was a banker and for many years until his death was presi-

MISS GIDDES THE BRIDE OF FREDERICK PORTER.

Miss Anna E. Giddes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Giddes, of Harris Lane, was united in marriage last night to Frederick Porter, of Elm place, this city. The ceremony was performed in the presence of about 150 guests by the Rev. Thomas Lamont, a retired clergyman, of Bound Brook.

Miss Nellie Giddes, of this city, was maid of honor and Miss Linbarger, of Bound Brook, was the bridemaid. The best man was Albert L. Giddes, of this city. The wedding march was played by Miss Naylor and Russell Conroy.

Following the ceremony there was a wedding supper and dancing, after which the bridal couple departed on its honeymoon. At its completion Mr. and Mrs. Porter will reside in this city. The bridegroom is connected with the Rushmore Dynamo Works.

Changes at Telegraph Office.

Commencing yesterday the local office of the Western Union will remain open day and night, Sundays and holidays, in fact it will never be closed. Two operators will be on duty daytime and one at night. The new order of things is the result of the telegraph company taking over the business from the New Jersey Central.

MORRISTOWN'S P. M. LOSES HIS POSITION

Political contributions are believed to have been responsible for the shortage found in the accounts of Postmaster George L. Clarke, of Morristown. Mr. Clarke has been relieved of the office by postoffice inspectors, and his assistant, George Marsh, is in charge. Mr. Clarke has made good his shortage, which is said to be $2,000, to his bondsmen, former Vice Chancellor Pitney, Frederic Muchmore, David P. McClellan and Surrogate Young, by giving them a second mortgage on his property. The bondsmen in turn have made good to the government.

Clarke is a nervous wreck, and had not been to his office for several days before the inspectors dropped in. So ill was he when asked to sign the mortgage to his bondsmen that he had to make his mark on the legal instrument. Friends of the postmaster declare that he contributed heavily for campaign purposes. He was popular among the Republican leaders.

Clarke was appointed postmaster in 1901, succeeding John E. Fennell, who was also found short $2,000 in his accounts. The salary is $3,200 and the office handles about $60,000 a year.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Lutheran church meets this afternoon at the parsonage, 2 Stone street.

The Young Friend's Association will hold a sociable in the meeting house on Watchung avenue on Friday night.

The Y. P. S. C. E. held its consecration meeting last night followed by the monthly business meeting at Hope chapel.

The battalion of the First Baptist church will meet at the church tomorrow night for drill and the recruiting of members.

Preparatory services were held at Warren chapel last night. A communion service will be held Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

The second exhibition drill and entertainment of the Boys' Brigade of Warren chapel will be held at the Park Club, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

The prayer meeting at the First Baptist church last night was under the auspices of the Men's Conference Class. The leader was Benjamin J. Phelps, and the motto-theme was "God, Saviour, Victory."

The first quarterly conference of Grace Methodist church was held last night immediately after the prayer meeting. Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, District Superintendent, spoke at the meeting and presided at the conference.

The choir of Hope chapel under the direction of Mrs. L. R. Howard, the organist, and Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, plans to present a play during the latter part of June. The title of the play and the date of its presentation will be anouncedin shortly. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the music fund.

CENSUS FOLK SUSPECT 100,000,000 POPULATION.

Washington, June 2.—The Census Bureau has begun the actual work of enumerating the population from the individual census cards made up from the returns, and Director E. Dana Durand declared Tuesday that the complete census of some cities would be announced within a fortnight.

The individual cards, the compilation of which is in the hands of several hundred experts, if piled one upon another would make a stack sixteen miles high, according to Mr. Durand's estimate. This estimate is made upon the bases that the population of the United States will prove to be in the neighborhood of 100,000,000.

LEHIGH INCREASES COMMUTATION FARE

In consonance with the action of other Eastern lines, the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company Tuesday filed with the Intrstate Commerce Commission advances in its rates on commutation passenger traffic. The new tariff applies to all stations between New York city and Bound Brook, and will become effective July 1, 1910.

In practically every instance of change the tariff shows an increase. The advance, however, is comparatively slight when considered in connection with that made by the New York, New Haven and Hartford, or with that made by the Erie. The general increase is a trifle over 5 per cent. on the various kinds of commutation fares.

On sixty-trip monthly tickets the average advance is 3.76 per cent.; on the fifty-trip family tickets 4.65 per cent., and on ten-trip tickets 6.95 per cent. On the sixty-trip tickets the increases range from 2.9 per cent. to 5.4 per cent.; on the fifty-trip tickets from 2.1 per cent. to 20.8 per cent., and on the ten-trip tickets from 3.8 per cent. to 17.4 per cent.

WAX FLOWERS AROUSE IRE OF CIVIL WAR VETS

General J. Madison Drake, of Elizabeth, is the object of severe condemnation by Grand Army men because of his action in substituting wax flowers for natural blooms in decroating the graves of soldiers in Evergreen Cemetery in Elizabeth. Indignation was expressed on all sides when the members of Ulric Dahlgren Post reached the soldiers' plot yesterday afternoon and found that, although they had insisted that the Board of Freeholders, for which General Drake is supervisor of soldiers' and sailors' graves, furnished them with real flowers, the supervisor had also "planted" the was affairs.

The old soldiers promptly uprooted the imitation blooms and threw them away and Tuesday Captain Alfred Atkins, past commander of the Department of New Jersey, G. A. R., issued a statement in which he denounces General Drake's action as insulting. Replying to the criticism heaped upon him, General Drake yesterday said to a reporter:

"Everyone I spoke to said they thought the flowers were fine. I expected, however, that some crank like Atkins would start a row. Atkins doesn't like me and I don't like him."

CHEATED THE COURTS BY TAKING HIS LIFE.

Perth Amboy, June 2.—While the police of Perth Amboy and Woodbridge were looking for Stephen Prusztal, who was wanted on charges of atrocious assault and bigamy, the man was lying dead at the bottom of a clay pit, filled with water, on the farm of Henry Maurer, in this city.

The charges against Prusztal were made by his wife. Rev. Francis Gross, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Hungary, assisted in prosecuting them.

Prusztal's second marriage took place two years ago in the church of which Father Gross is pastor, and it has been found that he had a wife living in Hungary, to whom he was married six years ago. Three days ago Prusztal attempted to shoot his wife, and when neighbors interfered he fled. It is thought that he killed himself by drowning on Saturday, as he had not been seen alive since that day.

TWO POLICEMEN SUSPENDED.

New Brunswick, June 2.—The Police Committee of Common Council has suspended Policemen James Wright and John Gleason, pending a trial by the committee upon charges preferred. Wright is charged with being intoxicated and failing to report. Gleason is charged with clubbing William Francis, son of the late Alderman John Francis.

Francis resisted arrest and Gleason used his club in protecting himself against several of Francis' friends, who helped him fight off the officer.

Francis had his head badly bruised and was sent to St. Peter's Hospital. Wright was tried and dismissed several months ago for being intoxicated. Policeman Lyons was also tried at the time for clubbing a man in the Sixth Ward, and upon some of the Democratic members of Common Council refusing to vote to dismiss him, the Police Committee had the action dismissing Wright rescinded, and reinstated him.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Mayor William A. Sanford, who was scheduled to appear before Justice Rogers last night on charges of neglect of performing his duties as mayor, called on the justice yesterday afternoon and arranged to furnish bail for his appearance before the Middlesex County grand jury. This was satisfactory to Justice Rogers and the hearing was dispensed with. This will probably be the last of the controversy as it is the general impression that nothing will come of the charges.

Local Christian Endeavorers are anticipating a profitable meeting tonight when the Plainfield City Union will conduct a rally in the Seventh-Day Baptist church. One of the chief features on the program is an address by the Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, Plainfield. Mr. Maguire will speak on his missionary experiences in Africa.

Michael Gallagher has instituted a suit before Justice Sedam in New Brunswisk to recover $17.50 from Marshal Benson, of the borough. The sum represents damage alleged to have been inflicted by Benson to a horse and wagon belonging to Gallagher.

Clarence Sofield has returned to his home at Port Richmond, Staten Island, after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Sofield. The former has completely recovered from his attack of scarlet fever.

Rev. Henry N. Jordan attended the annual reunion of Union Theological Seminary last week.

Mrs. Philip Jenner has been entertaining friends from New York.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Manager Alberts has decided to put a ball team in the field for Saturday afternoon games. The opening game will be played one week from Saturday. It is expected that the Plainfield team will be the visitors as Manager Alberts and Dorflinger are arranging a series of Saturday games.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Muir and children, of Newark, have been visiting Mrs. Muir's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Meyer, of Front street.

The B. and E. Co. are arranging to hold a drawing of a $5 gold piece in the near future. Proceeds will be devoted to the new engine fund.

A meeting of all the committees appointed for the Fourth of July celebration will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Excelsior Hall.

William Walpole, who has been visiting his grandfather, Robert Walpole, of Front stret, has returned to his home in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert MacCauley, of Westfield avenue, have been entertaining relatives from Newark.

The regular monthly communion will be held at the morning service Sunday at the Baptist church.

The public schools of the township will close for the summer vacation on Thursday, June 23.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

On next Sunday the South Plainfield B. B. C. will cross bats with the Delta A. C., of Fords. Local fans have been looking forward to this game since the first of the season as last year the Fords aggregation put it over us sixteen to three, but to do it this year the yhave got to travel some.

A strawberry and ice cream festival will be held on Tuesday, June 7, in Washington hall. It will be under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society.

South Plainfield was certainly hitting the ball last Sunday. They got eight two-baggers out of eleven hits.

The regular monthly meeting of the Township Committee will be held next Tuesday night at New Market.

P. C. Johnson, of Plainfield avenue, is having a number of improvements made to his property.

A large number of people attended the strawberry sociable held at Marconier chapel last night.

Miss Nellie Geary, of this place, is spending a few days with friends in New York.

Miss Mary Gallagher, of Metuchen, is spending the week with friends here.

Miss Grace Norman was the guest of friends in Plainfield yesterday.

Local sportsmen report the bass season to be the best in years.

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

Miss Susan Creed died Monday afternoon at her home in Canal road, South Bound Brook, after a long illness. She was about seventy-seven years old.

Miss Emily Sheals, of New York, was entertained Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Wilkinson, in Elizabeth street, South Bound Brook.

Miss Viola Cowin, of Brooklyn, was entertained Monday at the home of Miss Florence Cowins, at Prospect and Elizabeth streets, South Bound Brook.

ALDERMAN RESIGNS TO OPEN A HOTEL.

Westfield, June 2.—Because he intends opening this week a hotel in which there is to be a barroom Councilman John S. Schmitt, of the Second Ward, who has served in that body for several years, Tuesday night handed in his resignation.

"I am sorry I have to do this," said Schmitt, "but I do not think that a man in the hotel business or a man who has corporate interests should serve in such a body as this."

The resignation was accepted, and Clarence B. Smith was named to fill the vacancy. Mr. Smith is a large property owner here. He moved to Westfield from Jersey City several years ago.

After accepting the resignation of Mr. Schmitt Council transferred to him the license of Lawrence Powers. The retiring councilman invited the board to dinner in his new place next Monday night.

EDITORIAL!
"Convenience" as Exemplified By Our Store Arrangement.
To make the purchasing of merchandise an easy and economical process for you is the great aim of this store.
Have you ever studied the arrangement of the departments? If you have not, upon your next visit note the manner in which they lead one into another.
This is no haphazard grouping of merchandise, nothing has been left to chance. The position of each stock has been selected with care and calculation.
Allied goods—those which you are apt to require at the same time—materials needed for the same garment—articles which go to make up the same outfit—have been brought as near together as possible.
In this, as in all else, we have sought how best we might serve your interests and convenience.

PLEA FOR MORE LIBERAL EXCISE PRIVILEGES.

Elizabeth, June 1.—Declaring that "we have the right to regulate our lives as we see fit," C. J. Hexamer, president of the National German-American Alliance, made a plea for more liberal excise privileges at a meeting of the local branch in Turn Hall Tuesday night. Other speakers were John Klingerstein, of Newark; former Mayor Adolph Lankering, of Hoboken, and Ernest Stahl, of this city. All spoke along the same lines as did Mr. Hexamer. The latter in the course of his talk said:

"As devoted citizens of this country, the German-American Alliance hold themselves second to none in their devotion to the cause of true temperance and to all that makes for the sanctity and purity of the home and decency and order in the State. But we are bitterly opposed to the passage of any law that destroys our rights of personal liberty, and for the protection of those rights we stand united as one body.

"We believe that one of the wisest acts of our forefathers was the separation of church and State, and we deeply deplore the pernicious activity of certain religious denominations as political agents. As free and sovereign members of a free and sovereign people, we believe that we have the right to regulate our lives as we see fit. The right to drink our wine and our beer we consider as absolute an attribute of human liberty as is the right to buy food. The divine right of each to pursue his own good in his own way should not be sacrificed to the fears and the fanaticism of those who regard or pretend to regard drink as a crime.

"We German-Americans have never allowed our love of food and drink to degenerate into intemperance or to interfere with the good of the community, and we regard prohibition as an unrighteous invasion of our manhood rights and of human freedom. We, Americans of German birth, object to prohibition, because it is a sad blow aimed at the fundamental principle of righteousness, sacred to every manly man.

"Let us hope that the spirit of liberty and American fair play will soon cause a reaction against the waves of fanaticism that is now spreading over our land, so that laws will no longer be enacted to crush the individual freedom of intelligent minorities. Especially should republican institutions be jealously guarded against the influence of the hysterical shrieks of fanaticism."

Mr. Klingerstein declared that the German-Americans are not hypocrites and that they ask no political favors of any one.

DID "WALL STREET" MEN HAVE ADVANCE NEWS?

Washington, June 2.—Official Washington is intensely interested in an effort to find out just who "made the killing" on Wall street Tuesday, that must have been based on advance information of the government's decision to enjoin the Western railroads from increasing rates. That Attorney-General Wickersham's carefully guarded secret, which was shrouded in deep mystery, even after rumors and reports had been afloat for hours, must have been known by "somebody," is indicated by the fact that "selling orders" were wired from Washington to New York early in the day and big profits were taken when the news became public.

Despite the fact that Attorney-General Wickersham and the President reached a conclusion to act at their conference Tuesday and to keep the fact a secret, the news leaked into the street.

Wall street was flooded with selling orders from Washington from the time the exchange opened. "Somebody knew" and there are several persons who would like to know who that "somebody" is.

Spiced Rhubarb.

Peel and slice two and one-half pounds of rhubarb; sprinkle one pound of sugar over it and let it stand over night. In the morning drain off the syrup and add one cupful of sugar and one-half a cupful each of vinegar and water. Drop into this syrup small bags filled with a mixture of spices, one-third of a teaspoonful each of cloves, mace, allspice and ginger and one teaspoonful of cinnamon. Boil until the syrup begins to thicken, then take out the bags and add the rhubarb and cook one hour. This keeps well and is a delicious relish with cold meats.

$25 TO SETTLE SUIT.

Washington, N. J., June 2.—A suit for damages for false imprisonment has been settled by Edward Applebaum, manager of a dry goods store here, by paying Marcus Kuchner, of Oxford, $25. Kuchner, through his attorney, Oscar Jeffery, brought action for $150. Upon the advice of his attorney, former Prosecutor M. A. Stryker, Applebaum settled the case.

Some weeks ago Kuchner, who is a track walker at Oxford, purchased a bill of goods at the department store. He tendered his pay check in settlement, and was given the change. Applebaum afterward claimed he had made a mistake by giving Kuchner $5 more than was coming to him. This the track walker denied.

Applebaum then made a complaint before Justice of the Peace J. R. Lindabury and had Kuchner arrested. Marshal C. N. Shrope locked the Oxford citizen in the town jail for two hours, when he gave a check for $50 as bail for a hearing.

In settling the case, Applebaum claimed that he did not intend to cause Kuchner's arrest, but only wished to bring suit for the recovery of the $5, and that the magistrarte made a mistake in issuing the papers.

Miss May Harrington, of New York, who has been visiting her cousin, Miss Georgia Eick, of East Third street, has returned home.

U. S. JACK TARS ARE TO PLAY PLAINFIELDS

Manager Ernest Dorflinger, of the Plainfields, has booked a star attraction for Crescent Oval on Saturday, July 2. On this date the baseball nine of the U. S. Battleship Connecticut, champions of the U. S. Navy, will be the opponents of the locals. The sailors bear the reputation of being crackerjack ball players. In their lineup will be Jack Wearren, of this city. The bluejacket aggregation of the battleship has played the American sport in most every country on the globe.

Manager Dorflinger announces the following schedule of games for June and July:

June 4, Elizabeth A. C., on Crescent Oval; 11, Scotch Plains, at Scotch Plains; 18, McNulty Bros., on Crescent Oval; 25, Rahway, at Rahway; July 2, U. S. Connecticut, on Crescent Oval; 4, Scotch Plains, at Scotch Plains; 9, New Brunswick, at New Brunswick; 16, Stirling A. C., of Brooklyn, on Crescent Oval; 23, Rahway, at Rahway.

The game with the Elizabeth A. C. on Crescent Oval on Saturday will be the first of a series of five for the Union county championship. Elizabeth will be strong in the box with Langstaff, a crack twirler.

The following communication was received from South Plainfield in the mail this morning: "Captain Mullin is teaching the South Plainfield players how to land easier on the ball. They are clouting it too hard and are making the management pay for too many balls. Eight two-baggers out of eleven hits is going some." There's lots of room in the big leagues for heavy strikers.

Jimmy Emery will be on third base for Plainfield on Saturday against Elizabeth. Jimmy is considering offers from clubs in the New York State League and Susquehanna League.

Manager Dorflinger is highly gratified over the showing of Carlstrom, the new shortstop. The Elizabeth boy in the games he has performed has exhibited nothing but classy fashion.

FAIR PINNING IN TWO-MAN TOURNEY.

DIVORCE FOR HUSBAND WHO BEAT MAN IN CASE.

Trenton, June 2.—An indignant husband in the person of Harry A. Walker gave William Bickel a sound thrashing because he found him in the Walker parlor with Mrs. Walker. But Walker didn't get much satisfaction out of the transaction, for as soon as the scrap between Walker and Bickel was over, Mrs. Walker took Bickel out into the Walker kitchen, kissed him tenderly and bathed his swollen and battered face. Bickel was sent to the Mercer County Workhouse for his part in the fight. His punishment there, however, was made lighter by frequent visits from Mrs. Walker, who took him presents. Upon his release Mrs. Walker pawned Walker's watch, her daughter's necklace and some household goods, took the proceeds and set up housekeeping with Bickel.

It was on testimony of such doings as these that Special Chancery Master W. Holt Apgar has recommended that a divorce be granted to Walker. The Walkers were married in 1893 and the crisis came in October, 1907.

amendment provides that dogs picked up on the highways shall be kept at least seventy-two hours at the pound, and that for redemption the owner must pay $1 for each day or part thereof, fifty cents going to the keeper and the other half to the city. The fee at present is $3.

An amendment to the ordinance to regulate shows, circuses, concerts, etc., was offered by Mr. Holt and passed on two readings and ordered advertised. It raises the license fees for circuses from $100 to $200, the license for theatres $100, the same as before. A license of $10 is provided for concerts and $25 for other forms of entertainments, but it is left optional with the Mayor. The license for moving picture shows is fixed at $2 a day. A fine of $100 or sixty days or both is provided for violations of the ordinance.

Mr. Gloak introduced an ordinance which was read for the first time and laid on the table until the regular June meeting for further action. It provides for the laying and repair of sidewalks throughout the city, and providing for the cost of same. As there is no haste required in the passage of the ordinance, Mr. Mygatt suggested that it be laid on the table until next week.

PUPILS CONDUCT A DELIGHTFUL MUSICALE

An informal musicale was given yesterday afternoon by the pupils and friends of Miss Maude Van Boskerck at the home of Mrs. P. Pierre Mali on East Front street. The piano selections from the simplified themes of Beethoven and the new masters were highly pleasing to the hearers. Those participating in the program were: The Misses Mary Warren, Susan Barnhart, Margaret Tyle, Margaret Miller, Margaret Patterson, Mildred Miller, Helen Irons, Olive Lane, Eva and Gertrude Mali and Nathaniel and Roland Stevens.

A part of the program was also rendered by Miss Van Boskerck's ensemble classes consisting of Miss Lily Moore, Mrs. Marion Ackerman, Mrs. LeRoy Gates, Mrs. Norman L. Snow, Mrs. Frank Clark and Miss Edith Foster, assisted by Mrs. Guy Bender, Dr. Leonard Waldo and Martin A. Korff.

The two pianos were very effective in dances from Dvorak and Grieg after which Mrs. Bender rendered two spring songs in her rich contralto voice. Dr. Waldo played a lullaby from Schubert. The Tannhauser Overture, with violin and 'cello obligato, was also rendered.

GODWIN BEARD WEDS MISS M. H. RANDALL

Last night in the United Presbyterian church, of Newville, Pa., Miss Margaret Hudson Randall, of that place, became the bride of Godwin Beard, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. A. G. Reed. The maid of honor was Miss Landis, and the flower girl, Miss Helen May Hawkins. Walter LeRoy Long acted as best man. The bride was given away by her father, Robert Randall. The ushers, who preceded the bride up the church aisle, were Messrs. Class, Beck, Hawkins and Brereton.

The bride was attired in a white satin robe with a veil of rare old lace, an heirloom in the family, seven brides having worn it. The bride's mother wore a gown of satin charmeuse and gold garniture and the mother of the groom was attired in white satin princess with an entire overdress and waist garniture of black thread lace.

The guests included many friends of the couple from New York, Plainfield, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Pittsburg. Over two hundred gifts were received by the couple, among which were included several checks for substantial amounts.

Mr. Beard is a grandson of the late Daniel Godwin, of New York, and Bath, England, and Mrs. Beard is a well-known society debutante of Newville.

Cast for "Next Door."

A modern three-act comedy, "Next Door," will be presented by the boys of Leal's School June 14, under the auspices of the Athletic Association. Frederick B. Hanson, of New York, is coaching the company and an excellent presentation is expected. Eleanor B. Crane, also of New York, is the author of the play. The cast follows: Mr. Courtney Martin, Thomas Leggett; Mr. George Chester, Clarence Lawrence; Mr. Harry Webster, Ned Stevenson; Mrs. Fred Harper, James Murray; Miss Alice Armstead, Frank Driscoll; Miss Betty Armstead, Thomas Foote; Miss Kathleen Covington, Morris Brandegee; Mrs. Armstead, Lawrence Heely; Orange, Willie Brandegee.

Dr. Carroll's Brother Dead.

Captain Thomas Carroll, of Havre de Grace, Md., a brother of Dr. H. K. Carroll, of Westervelt avenue, died at his home Monday night, after a long illness. For many years he was a sailing captain and was well known in almost every important port on the globe. Dr. Carroll left on Monday with five hundred missionaries for Edinburgh, and did not learn of his brother's death. He will probably not receive the news until he reaches the other side.

PROGRESSIVES TO CONSIDER FOWLER

The executive committee of the Essex County Progressive Republican League will meet tomorrow afternoon at Newark, the call for the session having been issued yesterday. Chief among the topics for discussion will be the United States Senatorship and the stand to be taken by the Progressives as to the successor of Senator John Kean in the present campaign.

The mass meeting in Elizabeth tomorrow night arranged through the instrumentality of Congressman Charles N. Fowler to form a league for the furtherance of the principle of popular election of United States Senators is attracting a good deal of local attention and it is probable that most of the Essex Progressive leaders will go to the meeting in Proctor's theatre, that city, in a body.

There will be a meeting of the league some night next week, when formal action is to be taken on the Senatorship. Congressman Fowler has asked the Progressives to support him for Senator and he may get their support after tomorrow night's demonstration, which has been scheduled for him by his campaign managers.

Mr. Fowler is in the position of being a candidate for both United States Senator and Congressman. Naturally he can't hold both, and folks want to know which he's running for. He will make a hard fight for the nomination for Congress, and if he gets it will probably retire from the race for Senator. If beaten in the Fifth District he will continue to battle for Senator until the January caucus settles the question of Kean's successor.

BURGLARS GET $50 WORTH FROM FIRSTBROOK'S STORE.

The store of Fred H. Firstbrook, on Liberty street, was burglarized some time between 11 o'clock and midnight last night and $50 worth of cigars and other things stolen. Mr. Firstbrook, who lives over the store was awakened at about 1:30 by John Hess and John Fosbre, neighbors, who told him that the front door was open.

Descending to the store Mr. Firstbrook discovered that some of his stock had been taken and estimates the loss at the above figure. Apparently the burglary was not reported to the police as no record of the occurrence was given to the reporters this morning, although it was stated that a police officer was on the ground shortly after discovery of the robbery.

NEW ROAD TO SANITARIUM.

Glen Gardner, June 2.—At a joint meeting of the board of managers of the State Sanitarium for Tuberculosis Diseases and the Board of Freeholders of Hunterdon county Tuesday it was decided to use the old road known as Hillside avenue from the Central Railroad Station in this place to the sanitarium a part of the distance and build a new road the remainder of the way. Twenty thousand dollars was appropriated last winter by the State Legislature for a macadam road to the sanitarium. It is said that it will cost this amount to build a new road through the mountain from the main highway and that the freeholders will assume the burden of the expense of macadamizing the old road. State Inspector Meeker sanctioned the proposition. County Surveyor Grant Davis, of Whitehouse, was engaged to make the survey.

It is said that building the road over this route will shorten the distance by about half a mile and at the same time avoid a steep hill near the institution.

MISS ANTOINETTE HILL HAS WON MORE HONORS.

Miss Antonette Dyett Hill, of No. 740 Belvidere avenue, a graduate of Plainfield High School, '06, and previously for several years a student at the Plainfield Seminary, was a member of the class graduated at Barnard College yesterday. In addition to taking her B. A. degree, Miss Hill also received honors in mathmatics from Barnard and the bachelors diploma in mathmatics from Teachers' College, Columbia University. During the present year in applied mathmatics Miss Hill has, among other courses, taken courses in surveying and navigation which she found most interesting. During a portion of her senior year she has taught mathmatics in the Horace Mann High School to a class of boys and a mixed class of boys and girls.

Next fall Miss Hill will enter Columbia University to work for an M. A. degree and probably will pursue other desired courses, majoring in mathmatics.

Must Kill His Horse.

Cruel treatment of a team of horses was responsible for the appearance in the city court this morning of J. R. Peterson, colored, of Westfield. Mrs. Eva Van Hoesen, the special agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, we the complainant and her son, Frederick, was the means of the arrest of Peterson. Judge Runyon ordered the destruction of the horse, which, according to the testimony of Dr. Butler, the veterinary, was the animal which should have remained in the stable.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

State milk inspectors appeared at Millville early Tuesday and took samples from the several dairymen.

The Gloucester City Advertiser, a weekly started in 1888 and continued by William D. Jenkins, has been sold to Frederick Jenkins, his brother, and at one time associate partner.

Knocked down by a bicycle Tuesday, Benjamin Vertan, twelve years old, of Haddon Heights, was badly injured about the right side and was cared for at Cooper Hospital, Camden.

Sixteen-months-old Edward Skyczowski, of 348½ Fifth street, Jersey City, died Tuesday in St. Francis Hospital, that city, as the result of burns received while playing near a bonfire.

The American Street Railway and Inter-Urban Railway convention has decided to hold its next convention in Atlantic City some time in the fall. It will be attended by 2,000 delegates.

Stumbling downstairs at his home, Third and Pearl streets, Camden, Tuesday afternoon, John F. Herter, thirty-two years old, was severely hurt, and was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

As the result of catching his right hand in an oven door at a bakery Monday, Charles Mingenmay, twenty-three years old, of 621 North Ninth street, Camden, had three badly crushed fingers dressed in Cooper Hospital.

Members of the South Jersey Farmers' Picnic Association met Tuesday night at Washington Park and decided to hold the annual picnic this year Wednesday, August 3, at the park. The features will be a baby show and exhibits of farm products.

Compilers of vital statistics for Trenton find little to please them in the monthly report as there were thirty-one more deaths than births during May. Discouragement is also found in the fact that there were only seventy-four marriages, an unusually small number for springtime.

Dr. Gordon D. Walton, of 8 Church street, Paterson, was bitten by a dog last Saturday while leaving the house of one of his patients, and it was necessary for him to seek the services of other physicians for treatment. He had just left the house when a large dog caught him on the calf of the leg, sinking his teeth deep in the flesh.

Fears of commuters of a raise in fare between Atlantic City and Pleasantville were realized Monday night, when announcement was made of a doubling of the five-cent fare, which has been in existence for years on both the Suburban and the Shore Fast Line, recently consolidated. The raise went into effect yesterday. Officials insist that they have been carrying passengers at a loss.

Ethel Clement, aged twenty-two years, of 335 Mechanic street, was thrown from a carriage at the Woodbury turnpike, near Westville, Monday, and her right ear was torn off and her head lacerated. She was driving with John Gormley, aged twenty-two years, of 637 South Third street and when an automobile passed the horse became frightened, backed into a ditch and threw Miss Clement out.

The steamboat Brazoria, of the Atlantic City Transportation Line, which connects Atlantic City with Philadelphia, rammed and sank the power yacht Breeze, belonging to Captain John J. Conover, while backing out of the Inlet Tuesday. Edward Conover, son of the yacht owner, risked his life in an effort to get the yacht out of the way and was forced to jump overboard to save himself. The yacht was sunk, but can be raised.

When partly through his discourse in the M. E. church at Winslow, Sunday night, Rev. H. J. Heinemann startled the younger element by exhibiting a letter received from a detective bureau, threatening exposure of several young people if certain practises alleged to be going on in the town were continued. The pastor declined to go into particulars, but it is thought the letter had reference to a poolroom, which has been flourishing of late.

Tyler M. Gibbs, who pleaded guilty to conspiracy to defraud an engineering company for whom he was foreman in the erection of a lighthouse in the Deleware Bay, has been released from the Cumberland county jail and has left Bridgeton. He had been in jail just four months. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000. Two weeks ago the portion of the fine not served out by his incarceration was remitted, with the exception of $200, and this amount he finally succeeded in raising.

Raisin Brown Bread.

Three cups yellow corn meal, one and a half cups graham flour, one cup New Orleans molasses, one teaspoon soda dissolved in one-half cup hot water, one teaspoon salt, enough sour milk to make soft batter. Mix flour and salt, then molasses with soda, stir until foamy, then add the milk and one and a half cups sultana raisins. Fill mold half full and steam three hours.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning June 5, 1910.

Topic—Christ our judge.—Matt. xxv, 31-46. (Consecration meeting.) Comment by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

A judge in civil life is an official before whom those charged with civil or criminal misconduct are brought for trial. In our country there are various degrees of courts, each one limited as to the character of cases that may be tried before it. The supreme court of the United States at Washington is the highest form of court in our land, passing judgments affecting the constitution of the United States, and these judgments are final. It is the court of last resort, and its decisions cannot be appealed to any other tribunal. The surroundings of many courts are most brilliant, but none will be so glorious when Christ, the Son of Man, shall come, with all his holy angels, and sit upon the throne of His glory and judge the world. No human court has a universal jurisdiction, but when Christ appears as a judge it will be to judge the world, and His judgment will be final, and no appeal from it will be possible. These facts should impress us most seriously. We should think of Christ as a judge as well as our Lord and Saviour.

The jurisdiction of Christ as a judge will in the last day be a universal one. "And before Him shall be gathered all nations." The people of every nation that lived in the history of the world will stand before Him. Therefore we ourselves will be among that number. No one can escape. Many who commit crimes against civil governments fly to some distant land and escape trial, but this cannot be done in the day of the general judgment. Men will call upon the hills and rocks to fall upon them and destroy them, but nothing of the kind will happen. The righteous and the wicked will alike stand before Christ the Judge and receive sentence from Him.

In His capacity as judge Christ will divide all nations into two classes. The first, which he calls the sheep, will stand upon His right hand, and the second, designated as the goats, will stand upon His left hand. The sheep typify the innocent, the gentle, the good, while the goats represent the unworthy. The right hand signifies honor and favor, while the left hand denotes the opposite. This judicial distinction between the right hand and left hand is also found in classical writers. To the ones on the right hand Jesus in passing judgment says, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world;" to those on the left hand, "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels." What joy to those upon the right hand! What awful woe and anguish to those upon the left hand! On one of these two sides we shall stand. One of these two judgments will be pronounced upon us. Which? It depends entirely upon us in the relation we assume toward Christ in this life.

Christ seems to base His judgments upon our personal goodness, but He really goes deeper than that. He recalls what they had done unto Him through doing unto His disciples and "in His name." Pure humanitarianism will save no soul. Works must be founded upon faith in Christ, for when those who were condemned declared that they had had no opportunity to do such things He replied that in doing them not unto the least of His disciples they did them not unto Him. In Christ's name and by faith in Him good works alone are well pleasing to Christ and to His Father.

The judgment of Christ is final and for all eternity. No sentence ever ends. "These shall go into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life everlasting." How much, therefore, we have at stake in this judgment of Christ! "Everlasting punishment!" "Everlasting life!" Which will we choose?

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. xviii, 23-33; Ps. i, 1-6; lxxii, 2-9, 13-17; Isa. xi, 3-5; Mal. iii, 1-3; Matt. vii, 1-5; Acts x, 34-43; I Cor. xi, 27-34; II Cor. v, 9-11.

Hungary and Egypt Press On.

Ex-Secretary Von Ogden Vogt, who returned from a trip to Europe and the east, has many encouraging things to say about Christian Endeavor as he found it in his travels. In Budapest, Hungary, where Professor Szabo for many years has been the efficient leader, the Endeavorers are taking hold of Christian Endeavor work in a spirit of reliant faith that is most gratifying. They have taken over and become responsible for one of the finest hospitals in the city. This hospital is excellently equipped for all medical work, and, besides, it has a fine chapel which will be used for religious services. Mr. Vogt was shown over the place, and he is delighted with all that he saw, especially the enterprise that has prompted the Endeavorers to engage in this great and responsible work. The Endeavor outlook in Egypt is also most gratifying, and the society is taking forward steps. Next year the Endeavorers hope to hold a great convention there, and, in view of this, Mr. Vogt assisted the workers in organizing what might perhaps be called an Egyptian Christian Endeavor union to push forward the cause. Thus abroad as well as at home Christian Endeavor, 1910, is closing up its ranks and pressing toward the mark.

Floating Endeavor.

On the United States battleship South Dakota there is a Christian Endeavor society with ten members. It was organized by one of the marines with the aid of Endeavorers in Honolulu.

for my own. I hated Yturrio. I hated Pakenham. They had both insulted me. I hated every man. I had seen nothing but the bitter and desperate side of life—I was eager to take revenge even upon the innocent ones of this world, seeing that I had suffered so much. I had an old grudge against women, against women, I say—against women!"

She buried her face in her hands. I saw her eyes no more till Threlka came and lifted her head, offering her a cup of drink, and so standing patiently until again she had dismissal.

"But still it is all a puzzle to me, madam," I began. "I do not understand."

"Well, when you stood at the door, my little shoe in your pocket, when you kissed my hand that first night, when you told me what you would do did you love a woman—when I saw something new in life I had not seen—why, then, [illegible] resolution that no woman in the world should be happy if I could help, I slipped in the body of the slipper a little line or so that I had written when you did not see, when I was in the other room. 'Twas that took the place of Van Zandt's message, after all. Monsieur, it was fate. Van Zandt's letter, without plan, fell out on my table. Your note, sent by plan, remained in the shoe!"

"And what did it say? Tell me at once."

"Very little. Yet enough for a woman who loved and who expected. Only this: 'In spite of that other woman, come to me still. Who can teach you love of woman as I can? Helena.' I think it was some such words as those."

"I had not thought any one capable of that," said I.

"Ah, but I repented on the instant! I repented before night came. In the twilight I got upon my knees and prayed that all my plan might go wrong—if I could call it plan."

But again I could only turn away to ponder.

"See," she went on; "for myself, this is irremediable, but it is not so for you, nor for her. It is not too ill to be made right again. There in Montreal, I thought that I had failed in my plan, that you indeed were married. You held yourself well in hand; like a man, monsieur. But as to that, you were married, for your love for her remained; your pledge held. And did not I, repenting, marry you to her—did not I, on my knees, marry you to her that night? Oh, do not blame me too much!"

"She should not have doubted," said I. "I shall not go back and ask her again. The weakest of men are strong sometimes!"

"Ah, now you are but a man! Being such, you cannot understand how terribly much the faith of man means for a woman. It was her need for you that spoke, not her doubt of you. Forgive her. She was not to blame. Blame me! Do what you like to punish me! Now, I shall make amends. Tell me what I best may do. Shall I go to her, shall I tell her."

"Not as my messenger. Not for me."

"No? Well, then, for myself? That is my right. I shall tell her how priestly faithful a man you were. Come," she said, "I will bargain with you, after all!"

"Any bargain you like, madam."

"And I will keep my bargain. You know that I will."

"Yes, I know that."

"Very well, then. I am going back to Washington."

"How do you mean?"

"By land, across the country, the way you came."

"You do not know what you say, madam. The journey you suggest is incredible, impossible."

"That matters nothing. I am going. And I am going alone— No, you cannot come with me. Do you think I would risk more than I have risked? I go alone. I am England's spy; yes, that is true. I am to report to England; yes, that is true. Therefore, the more I see, the more I shall have to report. Besides, I have something else to do."

"But would Mr. Pakenham listen to your report, after all?"

Now she hesitated for a moment. "I can induce him to listen," she said. "That is part of my errand. First, before I see Mr. Pakenham I am going to see Miss Elizabeth Churchill. I shall report also to her. Then I shall have done my duty. Is it not so?"

"You could do no more," said I. "But what bargain—"

"Listen. If she uses me ill and will not believe either you or me—then, being a woman, I shall hate her; and in that case I shall go to Sir Richard for my own revenge. I shall tell him to bring on this war. In that case, Oregon will be lost to you, or at least sought dear by blood and treasure."

"We will attend to that, madam," said I grimly, and I smiled at her, although a sudden fear caught at my heart. I knew what damage she was in position to accomplish if she liked. My heart stood still. I felt the faint sweat again on my forehead.

"If I do not find her worthy of you, then she cannot have you," went on Helena von Ritz.

"But, madam, you forget one thing. She is worthy of me, or of any other man!"

"I shall be judge of that. If she is what you think, you shall have her—and Oregon!"

"But as to myself, madam? The bargain?"

"I arrive, monsieur! If she fails you, then I ask only time."

"I begin to see, madam," said I, "how large these stakes may run."

"In case I lose, be sure at least I shall pay. I shall make my atonement," she said.

"I doubt not that, madam, with all your heart and mind and soul.",

"And body!" she whispered. The old horror came again upon her face. She shuddered. I did not know why. She stood now as one in devotions for a time, and I would no more have spoken than had she been at her prayers, as, indeed, I think she was. At last she made some faint movement of her hands. I do not know whether it was the sign of the cross.

She rose now, tall, white-clad, shimmering, a vision of beauty such as that part of the world certainly could not then offer. Her hair was loosened now in its masses and drooped more widely over her temples, above her brow. Her eyes were very large and dark, and I saw the faint blue shadows coming again beneath them. Her hands were clasped, her chin raised just a trifle, and her gaze was rapt as that of some longing soul. I could not guess of these things, being but a man, and, I fear, clumsy alike of body and wit.

"What are my stakes? How may I pay?"

"There is one thing, madam, which we have omitted," said I at last.

She swayed a little on her feet, as though she were weak. "I want," said she, "I wish—I wish—"

The old childlike look of pathos came again. I have never seen so sad a face. She was a lady, white and delicately clad; I, a rude frontiersman in camp-grimed leather. But I stepped to her now and took her in my arms, and held her close, and pushed back the damp waves of her hair. And because a man's tears were in my eyes, I have no doubt of absolution when I say I had been a cad and a coward had I not kissed her own tears away. I no longer made pretense of ignorance, but ah! how I wished that I were ignorant of what it was not my right to know. . . .

I led her to the edge of the little bed of husks and found her kerchief. Ah, she was of breeding and courage! Presently, her voice rose steady and clear as ever. "Threlka!" she called. "Please!"

When Threlka came, she looked closely at her lady's face, and what she read seemed, after all, to content her.

"Threlka," said my lady in French, "I want the little one."

I turned to her with query in my eyes.

"Tiens!" she said. "Wait. I have a little surprise."

"You have nothing at any time save surprises, madam."

"Two things I have," said she, sighing; "a little dog from China, Chow by name. He sleeps now, and I must not disturb him, else I would show you how lovely a dog is Chow. Also here I have found a little Indian child running about the post. Dr. McLaughlin was rejoiced when I adopted her."

"Well, then, madam, what next?"

"Yes, with the promise to him that I would care for that little child. I want something for my own. See now. Come Natoka!"

HE PLEADS SELF-DEFENSE

He mentioned the Novotay girl again and added that Kate Overland had also been the means of taking Mrs. Covely from him. He declared that his love continued to grow cold until finally she told him to go away from the house.

Following Detective Totten the witnesses called were Dr. W. H. Long, of Somerville, county physician, who testified to the examination of the murdered woman's body and the cause of death. Ada Mernagh and William Mernagh, Jr., of Smalleytown, who were called to identify Buckley's handwriting; William H. Conger, of North Plainfield, who told of various doings of Buckley at the Covely home; Chief Marshall George Weiss and James Moore, a brother of Mrs. Covely, who gave testimony as to her age and family. The State rested at noon

Dr. Cotton, the State's insanity expert, was on hand to testify or render an opinion as to the sanity of the prisoner, but as noted above the testimony of insanity experts was not wanted by Counsellor Crane. Letters from one Bessie Van Ness were produced to show that Buckley had contemplated suicide even before the alleged murder.

It was stated yesterday that Counsellor Crane offered to plead guilty on behalf of his client, to second degree murder, before the opening of court, but that this offer was refused by Mr. Pope.

There is no secret of the fact that the prosecution is exerting every effort to secure a first degree conviction. At a conference between the opposing lawyers and Judge Parker before the start of the trial yesterday, Mr. Crane offered to enter a second degree plea, but Mr. Pope refused to accede to the suggestion. It is also believed that Judge Parker also was not inclined to a compromise.

Failure of Alvah A. Clark to be present at the scheduled time for the opening of court yesterday furnished considerable gossip to the legal fraternity and some of the spectators. Mr. Clark explained to the newspapermen at the close of yesterday's session that this was due to a misunderstanding with Judge Parker as he entertained the opinion that he had been relieved of the duty, owing to pressure of other business. Mr. Clark stated, however, that he will be identified with the defense until the trial comes to an end. Mr. Clark conducted the cross examination of the witnesses of the prosecution and he will likely continue in that role for the remainder of the trial.

All through the proceedings yesterday, Buckley exhibited indifference particularly during the rehearsal of the ghastly crime that excited the curiosity of the spectators. He never flinched nor exhibited a sign of a tremor when Prosecutor Pope presented the story of the crime in his opening address to the jury.

If the prisoner had any visions of the electric chair, which will be his fate should he be convicted of murder in the first degree, he did not in the least betray his feelings. He looked on with the air of an interested spectator when the 38-caliber revolver, and a box of unused cartridges were offered in evidence by the prosecutor.

Even when Dr. Buchanan related to the jury the course the death dealing bullets took in the victim's head he leaned over on his counsel's table and listened to the tale with unconcern.

Buckley was the target for the scores of eyes of the women and girls of which there was a large sprinkling in the audience yesterday. Every move of the prisoner is closely scrutinized by the curious of the gentle sex.

The prosecution scored a point in the testimony presented yesterday when the court admitted as evidence the signed confession of Buckley obtained by Mayor Smalley in the borough police station. Mr. Clark strongly opposed the admittance of this as evidence on the grounds that the confession was not voluntary on the part of the prisoner, but after hearing the testimony of Chief Weiss, Detective Totten and Borough Clerk Frederick Martin, who were present when Buckley made the confession, Judge Parker ruled that it be admitted.

In conducting the cross examination of Mayor Smalley, Mr. Clark sought to impress on the jury that the former had no right to secure a confession from Buckley on the grounds that the prisoner had no counsel or persons to advise him in the matter. Mr. Clark declared that the prisoner was led to make the confession on the promise that it would be of benefit to him.

In the testimony Mayor Smalley admitted that he suggested to Buckley that he make the confession; he also admitted advising the prisoner to tell the truth. In response to a question of Mr. Clark if the prisoner had received a promise of immunity for furnishing the statement the mayor said "No." Mr. Clark also asked the mayor why he went into the cell with the prisoner. To this the mayor replied:

"Simply to look him over."

The statement furnished to Mayor Smalley and the officers by Buckley was an admittance on the part of the prisoner that he slayed Mrs. Covely. In the document the prisoner said that he had expected to marry her, but she had turned him down. It said further that he could not stand seeing her running out nights with other women. It also said that Mrs. Covely had ordered Buckley to leave the house and that he shot her to get even for this treatment. Buckley also confessed that he shot her twice before she fell.

Before Mayor Smalley left the stand Mr. Clark inquired as to the size of the crowd in the street and the treatment accorded the prisoner when he was escorted from the lockup to the automobile, in which he was taken to Somerville.

"Did you say to the crowd," queried Mr. Clark, "here's the murderer, look him over."

"No," answered Mayor Smalley. "I said, here's your man, look him over."

Chief Weiss, Detective Totten and Borough Clerk Martin also testified in relation to the statement made to Mayor Smalley by the prisoner, each declaring it was voluntary on his part.

Justice of the Peace W. R. Surphen, of Somerville, testified that Buckley had made a second confession to him and Detective Totten after his arrival at the county jail from North Plainfield. He declared that the confession was voluntary on the part of Buckley, and it was also admitted as evidence.

Dr. J. H. Buchanan while on the stand testified as assisting in the autopsy. He related the nature of the pistol shot wounds and the course the bullets pursued through the victim's head. He also said that he had detected some minor bruises about the dead woman's body.

Undertaker H. J. DeMott also testified as to the nature of the pistol wounds and marks on Mrs. Covely's body. He related to the court and jury the position in which the body laid on the floor and the part he took in preparing it for burial after receiving an official permit by County Physician Long.

William Mernagh, Sr., of Smalleytown, a former employer of Buckley, and on whose farm he was captured by the police, related the details of the finding of Buckley in his barn and his subsequent capture by the police. Mernagh testified that Buckley surrendered his revolver readily, and was afterward taken to the house, where a meal was prepared for him by the family. In a conversation that followed Mernagh said he asked Buckley:

"What made you commit such a crime?" to which Buckley replied, "She drove me to it." On surrendering the revolver to Mernagh the latter said Buckley asked the former, "Are you with me or against me?" William Mernagh, Jr., corroborated the story of his father.

Walter Richardson, of Somerville, a civil engineer, who made a map showing the interior of the Covely house, contributed a ripple of merriment to the proceedings while testifying as to a bullet hole in the wall of the pantry in which Mrs. Covely was shot.

"What did the hole look like?" asked Prosecutor Pope.

"Why just like a hole in a wall," replied Richardson. Nearly everybody in the courtroom grinned and Judge Parker was obliged to rap for order.

An unusual point was raised in the selection of the jury when Andrew B. Corzine was called. After both the defense and prosecution had signified that Mr. Corzine was satisfactory to them, the point was raised as to whether he was eligible to serve, on the grounds that he is a resident of Mercer county. Judge Parker, after consulting legal authorities on the matter, decided that Mr. Corzine was eligible, as at the time he was empanelled he resided at Franklin, Somerset county.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL FETE BRINGS RETURN OF $100

The assembly room of the Washington School on Darrow avenue was so full last night that many late comers to the entertainment for the benefit of the picture fund were compelled to stand. Without doubt it was one of the most beautiful exhibitions of training seen in any of the public schools in the city. Recalls for the "Frog Song" and the flag drill were many and as a result of the performance the picture fund was increased nearly $100 and the principal Miss Humpstone appreciates the support given by the public.

Owing to the length of the program it was thought best to omit the eighth number on the program, the physical exercises, and a song "The Pollywogs," sung by Willie Snyder, was substituted. The little fellow was roundly applauded.

Those who took part were as follows:

Garland Drill—Marion Lynn, Mae Heideloff, Ethel Rosenson, Edith Jeffry, Grace Brown, Florence Taylor, Barbara Schlick, Madeline Pennington, Adelaide Nathanson, Pauline Nathanson.

Folk Dance — Edith Roseberry, Helen Rice, Freeda Mowen, Erma Mowen, Harriette Mortimer, Charlotte Sachar, Celia Davidson, Bessie Aks, Frances Kline, Edith Walls, Bertha Laird, Evelyn Moore, Mary Spencer, Sarah Steinman, Rose Meyrowitz, Ruth Carlson.

May Pole Dance—Marion Lynn, Helen Newell, Elsie Theis, Miriam Smith, Sarah Schrager, Lois Loizeaux, Harriette Higgins, Theodocia Vail, Esther Rosenthal, Flora Rosenthal, Marjorie Storr, Helen Bray, Esther Loizeaux, Grace Brown, Katharine Harding, Edith Mundy.

Sleeping Beauty Sketch—Princess, Helen McAfee; Wicked Fairy, Margaret Rice; Prince, Clarence Skiff; Attendants, Edith Harris, Charles Carlson, Edith Walls, Fred Cose, Lily Kadish, Raymond Gerhold, Erma Mowen, Freeda Mowen, Harry Winn, Helen Rice, Eleanor Arrowsmith, Harry Williams, John Anderson, Benj. Kornfield, Putnam Newell, Esther Loizeaux.

Japanese Song and Fan Drill—Margaret Rice, Helen McAfee, Adele Rosenthal, Eva Davidson, Louise Reed, Elnora Green, Maurecia Vaughn, Ethel Weed, Alice Culhane, Fannie Kunzman.

TOWNSHIP CIVIC SOCIETY FOR A LOWER TAX RATE

At the meeting of the Improvement Society of North Plainfield township last night steps were taken to obtain a lower tax rate. It is the opinion of some of the property owners who are members of the association that they are paying more than their proportion, and that the assessed valuations in North Plainfield township are as a rule higher than valuations in neighboring townships. F. C. Bodin, chairman of the taxation committee, expects to present a remedy to the situation at the next meeting of the association on June 13.

The Watchung and Somerset street committee decided to inquire into the reason for the delay in starting the opening of Watchung avenue. The committee will also notify the borough authorities that the condition of Somerset street is such along the tracks of the P. S. C. as to be dangerous to traffic.

A report from the road committee stated that the committee will take action with the idea of macadamizing Rock avenue and to stop the dropping of loose stones on the thoroughfare and the using of public roads on which to wash ice.

The chairman of the electric light committee notified the members of its intentions to bring the question of lighting districts before the township committee with the idea of having a popular vote on the subject at the next general election.

Reports were also presented from the Legal, Town Hall and Police committees. An entertainment will be held at the next meeting of the association on June 13.

ENDEAVOR UNION RALLY AT NEW MARKET TONIGHT

The annual rally of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will be held tonight in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, New Market. The committee in charge has arranged an attractive program, which includes an address by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church. He will be the principal speaker.

Members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will be at the Dunellen station to meet the trolley cars and conduct the Plainfield delegates to the church. Some of the Plainfield societies will go by stage and others will take the 7:15 and 7:30 trolley cars from Watchung avenue and Fourth street. The Temple Baptist society has chartered a special car which will leave the junction at 7:30 and returning leave Dunellen at 10:40 o'clock.

The program follows:

Scripture reading, Rev. George H. Gardner, First Baptist church, New Market; prayer, Rev. N. H. Jordan, Seventh-Day Baptist church, New Market; report of year's work, Chas. F. Windham, secretary, and William Latourette, treasurer, Plainfield C. E. Union; presentation of attendance banner; election of officers; address, "In Africa," Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire; closing prayer, Rev. Ernest R. Brown, Dunellen Presbyterian church.

TIMBO OUTING PLANS ASSURE A BIG TIME.

June 19 will be a memorable day in the history of the Timbo Club if all the plans laid by the members are carried to a successful conclusion. With a band of fifty pieces and a bunch of fun makers which have been especially hired for the occasion, Atlantic City will wake up and find some of the roosters' feathers singed the morning after.

A spectacular part of the proceedings is promised when Tommy mounts the elephant and attempts to sashay down the board walk blowing the latest design in horns. Not a tin horn, mind you, but a regulation French horn attuned to the latest in pianola accompaniments. Nothing more elaborate has ever been conceived by the members of the club than the maneuvres laid out for consummation on the date mentioned. There will be something doing all the time from the minute the club gets started towards the seashore.

On the way back somebody is sure to hear something. Whether it be the detonating caps of dynamite or the reverberations from the big guns of the recently launched "Florida" perhaps none of the pilgrims will be able to say on the morning after, but it is safe to prognosticate that Plainfield will remember the day.

Mrs. Baillie Going Abroad.

Mrs. Robert Baillie, of the West End, is planning to sail for her home in Scotland in a few weeks. She will remain abroad all summer. On Saturday evening Mrs. James Beattie gave a party at her home on Midway place, for Mrs. Baillie. The evening was spent in songs and dancing; also musical selections, and refreshments were served.

ESCAPES ELECTRIC CHAIR

Jury Finds John Vincent Buckley Guilty in the Second Degree.

FOR SLAYING HIS PARAMOUR.

Prisoner Breaks Down When Verdict Is Announced and Hugs His Counsel—May Mean 30 Years Imprisonment.

(Reported by Thomas M. Muir).

Deliberating for a few minutes less than two hours, the jury retiring to agree upon the verdict in the case of John Vincent Buckley for the alleged murder of Mrs. Fred Covely in North Plainfield on April 21 last, made a return of guilty in the second degree at 6:50 last evening. The agreement was reached by the twelve men after six ballots had been taken. It is understood that the first expression of opinion showed six for conviction in the first degree and six for the second. From then on the first degree jurors changed to second, one by one until the unanimous agreement was reached.

Judge Parker, who presided, received the verdict without comment and fixed Saturday, June 11, as the date for pronouncingsentence. The maximum penalty for murder in the second degree is thirty years at hard labor with nine years off for good behavior. The court can fix a lesser term but it is the general opinion no leniency will be shown in the present case.

When Foreman Stryker, in behalf of the jury, announced the conclusion it had reached, the scene that followed was one of the most pathetic that has ever been enacted in a court room in Somerset county. As soon as Buckley realized that he had been saved from the electric chair he sprang to his feet despite restraining hands and threw his arms about his counsel, and hysterically shouted "thank you, Mr. Crane thank you." Then rushing toward the jurors he grasped the hand of each one in turn and poured out his gratitude in turn with tears streaming down his face. As he reached the twelfth man he sank back into a chair and sobbed like a child. He was almost on the verge of collapse when the guard led him away, but once back in his cell he became calm and discussed the proceedings with a smiling face. The fact that he would be a man in middle life before he regained his freedom rested as lightly upon him as the ripples of a purling brook over a moss-covered boulder. "Life is sweet," he said, "and I'm glad the chair isn't to get me." The mention of the State's death instrument brought a cloud to his face for an instant, but it quickly disappeared before another smile.

The verdict caused general comment in the city and borough when it became known and while public opinion may not regard it favorably the fact remains that it is a victory for the defendant's counsel, Robert Newton Crane. The later offered to allow his client to plead guilty of murder in the second degree before the trial started on Wednesday morning, but the prosecution refused to entertain the proposition. Despite damaging statements made by Buckley soon after his capture, Mr. Crane then proceeded and out of almost nothing presented a defense that ostensibly left a reasonable doubt in the minds of the jurors.

The counsel's claim that Buckley did not plan to kill Mrs. Covely, but did so only after her alleged attack with a butcher knife was ridiculed by Prosecutor Pope in his summing up, but it was presented so strongly that it paved the way for argument. It may be also that the counsel's ever-readiness to dwell upon the

HARTRIDGE SCHOOL'S COMMENCEMENT TONIGHT

The commencement exercises of The Hartridge school will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the school auditorium. The order of exercises is as follows:

Prayer by the reverend Dr. Hansen, of Larne, Ireland; hymn, address by Leslie Willis Sprague, presentation of diplomas by Miss Hartridge, hymn.

Mr. Sprague is very well-known as a public speaker. His platform connections have been and are: Staff Lecturer in Sociology, the American Society for the Extension of University Teaching, 1903-1907; Lecture in Grand Literature, the University of Chicago, 1907; The People's Institute, New York, 1903; Lecturer and Instructor, The Brooklyn Institute, 1903; The League for Political Education, New York, 1907; Public Lecturer, New York City Board of Education, 1903; Associate Leader and Lecturer, New York Society for Ethical Culture, and Founder and Leader of the Brooklyn Society for Ethical Culture, 1905-1910.

A number of out-of-town guests, friends and relatives of the resident pupils are in Plainfield for the commencement exercises.

VALLEY ROAD BRIDGE CONTRACT IS AWARDED

Freeholders Doane, Wilbur, Smith and Jones, of the Union County Board of Freeholders met the Somerset County Board of Freeholders at the office of Engineer Frank J. Hubbard this morning to receive bids for the building of a new bridge on the Valley road, Scotch Plains, replacing the old wooden structure which went down recently while a traction engine was being taken over the bridge.

After it was advertised that certified checks must accompany all bids, the Somerset county members voted to waive that condition to permit F. Smith & Tombs, of Murray Hill, to make an offer.

The contract was awarded to Charles Peterson, of this city, his bid of $1,485 being the lowest. County Attorney W. R. Codington was instructed to draw up the contract and submit it to the Somerset county board for approval.

The other bids received were as follows: Arthur E. Smith, Plainfield, $2,444; Nonemaker Brothers, Dunellen, $2,265; F. Smith & Tombs, Murray Hill, $1 682.60; Matthew Wade, Elizabeth, $3,546.

Freeholders Doane, Wilbur, Smith and Jones will act with Freeholders Demler, Lutkins and Zergiebel, of the Somerset county board, in looking after the construction of the new bridge. This is the second county contract received by Mr. Peterson, he having been awarded one yesterday for building a culvert on Elm and Wood avenues, Linden, for $586. The Scotch Plains' bridge must be completed by July 1. The structure is to be a girder-concrete bridge, with a thirty-six foot span and forty foot girders. Mr. Peterson will begin the work at once and rush it to completion.

SPECIAL ELECTION ON LIGHT APPROPRIATIONS.

Citizens of New Market on next Tuesday will vote on aprpopriations to light the various districts by electricity for one year. Owing to conflicting ideas on the amount of money to appropriate last year the people voted for a reduced appropriation with the result that the village was practically without lights for several months.

There was no remedy at hand and the only thing for the populace to do was to wait for the coming election. It is possible that two tickets for commissioners will be placed in the field.

Mrs. Gunn's Obsequies.

The funeral service of Mrs. Margaret Gunn, of Watchung, was held at St. Joseph's church this morning, where mass was celebrated by Rev. William H. Miller. Interment was made at St. Mary's cemetery. Mrs. Gunn was in her seventy-second year and died on Wednesday following a stroke of paralysis. She had resided in this vicinity for many years. Surviving her is a stepson, John Gunn, with whom she resided.

Foresters to Celebrate.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order of Foresters, will meet next Friday evening, June 10, in Knights of Columbus Hall, East Front street, and will celebrate its return to the old lodge rooms with an entertainment and other good things. The high standing committee will also be present and take part in the program.

RALLY OF ENDEAVORERS

Temple Church wins Banner at Plainfield Union's Mass Meeting.

SESSION AT NEW MARKET.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire Gives a Talk on Africa and Its People—Officers Are Elected.

Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire made the address at the mass meeting of the Christian Endeavorers at the Seventh-Day Baptist church in New Market last evening and impressed his hearers with the feeling of responsibility which every Endeavorer should and must have for the unconverted aborigine. These officers for the coming year were elected: President, Frank Stewart; vice-president, Charles Neagle; secretary, A. D. Gallaway; treasurer, F. L. Soper, Jr.; asistant treasurer and chairman of press committee R. C. Burdick.

The chairman of committees appointed were as follows: Prayer meeting, J. G. Benedict; look-out, Clarence B. LaRue; missionary, Nelson VanWinkle.

The society of the Temple Baptist church won the banner for attendance with a percentage of 90. The New Market Seventh-Day Society come second with 73 per cent. Warren chapel was third with a percentage of 69.

The interesting feature of the evening was the talk given by Rev. Mr. Maguire. He took his audience with him in a trip through Africa and vividly described the habits and customs of the natives. Pastor Maguire said that land and labor are both cheap on the dark continent. Ten acres of the land may be bought for six cents while some of the Africans will work all day for a brass-headed tack.

Today the traveller may go from the east to the west coast in perfect safety provided he conforms to the customs of the natives. The sign language is in vogue among these primitive people and they make known their ideas with postures of the body and workings of their limbs. Sitting with the legs crossed indicates a peaceful intent, while with the legs extended it means a declaration of war. A breach of African etiquette often means death. Mr. Maguire caused a shudder to run down the spines of his hearers when he declared that he once had to eat bean soup flavored with the flesh of field rats, the rodents which caused so much damage to the crops in that land.

The witch doctors came in for a share of the speaker's attention. These creatures, Mr. Maguire declared, were one of the worst of the workers of superstition in the world. On ocasions they force their deluded victims to drink deadly poison on the assumption that if the patient throws off the stuff the evil spirit goes with it. Other atrocities are committed by these people. Mr. Maguire exhibited a string of beads everyone of which hepresented the heart of some victim.

Rev. Charles Sumner Kemble and twenty-eight of the members of the Epworth League of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church walked to New Market and back last evening especially to attend the meeting.

AUTO SPEEDER FINED AND GIVEN WARNING.

For speeding his car at a rate above twenty-five miles an hour Charles Timpf, of Washington avenue, was fined fifteen dollars by City Judge William Runyon this morning. This action is in line with the policy the police department have instituted to stop the practice of reckless automobile driving within the city limits. Timpf was warned after he had paid his fine that future violations would result in more severe punishment.

Will Receive Grand Lodge Officers.

The Grand Master Workman and other Grand Lodge officers will be officially received by Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., on Thursday evening, June 9, at the lodge rooms, 109 Park avenue. Sister lodges have been invited to attend the meeting. After the meeting refreshments will be served.

Monarch Investment Co. Elects.

At the annual meeting of the Monarch Investment Company, held last night, these officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Frank H. Smith; vice-president, H. C. Van Emburgh; secretary, William R. Townsend; treasurer, H. B. MacDonald.

MACHINISTS WALKED OUT

Employes at Local Plants Quit When Their Demands are Refused.

THEY ASKED FOR MORE PAY.

Potter's, Scott's and Hall's Are Affected—Machinists Want $4 for Outside Work and $3 for Inside Work.

Printing press machinists went out on a strike at 1 o'clock this afternoon as a refusal of the manufacturers to acede to their demands for higher wages.

At the Potter Printing Press Works Company sixteen workmen quit at noon, while at the Scott plant fifty walked out; at the plant of the Hall Printing Press Works, known as the "Klondike," at Dunellen, sixty machinists quit.

A representative of the Scott Printing Press Works informed a Daily Press reporter that the company had expressed a willingness to confer with a committee representing its own employes rather than to treat with Hugh Reilly, the business agent of the International Union. He said further that the company is willing to meet their employes half way.

The scale demanded by the machinists is $4 and $2.50 expenses per day for outside work, and $3 per day for inside work. Under the present arrangement the men are allowed $2.50 per day for expenses.

Before night many other machinists in each of the plants named it is expected will quit work.

Hugh Reilly, the business agent of the International Union, declared at 3 o'clock this afternoon that all of the machinists at Scott's plant, with the exception of three, are out. At Potter's, he stated, thirty members of the International are out and the members of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, which is the English union, are awaiting instructions from headquarters to act. At the Hall plant the entire quota of machinists are out, he said.

Fuchs and Lang plant, at Rutherford, Mr. Reilly stated, has acceded to the demands of the union.

SUPPOSED HIM ILL WHEN HE WAS DEAD

The police were called at about 3:30 yesterday afternoon to the home of Mrs. Edward Kline, who keeps a boarding house at 317 Plainfield avenue. Thomas Wallace, one of the boarders, was supposed to be ill. When Chief Kiely arrived at the house he found that Wallace was dead. Father Bogan had in the meantime been called to administer the last rites to the sick man, but he, too, arrived too late.

Wallace, it was said, had been ill for seven or eight years with tuberculosis and it was a sudden hemorrhage which killed him. The body was removed to the undertaking parlors of A. M. Runyon & Son after being viewed by City Physician C. W. Lufburrow.

Planning for Peach Festival.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church held its last meeting for the season yesterday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Ira VanArsdale, in the chair. It was decided to hold a peach festival and bazaar in September. At the business meeting each member was given five cents with instructions to invest it to the best possible advantage and report the result in the fall.

Honors for Miss Hunter.

Miss Gertrude Laura Hunter, of this city, valedictorian of the '10 class at Barnard College, has been awarded the Jenny A. Gerard medal for proficiency in American colonial history. Miss Hunter is a graduate of the Plainfield High School, and is now president of her class at Barnard.

P. Frank Stone, Photographer.

The picture of the Plainfield High School class on the first page of yesterday's issue was the reproduction of an excellent photograph taken by P. Frank Stone, of East Front street, whose artistic work has won for him many encomiums.

BOARD OF TRADE'S MIX-UP

The Mayor, Board Head and Mr. Coriell in Hot Three-Cornered Debate.

OVER THE FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Harry Marshall Says that the Knockers Must Quit—All Is Serene When the Wordy War Is Ended.

In charging that the equipment of the local fire department is inadequate for the needs of the city, President William Jeffery caused a breezy three-cornered argument at the Board of Trade meeting last night at which he, Mayor Charles J. Fisk and former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell were the principal participants.

The verbal war occurred following a speech by Jeffery in which he criticized the action of the Common Council for not installing more hydrants on Front street between Watchung and Central avenue. There are now six hydrants in that district and Mr. Jeffery declared five more were necessary for the protection of property in case of a conflagration.

Mayor Fisk informed Mr. Jeffery that the fire committee had prepared a list of places where thirty to fifty hydrants will be installed, but explained to the Board that he had left the list of new locations at home. This failed to satisfy Jeffery and his subsequent remarks stirred the Mayor to such an extent that the latter jumped to his feet and shouted to Jeffery:

"How do you know that hydrants are needed on Front street more than anywhere else?"

"I've been over the ground and know what I'm talking about," replied Jeffery, "and unless there is a change of program in the Council, I'm willing to gamble that no hydrants will go there."

At this juncture former Sheriff Coriell entered the fray by jumping to his feet and declaring in an excited manner:

"If this harangue is going to continue I want to make a motion that this meeting adjourn. I've been chairman of the fire committee as a member of the Council and I know that Plainfield is provided with a good department. If we would vote to have a department as advocated by Jeffery it would cost the city $1,000,000. If you (addressing the chair) were not so thin-skinned you would see that."

"I'm not thin-skinned," retorted Jeffery, "but maybe you are."

"I've lived in Plainfield long enough, and am known well enough by its citizens, and I am not thin-skinned." At this juncture President Jeffery took charge of the pilot wheel, poured on the oil of diplomacy, and Mr. Coriell sat down.

Harry W. Marshall, former president of the board, also contributed a spicy flavor to the session by defending Mayor Fisk. "There is too much criticism heaped on the Mayor," said Mr. Marshall, "it is unjust. If you members of the Board will stand by the Mayor, instead of knocking him, you would get something. This unfair criticism of Mr. Fisk must stop as he is doing a darn sight more for the good and welfare of the city than any member of the Board of Trade or anybody else."

J. V. E. Vanderhoef spoke good words for the Mayor and declared that the trouble did not lay with him but it was up to the Council which body is evidently not with the Mayor, he stated.

Mr. Jeffery in paving the way for a discussion on the fire department question reported to the Board the results of his observations in the different fire houses of this city which he made on a recent tour. Chief among Jeffery's recommendations was that four more men be added to the force at headquarters and two more in each of the other houses.

Other recommendations made by Mr. Jeffery was that Engine House, No. 1, on West Second street, be placed in better condition for the firemen; that more hydrants and fire alarm boxes be installed; that needed improvements be made at headquarters.

THE WEATHER.

Partly cloudy tonight and cooler; Saturday, fair; moderate north to west winds.

Maximum, 74; minimum, 54.

Brightside Circle Entertains.

The members of Brightside Circle, of The King's Daughters, held their monthly social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin H. Rugg on Mercer avenue, last night. There was a full attendance of members and a delightful informal program was enjoyed.

WELL KNOWN FARMER DIES AT MARTINSVILLE

George W. VanNest, Sr., aged about 70 years, one of the best known farmers in Somerset county, died at his home in Martinsville yesterday afternoon. He had been a sufferer for years from pulmonary troubles. Mr. VanNest was born at Martinsville and had lived there all his life. He was very successful as a farmer and was esteemed as a citizen by all who knew him.

Mr. VanNest was a member of the election board in his district; also of the Mt. Horeb M. E. church, where he had been an attendant for many years. He is survived by a brother, John VanNest, of Martinsville; a sister, Mrs. Martha B. Colthar, of Duer street, the borough; also four daughters, Mrs. Simeon Gratrix, of Somerville; Mrs. M. W. King, of Liberty Corner; Mrs. Wesley Jeroloman, of Dover, and Miss Sarah VanNest, of Martinsville, and three sons, George W. VanNest, Jr., of North Plainfield; Edwin D. VanNest, of Larned, Kansas, and William VanNest, of Martinsville.

FOWLER'S FRIENDS ARE TO BE HEARD

The relation of Congressman Charles N. Fowler to the Progressive Republicans and his known aspiration for re-election from the Fifth district, or to succeed Senator John Kean, becomes increasingly interesting with the approach of the demonstration planned to be held in Proctor's theatre, Elizabeth, tonight, under the auspices of the "State League for the Election of United States Senator by Popular Vote." It is not to be doubted that it will prove a purely Fowler gathering.

Congressman Victor Murdock, of Kansas, arch-enemy of Speaker Cannon, and Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, insurgent Republican, will be the oratorical piece de resistance, and there will be other speakers who will doubtless seek to bolster up the arguments contained in the recent roasting letter issued over the signature of Mr. Fowler in which he sought to prove that there is a plot hatched by Senator Kean and State Treasurer Voorhees to encompass his defeat.

An effort will be made to organize a league for the furtherance of the principles of popular election of United States Senators. As this is a movement in which the Essex county progressives are greatly interested, it is expected that they will attend in a body. There will probably also be delegations from other parts of the State.

F. W. GODDARD WILL WED TOMORROW NIGHT.

The marriage of Miss Gladys Benjamin, daughter of Park Benjamin, of New York, and Frederick W. Goddard, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Goddard, of East Ninth street, will take place tomorrow night at the home of the bride's father on West 73rd street, New York. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Dr. DeLancy Townsend, of All Angles church, New York, and will be witnessed by the members of the two families and a few intimate friends.

A large reception will follow, after which the couple will take an extended trip. They will reside on West Sixty-ninth street, New York. Mr. Goddard is an insurance broker, being associated with Johnson & Higgins, of New York. He is a graduate of Amherst College, Class '98. Miss Benjamin is an author of considerable note, having contributed a number of articles to Ainslee's Magazine.

Rally a Great Success.

The rally held at the Shiloh Baptist church was a great success. About $809.84 in all was realized. There was $755 raised for the building fund, the trustees having purchased the building formerly used by the Feet Washers at a cost of $6,000. Rev. Dr. E. W. Roberts, pastor, who came here from Roselle about three months ago, is doing a good work and pastor and people are working in harmony.

John P. Myers an Usher.

John P. Myers, of this city, was one of the ushers at the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Cebra Holden, and Roderick Aitken Dorman, which took place at Madison, yesterday afternoon. Among the guests was President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton University.

SORG LOSES LAWSON CUP

Society Flocks to the Horse Show Grounds, Despite Weather, for Second Day's Exhibition.

Although it was showering this morning and the weather this afternoon was threatening, a downpour being expected almost at any moment, horse fanciers and fashionable folk gathered in large numbers for the second day of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club's sixth annual exhibition at its own grounds. Many of the spectators were protected by raincoats but here and there could be seen a member of the gentler sex anxious to display her gown despite the weather conditions.

There have been many surprises already at this show, not the least of which was that of yesterday when DeWitt C. Flanagan's entry won the Thomas W. Lawson cup, valued at $250, when it was generally expected that Paul Sorg would be successful in that particular class. Reginald C. Vanderbilt's blue ribboners have kept up their reputation and Mr. Sorg, although a loser for the Lawson cup, has been particularly lucky in several classes. Charles W. McCutchen has some coveted blues to his credit and is bound to win more before the show ends.

These classes were judged this afternoon by 2:30 o'clock.

Class 56—Harness horses (local), first, C. W. McCutchen's Jeanne d'Arc and All Ablaze; second, Albin Trogar's Peter and Paul.

Class 16—Novice harness horses. First, Paul Sorg's Royal Victoria; second, DeWitt C. Flanagan's Rataplan; third, Sand Point Farm's Aquidneck; fourth, George Watson's Florham Potentate.

Class 39—Novice saddle horses—First, W. A. McGibbon's Portchester; second, Andrew Morison's Black Diamond; third, Howard W. Beebe's Snip; fourth, Mrs. A. B. Prentice's Ginita.

Class 29—Ponies in harness—First, Paul Sorg's Vanity Fair; second, Belton Farm's Irvington Leading Girl; third, Belton Farm's Irvington Tour Trot.

One of the unexpected surprieses of the opening day, yesterday, was the defeat of Paul A. Sorg's handsome pair of horses, Puritan Maid and Precise, by DeWitt C. Flanagan's fine team, Rataplan and Prince Charming, for the Thomas W. Lawson cup. The judges after considerable deliberation awarded the blue to the latter. The decision seemed to meet with genral approbation.

This means that the handsome trophy, valued at $250, will again be in competition next year. Had Mr. Sorg been successful the cup would have become his personal property. From the first it was conceded that Mr. Flanagan's entry would make a strong bid for first honors and the spectators were not wrong in their opinion.

The day was not what one would call ideal for the show, the air being a little to cool to arouse the enthusiasm of the patrons. However, at intervals during the afternoon, the sun peeped through the clouds just long enough to brighten up things and make the crowd more cheerful, but toward night the air was real chilly and overcoats were not in the least a burden.

In all nineteen classes were judged yesterday and everyone proved interesting. Local horses fared exceedingly well in the awards. Among those taking prizes were Charles W. McCutchen's Piccadilly Sweetheart and Jeanne d'Arc, the former taking a blue and the latter a white in class 54 for single harness horses, while All Ablaze was awarded a yellow ribbon, being a strong competitor with Thomas J. Regan's Sarno, which was given second honors.

Perhaps one of the most interesting classes of the afternoon was Class 61, in which Reginald C. Vanderbilt's famous stallion, Tiger Lillie, and three of his get, Aquideck, Silfield Lillie and Sandy Point Confidence, were shown in hand. This was the only entry in this class and the blue was awarded to Mr. Vanderbilt. This blooded stock made a fine showing and round after round of applause was given as the horses encircled the ring.

This was also true of the next class, No. 62, breeding class, when Mr. Vanderbilt alone showed Silfield Lillie, a fine brown mare. This is

"As You Like It," which probably more than any other of the works of Shakespeare, lends itself easily to outdoor performance, will be the opening offering of the Coburn Players on the evening of June 7, at the Plainfield Country Club. No one who has not witnessed a presentation when the players are unhampered by the make-shifts—no matter how elaborate—of the indoor stage, can realize the additional charm possessed by the scenes in the Forest of Arden when the trees are trees indeed. The company is made up of the leading Shakespearean actors of the country and an excellent presentation of the comedies is assured.

Clarence Hand, of Fairview avenue, has returned from a visit at Ithaca, N. Y.

Fred Kleinschmidt, of New York, has returned home after visiting friends in this city.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

RARITAN.

Duke's Park is closed to the public except on Tuesdays and Fridays. The iron gates that have just been erected are disappointing to the many tourists who find they cannot enter. Mr. Duke made this rule after he found his roads being cut by the heavy automobiles, and also that some blossoms were being taken as souvenirs.

The Raritan Boat Club has just launched a fine motorboat on the canal at Raritan. The club is composed of many of the young men of the town, and heretofore they were content with canoes. The engine for the launch was made in Philadelphia and arrived last week.

Miss Florence Haas, who has finished her studies in the commercial department of the High School in Raritan, has a position as bookkeeper with J. & O. J. Nevins in Somerville.

Terrance and Michael Mulligan, of Waterbury, Conn., formerly of Raritan, are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. John Moran, on Church street.

Mrs. William Davis and son Bernard, of Boston, are visiting Mrs. Davis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Applegate, on Doughty street.

Mrs. John Fisher and daughter, of Brooklyn, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Connors, of Somerset street.

Miss Mildred Gray, of Cranford, is spending this week with her aunt, Mrs. Dunster, on Gaston avenue.

SOMERVILLE.

Michael W. Scully was yesterday elected secretary of Hillsborough Mutual Fire Assurance Association for the fortieth time, and celebrated the event by giving a dinner to the board of directors and a few friends at the Somerset Hotel.

The Amusement Club went on its annual picnic yesterday afternoon to Chimney Rock, making the trip in automobiles. The club took supper on the mountain.

Mrs. Meredith, of Maiden Creek, Pa., arrived in Somerville this week to make her home with her son, Jay L. Meredith, on Fairview avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Rowand, of Haddonfield, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Rohn, Jr., on Mountain avenue.

Commencement exercises at the Wilson Military Academy are to be held at the school Friday, June 10.

Henry Reemies has sold his Washington Valley peach farm to Mrs. Mary Vosselman, of Roselle Park.

Mrs. A. N. Dunster is home from Bernardsville, where she spent a week with relatives.

C. H. Bateman is in Albany attending a civil service meeting.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Plans for the old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration are well under way. The committees have been appointed and all that is needed to make the affair the success it should be is for everyone to take an interest in it and do what they can towards making the celebration the biggest Fourth of July in the history of the town.

Manager Joe Alberts has completed arrangements with Manager Doflinger for a series of three games between the locals and Plainfield. The first game of the series will be played here one week from tomorrow.

The committee on arrangement for the Fourth of July celebration are anxious that all the members of the several committees attend the meeting called for tonight in the Library rooms.

Guy and Donald Saunders, sons of Capt. H. B. Saunders, who have been attending school in Canada, have returned home for the summer vacation.

Ground has been broken for a new residence in the borough on the corner of Midway and Martine avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walsh, of Prospect avenue, have been entertaining friends from Brooklyn.

Mrs. Mary Barry has been making a number of improvements about her property on Westfield avenue.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The plans for the Fourth of July celebration here are now completed. One of the attractions will be a game of ball between the firemen and one of the local teams.

Work was begun on the South Plainfield B. B. C. diamond today. The diamond will be ready for the Ford's game next Sunday.

The South Plainfield Field Club and the St. Mary's A. C., of Plainfield, will clash tomorrow on the local diamond.

Mrs. William Voorhees has returned to her home in Asbury Park after a short visit with friends here.

William Hamilton is suffering from a slight injury to his eye.

TO PRINT STATE LAWS.

Much of the Work to Be Done in Newark.

Trenton, June 3.—Because of the close bidding by firms desiring the contract to bind the laws of the past session of Legislature and the chancery and law reports, the printing committee of the State House Commission decided to award the contract to the two lowest bidders and permit them to divide the work between them.

The two successful firms are MacCrellish & Quigley, of Trenton, and Soney & Sage, of Newark. Their figures are identical.

EDITORIAL!
"Convenience" as Exemplified By Our Store Arrangement.

To make the purchasing of merchandise an easy and economical process for you is the great aim of this store.

Have you ever studied the arrangement of the departments? If you have not, upon your next visit note the manner in which they lead one into another.

This is no haphazard grouping of merchandise, nothing has been left to chance. The position of each stock has been selected with care and calculation.

Allied goods—those which you are apt to require at the same time—materials needed for the same garment—articles which go to make up the same outfit—have been brought as near together as possible.

In this, as in all else, we have sought how best we might serve your interests and convenience.

TROTTING SEASON OPENS TOMORROW

The first matinee races of the season will be inaugurated at the Plainfield Driving Park tomorrow afternoon. There is likely to be some fine sport as on the program are two matches.

The stellar event will be a match between the speedy pacers, Bion Girl 2.12¼, owned by James Lawless, of Metuchen, and Dick Welsh 2.13¼, owned by H. Brautigan, of the same place. Bion Girl will be handled by George Gatling, the well known colored driver, and Johnny Osborne will pilot Dick Welsh.

Another match to be decided is between Tokio, owned by Huff Bros., of Jersey City, and King Dillon, a Somerville horse.

There are also three races carded, a free for all, a 2.20 trot and pace and a 2.30 trot.

RED STARS TROUNCE PLAINFIELD JUNIORS.

The Red Stars defeated the Plainfield Juniors yesterday on the Richmond street grounds by the score of 14 to 6. The teams lined up as follows:

FIGHT OVER PRINCIPAL.

Appointment of McGuiness to Be Opposed in Court.

New Brunswick, June 3.—Samuel Schleimer, a local lawyer, has served notice upon the Board of Education that he has been retained to contest the appointment of E. L. McGuiness as city superintendent of schools by the old Board of Education. He holds that the appointment should have been made by the new board.

The city attorney will look after the Board of Education's interests in the proceedings to follow.

NEWS AND NOTES
BY GEORGE E. FIRSTBROOK

Y.M.C.A. BALL TEAM PLAYING SUPERB GAME

Manager George L. Listman, of the Y. M. C. A. nine is highly gratified over the splendid showing of his aggregation of baseballists this season. In the eight games played to date the locals have won five, lost two, and was tied in one game.

The records show the locals are spanking the ball in terrific fashion. In the eight contests they have outbatted their opponents 70 hits to 52; secored 36 runs to 33 by opposing teams. In error making 26 misplays are chalked up against the locals to 33 by opposing clubs.

Slocum's pitching is one of the surprises of the season. The youngster is twirling splendidly and is one of the strike-out wonders of the season. Slocum is also the king batter of the team with a percentage of .321 for eight games. The batting averages to date follow:

	G.	AB.	R.	H.	Pc.
Miller	2	8	3	3	.375

Y. M. C. A. SPORTS.

Physical Director George L. Listman is receiving entries for the annual athletic contests of the Sunday School Athletic League which will be conducted on Saturday afternoon, June 25. The program is as follows: (Over 110 pounds), 1-mile run, 440-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 12-pound shot putting contest, running high jump, running hop, step and jump; (Juniors not to exceed 110 pounds), 50-yard dash, 220-yard dash, sack race. (Boys not to exceed 90 pounds), 50-yard dash, running broad jump, 440-yard relay race. There will also be a special obstacle race for all divisions. Medals and ribbons will be awarded to the winner.

In the State Y. M. C. A. meet which will be held at East Orange on June 11, Plainfield will be well represented. George Linke and Russell Miller will compete in the dashes; John Payne in the shot putting event, and Franklin B. Newell in the pole vault and high jump.

The Y. M. C. A. team will journey to Metuchen on Saturday afternoon, and on Saturday, June 11, the Greenpoint Y. M. C. A. will appear on Crescent Oval as the opponent of the local nine.

Oiling Rumson Road.

Red Bank, June 3.—Two huge tank cars containing oil for the Rumson road have reached Seabright. Men have been put to work putting the preparation on the road.

Miss Mae Atkinson, of Greenbrook road, is visiting friends in Passaic.

Miss Bertha Neely, of Pittsburg, Pa., is visiting the Misses Berkhan, of Watchung avenue.

CHAMPIONSHIP GAME IS ON TOMORROW

The crack Elizabeth A. C. will make its initial appearance of the season on Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon in an engagement with Manager Dorflinger's Plainfield's, which will be the first game of a series of five for the Union county championship. The Skeeters are playing fast ball this season and the locals will have to hustle to win.

In the box for Elizabeth will be Langstaff, the Dixon College pitching wonder. He is said to be the real goods when it comes to distributing curves. Jimmy Emery declared today that he is a warm baby. This is the way Jimmy boosted him:

"Langstaff's curves are so speedy that they smoke when they come across the pan. This is no kiddin', he's got everything."

The county seaters will line up in the following array: Langstaff, pitcher; Hefferman, catcher; Kling, first base; Seitz, second base; Waldron, shortstop; Eichler, third base; Sellor, left field; Moore, centre field; Leeds, right field.

McLaughlin and Nelson will be the battery for Plainfield. In the infield will be Jimmy Emery on third sack, Carlstrom at shortstop; Brit Martin, on the center cushion, and Norman Barnes, on first base. The outfield will be selected from Shott, Lidgate, Halfost and Boyd.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., June 3, 1910.

THE CITY'S BENEFACTOR.

In making her will, Mrs. Minnie E. Edgerton, whose funeral took place Wednesday, exemplified the splendid reputation she had enjoyed in the community where she had done so much for those in illness, sorrow and other distress. Richly blessed with the world's goods, she contributed liberally at all times and to all worthy causes. She shunned publicity and therefore on one knew how much of her fortune she disposed of during her life.

We do know now that Mrs. Edgerton has gone to her reward and her last testament is made public, that she has been most generous to the community and to those who had been her faithful friends and advisors. In all, her public gifts reach the munificent sum of one hundred and fifty-six thousand dollars. The list of benevolences shows that she had given much thought to the needs of the various institutions and not one of the local charities was overlooked.

Mrs. Edgerton's public remembrances are all the more noteworthy because, unfortunate to relate and strange as it may seem, public bequests are very infrequent in this city. Her name will go down in local history as a true benefactor of the community.

VOTING MACHINES ARE DISLIKED BY VOTERS

Citizens who are interested in the agitation for a special election in this city to ascertain whether voting machines shall be retained or abolished will be interested in some new information given in a letter received by George W. V. Moy from Secretary of State Samuel D. Dickinson as to the sentiment in other municipalities on the question. Mr. Dickinson informed Mr. Moy that as a result of elections in 258 municipalities only seven machines have been retained in those communities. The letter received by Mr. Moy reads as follows:

"Replying to your communication of the 31st ult., I beg to state that the total number of voting machines purchased by this State and assigned to voting districts is 361. Special elections have been held in 258 municipalities. The number of voting machines retained is seven."

youth of the defendant struck a sympathetic chord in the breasts of the younger members of the jury, of whom there were four. Mr. Crane met every point pressed by the State and presented his own side in a manner that has earned him commendation from many able and older legal lights. While the summing up fell on the shoulders of the brilliant dean of the Somerset bar, Alvah A. Clark, Mr. Crane handled practically all the witnesses on both sides and delivered a stirring adress in opening the defense.

Buckley was put on the stand yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock and made an excellent witness for himself. His claim that the killing was not premeditated and that he had the pistol in his possession because he intended going west was not beaten down by the prosecutor, nor was his assertion that the statements he made were dragged from him by means of intimidation and starvation. His reply as to what he meant by a letter he wrote to Miss Bessie Van Nest on April 19, stating that "he could not stand this any longer and determined to put an end to it," was that he intended to commit suicide. Buckley was on thestand for an hour and when tricked into hard corners by Mr. Pope fell back on the convenient answers of "I don't remember" and "Not that I know of."

Mr. Clark consumed just thirty-one minutes in the closing address to the jury, while Mr. Pope spoke five minutes less. Judge Parker gave an impartial charge in which he outlined what elements are necessary to make up the verdicts of first and second degree murder and manslaughter. This was the first time that manslaughter had been mentioned in the case. The jury retired at 4:45.

the first time that stallions have been listed, and it has aroused great interest. A class for stallions will be provided today and tomorrow.

Paul A. Sorg with his numerous entries received several awards yesterday, taking the blue in Class 15, the first one of the afternoon; also in Class 7, with Lady Tuck, defeating Mr. Vanderbilt's Lord Brooke; and in Class 10 with his fine pair, Tease and Torment. Mrs. Sorg handled the ribbons of his pair and was greatly admired for her cleverness. Mrs. L. A. D. Percival drove Peter Pan and Sunshine in Class 10, and pressed the winning pair very hard for honors. Mr. Sorg also received a blue in Class 31, with Pioneer, defeating Mrs. Bowen's entry, Beau Brummel.

A welcome innovation was made yesterday by placing two classes, Nos. 45 and 46, for hunters and jumpers, in the middle of the card, thus relieving the monotony of judging the ordinary classes, while the day's program closed with a class for hunters and jumpers, open to all. The hunters furnished fine sport, especially the last one, when twenty horses were in competition. This was a difficult class to judge and some of the horses were called upon to repeat their performances. Mrs. James B. McKay's famous Jack Frost finally captured the blue in this class, with George Wallen and Bernard G. Gunther's Mr. Meleady second; Frederic Bull's Knight of Elway third and George Wallen and Bernard G. Gunther's Quandry fourth. Yesterday's awards were as follow:

Class 15—Pair of harness horses 15 hands not exceeding 15.2 hands. First, Paul A. Sorg's ch. m. No Name and ch. m. No Name; second, Charles W. McCutchen's blk. m. Jeanne d'Arc and ch. m. All Ablaze.

Class 38—Saddle horses 15.1 hands, or under. First, Godfrey Preece's bay g. Watchful; second, Hugh Gormley's bay m. Pretty Polly; third, Kuhn-Rohlig's blk m. Senta.

Class 17—Pair of harness horses 15.2 hands. First, DeWitt C. Flanagan's b. g. Rataplan and b. g. Prince Charming; second, George Watson's bro. s. Florham Phenomenal and b. g. Florham Potentate.

Class 7—Single harness horses over 15.2 hands. First, Paul A. Sorg's bro. m. Lady Tuck; second, Sandy Point Farm's b. g. Lord Brooke; third, DeWitt C. Flanagan's b. g. Lord Russell; fourth, Paul A. Sorg's b. g. Middletown King.

Class 28—Ponies in harness 13.3 hands and under. First, Belton Farm's b. m. Irvington Peggy; second, T. Douglas Robinson's b. g. Doncaster Model; third, Peter Hauck, Jr.'s b. g. Jack Spratt; fourth, Miss Gladys Constance Herbert's b. g. Bo-Peep.

Class 21—Pair harness horses (Lawson Cup), for the best pair of horses suitable for a demi-mail and Stanhope phaeton. First, DeWitt C. Flanagan's b. g. Rataplan and b. g. Prince Charming; second, Paul A. Sorg's b. g. Puritan Maid and b. m. Precise.

Class 34—Saddle horses over 15.2 hands. First, Henry R. Rea's ch. g. Heartspring; second, Andrew Morison's b. m. Black Diamond; third, Castlewall Stable's ch. m. Fairy Queen; fourth W. A. McGibbon's b. g. Nettleton Bay.

Class 54—Single harness horses (local) horse any height, horses only to count. First, Charles W. McCutchen's ch. m. Piccadilly Sweethear; second, Kuhn-Rohlig's b. m. Beauty; third, Ivanbrook Farm's ch. g. Peter Pan; fourth, C. W. McCutchen's ch. g. Jeanne d'Arc.

Class 1—Roadsters. First, C. W. McCutchen's b. g Willie Direct; second, Emil Seelig's ch. g. Carl Wilkes; third, Louis Schmieder's ch. m. Cecilia Bellini; fourth, W. J. Buttfield's ch. g. Dreamwold Devil.

Class 10—Pair harness horses (ladies to drive). First, Paul A. Sorg's b. m. Tease and Torment; second, Emil Seelig's ch. g. Peter Pan and Sunshine; third, Mrs. F. J. Hull's ch. m. Comet and ch. g. Fleurette.

Class 19—Tandems. First, Paul A. Sorg's b. g. Middletown King and b. g. Pilgrim; second, DeWitt C. Flanagan's b. g. Prince Charming and b. g. Rataplan; third, W. G. Foster's b. m. Sporting Duchess and b. g. Lord Forest.

Class 46—Green hunters (heavy and middle weight). First, P. A. Clark's bro. g. Sam; second, Thomas Henry Watkins' bro. g. Telephone; third, George Wallen and Bernard G. Gunther's b. g. Quandry; fourth, Mrs. L. A. D. Percival's b. g. Westbury.

The official program for today follows:

Class 55—three pairs harness horses (local), 1:15; Class 16—six single harness horses (novice), 1:30; Class 39—eleven saddle horses (novice), 1:50; Class 29—three ponies in harness, 2:05; Class 14—eleven single harnes horses (novice), 2:15; Class 41—three ponies under saddle, 2:40; Class 22—seven single harness horses (Dr. Selwonk's cup), 2:45; Class 35—ten saddle horses (up to 2,00, pounds), 3:00; Class 18—two tandems, 2:15; Class 6—three pairs harness horses, 3:25; Class 56—two ponies in harness (local), 3:30; Class 11—six horses shown to runabouts, 3:35; Class 37—fourteen saddle horses (ladies to ride), 3:50; Class 47—thirteen ladies' hunters (ladies to ride), 4:10; Class 3—five single harness horses 4:35; Class 27—three combination panies, 4:45; Class 43—eight qualified hunters (light weight), 5:00; Class 44—six qualified hunters (heavy and midde), 5:20.

ANNUAL RECITAL OF MISS WHITNEY'S PUPILS

A decidedly fine performance was given by the pupils of Miss May Vincent Whitney in the High School auditorium last evening and some of Miss Whitney's pupils shone brilliantly in a constellation of extraordinary stars. The overture from "William Tell," as played by Miss Whitney and Muriel Collins, was a splendid piece of work, in which the two performers displayed a technique of unusual excellence and added to the laurels already won by the instructor of some of the ablest musical pupils in the city.

Miss Julia Rowley shared the honors with Elizabeth Martin in tokens of flowers sent up over the stage and the 700 auditors were moved to tumultuous applause when the "Fest Overture," Richter, was rendered by four children in double work. As a matter of fact last night's recital was one of the most successful of the eight previous ones given by the pupils of Miss Whitney's school and reflects great credit on both the teacher and the pupils.

Results in Bowling Tourney.

In Campbell's two-man bowling tourney last night Vanderbilt took two out of three games from Eller and Causbrook won the odd game from Nash. Radin and Britton forfeited.

"And If You Didn't Give the Values You'd Never Succeed As You Have"

That's what a young woman said last Saturday as she was paying Four Dollars for a dainty pair of patent pumps—and the aptness and truth of the remark struck the writer so forcefully that it is repeated here. The word "values" doesn't apply to the littleness of price alone because we are showing a superb collection of shapes and designs in the $4.00 Oxfords that are unmatchable at that price.

SUNDAY FUNERALS AGAIN DISCUSSED.

Elizabeth, June 3.—That the recent agreement between the ministers and the Coach Drivers' Local is being violated was a declaration made last night at a meeting of the Central Labor Union. It was said that there is only one minister, the Rev. Christian G. Fischer, pastor of the German Lutheran church, who refuses to officiate at funeral services on Sunday.

A few months ago it was agreed between the ministers and the Coach Drivers' Local that there would be no Sunday funerals. This action was caused by the coach drivers. All of the ministers assented. It was resolved by the central body to refer the matter to the secretary of the Coach Drivers' Local.

A donation of $15 was given to the Playground Commission to aid it in its work of providing a playground. John T. Cosgrove, who proposed the donation, said that the ground would be used particularly by the children of workingmen and that it was their duty to advance the work.

The central body received $5 from the Barbers' Local. It was announced that Frank Burke, of Clark place, was the winner of the $100 prize in the drawing for the new labor temple.

Pupils Favor Sane Fourth.

Westfield, June 3.—The children of McKinley School, Kenilworth, at an election, decided that they would rather have a sane Fourth than run the risk of having maimed fingers and other wounds. The school was about evenly divided, however, the final vote being 69 in favor of a sane Fourth and 67 voting in favor of the old-fashioned kind.

ELIZABETH MERCHANTS MAY ENTER POLITICS.

Elizabeth, June 3.—Politics in the form of an independent ticket will be brought into play by the First Street Merchants' Association in the coming campaign. This was decided upon at a meeting of the organization in the Lenox Hotel last night.

It was said by merchants that their representatives in City Council and the Board of Freeholders were not acquainted with the movements of the association and that at the next election they will attempt to put their own candidates into office. It was said that Councilmen and Freeholders have done nothing toward the betterment of First street.

Requests for the repairing of the First street pavement were heard. The merchants said that for the past year the street has been neglected. A report on their conference with the street committee of the City Council was heard from the bridge committee. It reported progress.

OPPOSE PAVILION.

Elizabeth, June 3.—With the exception of Union Township all the municipalities in Union County are in favor of the Union County Board of Freeholders erecting a tuberculosis pavilion. The fact that Union is against the pavilion was learned yesterday at the meeting of the freeholders. A communication was received from the Union town clerk to the effect that there wasn't sufficient data on hand to warrant the indorsement of the Union officials.

This fact will not deter the freeholders from going into the matter and investigating the cost of erection and maintenance. The cost will be more than originally thought, but, the freeholders contend, it will be worth the price.

SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD BOY DRAWN ON PETIT JURY.

Roselle Park, June 3.—Much to his surprise, Frank Bostock, of Webster avenue, the star football player and all-round athlete of Roselle Park High School, Wednesday received notice that he had been drawn by Sheriff Kirkland to serve on the petit jury panel, which begins its duties next Monday morning. Bostock don't know what to do about the matter, for he is only sixteen years old, and he says that he never had a "job of that kind before." Bostock contends that if he is qualified to serve as a juror he must be qualified to vote.

There is no doubt that the sheriff made a mistake in drawing Bostock. The latter says he is going to the sheriff's office today, and will show the sheriff that, though he has the honor of being selected as a juror, he doesn't look the part.

FOR HIGHER LICENSES.

Rahway Churches Want Fee Increased $500.

All the churches in Rahway omitted their midweek prayer meeting Wednesday to take part in the union temperance massmeeting in the Second Presbyterian church, under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. The meeting was largely attended. The question of increasing the license fee from $500 to $1,000, which will be brought up for final action by the Board of Excise Monday night, was discussed.

The speakers included local pastors and William C. Gebhardt, Senator from Hunterdon county. The musical part of the service was an attractive feature.

200 Charming Summer Silk Dresses

MADE ESPECIALLY FOR US TO BE SOLD AT ABOUT HALF PRICE.

All this house needs is opportunity—we are always prepared to grasp every good thing that comes our way. True, we pass up many things that are offered us—many lots of dresses that do not appeal to us for one reason or another, and these go to other houses; but few really good lots get by us, for the makers know of the vast outlet of our allied stores, and they naturally come to us first with their best and biggest lots.

The dresses we offer tomorrow, fully 200 (there may be more), are in this season's very best and most fashionable styles, coming from one of the smartest of New York's makers. Included are dresses of Messaline, Chiffon Taffeta, Shantung, Pongee, Changeable Taffeta, Fancy Checks, Novelty Stripes.

The bodies are full braided; Dutch or lace yokes and high collars; some with the new ruff front; long or short sleeves, with and without lace finish; the skirts are in the fashionable tunic style, accordion or kilted.

These dresses, if put on the market in the usual way, would have retailed at $16 to $37, but we are going to sell them tomorrow at these four prices—

REVERE ESTATE GOES TO AID WORTHY CAUSES.

Morristown, June 3.—An estate worth $175,000 is disposed of by the will of former Alderman Augustus L. Revere, which was filed for probate here Wednesday. The disposition of the estate is deferred until the death of the testator's mother, who is ninety-two years old, and bedridden.

The will provides generous gifts to charity. At Mrs. Revere's death $25,000 is to be given to the Church of the Redeemer as an endowment fund for general purposes and $25,000 more is given to erect a new building. The Morristown Trust Company is to hold $20,000 in trust, the income to be paid to Maria Amelia Revere, of Canton, Mass., and after her death the money is to be given to Harvard University to be known as the Revere family memorial fund. To All Souls' Hospital $10,000 is bequeathed to be known as the Paul Revere memorial fund. To the Morristown Trust Company $6,000 is left in trust, of which $5,000 is to be used to erect a bronze base for the flagstaff on Morristown Green, to bear the inscription "Erected to the memory of my father, General Joseph W. Revere, and brother, Paul Revere." A large portrait of General Revere is to be painted and hung in the State House at Trenton, the sum of $1,000 being bequeathed for the purpose.

To the Church of the Ascension is left $5,000, to pay for continuing the wall around the cemetery on Whippany road. Market Street Mission, this city, receives $2,500, and "Providence Medical Attendance to the Worthy" is bequeathed a similar sum. All employes of the testator for over one year's service are to share equally in $1,000. The residue of the estate goes to the Church of the Redeemer.

Had the testator survived his mother, $60,000 was to be given to Morristown Free Public Library, $2,500 more to Market Street Mission, and $500 to purchase a medal, to be known as the Revere medal, and awarded for police or department bravery.

Pastor White Resigns.

NEW JERSEY STUDENTS WIN COLUMBIA HONORS.

New York, June 3.—Announcement of the annual awards of prizes and honors at Columbia University was made Wednesday afternoon at the commencement exercises. James Wilson, 1913, of Newark, N. J., was awarded one of the two prizes of $50 awarded annually by the New Jersey Alumni Association to the New Jersey students who pass the best entrance examinations to Columbia College and Schools of Mines, Engineering and Chemistry, respectively. No award was made of the other prize.

Arthur W. McMahon, 1912, of Lyndhurst, N. J., was awarded the Philolexian centennial prize. The Philolexian prize went to Geddes Smith, 1910, of Orange, N. J.

Kate Huntington Tiemann, 1911, of East Orange, N. J., received honorable mention for the Flarshein prize.

Gertrude Laura Hunter, 1910, of Plainfield, N. J., was awarded the Jenny A. Gerard gold medal. The medal is given by the Society of the Colonial Dames of America in memory of Mrs. James Gerard, late president of the society. It is awarded annually to the undergraduate student of American birth in Barnard College most proficient in American Colonial history.

Sidney Boon, 1910, of Grantwood, N. J., received honorable mention for the prize for the best short story.

The Darling prize went to Walter W. Oakley, of Ridgefield, N. J. It is awarded to the most faithful and deserving student of the graduation class in mechanical engineering. Three candidates were selected by the faculty of applied science, Henry Drew Egbert, A. B., of New York; David S. Herzog, of New York; Walter Weckerle Oakley, of Ridgefield, N. J. The class chose Mr. Oakley as the recipient of the prize.

The senior class of Barnard College held its banquet Wednesday night. Among the speakers was Miss Maud E. Emery, of Newark, N. J.

Autoists Pay Fine.

It cost Edward S. F. Randolph, a real estate dealer, $25 for speeding in Harrison avenue, Westfield. The fine was imposed Wednesday night by Justice of the Peace Toucey. The complaint against Mr. Randolph was made by Andrew Smith, a Harrison avenue resident.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Dogs invaded the duck farm of Harry Proud, at Glassboro, Tuesday night and killed over $400 worth of ducks.

Henry Sharper, of Rosenhayn, has four acres of wheat which stands five feet in the clear, and the heads are seven inches long.

So plentiful are strawberries around Mays Landing that growers are unable to secure enough pickers to reap the harvest, and a large quantity will be spoiled.

Game Warden Davis, investigating the cause of so many dead fish floating on the surface of waters of Salem county, finds the rivers contaminated with oil, dyestuffs and sewage.

Jumping suddenly at the sound of the noon whistle yesterday, Mrs. G. Arnold, employed in a Riverside industry, fell out a window and broke a leg. She was taken to her home in Palmyra.

Mrs. William J. Helms, of Bridgeport, has sent her niece, Mrs. George Hamlin, residing in Stevenson, Scotland, a collection of handsome Jersey flowers, which were treated with a preparation of wax.

Adjudged guilty of a charge of cruelty in failing to feed his pigeons and chickens for several days, Samuel H. Conwell, of 313 North Twenty-eighth street, was fined by Justice of the Peace Grumley in Camden Wednesday.

Three hundred pounds of "snappers" have recently been caught in Great Egg Harbor River by George Smith, of Mays Landing, the largest of which weighed thirty pounds. Smith has made a profession of turtle fishing for years.

While the garden at the home of Allen Horner, at Chesterfield, was being graded Tuesday, two gold medallions were uncovered. They proved to be the property of Miss Helen Wallace and Mrs. Catherine Stillwell, taken by robbers from their homes three years ago.

In Jersey City Wednesday fire destroyed the two-story frame building at 305 Third street, used as a mattress factory. The building was owned by Louis Steger, of Bloomfield. The damages are estimated at $5,000. Samuel Dainarez, who operated the factory, was a heavy loser.

A man who gave the name of James Howard was taken from the top of a freight car on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Bordentown with a bad cut over the eye Tuesday night. He said he was on his way to his Jersey City home, but he could not explain how he was injured.

While returning to his home Wednesday night, Stare Puyer, a negro, of Clarkesburg, Va., was taken suddenly ill on a train, and died at the Clinton Street Station, Paterson, while County Physician Scammell was attending him. Puyer was twenty-five years old and was a waiter. He went to Long Branch some time ago to work in one of the hotels at that place.

The fund for a new homeopathic hospital for Camden Wednesday reached $100,000, the amount it was decided to raise. The campaign that was waged to solicit this amount from the public is similar to one conducted to erect a new Young Men's Christian Association building, and when it was begun the general belief was that the amount could not be secured. Subscriptions of $500 and more were received from citizens who have never been heard of by the general public.

In the presence of many friends eight young women were graduated as nurses at the State Hospital in Trenton Wednesday afternoon. Those who received diplomas were Anna Mary Maguire, Alwida Frances Scott, Mary Leslie Merrill, Mary Ann Waller, Jennie Belle Swarner, Mary Ethel Martin, Ethel Cameron Pyle and Elizabeth Cecelia Attwood. For having attained the highest average a gold medal, offered by Dr. Henry A. Cotton, medical director of the institution, was presented to Miss Merrill. Miss Merrill's average was 99; that of Miss Pyle was 98, and the other members of the class were but a few points behind them.

In behalf of Miss Margaret Bruce, eighteen years old, who was terribly injured in a runaway caused by an approaching automobile, near Moorestown, on March 25 last, former Judge Howard Carrow and William J. Kraft, of Camden, have brought suit in the New Jersey Supreme Court for $10,000 damages against Harry C. Allen, owner and driver of the automobile. Miss Bruce is the daughter of Dr. David D. Bruce, of Mt. Laurel, Burlington county. She was driving alone at the time, and the carriage in which she was seated was demolished. Dr. Bruce has also brought suit to recover for the loss of the carriage.

Aeolian Men Dine.

Westfield, June 3.—The officers of the Aeolian Company at Garwood held a banquet at the Kenilworth Inn last night. Covers were laid for forty. All the officers of the company, both from the plant in Garwood and the New York office, were present. The party went from Garwood in automobiles. The banquet was held in the private dining-room.

L. BAMBERGER & CO.

NEWARK N.J.

She Knew Him.

"Dearest," cooed the young husband who had been on a pleasure trip and overstayed his time, "did you get those letters I wrote you every day?"

"Yes, John," responded the young wife.

"Well—er—what did you do with them?"

"Why, I placed them between the leaves of that bogus Artic explorer's book."

"Artic explorer's book! Gracious, did you think they were cold?"

"No, but I thought they would be at home among friction."

And it was five minutes before he ventured to speak again.—Detroit Free Press.

THIS THE HORSE SHOW SOME FOLKS DO SAY

Society, including a large number of exhibitors, enjoyed the opening day of the Plainfield horse show, and many interesting groups were noticed in the private boxes, in the grandstand and about the ringside. While the women folk did not make any especial effort to appear in their best finery, the threatening weather interfering to some extent, a number of very fashionable gowns were noticed. Among the most prominent people in the crowd were the following:

Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Sorg, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Morison, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McGibbon, DeWitt C. Flanagan, Charles A. Baudvine, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. McCutchen, L. E. A Private Exhibit of

Chalmers Cars

¶ A duplicate of the exhibit which attracted so much attention at the Madison Square Garden Show in New York, will be held in our show rooms all this week.

¶ There will be a "cut-out" Chassis showing every Chalmers car in operation just as when on the road.

¶ Lee Lorimer, the famous racing driver, will exhibit the "Blue-Bird" with which he has won so many victories in contests of speed and endurance.

¶ Lorimer will be on hand at the exhibit afternoons and evenings and will talk on the care, management and operation of automobiles.

He will tell how he won victories in Chalmers cars and how to get the most out of an automobile on the road

LOCAL AUTO SHOW.

An automobile exhibit which shows the construction of a motor car in all its details will be the centre of attraction Saturday, June 4th to June 12th, in the salesrooms of Andrew C. Thompson Auto Co., local representative of the Chalmers Motor Co. This exhibit is one of three which the Chalmers Company has sent on a tour of the country in charge of three of the company' famous race drivers. Lee Lorimer is in charge of the local exhibit.

This Chalmers exhibit is purely educational. It consists of a "cut-out" chassis which reveals all of the inner workings and construction of the car. From the radiator to the axle, the various parts of the car have been cut away. One can see the interiors of the cylinders, the transmission gears, the working of the differential gears, the frame and wheel construction, the mechanism of the steering gear and even the interior of the brake drums. The whole chassis is illuminated by tiny electric lights, so that every part may be distinctly seen. A motor operates the cut-out car, so that the effect is that of looking at a transparent automobile in operation.

There is also a crank shaft and fly wheel which is propelled by the air currents from an electric fan. This crank shaft illustrates the famous Chalmers two-bearing suspension and the sturdiness of the Chalmers crank shaft.

In a glass case are shown all of the ball bearings used in the Chalmers "30", a display wonderfully interesting in itself. In frames are shown portraits of the famous Chalmers racing drivers, the men who in the past two years have made Chalmers cars the champions on track, road and hill.

But perhaps the greatest popular interest attaches to the "Bluebird" racing car that won the Indian trophy, the Merrimac cup, the Massapequa trophy, the Santa Monica cup and many other of the important racing prizes of 1909.

Interesting talks are given in connection with the exhibit by factory experts. The exhibit will be in the city but one week and every one who can, whether or not an automobile driver, should take advantage of the opportunity to study the workings of this famous car.

The old servant paused at the door. There slid across the floor with the silent feet of the savage the tiny figure of a little child, perhaps four years of age, with coal-black hair and beady eyes, clad in all the bequilled finery that a trading post could furnish—a little orphan child, as I learned later, whose parents had both been lost in a canoe accident at the Dalles. She was an infant, wild, untrained, unloved, unable to speak a word of the language that she heard. She stood now hesitating, but that was only by reason of her sight of me. As I stepped aside, the little one walked steadily but with quickening steps to my satin-clad lady on her couch of husks. She took up the child in her arms. . . . Now, there must be some speech between woman and child. I do not know, except that the Baroness von Ritz spoke and that the child put out a hand to her cheek. Then, as I stood awkward as a clown myself and not knowing what to do, I saw tears rain again from the eyes of Helena von Ritz, so that I turned away, even as I saw her cheek laid to that of the child while she clasped it tight.

"See, then," she said; "here is my companion across the mountains."

Again I began to expostulate, but now she tapped her foot impatiently in her old way. "You have heard me say it. Very well. Follow if you like. Listen also if you like. In a day or so Dr. McLaughlin plans a party for us all far up the Columbia to the missions at Wailatpu. That is in the valley of the Walla Walla, they tell me, just at this edge of the Blue mountains, where the wagon trains come down into this part of Oregon."

"They may not see the wagon trains so soon," I ventured. "They would scarcely arrive before October, and now it is but summer."

"At least these British officers would see a part of this country, do you not comprehend? We start within three days at least. I wish only to say that perhaps—"

"Ah, I will be there surely, madam!"

"If you come independently. I have heard, however, that one of the missionary women wishes to go back to the states. I have thought that perhaps it might be better did we go together. Also Natoka. Also Chow."

"Does Dr. McLaughlin know of your plans?"

"I am not under his orders, monsieur. I only thought that, since you were used to this western travel, you could, perhaps, be of aid in getting me proper guides and vehicles. I should rely upon your judgment very much, monsieur."

"You are asking me to aid you in your own folly," said I discontentedly, "but I will be there; and be sure also you can not prevent me from following—if you persist in this absolute folly. A woman—to cross the Rockies!"

I rose now, and she was gracious enough to follow me part way toward the door. We hesitated there, awkwardly enough. But once more our hands met in some sort of fellowship.

"Forget!" I heard her whisper. And I could think of no reply better than that same word.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

When a Woman Would.

The two pleasantest days of a woman are her marriage day and the day of her funeral.—Hipponax.

My garden at the Willamette might languish if it like, and my little cabin might stand in uncut wheat. For me, there were other matters of more importance now. I took leave of hospitable Dr. McLaughlin at Fort Vancouver with proper expressions of the obligation due for his hospitality; but I said nothing to him, of course, of having met the mysterious baroness, nor did I mention definitely that I intended to meet them both again at no distant date. None the less, I prepared to set out at once up the Columbia river trail.

From Fort Vancouver to the missions at Wailatpu was a distance by trail of more than 200 miles. This I covered horseback, rapidly, and arrived two or three days in advance of the English. Nothing disturbed the quiet until, before noon of one day, we heard the gun fire and the shoutings which in that country customarily made announcement of the arrival of a party of travelers. Being on the lookout for these, I soon discovered them to be my late friends of the Hudson bay post.

One old brown woman, unhappily astride a native pony, I took to be Threlka, my lady's servant, but she rode with her class, at the rear. I looked again, until I found the baroness, clad in buckskins and blue cloth, brave as any in finery of the frontier. Dr. McLaughlin saw fit to present us formally, or rather carelessly, it not seeming to him that two so different would meet often in the future; and of course there being no dream even in his shrewd mind that we had ever met in the past. This supposition fitted our plans, even though it kept us apart. I was but a common emigrant farmer, camping like my kind. She, being of distinction, dwelt with the Hudson bay party in the mission buildings.

CHAPTER XXIX.

In Exchange.

Great women belong to history and to self-sacrifice.—Leigh Hunt.

For sufficient reasons of my own, which have been explained, I did not care to mingle more than was necessary with the party of the Hudson bay folk who made their headquarters with the missionary families. I kept close to my own camp when not busy with my inquiries in the neighborhood, where I now began to see what could be done in the preparation of a proper outfit for the baroness. Herself I did not see for the next two days; but one evening I met her on the narrow log gallery of one of the mission houses. Without much speech we sat and looked over the pleasant prospect of the wide flats, the fringe of willow trees, the loom of the mountains off toward the east.

"Continually you surprise me, madam," I began at last. "Can we not persuade you to abandon this foolish plan of your going east?"

"I can see no reason for abandoning it," said she. "There are some thousands of your people, men, women and children, who have crossed that trail. Why should not I?"

Don't Let "Poor Combustion" Pick Your Pocket

Poor combustion is a common fault of common furnaces and a common reason for large fuel bills and cold houses—a BOYNTON "square-pot" furnace compels the fuel fed to it to yield its full toll of heat and comfort and deliver it upstairs as well as down.

The BOYNTON "Square-pot" is the greatest of furnace improvements—one which every builder of heaters has long aimed for. It makes perfect and economical combustion possible.

The BOYNTON line of steam and hot water heaters for residence heating are all fitted with the economical square fire pot and square grate. If you have heating troubles, a BOYNTON will cure them.

SALAAM TEMPLE NOBLES WILL HAVE A GAY TIME

Salaam Temple, Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, of Newark, of which many Plainfield Masons are members, is looking forward with keen interest to the big celebration which will be held next Tuesday evening, when W. Freeland Kendrick, outer guard of the Imperial Council, will pay an official visit to the temple. It will be his first official pilgrimage since his elevation to imperial office.

Imperial Outer Guard Kendrick will visit Newark attended by his wonderfully and magnificently dressed "Harem," an institution which all imperial officers are permitted to maintain, and by the uniformed patrol, the uniformed band of nearly seventy pieces and nearly a thousand members of the famous Lulu Temple, of Philadelphia, of which he is the illustrious potentate. Others who will visit Newark by special invitation to join the imposing cavalcade will include Illustrious Potentate William Bamber, the uniformed patrol and several hundred members of Kismet Temple, of Brooklyn; Illustrious Potentate Dr. Edwin H. Ginnelley, the uniformed patrol and several hundred members of Crescent Temple, of Trenton, and a large delegation of members of Mecca Temple, of New York. Besides these it is expected that there will be several hundred other Shriners from different parts of the country in Newark on that evening, all of whom consider themselves invited to participate in the festivities.

From Philadelphia the big delegation of Lulu Temple, and Imperial Outer Guard Kendrick, will arrive in a special train at the Market street station of the Pennsylvania Railroad between 7 and 7:30 o'clock. The other visiting bodies will arrive about the same time and as each party reaches Newark its members will be escorted by special committees to the Palace Hotel, opposite the station, which has been engaged as a headquarters for the business of the early part of the evening. The parade will start from the Pennsylvania Railroad plaza, immediately east of the station, the line of march being up Market street to Broad street, to and around Military Park, west on Market street to Springfield avenue, to Belmont, where the large hall and two smaller halls, the immense dining-room on the lower floor, the "dungeon" and the park adjoining the building will be thrown open to the visitors and their hosts.

Every Shriner in the procession will be attired in full evening dress, except that he will substitute the red fez of the order for the ordinary top hat. This will provide what is known as a "conventional parade," which has heretofore been given only in cities where the National convention of the Imperial Council was held. Imperial Outer Guard Kendrick will be attired in the rich and gorgeous Oriental regalia denoting his official position and will ride at the head of the gathered Shriners on a camel, which will be clothed in trappings which can also be described only by the appellation "gorgeous," and which will be in keeping with the importance of the occasion. Illustrious Potentate Aronson, of Salaam, will also be arrayed in all the glory and richness of his Oriental robes of office and will ride on a camel at the side of the visiting dignitary, while on the other camels at the head of their respective divisions in the parade will ride the illustrious potentates of the visiting Shrine organizations. Lulu Temple will have the post of honor at the right of the line, its patrol and the members of the Harem, acting as special escort to the imperial officers.

CHILDREN IN CARNIVAL.

1,000 Will Participate in Event in Elizabeth.

One thousand children will take part in the various historical events planned by Bayley Council No. 629, Knights of Columbus, Elizabeth, at the monster carnival to be held on the Third street grounds during the week of June 27, in that city. A canvass of the parochial and public schools will be made for this purpose. A slip of paper will be given to the children in order that their parents may signify their consent.

A feature of the carnival will be the appearance of Major Gordon's Indians. They have been on the road for several years enacting historical events of the time of John Smith and Pocohantas.

Hope C. E. Meeting.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, of Hope chapel, at its regular monthly meeting Wednesday night voted to attend the rally last night at the Seventh-Day Baptist church at New Market in a body. Miss Lona Becker presided over the session. Remarks were made by the pastor, Rev. L. R. Hoyard, on his recent trip to Atlantic City, where he was a delegate to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church. Remarks were also made by Walter Firstbrook and Donald Mortimer.

FOWLER FOR U.S. SENATOR

Fifth District Congressman's Boom Sprung by James T. MacMurray.

SAYS HE WILL RUN AGAIN.

Over 1,000 of Mr. Fowler's Friends Gather to Pass Resolutions for Direct Vote for United States Senator.

More than 1,000 voters cheered themselves hoarse last night at the Fowler mass meeting at Proctor's theatre, Elizabeth, when the pre-arranged plan to put the Fifth District Congressman in the race for the United States Senatorship was successfully launched. City Clerk James T. MacMurray, the campaign manager for the insurgent leader, sprung the resolutions which had been quietly prepared for the demonstration, and Mr. Fowler announced to the gathering of his friends that he would enter the lists to wrest the honor from United States Senator John Kean. P. R. Gray, of Elizabeth, a Standard Oil man, acted as chairman, after former Governor Foster M. Voorhees absolutely declined to serve. Mr. MacMurray's resolution follows:

"Whereas, At the next general election in this State the people of New Jersey will, for the first time, exercise their right under the law of choosing a United States Senator.

"Whereas, In the awakened public spirit now prevailing the people insist that their next Senator shall be a worthy representative of the State, a man of national reputation, high standing, character and experience, whose views are in accord with the best thought of the time and who has the courage and tenacity not only to express them, but to fight for them.

"Whereas, The Hon. Charles N. Fowler, in his long service in the House of Representatives, has come not only to represent worthily his district and State, but to be recognized by the nation as a broad and true statesman; through his devotion to the great cause of financial and currency reform, his advocacy of progressive measures for the benefit of the whole people rather than of a class, and his loyalty to the Republican party as shown by his campaigns for national candidates and policies in nearly every State of the Union, and his high conviction and purpose that any party must be right and continue right to be the party of the people; and,

"Whereas, The Hon. Charles N. Fowler, in his devotion to the interests of the people rather than of privilege, has not only consistently followed his political convictions, but has at all times announced them freely and boldly, so that his constituents might know in what wise he was representing them, and these principles and purposes are such as not only appeal to the best judgment and patriotism of the people of New Jersey, but by their public indorsement to reflect honor upon them and him; now, be it

"Resolved, That the Hon. Charles N. Fowler is at this time the logical candidate of the Republican party in New Jersey for United States Senator; that, therefore, we do urge him to become a candidate for that high office, and that we do hereby pledge him our enthusiastic and loyal support."

Following the adoption of the resolution favoring him for United States Senator, Mr. Fowler, who had declared that he would not address the meeting, was forced to respond to an insistent demand for a speech. He spoke but briefly, simply saying:

"I am more than gratified by the splendid audience before me," said Mr. Fowler. "Your presence here is an expression of the sentiment in this State and means that now and for all time the people will select their own United States Senators.

"It is a matter of little consequence who the man is you select for Senator this year, but it is of vital importance that you select him."

After again thanking his auditors for their attendance Mr. Fowler said:

"With you I am going to do my utmost to see that this one great step for reform in the selection of our United States Senators is taken this fall."

Later in the night, just before adjournment, Mr. Fowler imparted a bit of information, as he put it, telling the big gathering that in the last few days about 2,000 voters in Union county had signed a pledge to support no candidate for Legislature who would not promise to support the Senatorial candidate receiving the highest Republican State vote in the Republican primary. He said:

"In this city of Elizabeth the great reform for the popular election of

HAYMAKERS TO MEET HERE ON AUG. 5 AND 6

Wetumpka Hay Loft, No. 22½, of Haymakers, of this city, is making big preparations for the annual convention of the order which will be held in this city on August 5 and 6. It is expected that 800 or more Haymakers will be in town and Saengerbund Hall has been engaged as the place for the convening of the convention. Delegates will be present from all parts of the State, from Sussex to Cape May.

One of the features of the convention will be a parade of the Haymakers in regalia. There will be ten bands in line including a combination of thirty-six musicians headed by Bandmaster Ben Levere, of this city. The visiting delegates will also be entertained at vaudeville performances which will be given by local talent in Saengerbund Hall. Of the artists who will appear in the entertainment are Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Willard, Thomas M. Muir, Harry Roberts, Bertram C. Firstbrook and others. The theatrical portion of the program is being arranged by M. Willard.

The committee in charge of the convention consists of R. W. Osland, A. E. Willard, Frank Wagner, Michael Armstrong, Jacob Fass and Emil Thompson.

BOROUGH TO HAVE NEW BUILDING ORDINANCE

There was little doing at the monthly meeting of the Borough Council last night. An informal discussion relative to recent building permits developed the fact that it is probable that in the near future the present building and fire ordinance will be replaced by a new law, an ordinance similar to the one in this city. The matter will be considered by the fire and building committee and will be reported at the next meeting. Mayor Smalley and the various Councilmen voiced sentiments in favor of fire proof structures. On the recommendation of Councilman J. J. Stahl, chairman of the fire committee, six permits were issued for the erection of small buildings.

In the transaction of routine business Recorder Dolliver's report showed 28 arrests and $36 collected in fines; Tax Collector Brown reported collections amounting to $646.47 for May; bills amounting to $2,238.92 were ordered paid; Councilman Waldron reported that the street committee had expended $985.91 during the past month.

A communication was received from the North Plainfield Association urging the Council to look into the matter of a municipal water plant.

Mayor Smalley also called attention to the Council as to the importance attached to the special sewer election which will be held in Tuesday, June 14.

MR. AND MRS. BUSHNELL THIRTY-ONE YEARS WED.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bushnell, formerly of this city, but now residing at 328 Eleventh street, Newark, celebrated their thirty-first wedding anniversary at their home last night. A large number of friends and relatives were present to wish the couple many more years of happy wedded life. She was the daughter of the late Jacob Irving, of East Second street, he being one of Plainfield's earliest settlers.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bushnell were married at her father's home in 1879, thirty-one years ago. The officiating clergyman was Rev. A. E. Smith, then pastor of the First Congregational church, which is now Trinity Reformed church. The Irving home was the second house on East Second street at that time, the first house being the Webster homestead.

Will Give a Musical Service.

Under the direction of J. E. Skiff, organist and choir director, a special musical service will be given by the vested choir of the First M. E. church tomorrow night. The choir will be assisted by Herbert Smith, 'cellist. Miss Laura Gesswein and Miss Jessie Haynes will be the oloists.

Juniors Closing Exercises.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel will hold its closing exercises at the chapel Tuesday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock and all interested are invited to attend.

Mrs. Harry S. Potter, of El Paso, Texas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, of East Second street, is expected to arrive in Plainfield today for a vist.

HARTRIDGE GRADUATION

TWO ARE GIVEN DIPLOMAS.

Miss Louise Fox and Miss Margory Woods Complete the Course—A Reception Follows the Formal Program.

Miss Louise Fox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh F. Fox, of this city, and Miss Margory Woods, daughter of E. A. Woods, of Sewickley, Pa., were graduated from the Hartridge School at the commencement exercises held at the school auditorium last night. The address of the evening was delivered by Leslie Willis Sprague, of New York, and the invocation was by the Rev. Dr. Hansen, of Larned, Ireland. Miss Emelyn B. Hartridge was in charge of the exercises and introduced the speaker.

The stage was decorated with beautiful flowers, palms and greens. Seated there with the graduates and speaker was Rev. D. Hansen, Miss Hartridge and these members of the faculty: Miss Annie L. Seward, Miss Alice Holden, Miss Mary B. Wells, Miss Gertrude E. Netzche, Miss Anna L. Runyon, Miss Edith Gilbert, Miss Sarah R. Scott, Miss E. May Tennant, Miss Anna N. Timpkins, Miss Florence G. Burt, Miss M. Alice Waring and Miss Elizabeth H. Maplsden.

The graduates were showered with floral gifts when they were presented with their diplomas by Miss Hartridge, and they were also greeted with hearty applause by their many friends present. The auditorium was filled with guests.

The address of the evening was by Mr. Sprague, who spoke on "Progress." He said that for centuries progress had been the keynote of development, the dominant power always and ever making itself felt in the daily lives of people. We all want to attain some definite aim in life, some goal we are constantly striving for and the realization is only obtained by progress.

"The specific and universal harmony so earnestly desired," said the speaker, "is obtained only by the individual person, who is responsible, working together in co-operation with their fellow-men. To do this, however, the individual must realize his proper sense of responsibility. He should be a worthy bearer of the ideal, and living embodiment of progress.

"The object of education is to free in one's self the latent power that lies dormant, because the spirit of progress is lacking. The reorganization of the social body without touching the personal life is not the satisfactory solution of this important problem.

"Social justice is only the justice of individual men. Personal justice, better personal life, such as to make real the ideals and inspirations we possess. We owe nothing to ourselves, but what we owe in a larger degree to others has a reflect action on ourselves."

Mr. Sprague referred to the relationship between parent and children, telling what the parent owes to his children and himself. Though the children be unworthy, it is still the duty of the parent to instill the qualities they should have. He also referred to the duty of work, adding that all should work in the schoolroom as well as elsewhere. People would be most miserable if they were not busily employed. He said that there is not enough wealth in the world to go all the way round. Without work he said that England would last just four months and the United States would exist just twelve months.

The speaker said that the art of conversation is a dead art. The right companionship nowadays seems to be in the backyard. He believed that playing cards was more desirable than gossips. The only way progress can be obtained is through a purified and regenerated political life, and the next step lies in political reform.

Mr. Sprague gave the graduates some good advice as they are about to go into the world. He touched upon fraternity as necessary to the right kind of a life, and had something interesting to say about parenthood. Referring to trade as compared with a profession, the speaker said that there is something higher than the mere output of labor.

Following the exercises dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. During the social part of the evening supper was served. More than one hundred guests enjoyed the dancing.

Miss May Turner, of Watchung avenue, has returned from Richmond, Va.

MACHINISTS' STRIKE IS ALMOST GENERAL

The printing press machinists who went on a strike at 1 o'clock, yesterday are confident that their demands will be granted within a short time. A meeting was held in Trade Council Hall this morning and it was voted to call the "specials" out at the Walter Scott Printing Machine Works at noon today. Those in charge of the strike reported this morning that all but three men are out at Scott's plant, and all the men are out at the Hall plant at Dunellen.

Between sixty-five and seventy per cent. of the men remaiped at work at the Potter Press Works, but it is expected that a majority of them will be out by Monday unless the strike is settled.

A report was received at headquarters this morning that five outside men had returned from their jobs and telegrams have been received from two others that they are on their way home and will probably reach here during the day.

It is argued by the strikers that the printing press industry at present is better than it has been for several years and that the manufacturers cannot afford to have their shops idle very long. For this reason the men say they do not anticipate a long strike. They demand $3 as the minimum rate for inside men and $4 for outside men with an additional allowance of $2.50 a day for outside expenses and a ten per cent. increase for the men receiving $3 a day at present.

S. A. KROM GETS $861.03 FROM MACHINE COMPANY

S. Arthur Krom, formerly president and general manager of the Krom Machine Works, received notice today of a favorable result in his suit against the concern. Judge Atwater in filing an opinion awarded Mr. Krom $861.03. The latter's counsel was George W. V. Moy.

The action was instituted in the Supreme court by Mr. Krom several months ago and the case was referred to Judge Atwater. Krom claimed that he was forced out of his position by the board of directors of the company in February, 1908, and he brought suit for back salary and moneys advanced by him and also for a share of the profits of the concern.

The company denied all iability and claimed that Krom owed it $283. There were a number of hearings in the case, and a mass of testimony was taken, and the matter was argued in court three months ago. Frank H. Hall, of Jersey City, acted as counsel for the defendant.

NEW TRIALS REFUSED IN THREE DAMAGE SUITS

The three workmen who recently obtained verdicts for damages against Samuel W. Rushmore for injuries caused by the explosion in his factory, were again successful in defeating motions for new trials. Mr. Rushmore's counsel, Mr. Carey, argued before Judge Vail for new trials on two grounds, viz.: That the verdicts were against the weight of the evidence and were excessive in the amounts awarded. Craig A. Marsh, counsel for the injured workmen, argued against the motion.

Judge Vail at once after hearing the arguments denied the motion for new trials. He said that the verdicts were larger than he would have given himself, but the constitution made the jury the judges on questions of fact. This he said was a good jury and the verdicts of juries ought not to be set aside as being excessive unless it clearly appears to the court that the amounts awarded show that the jury were actuated by passion, partiality or prejudice or misapprehension or some other improper consideration. That did not appear in these cases, and hence he denied the motions for new trials. The verdicts so sustained were for De Nizio, $2,056; Tobin, $2,000, and Topack, $1,130.

Bicyclist Injured.

Arthur Huff, while riding on Front street last night on a bicycle, bumped into a stone and was thrown from his cycle. Huff sustained several bruises about the face and body.

MRS. TRUELL'S FUNERAL

Great Gathering of Friends Pays Last Respects to Her Memory.

THREE MINISTERS OFFICIATE

American Flag Covers Cosket Which is Smothered with Floral Tributes—The Burial at Hillside.

Impressive funeral services were held for Mrs. John R. Truell at the Seventh-Day Baptist church at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when a large number of relatives and friends gathered to pay their last respects to one whom they admired and loved. Prior to that a short service was held at Truell Hall, conducted by Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

Mr. Shaw had charge of the services at the church, assisted by Rev. Dr. W. S. Hubbell, of this city, and Rev. Morgan Ashley, rector of St. Stephen's church, all close personal friends of Mrs. Truell. Dr. Hubbell's remarks referred specially to the life of Mrs. Truell as he knew her during the Civil War, when she rendered valuable service. He spoke of her great patriotic character and of her devotion to the cause of the Union and how she nursed many a soldier back to strength and health.

Mr. Shaw also spoke of the personal side of Mrs. Truell's life, of her devotion to her church and home and of her beautiful Christian character, unselfish and generous to a fault. Mr. Ashley read Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar;" also the Scripture lesson and offered a fervent prayer.

During the services, three selections were sung by a quartet comprising Miss Nan Randolph, Mrs. E. F. Champlin, Charles P. Titsworth and E. E. Runyon. They sang "Rock og Ages," "Abide With Me" and "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me." At the request of Mrs. Truell these same hymns were sung for her on Sunday evening at the Hall by Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. John Tanner, of Westerly, R. I., and her daughter, Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnston, then also played the violin at the request of her mother.

There was a great wealth of floral tributes not only from guests at the Hall, Court and Inn and many other friends here, but from New York and Boston. The casket was completely hidden from view with flowers, while the American flag, with which Mrs. Truell was buried by special request, rested on the casket. There were at least fifteen beautiful wreaths, including bunches of Killarney roses. The guests at Truell Hall sent a large set piece which rested on a standard.

The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the bearers were David E. Titsworth, Dr. Henry M. Maxson, William C. Hubbard, Thomas Fallon, a brother of Mrs. Truell, and Franklin Butler, of Lawrence, Mass., her son-in-law, and George H. Simonds, of Newark.

TEN THOUSAND DOLLAR DOG ENTERED IN SHOW.

When the entries lists were closed today, Superintendent Edmund Rushmore announced that more than 500 canines were in the 800 contests booked to take place at the annual bench show of the Plainfield Kennel Club next Saturday. All the famous kennels in the East are represented.

Among the dogs that will attract attention at this exhibition will be Shepton Hero, an old English sheep dog, which its owner, Mrs. Tyler Morse, of New York, values at $10,000. Howard Gould has entered his Castle Gould Wallaby in the Irish terrier class.

Auto Club to Hold Run.

The Plainfield Automobile Club met last night in its rooms in the City National Bank building with the president, H. W. Marshall in the chair. Several new members were elected. It was decided to hold a club run to Princeton Inn for dinner on Thursday night, June 16. The start will be made from the Park Club at 5 o'clock sharp and all automobilists are invited to join in the run.

Honeyman Tourists Off.

A. V. D. Honeyman left today for Europe, with a party of twenty-two for a three months' continental tour, including the Passion Play. Among those in the party are Louis Chase, Mrs. Frederick P. Chase, Miss Mary E. Brown and Miss Elizabeth Dunleavy, of this city. Others are from New York, Brooklyn, Somerville and elswhere, including some from Georgia.

DEFECTIVE FLUE FIRE CAUSES $4,000 LOSS

A defective flue caused a fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lyon, 816 First place, late last night, the estimated loss being $4,000. The house was damaged to the extent of $2,500, while the loss to the furniture which was destroyed and damaged by water will reach the $1,500 mark. The flames were confined mostly to the attic where the fire originated. Everything in this part of the structure was eaten up by the flames including some valuable china. The house is owned by Mrs. J. K. VanZandt, formerly of this city, who is now residing in Connecticut.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyon had made arrangements to take possession of the house today. The furniture had recently been installed, the interior decorated, and other improvements made in the interior of the building. The fire was discovered at 10:55 o'clock by Martin B. Stutsman, who was passing the house. Mr. Stutsman pulled Box 25 and when the firemen arrived on the scene the flames were shooting out of the roof.

Chief Doane after making an investigation of the premises this morning came to the conclusion that the fire was due to a defective chimney.

THE TRUST COMPANY'S EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY

Eight years ago today, in a modest little room on East Front street, The Plainfield Trust Company began business with a capital of one hundred thousand dollars. The fact that in this comparatively short ime it has increased its assets t over three million dollars and erected a banking house which is the most ornate building in the city, makes this anniversary worthy of the notice of the community to which it has rendered such efficient service.

This business, which is now an important factor in the banking interests of the State, owes its remarkable success to the enterprise and up-to-date methods of its management and to the prestige given it by its Board of Directors, all of whom are prominent citizens of Plainfield and represent large financial interests in New York and other neignboring cities.

To the Trust Company, the people of Plainfield owe the popular innovation of paying interest on checking accounts, beside many other modern banking measures. It inaugurated the custom of banking institutions carrying display advertisments in the local papers as the best means of rightly directed publicity. Its trust business is assuming important proportions and it has in its keeping the wills of an increasingly large number of local people, both men and women.

Its present secretary and treasurer, H. H. Pond, who assumed his office on May 1 as successor to J. Herbert Case, now vice-president of both the Plainfield Trust Company and the Franklin Trust Company, in New York, is an enthusiastic supporter of the Company's courteous and liberal policy and has won many friends for the institution to which he brings the experience of twenty years in the banking business.

Surprised Mrs. McKelvey.

Mrs. Joseph O. McKelvey, wife of the pastor of Warren chapel, who has been in charge of the choir at the chapel for ten years, was happily surprised Wednesday night after choir practise by members of the choir in honor of her birthday. She was invited to the parlors of the chapel by Theodore Martin, and was there greeted with a large number of beautiful roses. On a table was placed a birthday cake, surrounded by sixteen candles. Afterward the choir gathered in the room and all had a jolly social time, during which refreshments were served. Mrs. Andrew Stiglitz arranged the affair.

Graduates at Barnard.

Miss Lena Bohan, of this city, has returned from Barnard College, where she was graduated on Wednesday with the degree of A. B. Other Plainfield young women in the '10 class at Barnard, are Miss Gertrude Laura Hunter, Miss Antoinette D. Hill and Miss Christobal McMurray.

Young Men Invited.

Class No. 7, of the Park Avenue Baptist church Bible School, extends an invitation to young men to meet with the class tomorrow afternoon at 2:45 o'clock. There will be special music by the Sunday-school orchestra.

SHOW'S END IS BRILLIANT

Handsomely Gowned Women Vie with King Horse for Attention on Closing Day.

Nothing that belonged to the closing and crowning day's reign of King Horse in Plainfield was lacking when the show opened at the Riding and Driving Club grounds this afternoon. The weather, casting off its sulks, put on a brilliant June aspect; the crowd, biggest of the three days, matched the brilliance of the sunshine, and the horses that graced the ring were in tune with the beauty of their environment.

Society was at the ringside in force. The feminine section of it more than lived up to sartorial tradition. The boxes showed an array of gowns and hats that filled the eye with a harmony of brilliant color tones. Here and there on the turf promenade alongside the ring there was a constant flash of grace and charm. The whole scene in which the costumes of the men and the trappings of the horses blended without a clashing note, was a picture to rivet attention.

Bearers of names high in the social register moved in the crowd about the ringside. Reginald Vanderbilt was there and Paul A. Sorg, DeWitt C. Flanagan and others of the charmed circle who, whether they will or no, become part of any show at which they appear. The trio named looked across the rail not with the glance of the idler, but with the keen understanding gaze of exhibitors.

The program, for which the best features of the ring spectacle was reserved, included the showing of champion saddle horses, champion single harness horees, the Corinthian class for hunters, the Watchung Hunt club jumpers, and the gracefully powerful draught mares and stallions. Judging began at 1 o'clock.

These classes were judged before 2:30 this afternoon:

Class 8—Pairs of harness horses. First, DeWitt C. Flanagan's Rataplan and Prince Charming; second, Paul Sorg's Puritan Maid and Precise; third, Paul Sorg's Pilgrim and Pioneer.

Class 42—Ponies under saddle. First, Somerset Farm's Lady Idol; seconl, Somerset Farm's Rosalind; third, J. J. Ryan's Yuma; fourth, Hugh Gormley's Maid of Erin.

Class 26—Combination harness and saddle horses. First, Andrew Morrison's Sonia; W. A. McGibbon's Nettleton; third, Godfrey Preece's Watchful; fourth, Hugh Gormley's Pretty Polly.

Although Paul A. Sorg lost the valuable Thomas W. Lawson cup on the opening day of the Plainfield horse show being defeated by DeWitt C. Flanagan's fine pair of horses, he evened things up yesterday when his entry, Lady Tuck defeated Mr. Flanagan's Lord Russell in the competition for "The Dr. Selwonk" challenge cup, valued at $250. This was one of the big events of the day and Mr. Sorg displayed great satisfaction in capturing the coveted prize.

As a result of this decision, the trophy will again be in competition next year, as no one owner has won it twice. Last year the trophy was offered by Reginald C. Vanderbilt to replace the one of similar value won by his entry, "Dr. Selwonk."

It took the judges a long time to decide the challenge cup class, especially as Mr. Flanagan had two entries to one for Mr. Sorg. Before the decision was announced they consulted with Robert A. Fairbairn, one of the club officials. The decision met with popular approval as was shown by the generous applause.

Another feature class of the afternoon was No. 47, for hunters and jumpers, ladies to ride. The first prize was $100, half of which was in plate offered by Somerset Farm, and it was coveted by the contestants. The winner was H. Stuart Hollis' entry, Confederate, and P. A. Clark's entry, Sam, was a close second. It was a difficult class to judge, as the entries were so uniformly good. Mrs. Belle Beach Bain rode three of the entries, Knight of Elway, Sam and Interpreter, and she certainly brought out the many good points in her various mounts. Mrs. L. A. D. Percival up on Westbury,

City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., June 1, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

To License, Regulate and Prohibit Shows and Exhibitions.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That no person or corporation shall, for any price, gain, or reward, exhibit or cause to be exhibited in the City of Plainfield any traveling or other show, circus or menagerie, or give or have or cause to be given or had any theatrical or variety performance or play, concert or other entertainment, or have or make, or cause to be had or made, any exhibition of whatsoever nature, or maintain or conduct or cause to be maintained or conducted any theatre, opera house, music hall, or other place of public entertainment, without first obtaining a license therefor, to be granted by the Mayor, as herein prescribed; provided, however, that the provisions of this ordinance shall not apply to a concert or entertainment given for charitable or benevolent purposes.

Sec. 2. That no owner, occupant or other person or persons having the possession or care of any house, building or room or any lot of land within the City of Plainfield, shall suffer or permit any such traveling or other show, circus or menagerie, theatrical or variety performance or play, concert or other entertainment, or any exhibition of whatsoever nature such as are mentioned in the preceding section of this ordinance, to be exhibited, acted, shown forth or performed for any price, gain or reward, in or upon his, her or their said house, building or room or lot of land, unless the party or parties so causing such traveling or other show, circus or menagerie, theatrical or variety performance or play, concert or other entertainment, or any exhibition of whatsoever nature as aforesaid, shall first obtain such license in the manner herein prescribed.

Sec. 3. That the license fees to be charged for such licenses respectively shall be as follows, to-wit:

For a license for a circus with or without a menagerie the sum of not exceeding Two Hundred Dollars for each day;

For a license for a concert the sum of not exceeding Ten Dollars for each concert;

For a license for a theatre, opera house, or music hall, the sum of One Hundred Dollars a year; and for a license for any other place or public entertainment, the sum of not exceeding Twenty-five Dollars a year; and each such license for a theatre, opera house, music hall, or other place of public entertainment, shall expire on the first day of January following the date of the granting of such license;

For any moving picture show or entertainment, the sum of not exceeding Ten Dollars for each day;

For any exhibition or entertainment for which the amount of the license fee is not herein specifically fixed, the fee to be charged for such license shall not exceed the sum of Twenty-five Dollars for each such exhibition or entertainment.

Sec. 4. That the Mayor shall have the authority to determine the amount of any license fee within the limits aforesaid, and to decide whether a license is required under the terms of the preceding section when there is doubt upon application, and also authority to grant or withhold a license. Upon the Mayor deciding to grant any license, and the payment of the license fee to the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield or the Chief of Police, and the production of his receipt therefor to the Mayor, there shall be given to the applicant a license which shall state the name of the person licensed and the purpose and length of time or number of exhibitions or entertainments for which the license is granted. The Mayor shall also have authority to revoke any such license upon proof to his satisfaction after reasonable notice to the person or corporation holding such license and reasonable opportunity for him or it to be heard, that such licensed person or corporation, or any person acting on his or its behalf has given or caused to be given any exhibition of any nature whatever of an immoral nature or tendency, or in violation of any law of the State or any ordinance of the City, and after such revocation such person or corporation shall be deemed to be not licensed and be and remain liable under this ordinance in the same manner as if such license had never been granted.

Sec. 5. No moving picture show shall be given at any time or in any place within the said City without the written permission first obtained by the Mayor, in which shall be set forth the time and place at which such moving picture show may be given.

Sec. 6. That any person or persons who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance shall on conviction be subject to a fine not exceeding One Hundred Dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding sixty days or both such fine and imprisonment.

Sec. 7. That the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance relating to shows and exhibitions," approved July 9, 1869; the ordinance to amend said ordinance, approved November 10, 1884; the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to license, regulate and prohibit shows and exhibitions," approved December 8, 1897; the ordinance entitled "A Supplement to an ordinance entitled 'An Ordinance to license, regulate and prohibit shows and exhibitions,' approved December 8, 1897," approved July 12, 1898; and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances which conflict with any of the provisions of this ordinance be and the same are hereby repealed.

SUNDAY SCHOOL REBELLION.

Holmdel, June 4.—Opposition to William W. Conover and Edgar Schenck, superintendent and assistant superintendent, respectively, of the Reformed church Sunday school in this village, threatens to disrupt the school. After the prayer meeting Wednesday night a petition was presented asking for the resignations of Mr. Conover and Mr. Schenck, who, the petitioners declare, were elected when not a representative gathering of the members of the school was present. Twenty Sunday school pupils had signed the petition, which went on to say that unless the new superintendent and his assistant resigned they would not attend the school.

The objectors also say that Mr. Conover and Mr. Schenck are not the choice of the majority and that they positively will not go to Sunday school while they remain in office. Mr. Conover and Mrs. Schenck have paid no attention to the petition.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., June 1, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

Regulating and Prohibiting the Discharge of Fire-Arms and Fireworks.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. No person or corporation shall within the limits of the City of Plainfield fire or discharge any cannon, toy cannon, gun, revolver, or toy pistol or other appliance for discharging metal or paper caps such as are used in toy pistols, or fire-arms of any description whether the same be loaded with blank or full charge; provided that this section shall not apply to persons engaged in military exercises or to members of the Police Department while on duty, or to the use of a revolver, pistol or other fire-arm in defense of life or property.

Sec. 2. No person or corporation shall fire or discharge any fire-cracker, torpedo, fireworks of any character, or any other thing containing or composed of powder or other explosive or combustible material, or set in motion any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, upon any street, land, highway or public place of the City of Plainfield.

Sec. 3. No person or corporation shall within the limits of the City of Plainfield fire or discharge any firecracker, torpedo, or firework, or set in motion any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, except that firecrackers made of soft paper loosely wrapped containing no other explosive but black powder and not over five inches in length and torpedoes not over three-quarters of an inch in diameter and fireworks other than sky-rockets having sticks attached or any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, may be set off and discharged upon private property on the Fourth day of July of any year, unless the Fourth day of July falls on Sunday and in such event then on the Fifth day of July, between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and twelve o'clock midnight, but at no other time, provided, however, that at any time the Mayor may upon written application made at least twenty-four hours before the time when said event is to occur, give permission for the display and discharge of fireworks except sky-rockets having sticks attached or any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, at a time and place to be specified and under the direction of a person or persons to be named in the written permit issued by the Mayor.

Sec. 4. Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of sections one, two and three of this ordinance shall on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding Twenty Dollars for each offense.

Sec. 5. That section one of an ordinance entitled "An ordinance concerning fire-arms and other deadly weapons," approved April 9, 1895, as amended and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The encouraging reports made at the meeting last night by the heads of the several committees for the Fourth of July celebration were encouraging and the affair is an assumed success, although there is a great deal of work yet to be done and many details to be arranged.

Miss Sadie Lee tendered a party last night at her home on Front street to a number of her friends. Several hours were spent enjoying games and music after which refreshments were served. Guests were present from Plainfield, Dunellen and the village.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be at the usual hours, morning service 10:45, monthly communion at the close of the sermon, Bible study 4 o'clock, B. Y. P. U. at 7:15 in the evening.

Rev. Mr. Hollingshead will lead the weekly prayer and praise meeting tonight at the Methodist church.

Thomas Riordan, of Milford, Conn., has been visiting relatives and friends in town for a week.

Dr. F. W. Westcott, of the borough, has returned from a visit with relatives in South Jersey.

Children's Day exercises will be held by the Methodist Sunday-school Sunday night, June 12.

Mrs. Joseph Schwalbach, of Westfield avenue, has been entertaining relatives from Brooklyn.

Miss Frances Allen, of Valley road, has returned from a visit with friends in New York.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Philip Smith will pitch for the New York Edison Baseball Club against the Philadelphia Edison at Bellwood Park on June 24.

The bridge across the mill dam has been put in excellent repair but the iron over the concrete is sadly in need of a coat of paint.

Miss Marjorie Voorhees, of Asbury Park, is spending several weeks with her grandmother, Susan Manning.

Mr. Hendrickson, of Brooklyn, has moved into Edgebrook cottage on Brookside avenue.

Fish is very plentiful in Spring lake, and large catches have been made this week.

Mrs. Catherine Smith is still suffering from an acute attack ofneuritus.

Rev. J. J. Allen will soon take up his residence here for the summer.

Mrs. Ledden visited friends in Dunellen yesterday.

Scene in "As You Like It," to be presented by the Coburn Players at the Plainfield Country Club, Tuesday, June 7.

A performance somewhat unique in Plainfield will be given on the grounds of the Plainfield Country Club, June 7, under whose auspices will be presented "As You Like It." This performance will be given by the Coburn players under the direction of Charles Douville Coburn. These players will be selected among the best Shakespeare players in the country, and during the months of June, July and August when the theatres are closed, they will make a circut of the country, performing at the different country clubs in the larger cities. The performance "As You Like It" will take place on the lawn of the country club with the trees and woods as stage scenery and background. The performers will be on the ground although seats and boxes will be arranged for the audience and these seats will rise in tiers just like the seats in a theatre. Large calcium lights will illuminate the stage and at the end of each act these lights will go out for a few minutes allowing time to arrange for the next act. Every scene will be preceded by the strains of song, including many of the original arrangements of the songs that were used by Shakespeare's own company. With the background of trees and the twinkling of the stars overhead the scene will be one of unusual beauty as the natural opportunities afforded by the grounds of the club will be taken advantage of and those who attend are promised an unusually attractive performance.

Poor Man's Muffins.

One may use half the recipe with a small egg with satisfactory results, for this amount makes thirty muffins. Mix and sift three and one-half cupfuls of pastry flour, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, six teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one teaspoonful of salt. Add gradually, while beating constantly, one and one-half cupfuls of milk, one egg well beaten and three tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Bake in buttered iron gem pans twenty-five minutes, having the pan previously heated.

A Complex Rest Cure.

"Bliggins is a very vociferous person."

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne, "but I don't blame him. The way a man of his mentality rests his nerves is by talking so loud he can't hear himself think."—Washington Evening Star.

EDITORIAL!
"Convenience" as Exemplified By Our Store Arrangement.

To make the purchasing of merchandise an easy and economical process for you is the great aim of this store.

Have you ever studied the arrangement of the departments? If you have not, upon your next visit note the manner in which they lead one into another.

This is no haphazard grouping of merchandise, nothing has been left to chance. The position of each stock has been selected with care and calculation.

Allied goods—those which you are apt to require at the same time—materials needed for the same garment—articles which go to make up the same outfit—have been brought as near together as possible.

In this, as in all else, we have sought how best we might serve your interests and convenience.

Princeton men in this city are anxiously awaiting the beginning of the annual series of games between the Tigers and Yale. The first contest takes this afternoon at New Haven and the second game is at Princeton on Saturday, June 11, and in case of a tie, the third game will be played at American League Park, New York, on June 16. Old Nassau's representatives have before them only the series with Yale to complete what thus far has been a most successful season. Williams College defeated the Tigers early in the season, but fell before Harvard and Amherst, so that score has been twice overcome in the Princeton victories over Amherst and the Crimson.

Since Princeton, Yale and Harvard play each other a series of games, three in case of a tie over the first two, the intercollegiate baseball championship is considered to be among these three, though no league has been formed to determine the actual champion.

A movement is now on foot to classify the various college nines. Amherst, Williams and some of the other colleges do not have the freshman eligibility rule. Harvard and Pennsylvania do not meet at all, and Princeton and Pennsy have in recent years had but two games. Pennsy has made a great hsowing.

Princeton has had not only a fine record of games won, but it has been one of the few college nines to play out a long schedule. The schedule has escaped rainy days, although some of the games were played in raw and cold weather. The Tigers were able to start their season on March 24 and have had a hard time really in keeping from staleness.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Work on the $60,000 addition to Cooper Hospital, Camden, was started Thursday.

While calling at the home of a neighbor, Lester, the twelve-year-old son of Monroe Hand, of East Millville, was knocked down and badly bitten by a big deer hound.

United States Senator Penrose's yacht Bettie is in commission in the Inlet Atlantic City, and in a few days the Senator will start on a sea cruise with a party of friends.

Falling from a cherry tree at Swedesboro, Elmer Jones, a farm hand, broke his right arm, dislocated his left shoulder and was hurt internally. He is in Cooper Hospital, Camden.

Memories of their own youthful days led sedate members of the Atlantic City Board of Education to decide to declare a general school holiday next Tuesday when the circus comes to town.

Seriously accused by the mother of eighteen-year-old Rebecca Hawkins, of Camden, Samuel Brown, an insurance agent, was committed in default of $800 bail by Recorder Stackhouse Thursday.

When George Lorber, a young athlete, of Vineland, started for a fire on his bicycle he ran over a bicycle left lying on the road and was thrown twenty feet and sustained a broken shoulder blade.

Atlantic City officials are to be forced to fit up a place of detention for youthful prisoners of the police by County Judge Higbee, who has ordered a separation of child offenders from hardened criminals held in the city jail.

Charles H. Curry, son of Councilman John Curry, of Woodbury, has passed his third year examinations successfully at Annapolis, and Monday will sail for Paris for three months. He will then return home on a month's leave.

The Wilkins Brothers, of Thorofare, have received from the Standard Oil Company a check for $18,000 in settlement for damages caused by the explosion in their store five years ago, the case being fought bitterly in the Gloucester County courts three times.

Giuseppe Paolo, foreman of a gang of laborers in Beverly, was standing near an excavation for the Beverly water works when the earth gave way and he fell twenty feet. A huge pipe rolled on him, breaking and crushing his legs. Workmen had to dig away the earth to rescue him.

John Hamilton, a well-known resident and a local preacher of Beverly, is in a serious condition from injuries received by being thrown out of a wagon by a runaway horse which became frightened at a passing automobile. Hamilton's shoulder blade and an arm were broken, his face and head badly lacerated and he was injured internally.

The city of Camden isn't proving a brilliant success as a landlord. By a recent decision of the Circuit Court in a suit brought by the Browning heirs the city acquired title to land at Delair, on which are situated many boathouses. When the legal officers of the city started out in the role of rent collectors the tenants objected, claiming that they were fully paid under the leases which they hold, and it is likely that more suits will follow.

A party of Salemites, who went to Bridgeton Wednesday evening to attend a wedding, had an unfortunate experience on the return trip and two of the number were severely injured. The party were in a large hack and when near Quinton it toppled over. Mrs. Morrison, wife of the former fire chief, F. B. Morrison, of Salem, had her shoulder dislocated, and Mrs. Wilbert Clark had her wrist broken. Others were cut by flying glass from the windows.

Many priests of the Dominican order and of the archdiocese of Philadelphia and the diocese of Trenton attended the golden jubilee celebration of the ordination of Rev. Domian Saintourens, O. P., who has charge of the Convent of the Dominican Sisters of the Perpetual Rosary at Camden. During the day the jubilarian, who is in his seventy-fifth year, received many congratulatory telegrams, among them being one from Pope Pius X.

Major Herbert Deakyne, of the United States Engineer's office, at Philadelphia, Thursday afternoon at the Camden Courthouse, told representatives of the Board of Trade, manufacturers and others interested, of plans of the War Department for the improvement of a section of Camden's water front. The meeting was in the nature of a public hearing for the consideration and discussion of harbor lines along the Delaware from Cooper Point to Cooper Creek. Plans showing the intention to establish a line 100 feet beyond the present riparian line met with practically unanimous approval, and nearly all the owners of land fronting along the river expressed a willingness to fill in their tracts to a uniform grade and also to bulkhead in accordance with the plans of the War Department.

SPORTS
BY GEORGE E. FIRSTBROOK

The Plainfield High School baseball team has had a most successful season so far. The singular thing is that the team has experienced little difficulty in triumphing over what are considered strong nines while it has gone down in defeat, presumably through over-confidence, in contests with weaker aggregations. But one more game remains on the schedule, and Manager Runyon says he is sanguine that his players will win, the contest being with the North Plainfield High School.

Eugene Lidgate appears to be the star of the season. Herbert Terry, Harry Van Zandt and Edson Woodhull have also earned favorable comment. James Nash at the initial sack, has done some good work, while Frank Clark and Gardner Bristol, at second and third, respectively, have always been on their jobs. Jack Zerega, at short, is in the right place, while Clyde Doane, John Riffert, Russell Runyon and Joseph Carty are holding their own in the outfield. The climax of the "deadly rivals," Plainfield and North Plainfield, meet for the local championship on Wednesday afternoon, June 8. Those in the picture, reading from left to right, are: Top row—Clarke, Bristol, Carty, Zerega and Woodhull. Bottom row—Van Zandt, Doane, Nash, Lidgate and Runyon.

DENIES CITY'S GRADE CROSSING APPLICATION.

Trenton, June 4.—Following the rule established in the case of the Central Railroad Company against the borough of Keyport, the State Railroad Commission has denied the application of the city of Passaic for permission to construct a new street, Highland avenue, across the tracks of the Erie Railroad at grade.

In its memorandum dismissing the petition the commission pointed out that if the desired permission was granted Highland avenue would ascend directly from the right of way of the railroad some seven feet in a distance of 140 feet. The testimony showed that the construction of an underground crossing is feasible, and the commission believed if the avenue was to be opened it should be done in this way.

END OF THE HORSE SHOW

furnished lots of sport. The horse balked several times and wanted to jump almost anywhere but the hurdles. J. E. Davis up on his entry, Country Girl, did good work.

Still another interesting class was No. 44, for hunters and jumpers, heavy and middle weight. George Watson, Jr.'s Initial carried off the blue in celever style, and that steady jumper, Jack Frost with James Swager up, was awarded the red ribbon, while Frederic Bull's Knight of Elway was third and Peter Hauck's Jr.'s Virginia received fourth honors. Hugh Gormley rode the last named entry and played in hard luck, his mount striking the hurdles and on one ocasion almost threw its rider.

An unpleasant incident occured at the close of judging Class 43 for hunters and jumpers. J. E. Davis' Country Girl captured the blue and everyone was of the opinion that the award was right, but the rider on C. E. Sherin's Interpreter, which was awarded third honors, felt piqued over the fact and refused to take the yellow ribbon. Taking his horse by the head he walked out of the ring declining honors. His friends called to him to take the ribbon, but he paid no attention to them. Such a display of feeling, it is safe to say, did not receive the sanction of Mr. Sherin and the rider will probably hear from him about his action.

As on Thursday, the program for yesterday closed with two classes for hunters and jumpers, 43 and 44. The classes were finished a little earlier than on the first day, the final judging being concluded at 6 o'clock. C. W. McCutchen came in for aditional honors yesterday, his handsome pair, Jeanne d'Arc and All Ablaze which was so successful on Thursday, taking the blue in the opening class. It was a close competition between this pair and Albin Trojan's pair, Peter and Paul. Before the judges announced their decision they rode around the ring behind each entry. The other classes were all interesting and were closely watched by the spectators. The day's awards follow:

Class 55—Pair of harness horses, local. First, C. W. McCutchen's blk. m. Jeanne d'Arc and ch. m. All Ablaze; second, Albin Trojan's br. g. Peter and Paul.

Class 16—Novice harness horses. First, Paul A. Sorg's b. m. Royal Victoria; second, DeWitt C. Flanagan's b. g. Rataplan; third, Sandy Point Farm's b. g. Aquidneck; fourth, George Watson's bro. g. Florham Potentate.

Class 27—Combination harness and saddle ponies. First, Somerset Farm's b. m. Lady Idol; second, Somerset Farm's ch. g. Roslyn; third, Hugh Gormley's b. m. Maid of Erin.

Class 43—Hunters and jumpers, light weight. First, J. E. Davis' g. m. Country Girl; second, Frederic Bull's ch. g. Rock Crest; third, C. E. Sherin's bro. g. Interpreter; fourth, George Watson, Jr.,'s bro. g. Altamont.

Class 44—Qualified hunters, heavy and middle weight. First, George Watson, Jr.,'s ch. g. Initial; second, Mrs. James B. McKay's rn. g. Jack Frost; third, Frederic Bull's ch. g. Knight of Elway; fourth, Peter Hauck, Jr.,'s bro. m. Virginia.

The official program for today is as follows:

Class 8—five pairs harness horses, 1:15; Class 42—four ponies under saddle, 1:30; Class 26—fifteen combination horses, 1:40; Class 5—seven single harness horses, 2:00; Class 52—six draught mares, 2:15; Class 53—four draught stallions, 2:25; Class 60—six breeding stallions, 2:35; Class 63—nine hackney mares, 2:50; Class 9—four single harness horses (ladies to drive), 3:05; Class 33—thirteen saddle horses (local), 3:20; Class 23—five single horses (Plainfield Riding and Driving cup), 3:40; Class 20—two four-in-hands (teams), 4:00; Class 57—twelve saddle horses (local), 4:10; Class 40—saddle horses for the championship, 4:25; Class 24—single harness horees under 15.2 for the championship, 4:40; Class 25—single harness horses 15.2 or over for the championship, 4:50; Class 48—fourteen hunters (Corinthian class), 5:00; Class 50—eleven hunters (Watchung Hunt Club cup), 5:30.

MISSIONS IN CHINA.

Trinity Reformed's Mission Band Hears Reports.

The Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church held a meeting in the lecture room of the church, yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Rapalje, wife of Rev. Daniel Rapalje, of Carlton avenue, who was a missionary in China for many years, gave an interesting talk on the subject "From Amoy to Tong-an," which was of special interest as the band is studying about Tong-an, which is its particular field in foreign missions. A letter was also read from Miss Alice Duryee, who is a missionary at Tong-an.

During the business session of the band, which was presided over by Mrs. Leonard S. Smith, president, the band voted $5 toward the purchase of a gospel tent in India. The tent will cost $500 and the amount is being raised by the young people's societies of the church. The sum of $5 was also voted toward the fund to publish the church calendars. It was proposed to hold a handkerchief sale later on, the affair to be in charge of the finance committee.

Remove Spicer Forge.

The Spicer Manufacturing Company has purchased the Cort Meyer property at South Plainfield adjoining the Lehigh Valley tracks, and by the middle of July the forge part of the plant will be removed to that place. The assembling and the machinery parts of the plant will remain at their present location in Madison avenue.

Announce Engagement.

The engagement is announced of Miss Sadie E. Staats, a teacher in school No. 2, Fanwood township, to J. Charles Runyon, an electrical engineer, of Cincinnati, Ohio. The wedding will take place in Thursday, June 30, at the home of her father, Isaiah Staats, at Port Monmouth, N. J.

Bench Show Honors.

The Meadowview and the Midlothian kennels won the coveted blues in the English setter and English deerhound classes, respectively, at the Dreamland, Coney Island, bench show which closed this afternoon. Fred Moore's "Sony Lad" won the blue in the puppy toy poodle class.

Death of Mrs. Kline.

Mrs. William A. Kline, of West Third street, died suddenly this morning. She is survived by a husband and several children and had been a resident of this city for several years. She served as doorkeeper in the House of Assembly for several years.

Announce Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Samson, of Dunellen, announce the engagement of their daughter, Amy Marion Samson, to Walter Simpson Craig, of this city.

Signor Tetamo, a noted European pianist, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Story, of 19 Somerset street.

Miss McRae, of Livingston, Ala., who gave a successful musicale at the Casino several seasons ago, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Story of Somerset place.

URGES WAR ON HIGHER RAILROAD RATES

Jersey City, June 4.—Yesterday a movement was started by George L. Record in the interest of commuters who will be affected by the proposed increase in commutation rates on the railroads in New Jersey, and he urges that organizations be formed and a fight started which will result in compelling Governor Fort to call a special session of the Legislature to enact a suitable public utilities bill. He also urges that delegations descend upon Washington and demand Federal relief. Mr. Record says:

"There is a general and angry protest on the part of the commuting public in New Jersey against the proposed increases of passenger commuting rates to New York, which have been filed by the railroads. These proposed increases, in my judgment, are not only unjust and unreasonable, but can be made illegal.

"Take the increase by the Lackawanna, for example. Here is a road whose income is so vast that from time to time, after paying as high a dividend as it dares, it is compelled to disburse in one form or another the cash which accumulates in its treasury and for which it has no legitimate use. Last year it carried $5,000,000 of these excess earnings to the account of the surplus, which surplus account already contained $34,000,000 in cash.

It appropriated other huge sums to repairs and betterments. It paid a stock dividend of fifteen per cent., its usual cash dividend of twenty per cent., and then had $16,000,000 left in its treausry, which it disbursed as an extra dividend. Its stock is stold in the market at $600 a share.

"Under these circumstances any increase of rates by this road amounts to plain robbery of the people dependent upon its service. The increase of rates by this road, as well as by the other roads, in my judgment, can be absolutely prevented by proper organized effort. I suggest the following plan: Let the Newark Board of Trade call a public meeting to be held in Newark. Let invitations be sent to all of the different boards of trade, improvement associations or other organizations of commuters in the principal communities along the line of the railroads running out of Jersey City and Hoboken through New Jersey, requesting the said organizations to send delegates to said meeting. Let the following program be adopted: Let a special committee be appointed to proceed to Washington and appeal to the President and Attorney-General to bring suit, enjoining these railroads from putting into operation their proposed increased rates. Exactly the same ground for this action exists as in the Western freight rate cases upon which the Attorney-General, by direction of the President, obtained his injunction order on Tuesday. The cases are exactly parallel.

"Let another committee be appointed to wait upon the Governor, and demand that he invoke the full power of the State to prevent these rates from going into effect. There are two powerful remedies which he can apply. He can have the Attorney-General bring action on behalf of the State to establish the fact that the rates proposed to be charged are unreasonable.

"I am inclined to think that the public utility act passed at the last Legislature contains a clause which could be interpreted by our courts as vesting in the Railroad Commission a power to fix rates. They are vested with general power by that act to compel railroads to discharge their obligations to the public, and one of these obligations is to charge a reasonable rate.

"The other power, however, which the Governor has, and which is the most effective of all, is easily invoked, and would quickly put an end to these increased rates. He can at once call an extra session of the Legislature and a law can be passed giving to the State Board of Railroad Commissioners, in undisputed terms, the power to fix just and reasonable rates within the State.

"It is true that these commuting rates run technically from commuting points to New York City, and are supposed to come exclusively within the jurisdiction of the United States, but a proper State law would invest ample authority in the State commission to compel these roads to issue at reasonable rates commutation tickets from New Jersey points to Hoboken and Jersey City and return, and this would bring the whole subject matter within the jurisdiction of the State authorities. As a matter of fact, this is what the railroads actually do now, only the ticket is made to read to New York, but the railroad function ceases at the Hoboken and Jersey City terminals.

"In my judgment, if this meeting was properly organized and attended it would be such a demonstration of public opinion that Governor Fort would gladly consider it a justification for calling the Legislature in session, and in the present inflamed state of public opinion there is no question that a proper law, vesting complete power to fix rates in the railroad commission, would pass by a practically unanimous vote."

Taxpayers Start Movement.

The Taxpayers' Association of Ridgefield Park has started the ball rolling by employing Peter W. Stagg, of Hackensack, as counsel. Circulars are to be distributed on the trains, and the commuters of Little Ferry, Ridgefield Park, Bogota, Hackensack, Maywood and Rochelle Park are arranging for a massmeeting at which sepakers will discuss the situation and offer suggestions for resisting the increased rates.

Hackensack patrons of the Susquehanna and Western and the New York and New Jersey railroads, both Erie branches, received an additional shock Thursday when word came from the Erie traffic department to the effect that excursion tickets are to be increased as well as the commutation rates. On July 1 and after a return trip ticket from Hackensack to New York will cost sixty cents. For years the cost has been fifty cents.

Heretofore a ticket bought at any of the four depots in Hackensack on the New Jersey and New York Railroad has been good for return on the Susquehanna road, but under the new rule a ticket bought at Essex street will not be good for a return on the Susquehanna road.

Strawberry Fritters.

Beat one egg very light, and pour it into one cupful of sweet milk, and add one tablespoonful of sugar. Into this dip stale slices of sponge cake cut into neat pieces. Fry in hot butter, arrange on a hot plate and heap each fritter with strawberries and sugar. Serve with cream, either plain or whipped, if preferred.

Beef Consomme.

The bones and trimmings of a roast may be used for broths. Have the bones cracked and cut the meat small. Use one quart of water to every pound of meat and bones. Season to taste. Cook slowly for several hours. Cool, strain through serge bags, reheat and serve.

To Clean Mirrors.

Cleanse the mirror with a sponge dampened with water. Dust the surface with the finest sifted whiting or powder blue and polish it with a silk handkerchief or soft cloth. The dried charred part of the candle, if free from grease, is an excellent polish for looking-glasses.

Clear Windows.

During the summer months the widows become dusty and look very ugly. To remedy this they should first of all be thoroughly cleaned and rubbed with pure glycerine. Polish lightly with a clean, dry cloth, and the windows will keep bright for weeks.

A WOMAN'S BACK.

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear if the Advice of This Plainfield Citizen is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains

Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault.

Backache is really kidney ache;

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Many Plainfield women know this.

Read what one has to say about it.

Mrs. Margaret Reville, 732 West Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "For a long time I was troubled by a weak and lame back and I was unable to find anything that would give me relief. My back pained me so badly that I could hardly stoop and when I caught cold or over-exerted myself, my suffering was doubled. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Randolph's Pharmacy helped me at once and I continued taking them until I was cured. I have had no need of a kidney remedy in the past two years, but value Doan's Kidney Pills today as highly as ever."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Union County Court of Common Pleas.

Notice of hearing objections to assessments for street improvements in the City of Plainfield.

Joseph Harrigan, Harry B. MacDonald and Andrew J. Gavett, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas, by order entered on the twenty-third day of March, 1910, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinance of said city specified in said order, (said ordinance being also hereinafter specified) and the character of the work and improvements for which said assessments have been made and a description of the sections of the particular streets and avenues thereof which are included in said assessment, being as follows, viz:

Union Street, from the southwesterly curb line of Arlington Avenue to the southerly side line of Stelle Avenue;

Stelle Avenue, from the easterly curb line, of Madison Avenue to the westerly curb line of Union Street;

Madison Avenue, from the southerly curb line of Stelle Avenue to the macadam already constructed on Randolph Road;

Darrow Avenue, from the southeasterly curb line of West Fourth Street to the northwesterly curb line of West Seventh Street;

Compton Avenue, from the northwesterly curb line of West Front Street to the macadam already constructed on Dunellen Avenue;

Ravine Road, from the easterly curb line of Belvidere Avenue to the southerly side line of Dixie Lane;

under the ordinance of said City entitled: "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable Macadam Pavement, and to provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," approved April 12, 1909, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real estate benefited thereby," approved June 13th, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the clerk of said court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and map prepared by the City Surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, respectively, the total cost of the whole work upon each of the sections of said streets or avenues improved as aforesaid, under the aforesaid ordinance; the portions assessed upon the City at large, and the names, so far as ascertained, of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benefits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the City at large, and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the legislature, as by reference to said report and map will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given, that said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the fifteenth day of June, 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the Court can attend to the same, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

JAMES C. CALVERT,
Clerk of the Union County Court of Common Pleas.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eye; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swoolen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps, unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K1239 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering powers.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home

54-40 OR Fight

By Emerson Hough

Author of The Mississippi Bubble

Illustrations by Magnus G. Kettner

(Copyright, 1909, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

"But they come in large parties; they come well prepared. Each helps his neighbor."

"The distance is the same, and the method is the same."

I ceased to argue, seeing that she would not be persuaded. "At least, madam," said I, "I have done what little I could in securing you a party. You are to have eight mules, two carts, six horses, and two men, besides old Joe Meek, the best guide now in Oregon. He would not go to save his life. He goes to save yours."

"You are good special pleader," said she; "but you do not shake me in my purpose, and I hold to my terms. It does not rest with you and me, but with another. As I told you—as we have both agreed—"

"Then let us not speak her name," said I.

Again her eyes looked into mine, straight, large and dark. Again the spell of her beauty rose all around me, envoloped me as I had felt it do before. "You cannot have Oregon, except through me," she said at last. "You cannot have — her — except through me!"

"It is the truth," I answered. "In God's name, then, play the game fair."

CHAPTER XXX.

Counter Currents.

Woman is like the reed that bends to every breeze, but breaks not in the tempest.—Bishop Richard Whately.

The Oregon immigration for 1845 numbered, according to some accounts, not less than 3,000 souls. Our people still rolled westward in a mighty wave. The history of that great west-bound movement is well known. The story of a yet more decisive journey of that same year never has been written—that of Helena von Ritz, from Oregon to the east. The price of that journey was an empire; its cost—ah, let me not yet speak of that.

Although Meek and I agreed that he should push east at the best possible speed, it was well enough understood that I should give him no more than a day or so start. I did not purpose to allow so risky a journey as this to be undertaken by any woman in so small a party, and made no doubt that I would overtake them at least at Fort Hall; perhaps 500 miles east of the missions, or at farthest at Fort Bridger, some 700 miles from the starting point in Oregon.

The young wife of one of the missionaries was glad enough to take passage thus for the east; and there was the silent Threlka. Those two could offer company, even did not the little Indian maid, adopted by the baroness, serve to interest her. Their equipment and supplies were as good as any purchasable. What could be done, we now had done.

Yet, after all, Helena von Ritz had her own way. I did not see her again after we parted that evening at the mission. I was absent for a couple of days with a hunting party, and on my return discovered that she was gone, with no more than brief farewell to those left behind! Meek was anxious as herself to be off; but he left word for me to follow on at once.

It may be supposed that I myself now hurried in my plans. I was able to make up a small party of four men, about half the number Meek took with him; and I threw together such equipment as I could find remaining, not wholly to my liking, but good enough, I fancied, to overtake a party headed by a woman. But one thing after another cost us time, and we did not average 20 miles a day. I felt half desperate, as I reflected on what that might mean. As early fall was approaching, I could expect, in view of my own lost time, to encounter the annual wagon train 200 or 300 miles farther westward than the object of my pursuit naturally would have done. As a matter of fact, my party met the wagons at a point well to the west of Fort Hall.

It was early in the morning we met them coming west—that long, weary, dust-covered, creeping caravan, a mile long, slow serpent, crawling westward across the desert. In time I came up to the head of the tremendous wagon train of 1845, and its leader and myself thew up our hands in the salutation of the wilderness.

The captain stood at the head of the front team, his hand resting on the yoke as he leaned against the bowed neck of one of the oxen. The men and women were thin almost as the beasts which dragged the wagons. These latter stood with lolling tongues even thus early in the day, for water hereabout was scarce and bitter to the taste. So, at first almost in silence, we made the salutations of the desert. So, presently, we exchanged the news of east and west.

There is to-day no news of the quality which we then communicated. They knew nothing of Oregon. I knew nothing of the east. A national election had been held, regarding which I knew not even the names of the candidates of either party, not to mention results. All I could do was to guess and to point to the inscription on the white top of the foremost wagon: "Fifty-Four Forty or Fight!"

"Is Polk elected?" I asked the captain of the train.

He nodded. "He shore is," said he. "We're comin' out to take Oregon. What's the news?"

My own grim news was that Oregon was ours and must be ours. I shook hands with a hundred men on that, our hands clasped in stern and silent grip. Then, after a time, I urged other questions foremost in my own mind. Had they seen a small party east-bound?

Yes, I had answer. They had passed this light outfit east of Bridger's post. There was one chance in a hundred they might get over the South pass that fall, for they were traveling light and fast, with good animals, and old Joe Meek was sure he would make it through. The women? Well, one was a preacher's wife, another an old Gypsy, and another the most beautiful woman ever seen on the trail or anywhere else.

Then they began to question me regarding Oregon. How was the land? Would it raise wheat and corn and hogs? How was the weather? Was there much game? Would it take much labor to clear a farm?

Of course it came to politics. Yes, Texas had been annexed, somehow, not by regular vote of the senate. There was some hitch about that. My leader reckoned there was no regular treaty. It had just been done by joint resolution of the house—done by Tyler and Calhoun, just in time to take the feather out of old Polk's cap! The treaty of annexation—why, yes, it was ratified by congress, and everything signed up March 3, just one day before Polk's inaugural! Polk was on the warpath, according to my gaunt leader. There was going to be war as sure as shooting, unless we got all of Oregon.

"Do you seen that writin' on my wagon top?" asked the captain. "Fifty-Four Forty or Fight. That's us!"

And so they went on to tell us how this cry was spreading, south and west, and over the north as well; although the Whigs did not dare cry it quite so loudly.

The Telephone a Convenience in Emergencies

MY LADY is dressed for calling or for an afternoon or evening party, and a shower makes a conveyance necessary. If there is no telephone in the house, how may a carriage be obtained?

The ability to use the telephone when such a real emergency arises is worth the cost of the service many times over.

The Bell System reaches every metropolitan center in the country. It renders efficient telephone service through fair and foul weather, day and night, anywhere.

THE RELATIVE-IN-LAW.

The cheap joke and certain horse-play behind the footlights have given undue prominence to the relative-in-law, but just why the scorn of scorns should have settled down upon the unoffending head of generic mother-in-law it is hard to say.

It is quite within the bounds of belief that this long-suffering woman has, in the great majority of cases, been the backbone of a limp and flabby household and the mainstay and financial support of the irrelevant young who have too soon shouldered the burden of matrimony.

Granted that these inexperienced heroes and heroines of their own drama or tragedy, will never learn younger, and should to their everlasting personal advantage be cast upon their own resources the much put upon relative-in-law has rescued them from obscurity and degeneration and has, perchance, spent her "all" upon them.

Penniless, she now eats "the husks" and "takes it" at every turn.

Is there any reason why I should be singled out and treated badly until the day of judgment by the man who ought to be grateful because my very own daughter is his adored wife?

Is it Christian to point the finger of scorn at your husband's mother, who has made him so fascinating a man that you yourself have chosen to fall in love with him?

Can the parents of little children expect them to grow up with a desirable respect for the family of which they are a part, or to live up to its traditions, when ridicule has been thrown in the direction of its older members?

If there is no house large enough to hold two families, why begin it? Your mother will never become your husband's "mother-in-law" until he houses her, or is prevailed upon to live under her roof because of your inability or weakness.

Many a young wife and her husband's mother might have remained the best of friends had they not foolishly depended on one another.

Removing Stoppers.

If you have any difficulty in removing a glass stopper from a bottle, hold the neck of the bottle in the flame of a lighted match for a few seconds; the stopper will then easily come out. If a top on a preserve jar resists all efforts to get it off, turn the jar top down in a vessel containing enough hot water to cover screw on jar; let it remain for a few seconds. It can then easily be unscrewed.

Sheen to Table Linen.

The cheapest and most ordinary table linen may be made to take a sheen as beautiful as the finest damask by ironing in this way: After linen has been carefully washed, boiled and rinsed, wring dry as possible and roll up in a dry sheet and leave for one hour. Iron till thoroughly dry. The linen escapes the wear and tear of swinging on line and keeps its shape better.

FOWLER FOR U. S. SENATE

United States Senator was started by a man whom everyone loved. Foster M. Voorhees. He inaugurated the fight in this State in a message to the Legislature while he was Governor.

"Here is some information for you, a message that will ring from Sussex to Cape May, because it will decide the election of the next United States Senator. It is this: Two thousand men in Union county have signed pledges that they will not stand for any candidate for legislative office who does not promise to stand by the candidate for Senator who receives the highest vote at the primary. That number of voters is enough to determine the election."

D. E. Davis, of Elizabeth, offered the following resolutions, putting the gathering on record to force legislative candidates to declare themselves for popular expression of choice for United States Senators:

"Whereas, the Legislature of this State has already passed a law enabling the people to select their next United States Senator; and

"Whereas, the power to enforce this law resides in the people; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting that our next United States Senator shall be chosen by the people in accordance with said law.

"And, whereas, it is the interest and purpose of this meeting to secure this right to the people, not only now but hereafter; be it

"Resolved, further, That we do hereby pledge ourselves not to vote for any candidate for nomination or election to the Legislature who does not make the following declaration:

"'I do hereby solemnly declare upon my honor that if nominated and elected to the Legislature I will vote for that Republican for United States Senator who shall receive the largest number of votes cast in the State by the Republicans as their choice for United States Senator; and further, that I will do all in my power to secure the election of said Republican to the United States Senate.

"'I do further hereby solemnly declare upon my honor that I will do all in my power to secure such an amendment to the present primary law as will make it obligatory upon all candidates for the Assembly and Senate to make such a declaration as the above with regard to their respective party candidates for the United States Senate.'"

Congressman Victor Murdock, of Kansas, and Congressman George W. Norris, of Nebraska, in ringing speeches, riddled Speaker Cannon and his rules.

WARREN CHAPEL CADETS PRESENT ENTERTAINMENT

The annual drill and entertainment of the Warren chapel Boy's Signal Corps was given last night at the Park Club before a large audience. The young soldiers acquitted themselves creditably in their manouvres and play and won unstinted applause from the audience.

In the manoeuvres the cadets gave the flag drill, awkward drill, butts drill, bugle calls, Mt. Melee movements, silent drils and other movements. Piano seections were rendered by Mrs. Harry L. McGee and W. J. Schoonmaker.

"Little Tiff" was the title of a oneact playlet which was cleverly enacted. The cast was as follows: Edith, Lester Chandler; Mary, Edson Day; Teddy, A. Stightz; Gubins, Marc Waldron; Finnegan, Ashley Bruner; Dusty Rhodes, Ray Klin-, captain, DeWitt Brokaw. The youthful thespians were drilled for the play by John P. Myers.

Mrs. John P. Townley and son, of East Second street, are spending a couple of weeks in the country.

James Buckley, son of Thomas Buckley, of Orchard place, has taken a position with a shipbuilding concern at Quincey Point, Mass.

WHAT IT MEANS TO BE AN AUTOMOBILE ENGINEER.

(By Andrew C. Thompson.)

Time was when a civil engineer had to call himself a surveyor, or the public didn't understand his profession, and when a mechanical engineer was thought to be just one degree removed from the man who wields a hammer and cold chisel. Of late years there has been a more general understanding of the engineering professions, but even now the layman, when you speak of an engineer, has a mental picture of a man in overalls handling a switch engine.

The profession of automobile engineering is probably less understood than any of the other branches of engineering. In one of the largest motor car factories in the country they still laugh at the head of the engineering department who was mistaken for—but that is getting ahead of the story.

A party of ladies were being shown over the plant. At last they reached the engineering department, where their guide introduced them to the chief engineer. The ladies were quite interested.

"Automobile engineer?" politely inquired one of them.

"Yes, madam," replied the man of science.

"How fascinating," said the visitor, "but do you know, I always thought they called them chauffeurs."

All of which shows that an engineer is without honor save in his own profession.

As a matter of fact, the engineering department is one of the most important in any large automobile factory. To be exact, the engineers are the men who make automobiles. To them must go much of the credit that motor cars have passed beyond the stage of "one lungers," which were wont to break down at the most critical moments.

Before a man has a right to call himself an automobile engineer, he must have acquired the most expert knowledge of a great many different subjects. He must have had a most thorough technical education—he may get this in college or out—but he must have it. He must know all about combustion engines; he must know how to design them, how to build them, how to refine them. He must be a mechanical engineer and also a designing engineer. He must be a metallurgist; he must be a chemist, and of course he is a mathematician. An automobile engineer is not necessarily an inventor. However, there are few of the high-class men of the profession who have not been granted letters patent on some of their brilliant new devices.

The Chalmers Motor Company, for instance, maintains a staff of about fifty engineers, designers, draughtsmen and experimental master mechanics. Headed by George W. Dunham, this company has an automobile engineering board second to none in the country; a force of men continually employed with the designing and testing of new features, always studying to make better the things already produced, ever advancing the science of motor car construction.

The first function of the engineering department is, of course, the designing of cars. An automobile must be of the right proportions, suitable for use through a certain range of road conditions and pleasing to the eye. A certain set of models must be decided upon and designed to meet the requirements and win the approval of an ever fastidious public.

For this work the Chalmers company has a force of six men, headed by an expert designing engineer. The designers themselves are of various nationalities, men who have studied the best automobile products of France, England, Germany, Italy and America. In designing any one model these men combine the best ideas of all countries, then add and improve through original features of their own to make the design suitable to the public which buys Chalmers cars.

When a design has been decided upon, it is submitted to the board of engineers. Its every detail is gone over, its advantages and disadvantages argued and its feasibility of manufacture thoroughly discussed. Perhaps it is accepted as it stands; perhaps it is turned back to the designers to me remade and improved. When a design is finally accepted it bears the O. K. of at least fifteen men, every one of whom is an acknowledged authority on automobile construction.

To carry out this design in practical manufacture, certain materials are of course needed. So, when a design is approved, the chief engineer and his staff take the original plans and purchase the materials with which to build one car. These materials are worked up in the model laboratory. Here is more than $35,000 worth of machinery—every apparatus, in fact, necessary to the building of a motor car—and a large force of expert mechanics. In this department, too, is a testing laboratory. The experimental materials are first tested. On machines designed for the purpose, steels, bearings, brakes, wheels and, in fact, all parts of the car, are put through tests which result in eventual dissolution.

The point at which a bearing goes to pieces, the strain which a wheel stands before breaking, the tensile strength of a gear shaft; all of these things are carefully recorded. Mufflers, carburetors, magnetos and so forth are worked to the limit of their endurance on running cars.

Then the best of this mass of material is selected for the building of the experimental car, which is built under the direct supervision of the engineering force.

When completed this car is given at least one year of grueling work. The engineers try it out on all kinds of roads, in all kinds of weather, up all kinds of grades from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast. If the machine shows even a minor weakness, it is sent back to the engineering department and corrected. At the end of its test it must pass a standardization which admits of no defect. It is proved perfect by this examination; permanent plans are then made from the original draughts, requisitions for materials are made out and the new model passes on to the factory to become an integer of the Chalmers output.

Even now, when the public is just learning the merits of the 1910 models, the engineering department's experimental car for 1911 has been on the road for months, enduring such trials as never become the lot of one automobile in 10,000 in ordinary use. And work is rapidly going forward on the designs for 1912. In a few months yet another experimental car will be going through its paces. In fact, there is always a new car made or making in the engineering department and there are always men laboring toward perfection in automobile construction. They are invariably one year ahead of the current manufacture, and often more. This means that no car is put on the market until more than twenty-five men, whose lives are devoted to the advancement of automobile construction, have said that it is lacking in no respect.

This is the work which gives a car stamina, which makes it "stand up" when it is called on for some extraordinary performance. In a word, it is the engineering department which has given Chalmers cars a reputation for strength, beauty and usability wherever automobiles are sold.

THEIR WEDDING JUBILEE

Mr. and Mrs. Van Alstyne Hold Reception to Mark Event

RECEIVE MANY PRESENTS.

Many Friends Attend the Celebration Held at the Home on Watchung Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. William VanAlstyne celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home, 730 Watchung avenue, Saturday night ,when they entertained a large number of relatives and friends. The reception was from 7 to 9 o'clock. The home was attractively decorated with flowers and palms.

Those who assisted Mr. and Mrs. VanAlstyne in receiving were Mrs. W. B. VanAlstyne, Mrs. George W. Sterling, of New York city; Mrs. Edward M. Sutherland, of Chatham Center, N. Y.; Mrs. Percy W. VanAlstyne, Mrs. John V. Beekman, Mrs. C. L. Goodrich and Mrs. Joseph A. Robinson, of this city.

Among the numerous gifts of gold and cut glass received, the one from the women of the Congregational church, of which the couple are members, was especially appreciated. It was a gold tea set.

William VanAlstyne, was born February 10, 1834, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac VanAlstyne, of Chatham Center, N. Y. His wife was Miss Helen M. Becker, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Becker, of Watervliet, N. Y. They were married in Albany, N. Y., June 4, 1860, by the late Rev. E. L. Magoon, pastor of the First Baptist church, that city. Their three children with their grandchildren were present at the reception, as was two of Mr. VanAlstyne's brothers of Chatham Center. The three sons are Louis I. and Percy W. VanAlstyne, of this city, and Dr. William Becker VanAlstyne, of New York. The grandchildren are Vreeland Gansvoort, Irving and Emma, children of Louis W. VanAlstyne, and Helen, the daughter of Dr. William B. VanAlstyne. The two brothers present with their wives were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew VanAlstyne, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin P. VanAlstyne, of Chatham Center, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. VanAlstyne have been residents of Plainfield since 1873 and have resided at their present home, 730 Watchung avenue, since 1876. Mr. VanAlstyne is the head of the firm of VanAlstyne & Co., commission merchants in New York, and members of the New York Produce Exchange. Though seventy-six years old, he is very active and goes to business every day. Two of his sons, Louis I. and Percy W., are associated with him in the firm. He is also a charter member of the Holland Society of New York city, of the Columbia County (N. Y.) Society and for over fifty years has been a member of Master Lodge, No. 5, F. & A. M., of Albany.

Twenty-five years ago the couple celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at their home here. They are members of the Congrgational church and the pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, was present and made a few remarks on Saturday night.

Yellow and green were the prevailing colors in the parlors and dining room and red and green in the reception room. Mrs. L. J. Denton had charge of the decorations. During the evening an elaborate supper was served by DeMolli & Co., caterers.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Deyo, Mr. and Mrs. E. Wittemore Bartow, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Suydam, Mr. and Mrs. Elon S. Rogers and Mr. and Mrs. John M. Vreeland, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. George W. Sterling, Miss Elsie Sterling, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Chadsey, Miss Mabel Chadsey, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bullock and the Misses Florence and Dorothy Bullock, Dr. and Mrs. W. B. VanAlstyne and Miss Helen VanAlstyne, of New York city; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Galbraith, of Troy, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew VanAlstyne, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin P. VanAlstyne and Mrs. and Mrs. Edward M. Sutherland, of Chatham Center, N. Y.; Rev. and Mrs. John G. Gebhardt, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. George B. Vreeland, of East Orange; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Drummond, of Atlantic City. In addition there were a number of relatives and friends from this city.

Only Members Are Invited.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel will hold its closing exercises at the chapel tomorrow afternoon at 3:45 o'clock and only the members of the society are invited.

MISS BRUGIERE GAVE A DELIGHTFUL RECITAL

Whether it was because they were spellbound by the beauty of the singing or unaware that the program was ended certain it is that the audience which heard Miss Mathilde L. Bruguiere in a song recital in Hartridge auditorium awaited "Home Sweet Home," divinely sung before making a move to leave.

Not more than one hundred persons were present but they enjoyed a rare treat and the artist was smothered with floral gifts at the end. Miss Bruguiere was heard to best advantage in "Trendvoll and Leidvoll," Beethoven, where her complete mastery of the two voices showed her wonderful versatility. Again in the fifth act of "L'Africaine" she received a tremendous ovation.

It is to be hoped that we may have the pleasure of hearing Miss Bruguiere more frequently. She possesses great musical endowments, a rich voice of great range and an inimitable manner. She sings with equal facility in five languages.

Perfect self-possession and poise marked her entry and from beginning to end of the program had the closest attention of the audience. Ida Randolph-Smalley was the accompanist.

DEATH OF OLD TIME SCHOOL INSTRUCTOR

Chester A. Cleaves, one of the best known residents of Dunellen, died at the home of his son-in-law, G. R. Crandall, at that place this morning. Mr. Cleaves is survived by a wife, three daughters and three sons. The daughters are Mrs. S. W. Wakefield, of West Front street, Mrs. G. R. Crandall, of Dunellen, and Miss Mary Cleaves, a pupil nurse at Muhlenberg Hospital. The sons are M. H. Cleaves, of Watchung, and Frank W. and William W., of Warrenville.

Mr. Cleaves was a native of Biddeford, Maine, being born on March 10, 1839. He came to New Market in 1860 and for a quarter of a century he taught in different schools in this vicinity, including Watchung, Warrenville and at Martinsville. About forty-five years ago he married Hannah A. Mundy, at New Market, who survives him.

PLAINFIELD JACK TAR HOME ON A FURLOUGH.

Gabriel Paoli, son of Lawrence Paoli, of North avenue, a first class fireman on the U. S. Battleship Mississippi, is in town on a ten days furlough. Paoli has returned from New Orleans and other southern points and at the completion of his furlough he expects to go to Provincetown, Mass., where the usual summer drills and manouvers will be held.

Paoli is now on the first year of his second term of enlistment. He enlisted in 1902 and served on the gunboat Elcano in the Philippines. For a period of two years the gunboat did patrol duty in the rivers near Shanghai, China. After completing his first four years on the Elcano Paoli returned home on the Battleship Oregon and re-enlisted in April, 1909. Mr. Paoli's last visit to Plainfield was during the Christmas holidays.

King's Daughters' Lawn Party.

Invitations have been sent out by the Benevolent Band of King's Daughters for a lawn party to be given at the residence of Mrs. S. A. Ginna, "The Pines," on Thursday afternoon, June 9, from 3 to 6 o'clock.

—Neuman Brothers will have as a special tomorrow 800 quarts of fancy Jersey strawberries, two quarts for twenty-five cents. This is especially fine fruit.

MACHINISTS STILL OUT; SITUATION IS UNCHANGED

The only development in the strike situation of the printing press machinists today, was the conference between the foreman and Mr. Scott at the Walter Scott Printing Machine Works. Mr. Scott offered the men, through the foreman, a five per cent. increase in wages now and an additional fire per cent. increase in September. The offer was refused.

Otherwise there is no change in the situation today. The men still feel confident that they will win out. The local shop least affected by the strike is that of the Potter Printing Press Works. Potter's has always been an "ouen-shop" and less than a dozen men are out on strike from that shop.

All of the men are still out at the Hall plant and but few men are at work at Scott's shop.

Considerable excitement reigned at the Hall Printing Press Works at noon on Saturday when the strikers called to receive their weekly wages and were refused. A number of them also wanted to enter the shop and secure their tools, but the management also refused to accede to this request.

HOPE CHAPEL PROGRAM FOR CHILDREN YESTERDAY

Children's Day was appropriately observed at Hope chapel yesterday. In the morning, Rev. L. R. Howard preached a special sermon. The exercises in the Sunday school were greatly enjoyed. There were almost 300 members of the school present from little tots in the beginners' and primary department, who sang and recited, to the older members.

Addresses were made by the officers of the school. Rev. L. R. Howard offered prayer. Judge W. N. Runyon presided at the piano in the afternoon and the singing by the school was especially good. The children from the beginners' department who, under the direction of Mrs. E. E. Williams and Miss Edna Eckert, took part, follow: Frederick Weber, John LeMaira nd Elizabeth Cruikshank. Several of the pupils from the primary class in charge of Miss Flora Griffen, the superintendent, recited and sang. The singing of a song, entitled, "Pansy," by Carrie Hafner, was a feature. In addition Miss Eunice Eckert sang a solo, with the chorus by the class. The recital of the books of the New Testament and a song by the entire primary class completed their part in the program.

Frederic H. Andrews in the course of a few remarks, made reference to the death of Charles F. Abbott, who formerly lived here and was so much interested in the work of the chapel. For fourteen years he was a trustee of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. John Leal and Rev. L. R. Howard in short addresses told of the significance of Children's Day.

These promotions were made in the afternoon:

From the cradle roll to the beginners' department: Walter Hetfield, Edna Parker, Thomas Thomas, John Carl, Marguerite Roseberry, Rebecca Riley, Charles Pound and Dorothy Duryee. These were added to the cradle roll; Margaret Riley, Ethel Williams, Leonard Martens, Evelyn Otts, Dorothy Vail, Arthur Bronson, Charles Henry Gray, Robert Duvier Hacquer and Warren John Legge.

A sermon in the evening on "Children's Day," was delivered by Rev. Mr. Howard. The choir at both services rendered several numbers appropriate to the day. G. Herbert Condict, superintendent of the school, was unexpectedly called south, and J. H. Manning, his assistant, presided at the afternoon exercises. During the morning service, Rev. Mr. Howard baptized the following children: Robert Duvier Hacquer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Hacquer, of Philadelphia; Charles Henry Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gray, of South Second street, and Warren John Legge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Legge.

Y. W. C. A. Vesper Service.

Despite the rainy weather yesterday afternoon there was an attendance of twenty at the Y. W. C. A. vesper service. The meeting was conducted by Miss Harriet Mattison and an address was made by Frederic H. Andrews. Violin selections were rendered by Miss Wolfers, of Westfield.

Joseph Donato.

Joseph, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Donato, of Watchung, died on Saturday. Interment was made at St. Mary's cemetery this morning.

SORG GREATEST WINNER

Luckiest Exhibitor at the Horse Show, Vanderbilt Being Second.

FLANAGAN ALSO FORTUNATE.

George Watson Captured Some Coveted Prizes, Too—Charles W. WeCutchen Likewise Did Well.

Society and King Horse vied with each other on the closing day of the Plainfield horse show Saturday, for attedance. The handsome show grounds never presented a more attractive appearance and one could not have wished for a more perfect day.

The grandstand, private boxes, parking spaces, as well as the spacious lawns about the ring were thronged the whole afternoon with handsomely gowned women, while men prominent in the horse show world and business were out in large numbers. A person who has visited all of the outdoor exhibitions, remarked that he had scarcely witnessed such a georgeous display.

It is difficult to say which event of the day was the most interesting, the program in its entirety being so uniformally good, and nearly every class was filled. In the list of awards Paul A. Sorg headed the list of ribbon winners with two championships, twelve blues, three reds and three yellows. Reginald C. Vanderbilt was second with four blues, one reserve, five reds and one white, while DeWitt C. Flanagan, one of the strong competitors, received three blues, one reserve, four reds and one white, and George Watson was awarded three firsts, four seconds and one third.

Mr. Sorg was in great luck Saturday, winning both champion harness classes. His Vanity Fair defeated Mr. Vanderbilt's Proebe Watton in one class, and the latter horse met another defeat in the competition for the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club cup, Vanity Fair again carrying off the blue.

Mr. Sorg's Lady Tuck won the champion class for harness horses over 15.2 hands with DeWitt C. Flanagan's entry Lord Russell second. After winning a blue in every saddle class in which he was exhibited, Henry R. Rea's Heartspinrg was awarded the tri-colored rosette in the champion saddle class defeating W. A. McGibbon's Rosalind.

Perhaps one of the most interesting classes of the day were those for breeding horses. This brought out stallions suitable to sire heavy harness horses. The contestants were shown in hand and their attendants had a lively time of it as around and around the ring they took their charges. From the first it was the opinion that Reginald C. Vanderbilt's Tiger Lillie was entitled to the blue, and the Sandy Point Farm entry was awarded the honors. George Watson's Florham Gentleman was given second place.

The class for hackney mares was also interesting. George Watson's roan mare Florham Nellie took first honors, forcing Reginald C. Vanderbilt's Silfield Venus into second place. The latter horse was shown with its offspring only five weeks old and this aroused the enthusiasm of the crowd.

The program of the day closed with the classes for hunters and jumpers. The first ,the Corinthian class, open to all, was won in grand style by J. E. Davis' Country Girl. There was some excitement in this class, when George Watson upon Initial, went down with his mount between the double hurdles. In an instant the horse was on its feet and the rider up, took the next hurdle in a clever manner.

The last class, No. 50, hunters, for the Watchung Hunt Club cup, was full of interest. The cup must be won three times to become winner's property. The winner on Saturday was P. Detrick's LaPalome, with Frederic Bull's Rock Crest second and his Knight of Elway third, while C. J. Fisk's Coronet was fourth.

This cup was won in 1906 by C. W. Fisk's Apple Jack; 1907, by L. E. Waring's Grand Slam; 1908, by Miss Mabel B. Hooley's Crusher; 1909, by C. E. Sherin's Interpreter.

The day's awards follow:

Class 8—Pair of harness horses over 15.2 hands. First, DeWitt C. Flanagan's bay g. Rataplan and bay g. Prince Charming; second, Paul A. Sorg's b. m. Puritan Maid and b. g. Precise; third, Paul A. Sorg's b. g. Pilgrim and b. g. Pioneer.

Class 42—Ponies under saddle over 13.3 hands and under 14.2. First, Somerset Farm's grey m. Lady Idol; second, Somerset Farm's ch. g. Roslyn; third, Joseph J. Ryan's ch. m. Yuma; fourth, Hugh Gormley's

FREDERICK H. GODDARD WEDS MISS BENJAMIN

Miss Gladys Torrance Benjamin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Park Benjamin, of New York, was married Saturday afternoon to Frederick Worth Goddard, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Goddard, of this city. Only the immediate relatives were present at the ceremony which was performed at 4 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin, 370 West 73rd street, New York, by the Rev. Dr. S. DeLancey Townsend, of All Angels' church.

The bride was given away by her father, and she wore an ivory satin charmeuse gown, with trimmings of point applique lace, and a tulle veil, arranged with a coronet effect of of point applique lace. Her bouquet was of lillies-of-the-valley and orchids. Her sister, Miss Dorothy Benjamin, was the maid of honor, and she wore pale pink chiffon and carried pink roses.

The two little flower girls—Mary Elizabeth Goddard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Newton Goddard, and Mary McCall, granddaughter of the late John A. McCall—were in white lingerie frocks, with pink sashes. They carried baskets of ping sweetpeas. Stuart Johnston acted as best man. There were no ushers.

A large reception followed the ceremony. The bride, who is well known in New York society, is also noted as an author, having written a number of short stories and some poetry for various magazines. Mr. Goddard is a graduate of Amherst College, Class '98, and is engaged in the insurance business with Johnson & Higgins, of New York, insurance brokers.

EXCITING RACES AT THE DRIVING PARK

The local racing season was inaugurated at the Plainfield Driving Park on Saturday afternoon with a large attendance and exciting sport. Interest centered in the match race for $500 between two Metuchen pacers, J. Lawless' Bion Girl and H. Brautigan's Dick Welsh.

Dick Welsh, driven by Johnny Osborne, won first honors handily, finishing first in the first, second and third heats. Immediately after the race Mr. Brautigan, owner of the winning horse, presented a silver loving cup to its driver. The presentation was made in front of the grandstand. Osborne accepted the gift amid a storm of applause from the spectators.

The match race carded between Tokio and King Dillon, a Somerville horse, was declared off owing to a change in the ownership of the former horse, the new owner refusing to race. King Dillon, however, made an attempt to break the track record of 2:16½, but the best he could do was to travel the distance in 2.19.

Harry M., owned by George Record, covered an exhibition mile in 2.19¾. In the 2.20 trot and pace Dr. Bill and Mary S., the entries of Dr. G. Schluer, of Montclair, finished first and second respectively. The summaries:

2.20 Trot and Pace.

Pupils Give a Recital.

The young piano pupils of Miss Grace P. Karr gave a recital Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss Karr on Putnam avenue. The affair was largely attended, and a most ambitious program was given by the little folks, the selections being from the best known composers. The boys also entertained with the bugle calls and military march, and there was a violin selection by C. Everitt Banks.

Funeral of G. W. VanNest, Sr.

The funeral services of George W. VanNest, Sr., were held at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the late home at Martinsville, and were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Mr. MacGorie, pastor of the Mt. Horeb M. E. church, officiated. The burial was at Bound Brook.

NEGRO DISLOCATES HIS WIFE'S JAWBONE

Samuel Hunt, a negro and ex-convict, engaged in a fight with his wife at their home on Muhlenberg place about ten o'clock yesterday morning. In the melee Mrs. Hunt was roughly handled by her husband and emerged from the fray with a dislocated jaw and other bruises.

The police were notified but just as the patrol arrived on the scene Hunt had made his escape through his backyard and boarded a moving freight train. That is the last seen of Hunt by the police.

The fight created considerable excitement in the vicinity and according to the neighbors, it was a sequel to a drunken brawl on the previous night, in which it is alleged that Hunt severely beat his wife. The woman's injuries were attended to by Drs. J. C. Anderson and Marcus L. Clawson.

Hunt was one of the participants with four other negroes in an assault on former marshal William Klein, which took place on Somerset street about six years ago. In the attack Klein was stabbed with a razor by one of his assailants. For his part in this affair Hunt served one year in State's prison at Trenton.

CHIEF BELLIS BUMPS INTO THE AUTO LAW

Chief of Police Bellis, of Somerville, bumped into the meshes of the automobile law in this city on Saturday afternoon when he was apprehended on Park avenue by Patrolman George Dobson for driving a numberless car. According to the law all cars must display their numbers both in the front and rear of the machine, but Chief Bellis' auto was minus the required numbers on both ends.

The action of Patrolman Dobson was a surprise to the Somerville chief, but the latter took his arrest in a diguified manner. Chief Bellis explained to Dobson that he was not aware that the number were not on the car.

The patrolman ordered Chief Bellis to appear for a hearing at the police station this morning, but owing to previous business engagement Chief Kiely put the case over to a future date.

MRS. KLINE'S FUNERAL TOMORROW AFTERNOON.

The funeral services of Mrs. William A. Kline, who died Saturday at her residence, 611 West Third street, will be held from the Mt. Olive Baptist church, of which she was an active member for over thirty years, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Vaughn, the pastor, assisted by Rev. J. W. Mitchell will be in charge.

Mrs. Kline was forty-seven years old. She was born in this city and always lived here. Besides a husband, who is a doorkeeper in the State Assembly, Mrs. Kline is survived by seven sons, William Jr., Frank, Walter, Harry, Herbert, Fred and Foster Kline; also one daugter, Miss Ethel E. Kline.

Gave a Dinner Party.

During horse show week there were a number of dinners and luncheons given by Plainfielders for visiting friends. Among the dinners was one by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Waring on Friday night at their home on West Seventh street. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Joost, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Tyler, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Righter, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Shepard, Fred Bull and Clarence Levin.

Proctor's Big Show.

"The Favorite," a big racing playlet, will be presented by Sullivan & Blake at Proctor's theatre today. It is a thrilling sketch of racing life. The Two Trents, comedians, and novelty and clog roller skate dancers, also appear on the bill with Edi and Mae Shaw, in the rollicking skit, "The Messenger Boy and the Maid," which is full of clean fun. Leslie Thurston, the "Queen of the Xylophone," together with the pictures completes the bill.

John Choyinski Fined.

John Choyinski, an eighteen-year-old boy, was fined five dollars in the city court by Judge Runyon this morning. Choyinski was charged with throwing stones at the glass insulators on telegraph poles on the Jersey Central Railroad tracks. William Peel was fined a like amount on the same charge last week. Choyinski was in the gang but he made his escape when Peel was arrested.

CHARLES F. ABBOTT DEAD

Former Member of Board of Education Dies of Heart Disease.

WAS SIXTY YEARS OLD.

Had Lived Here Nearly Thirty Years Before Removing to New York —Trustee of Crescent Avenue Church.

Charles F. Abbott who for nearly thirty years, was a prominent resident of Plainfield, died at 3 o'clock yesterday morning at his apartments at The Berkeley, 20 Fifth avenue, New York city. He was taken ill ten days ago with acute indigestion and was apparently getting better when heart complications developed, causing his death.

Mr. Abbott was born at Herkimer, N. Y., sixty years ago, and for several years lived in New York. He removed here with his family in 1881, continuing his residence here until a year or so ago, when he removed to New York. He was a member of the Crescent Aveune Presbyterian church and for nearly fourten years was one of its trusteee. He was active in all departments of the church work and was greatly admired for his strong Christian character and kindly manner.

In 1895 he was elected a member of the Board of Education and served in that capacity for fourteen years, resigning last year, owing to the fact that he had changed his place of residence. Dr. B. VanD. Hedges was elected to succeed him. Mr. Abbott was always greatly interested in school affairs here and devoted a great deal of his time to the advancement of the cause of education here, rendering valuable services.

Mr. Abbott was associated in business with the Warner Brothers' Company, corset manufacturers, for over thirty years, and for many years was in charge of the concern's business in New York. He established an enviable reputation for business integrity and through his efforts the business of the company grew to enormous proportions.

Mr. Abbott is survived by a wife, who has been seriously ill, but is now much improved; one daughter, Mrs. James R. Blake, of this city; three sons, C. Westley Abbott, of Paterson; Gordon W. Abbott, of New York city, and Robert Abbott, of Bridgeport, Conn.

Owing to the illness of Mrs. Abbott, private funeral services will be held from The Berkeley Hotel, New York, tomorrow noon, and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

High School Concert.

The annual concert to be given by the Plainfield High School pupils on Saturday evening, June 11, promises to be one of the most interesting they have ever given. Mrs. George Wilton Sellick, of New York, whose singing charmed everybody last year, will be heard in a group of songs, and also in the soprano part of that interesting work "The Wreck of the Hesperus," by Anderton, which occupies the first half of the program. The second act of "the Mikado" with a High School "all-star" cast will appropriate scenery and costumes will close the program. The characters have been assigned as follows: The Mikado of Japan, Charles L. Lewis; Nanki Poo, Cldye Doane; Ko Ko, S. B. Howe, Jr.; Pooh Bah, Roy Titsworth; Yum Yum, Miss Laura Bristol; Pitti Sing, Miss Bessie Alpaugh; Peep Boo, Miss Meta Pennock.

White Waists---Half Price

Famous Christy Made

Thousands of Superb, Dainty Waists, in This, Our Yearly June Sale

The big feature of this year's sale of white waists will be a lot of over Five Hundred of the Famed Christy Make—known the country over as the best produced. The name of "Christy" on a waist is gurantee of its goodness, beauty and originality, and we are proud to be able to offer such a fine big line at this time. We count it one of the best purchases we ever made.

The Christy Waists

Nearly 200 of these waists are separately boxed. Included are many sample waists tho not the kind drummers have had on the road which are often mussed and soiled—every waist is fine and fresh.

The laces and embroideries employed in the making are of the finest hand loom and hand made imported embroideries, French, German and Valenciennes and other laces of the finest weaves, including some real hand made. The body materials include the sheerest lawns, batistes, mulls, imported crepes, marquisettes and linens. Some have charming yokes, others with front of all-over embroideries. There are high and low necks, short, three-quarter and long sleeves.

Some of these waists are high-class novelties; others are strictly tailored with plaited frills—but why try to describe the very many styles this great lot brings us. Come and see them for yourself and be delighted.

The sizes included are 34, 36 and 38.

The regular prices run from $3.95 to $26.50 and one-half and more will be cut from this great sale as follows—

3.95 to 4.50 Waists 1.95 — 5.95 to 7.00 Waists 2.95

7.95 to 8.95 Waists 3.95 — 10.00 to 14.50 Waists 5.00

Highest Grade Waists, regularly sold at $15 to $36.50 each, will be sold at $7.50 to $13.50.

Big Lots of Other Waists

One-Third to One-Half Less Than Regular

Two other manufacturers of renown contribute several lots of beautiful waists for this notable June event.

Having finished their usual season's product they made up their odd lots of materials for us at less than usual cost, giving us dozens of their most attractive styles—high and long necks, three-quarter and long sleeves—some with beautiful fronts of hand-loom Swiss embroidery; yokes of medallions and lace insertions; some with entire waist embellished with exquisite medallions of lace and insertions of embroidery; sizes running from 34 to 44.

2.50 to 3.50 Waists 1.50 — 4.00 to 4.50 Waists 1.95

4.95 to 5.50 Waists 2.95

Many waists are from our regular stock; some of them have been handled, others odd lots and broken sizes—reduced to half our regular prices and included in this sale.

DUNELLEN WIELDS THE WHITE WASH BRUSH

Dunellen scored an easy victory over New Providence on Saturday afternoon, whitewashing the haymakers by the score of 14 to 0. The Dunellenites had a merry time bingling the ball, Piddington and Ramsberger leading the swatting procession with four and three hits respectively. The game was also marked by some fast fielding, four double plays figuring in the contest. Giles played a crackerjack game at second base, accepting all of his nine chances in faultless fashion. The score:

Y. M. C. A.'S TROUNCE THE METUCHEN NINE

Y. M. C. A. scored an easy victory over Metuchen at the latter place on Saturday by the score of 9 to 4. The locals outbatted the Middlesex club by a big margin, everybody getting a safety with the exception of Slocum.

Slocum had eleven strikeouts to his credit and limited the Metuchenites to three bingles. Kempson was the only one of the opposing side able to connect with his delivery. The score:

The Somerville-Flemington game at the latter place ended in a row with the score 2 to 1 in favor of Flemington at the seventh inning period. Somerville refused to continue the game owing to a decision by Umpire Parker. A coacher started to run home from third base while the pitcher held the ball and a baserunner on third was declared out.

Bound Brook shut out the C. R. R. nine by the score of 9 to 0 at Bound Brook. The railroaders got only two hits off Ortleib.

At High Bridge, the Whitehouse aggregation was taken into camp by the score of 5 to 1 by the High Bridge A. A. Brewer, the former local pitcher, was in the box for the Peachtown team.

Boys' Wash Suits

1.50, 2.00 and 2.50 values for $1.00

The Most Important Sale of Its Kind Ever Held in this Vicinity.

Here is the best piece of boys' clothing news that the mothers of Plainfield have ever had the good fortune to read. The best sale of boys' wash suits ever held in Newark or elsewhere, for that matter. How we secured these dandy little suits to sell at such a figure, or where we secured them, are matters of secondary consideration. The fact remains, they're here and in tremendous quantities, too. This is the biggest deal of its kind that we have ever consummated, and we hope every parent who can possibly do so will get here tomorrow and carry away a supply of these suits. The more you buy, the more money you will save. Russian blouse styles in sizes 2½ to 8 years, and blouse styles in sizes 5 to 10. Neat patterns in galatea, madras and chambray. Many pretty models to select from. Trimmed with red, blue or white. Cut full and roomy. Exceptionally well made. Made to retail at $1.50, $2.00 and $2.50, special while they last

JACK MARTIN JUMPS THE WORCESTER CLUB

Jack Martin, the local boy, who has been playing splendid ball for the Worcester club in the New England League, returned home yesterday. Martin's reason for quitting Jesse Burkett's aggregation was owing to the refusal of Manager Burkett to increase his pay. Burkett wanted to farm the West End boy out to Newport, but Martin objected to this procedure.

Clifford Randolph is now wearing a Troy uniform in the New York State League. During the recent financial troubles of the Binghamton team, Manager Jack Warner sold him to the Trojan management for a neat sum. Randolph is rated as one of the star twirlers in the league and he will no doubt shine brilliantly in the collar and cuff city.

Lou Wiltse is being utilized as a combination pitcher and first baseman at Syracuse. Wiltse is now covering the initial sack for the Salt City aggregation during the absence of Heimeyer, the regular first baseman.

Flick Luyster, the Elizabeth pitcher, well known to local fans, was critically injured on Saturday afternoon in a game between the Wilson and Fayetteville clubs in the Eastern Carolina League. In the ninth inning Luyster was struck in the head by a pitched ball. He was knocked unconscious and taken to the hospital. It is reported that his recovery is doubtful.

The Ramblers, of New Providence, defeated St. Mary's nine, of Stony Hill, at the former place by the score of 14 to 11.

Yale conquered Princeton in the first game of the series at New Haven by a score of 4 to 2.

The P. H. S. first team defeated the P. H. S. freshmen on Crescent Oval Saturday morning by a close score of 5 to 4. The game lasted for fourteen innings, both sides playing fast ball.

The freshmen is one of the speediest little teams the P. H. S. have had in a long time. This was their first defeat of the season. The freshmen won the championship series of the class games of the school and defeated many outside teams.

Grisley and Weber were the star batters for the freshmen each batting in two runs. Grisley batted out four singles and Weber two singles and a two-bagger.

Grisley did good work in the box and Nash caught an excellent game behind the bat. Ricketts and Rosenson did fast work on the diamond for the freshmen.

For the first team Lidgate, Clarke and Doane were the stars. Terry and VanZandt did fine work as the battery.

HOPE CHAPEL TAKES FAIRVIEW'S MEASURE.

In a fast game on Hyde Field Saturday morning the Hope chapel baseball nine was victorious over the crack Fairview team by the score of 3 to 2. The batteries for Hope was Walls and T. Heron; for Fairview, Harper and C. Smith. Walls allowed but one hit and was backed up in grand style by his team mates, while Harper had three hits against him and for errors were made by the Fairview players. The teams lined up as follows:

Hope chapel—G. Leighs, cf; T. Heron, ss; A. Walls, p; T. Heron, 2; C. Bunn, 2b; H. Overland, 3b; A. Porter, lf; G. Snyder, 1b; P. Bunn, rf; W. Marsh, rf.

Fairview—M. McDonough, rf; C. Harper, p; W. Birch, 3b; C. Smith, c; V. Goldsmith, 2b; E. Kenney, 1b; F. Lowe, lf; J. Harper, cf; F. McDonough, ss.

Umpire—Mr. Miller; scorer—Jas. Heron.

PLAINFIELD DOWNS THE ELIZABETHIANS

Plainfield annexed the first game for the Union County baseball championship on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon, defeating the Elizabeth A. C. by the score of 5 to 1. Ragged fielding was in a large measure responsible for the defeat of the county seaters.

The visitors outbatted the locals eight to five but they were unable to place their hits advantageously off of McLaughlin. Reickert, was in the box for Elizabeth. He twirled a fair article of ball, but he was handicapped by poor support.

Splashes of brilliant playing by Nelson and Carlstrom enlivened the game from a spectacular standpoint. Barnes and Martin also performed in their usual fast style. Lidgate supplanted Halfoster in right field in the sixth inning. The score:

BERKELEY HEIGHTS.

The Township Committee Friday night refused to give indorsement to the wholesale license application of A. Lizanno for his place at Plainfield and Springfield avenue. A petition asking for the granting of the license was presented by Angelo Dei Duco. A resolution was attached providing for the consent of the committee, and asking Judge Atwater to allow Lizanna a license.

In opposition to the petition, Frank C. Shaffer presented a letter from a committee of the "Circles on the Square," to which were annexed letters from the prosecutor of Somerset county, the judge of the Common Pleas Court of Somerset and a police officer of Brooklyn. The tenor of each was against the license being granted.

Township Committeeman Henry S. Fulerton announced that he would not vote either way on the question, and Shaffer and Oeschsner refused to consider it.

Colonel Parker, justice of the peace of Berkeley Heights, put in a word for Lizanna. He called William Jeffery and others associated with him "liars and thieves." He withdrew his remarks, but added: "I will put it differently—Mr. Jeffrey is deceiving the whole township."

Twenty new lights were ordered to be distributed on the Horseshoe road and Lyde's Falls road.

TWO ARE ARRESTED IN A BOGUS COIN CASE.

Five counterfeit coins, four dimes and one quarter, were found in the possession of Peter Jordon, of Anna street, when arrested by Patrolman McCormack, at Elizabeth, charged with passing bogus coins on storekeepers in the upper section of that city. The charge was also made against Abraham Rubin, of South Park street, in that place, who was arested with Jordan.

For a long time the police have been on the trail of an alleged gang of counterfeiters who have been operating in that city. Chief of Police George C. Tenney has received many complaints from business men who had been fooled by the bogus money.

Chief Tenney, after getting his initial clue, detailed two detectives on the case. Patrolman McCormack was sent to the saloon of Charles Lefchick, 48 Washington avenue, where it had been learned two men who had bogus coins in their possession were drinking.

When searched at police headquarters five counterfeit coins were found in Jordan's pockets. Rubin had no money of any kind. The coins were evidently made from a plaster Paris mold. They were bright and glossy and had not been in circulation.

Chief Tenney and several of the detectives visited the homes of the men today.

STATE BAR'S SESSION.

Secretary Completes Arrangements for Annual Meeting.

Lawyer William J. Kraft, of Camden, secretary of the New Jersey State Bar Association, has sent out the announcement of the annual meeting of the association, to be held at the Hotel Chelsea, Atlantic City, June 17 and 18.

Prominent speakers will address the association at the different sessions, as is the custom. Governor Fort, Chancellor Pitney and Chief Justice Gummere, as well as the associatte justices of the Supreme Court, the vice-chancellors, judges of the United States Court have been invited to attend. The business session on the afternoon of June 17 will be followed in the evening by the ladies' banquet.

WASHING GLASS.

Great care should be taken when washing glassware. Two perfectly clean pans should be provided, one for moderately hot and another for cold water. Wash the glasses well in the first, rinse them in the second and turn them down on a linen cloth folded two or three times, to drain for a few minutes. This is done to prevent the edges of finely cut glasses from being nicked. When sufficiently drained wipe with a cloth and polish with a finer one.

Decanters and water jugs are tedious pieces to clean. Fill them about two-thirds with hot but not boiling water and put in a few pieces of well-soaped brown paper or throw in some bird shot. Allow them to stand for two or three hours; then shake the water up and down in the decanters; empty them, rinse well with clean, cold water and place in a suitable position to drain. When dry polish them inside and outside, as far as possible, with a fine cloth.

If the decanters are very badly stained on the inside a little muriatic acid should be added to the water instead of the brown paper or shot.

Fine pieces of coal placed in a bottle with warm water and shaken for some time will also remove stains.

STARCH MAKING.

To make starch, allow one-half pint of cold water and one quart of boiling water to every two tablespoonfuls of starch. Put the starch in a large saucepan and pour on the cold water, stirring all the while with a spoon to remove all lumps. When the mixture is smooth place the pan on the hot stove and pour boiling hot water over the starch, continuing the stirring. If made properly the starch will thicken immediately. It very ofen happens that the water is not at boiling point when being poured on the starch, and in this case it will not thicken, and must, therefore, be emptied into a clean vessel and placed on the fire to boil. When smooth remove from the stove and strain. Set aside to cool, taking care that it is covered so that a skin will not form over the top. To give a shiny and smooth appearance to the linen when ironed, stir a piece of wax candle three or four times in the starch. This will also prevent the iron from sticking.

Scene in "As You Like It," to be presented by the Coburn Players at the Plainfield Country Club, Tuesday, June 7.

Dalzell Wins Fight.

Pittsburg, June 6.—John Daizell won the Republican Congress nomination in the Thirtieth district on Saturday in the hardest political fight of his career. His victory is by a margin of only a few hundred votes.

Salad Dressing.

One tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon each of salt and mustard, a dash of ceyenne pepper, one egg, one cup of vinegar. Cook in double boiler until real thick. When cold add about one-half cup of cream whipped.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The performance of "As You Like It," to be given on the grounds of the Plainfield Country Club, tomorrow night by the Coburn Players, will be one of the most unique and altogether enjoyable entertainments of the season. The illusion of open-air performances is well-nigh indescribable. The green lawn, the trees and the witchery of the limelights transform the scene to a reality and the spectator seems to see real life instead of actors playing their parts.

Stages will run between the clubhouse and the end of the trolley line from 6 o'clock until after the play, and the Plainfield Country Club will provide every convenience and comfort for the large number of patrons who will probably witness the performance.

Mrs. Robt. Lowry, of East Seventh street, has been spending the week-end at Lewisburg, Pa.

THE DRAWN-IN GOWN.

Women are still insistent in the matter of the retention of the slender silhouette, and, although skirts have taken unto themselves a more voluminous outline, there is a straight effect secured on most of the evening gowns by a drawn-in effect near the lower edge of the skirt.

This is secured in many ways. There is a clever manipulation of the fulness of the tunic by gathering the edges into a deep silk or satin hem. This varies in width, and is a straight band or a deep-pointed fold.

The fulness of the outer skirt is also held in by a deep hem of contrasting color and material.

Another scheme is the use of cordings run through wide tucks. Here is the opportunity to give the hidden color a display on the skirt. Slot ribbons encircling the skirt wind in and out, now hidden beneath the folds of chiffon, voile or muslin and now bursting into bars of color.

You see that the full skirts are made subservient to the demands of the time, an evidence that at last the lines of fashion are not too compelling and that the artistic eye is in control in the deciding of a costume.

LIGHT BATHS GOOD.

"Sunlight increases the oxygen carrying capacity of the blood, increases the excretion of carbolic oxide, and the shorter light waves seem to cause a beneficial stimulation in the young of many of the lower or higher animals as shown by better developement," according to the Journal of Homeopathy.

The stimulation of strong sunlight has been frequently mentioned by literary men of genius, for with rare exceptions they have very sensitive nervous tissue in which the results would be most noticeable. Light baths are suggesters for sluggish metabolism, an excellent remedy in the case of those of sluggish chemistry who are benefited by the slower heat rays of hot springs, spas, etc.

Rolled Oat Gems.

One and one-half cups bread flour, half cup cold, cooked rolled oats, one tablespoon butter, one heaping tablespoon sugar, quarter yeast cake dissolved in half cup tepid water, one teaspoon salt. Mix butter, sugar, salt and dissolve yeast cake with the flour. Then add the oatmeal. Set in a warm place and make in the morning. This quantity makes a dozen gems.

Married: Conover—Philpitt.

On September 16th, 1872, at the residence of the bride's parents, in Warren township, Somerset county, by Rev. A. M. Palmer, Mr. David Conover, of Plainfield and Miss Ida Philpitt.

School Census of the city of Plainfield, taken during the month of September, 1872.

Number of children between the ages of 5 to 18—1,404, an increase since last report of 100. Number of births the past year 121. Boys, 66; girls, 55. Number of births last year, 96. Attending the public school, 889, a decrease since last year of 62. Attending private schools 190, an increase since last year of 29. Attending no school 324, an increase since last report of 133. Number of deaths during the year, 176.

October 10, 1872.
Fatal Accident.

Henry Pope, an old man living near Mount Bethel, while gathering chestnuts last Sunday fell from a tree, receiving injuries that proved fatal in a few hours.

Plainfield firemen can boast of a larger number of silver presentation trumpets among their members than any other fire department in this State.

A narrow escape from death occurred to one of our oldest and most esteemed fellow citizens, Mr. John Layton, at the depot on Monday morning last. He was standing between the platform of the freight depot and the track when a freight car that had been detached from the train came flying in toward the freight depot, and before Mr. Layton could get out of the way, he was caught between the car and the platform and seriously injured. He was taken to his residence and Drs. Sutphen and Probasco summoned.

DECORATIONS FOR CHILDREN'S SUPPER.

A charming supper table decoration, and one that is sure to please the little ones as well as the grown-ups, is a miniature May pole. It is extremely effective, with its pretty colored ribbons and daintily dressed dolls, and is very easy to construct.

The May pole may be made any height to suit the size of the table; one about twenty inches high would be suitable for most tables.

Select a well shaped stick (a pea stick will answer the purpose), mark the middle of the stick, and firmly tie all the ends of the ribbons to it; these are then plaited evenly round the stick upwards, till the top is reached. Tie the ribbons with cotton to hold them in position, while you take hold of the other, or cut end, of each separate color, which is brought back to the top of the pole.

Run a strong tack through each end, also into every ribbon at the termination of the pole, then with very small tacks passed through the ribbons hammered firmly into the stick, so that each ribbon is securely held in place, stretch the surplus ribbons which form long loops as far as possible across the table, just letting them droop and placing at the end of each a tiny doll to support the loop.

The dressing of the dolls will afford scope for clever fingers, and they can be made in very fine crinkled paper, each doll reproducing one of the colors used in the May pole, or, if preferred, they could be dressed in white muslin. A small leaden weight (those used by dressmakers) should be attached to the bottom of each doll, so that they are not easily knocked down or likely to fall over.

Two dozen yards of bebe ribbon (the wider ribbon is apt to be clumsy) will be required, each length to measure a little under two yards. Very light shades of helitrope, yellow, pink, green, blue and white make a pretty combination. For a small size table one dozen yards would be sufficient.

The uncovered end of the May pole would be set in a large empty cotton reel or a block of wood, with pebbles packed closely round to keep it firm, and the whole covered with moss.

The dolls could be drawn for at the end of the evening by the little guests, and those who are not winners might be consoled with gifts of sweets.

INTO A LARGER HOUSE.

It cannot be disputed that the idea of removing to a larger home affords great pleasure to all concerned; it may be a house or a flat, it matters not. We are going into something bigger! We have the sentiment of greater importance, greater space, and we like it.

It may be a matter of necessity, as when the family has become too numerous for the old dwelling; or it may be the ability to afford to remove; it is all the same. And how few of us think of the drawbacks—except, perhaps, mother! She may have visions that temper the joy; if she does not at the beginning she will before she has been there long.

That is the point! Far be it from us to suggest that people should live in cramped surroundings, because we know full well what that means; but it is well to make certain facts plain. Young people especially are apt to make a blunder in taking a dwelling too big for them.

If we have money enough to pay servants or charwomen to do the work, all well and good, but if not? If there is more work than help? The daily labor of keeping clean, the constant "turning out" falls upon mother and the rest of the family do not realize that she is being overtaxed (because she does her duty without murmuring) until she breaks down.

We may sit down and try to estimate the cost in labor and money, but most of us find that our estimates are wrong. Another trouble is that we usually crowd our apartments with furniture; it looks nice, but it all adds to the work. All those pieces of furniture have to be moved to sweep, and they have to be dusted whether we sweep or not.

As each piece is added to the home we think of the comfort it may bring and either lose sight of the extra labor or persuade ourselves that "another armchair will not make any difference." In the long run we discover that there is a serious difference!

A little caution is needed before enlarging our "castle," as our home is figuratively called; it is well to proceed slowly, because we may be confronted with the stern fact that the extra comfort is "not worth it." As for the question of expense, many a young couple have found that it did not end with additional rent and taxes; it is strange how the small expenses run up, and we do not seem to be able to prevent these outgoings. It is an old joke to say that people should be like fishes and commence life on a small scale, but there is something in it. The best plan is to go gently; do not run to the limit of either money or strength.

Real Sport.

"Anything new at the summer resorts for this season?"

"Yes; a machine which loads the merry-maker upon a catapult and hurls him forty yards into a net."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

ONE SHAD GOES LONG WAYS.

Here is a recipe for shad prepaid for the rich man, poor man, beggar man: Wash and clean thoroughly a large roe shad.

Rich Man's—Take out roe and break up into small pieces. Beat two eggs lightly, add a lump of butter mixed with a teaspoonful of flour, salt, cayenne pepper to taste and a little milk. Mix all thoroughly and fry in hot lard, garnish with parsley.

Poor Man's—Split the shad down the middle, and with a sharp knife make two large cuts, taking out completely the bone running through the centre. Lay this aside. Put fish in cold water and let remain until all the blood has drained out and the meat is white and firm. Sprinkle with salt and hang up. In the morning dot plentifully with butter and bake brown in hot oven.

Beggar Man's—Take the bone which was cut from the fish and which will be found to have quite a little meat adhering to it. Put in a stew pan with two or three onions and water and thicken, when nearly done, with a little flour. Have half a pound of bacon cut fine and fry a nice golden brown. Put fish on a platter and pour bacon over it.

CAMEOS ON EVENING GOWNS.

Cameos are coming in again, like so many old things that have of late become new. Coral and seed pearls are other revivals.

Cameos figure on evening gowns, and form clasps to cloaks for evening wear. They look well on the shoulders or on the front of the bodice, and sometimes at the waist line on frocks. Gold and brown are a favorite mixture, and several tones of one shade.

Even for evening gowns brown sequins blend well with gold threads, and gold filets are worn in the hair for evening. The metal is very thin and flexible. It goes on the brow and nape of the neck, is arched over the head, another bandeau appearing above the Psyche knot at the back. Sometimes topaz or other jewels clasp these bead adornments.

Jeweled girdles under the bust, with a clasp in the centre of the front, are very much in evidence on some of the more striking of the new evening gowns.

TO PREVENT SAGGING.

Thin summer materials will invariably sag after they are hemmed and finish, if care be not taken to prevent it.

Have the skirt sagged first, before the hem is put on. This is done by completely finishing the band down to the final fit and the last hook and eye. The skirt is now tried on, and when it is determined where the material is most bias it is marked at these spaces, the skirt is hung in a closet on a skirt hanger, or, better still, on a full-length dress form perched upon a box or an inverted peach basket, and the marked spaces are heavily weighted.

After several days of this strain the material will have sagged to its full capacity and the hem may be measured and put on.

What kind of weights? Anything will do; the smaller weights from the kitchen scales put into temporary muslin coverings and pinned on should suggest any objects of like heaviness that come to hand.

54-40 OR Fight

By Emerson Hough

Author of The Mississippi Bubble

(Copyright, 1909, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

And so at last we parted, each the better for the information gained, each to resume what would to-day seem practically an endless journey. Our farewells were as careless, as confident, as had been our greetings. Thousands of miles of unsettled country lay east and west of us, and all around us, our empire, not then won.

I made the journey across the South pass, the snow being now beaten down on the trails more than usual by the west-bound animals and vehicles. Of all these now coming on, none would get farther west that Fort Hall that year. Our own party, although over the Rockies, had yet the plains to cross. I was glad enough when we staggered into old Fort Laramie in the midst of a blinding snowstorm. Winter had caught us fair and full. I had lost the race!

Here, then, I must winter. Yet I learned that Joe Meek had outfitted at Laramie almost a month earlier, with new animals; had bought a little grain, and, under escort of a cavalry troop which had come west with the wagon train, had started east in time, perhaps, to make it through to the Missouri. In a race of 1,000 miles, the baroness had already beaten me almost by a month! Further word was, of course, now unobtainable, for no trains or wagons would come west so late, and there were then no stages carrying mail across the great plains. There was nothing for me to do except to wait and eat out my heart at old Fort Laramie, in the society of Indians and trappers, half-breeds and traders. The winter seemed years in length, so gladly I make its story brief.

It was now the spring of 1846, and I was in my second year away from Washington. Glad enough I was when in the first sunshine of spring I started east, taking my chances of getting over the plains. At last, to make the long journey also brief, I did reach Fort Leavenworth, by this time a five months' loser in the transcontinental race.

As to the baroness, she had long since left Fort Leavenworth for the east. I followed still with what speed I could employ. I could not reach Washington now until long after the first buds would be out and the creepers growing green on the gallery of Mr. Calhoun's residence. Yes, green also on all the lattices of Elmhurst mansion. What had happened there for me?

CHAPTER XXXI.

The Payment.

What man seeks in love is woman; what woman seeks in man is love.—Houssaye.

When I reached Washington it was indeed spring, warm, sweet spring. In the wide avenue the straggling trees were doing their best to dignify the city, and flowers were blooming everywhere. Wonderful enough did all this seem to me after thousands of miles of rude scenery of bare valleys and rocky hills, wild landscapes, seen often through cold and blinding storms amid peaks and gorges, or on the drear, forbidding plains.

Used more, of late, to these wilder scenes, I felt awkward and still half savage. I did not at once seek out my own friends. My first wish was to get in touch with Mr. Calhoun, for I knew that so I would most quickly arrive at the heart of events.

He was away when I called at his residence on Georgetown Heights, but at last I heard the wheels of his old omnibus, and presently he entered with his usual companion, Dr. Samuel Ward. When they saw me there, then indeed I received a greeting which repaid me for many things! This over, we all three broke out in laughter at my uncouth appearance. I was clad still in such clothing as I could pick up in western towns as I hurried on from the Missouri eastward; and I had as yet found no time for barbers.

"We have had no word from you, Nicholas," said Mr. Calhoun presently, "since that from Laramie, in the fall of eighteen forty-four. This is in the spring of eighteen forty-six! Meantime, we might all have been dead and buried and none of us the wiser. What a country! 'Tis more enormous than the mind of any of us can grasp."

"You should travel across it to learn that," I grinned.

"Many things have happened since you left. You know that I am back in the senate once more?"

I nodded. "And about Texas?" I began.

"Texas is ours," said he, smiling grimly. "You have heard how? It was a hard fight enough—a bitter, selfish, sectional fight among politicians. But there is going to be war. Our troops crossed the Sabine more than a year ago. They will cross the Rio Grande before this year is done. The Mexican minister has asked for his passports. The administration has ordered Gen. Taylor to advance. Mr. Polk is carrying out annexation with a vengeance. Seeing a chance for more territory, now that Texas is safe from England, he plans war on helpless and deserted Mexico! We may hear of a battle now at any time. But the war with Mexico may yet mean war with England. That, of course, endangers our chance to gain all or any of that great Oregon country. Tell me, what have you learned?"

I hurried on now with my own news, briefly as I might. I told them of the ships of England's navy waiting in Oregon waters; of the growing suspicion of the Hudson bay people; of the changes in the management at Fort Vancouver; of the change also from a conciliatory policy to one of half hostility. I told them of our wagon trains going west, and of the strength of our frontiersmen; but offset this, justly as I might, by giving facts also regarding the opposition these might meet.

"Precisely," said Calhoun, walking up and down, his head bent. "England is preparing for war! How much are we prepared? It would cost us the revenues of a quarter of a century to go to war with her to-day. It would cost us 50,000 lives. We would need an army of 250,000 men. Where is all that to come from? Can we transport our army there in time? But had all this bluster ceased, then we could have deferred this war with Mexico; could have bought with coin what now will cost us blood; and we could also have bought Oregon without the cost of either coin or blood. Delay was what we needed! All of Oregon should have been ours!"

"But, surely, this is not all news to you?" I began. "Have you not seen the Baroness von Ritz? Has she not made her report?"

"The baroness?" queried Calhoun. "That stormy petrel—that advance agent of events! Did she indeed sail with the British ships from Montreal? Did you find her there—in Oregon?"

"Yes, and lost her there! She started east last summer, and beat me fairly in the race. Has she not made known her presence here? She told me she was going to Washington."

He shook his head in surprise. "Trouble now, I fear! Pakenham has back his best ally, our worst antagonist."

"That certainly is strange," said I. "She had five months the start of me, and in that time there is no telling what she has done or undone. Surely, she is somewhere here, in Washington! She held Texas in her shoes. I tell you she holds Oregon in her gloves to-day!"

I started up, my story half untold.

"Where are you going?" asked Mr. Calhoun of me. Dr. Ward looked at me, smiling. "He does not inquire of a certain young lady—"

"I am going to find the Baroness von Ritz!" said I. I flushed red under my tan, I doubt not; but I would not ask a word regarding Elizabeth.

Dr. Ward came and laid a hand on my shoulder. "Republics forget," said he, "but men from South Carolina do not. Neither do girls from Maryland. Do you think so?"

"That is what I am going to find out."

"How, then? Are you going to Elmhurst as you look now?"

"No. I shall find out many things by first finding the Baroness von Ritz." And before they could make further protests I was out and away.

I hurried now to a certain side street, of which I have made mention, and knocked confidently at a door I knew. The neighborhood was asleep in the warm sun. I knocked a second time, and began to doubt, but at last heard slow footsteps.

Try Nature's Way of Sprinkling Your Lawn.

There's dry weather coming—plenty of it, and now is the time to get ready to help mother nature keep your lawn nice. Buy a "Fountain" Lawn Sprinkler. You'll find it a good investment. The "Fountain" throws a beautiful mist-like spray that soaks right down in the grass roots without washing any of the soil away. It is made of solid sheet brass, handsomely finished and will last a lifetime. It is the handiest and most beautiful sprayer imaginable. Get a "Fountain" and be ready for the dry weather.

Several other nozzles and sprayers of excellent make on hand.
Gem Nozzle, adjustable straight stream and spray.
Straight Nozzle with rose attachment.
Revolving Lawn Sprays, both high and low styles.

Now about hose. We are selling three exceptionally strong makes this year at very reasonable prices. They are made to stand the highest water pressure.

Para Hose, finest quality, 21c per foot.
Double Diamond Hose, high quality, 16c per foot.
Wallabout Hose, very good quality, 12c per foot.

Use a hose reel and make your hose last longer. This is the simplest and handiest way for taking care of your hose.

A Tubular Steel Hose Reel, such as we have, is hard to equal. Then we have a very serviceable Wooden Hose Reel at a very moderate price.

Grass Trimmers and Edgers, lawn necessities you really ought to have.

TRY A PRESS WANT AD.

A Kissing Problem.

A recent news item from New York says: "'My wife's kisses last ten minutes, and I don't like 'em that long,' was Sol Lowenthal's defense in Magistrate Corrigan's court today, when his wife accused him of not loving her any more. Lowenthal had his wife in court for leaving him.

"Magistrate Corrigan declined to act as a Soloman in Love's court and sent the couple home with the injunction to agree upon the length of time a family kiss should consume."

Too Suggestive.

MANY COMPETITIONS AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

Notwithstanding the many counter-attractions on Saturday a large field of golfers was out at the Plainfield Country Club to take part in the various events. Weather conditions were perfect and the course was ideal for good scores. In the weekly competition for the Spring Handicap cups, Classes A and B, many scores were posted. In Class A the point-makers were Arthur Murphy, C. C. Burke and E. T. Willson, and in Class B, E. J. Patterson, W. L. C. Glenney and George S. Clay won the points.

There was also the qualifying round for the June trophy for both classes. In class B, T. W. T. Maxwell and H. F. Fox were tie, and in the draw Mr. Fox was the lucky player to be chosen.

The weekly competition for the Boys' Handicap cup in the morning resulted as follows:

R. Stevens, 219, 150-69; J. P. Stevens, Jr., 132, 62-72; Donald King, 242, 150-92; L. S. Church, 94, 0-94; E. A. Walbridge, 111, 0-111; D. Warren, 186, 5-181.

These scores were posted for the Spring Handicap cups:

Class A—Arthur Murphy, 83, 8-75; C. C. Burke, 91, 15-76; E. T. Willson, 89, 12-77; R. G. Morse, 90, 13-77; Dudley H. Barrows, 82, 4-78; S. D. Lounsbury, 87, 9-78; H. R. Stockton, 89, 10-79; J. E. Erickson, 94, 15-79; H. R. Stockton, 89, 10-79; J. E. Erickson, 94,15-79; J. Whitney Baker, 87, 7-80; W. Lester Glenney, 86, 4-82.

Class B—E. J. Patterson, 93, 20-73; W. L. C. Glenney, 98, 24-74; George S. Clay, 99, 25-74; H. S. Brown, 94,18-76; A. W. Kleinecke, 102, 25-77; D. W. Taylor, 98, 20-78; A. E. Barclay, 99, 21-78; H. F. Fox, 97, 18-79; T. W. T. Maxwell, 104, 25-79; C. W. King, 109, 25-84; B. F. Kraffert, 105, 19-86; Silas P. Wood, 108, 20-88.

The following qualified for the June trophy, match play:

Class A—Arthur Murphy, 83,8-75; C. C. Burke, 91, 15-76; E. T. Willson, 89, 12-77; R. G. Morse, 90, 13-77; D. H. Barrows, 82, 4-78; S. D. Lounsbery, 87, 9-78; H. R. Stockton, 89, 10-79; J. E. Erickson, 94,15-79.

Class B—E. J. Patterson, 93, 20-73; W. L. C. Glenney, 98, 24-74; George S. Clay, 99, 25-74; H. S. Brown, 94, 18-76; A. W. Kleinecke, 102, 25-77; D. W. Taylor, 98, 20-78; A. E. Barclay, 99, 21-78; H. F. Fox, 97, 18-79.

Yankees Are Now in the Lead.

The New York Americans gained the leadership in the American League yesterday as a result of their 2 to 0 victory over the Chicago White Sox, and the Athletics' third consecutive defeat at the hands of the Detroit champions. Stallings' men now have a lead of ten points.

SPRING CHAMPIONSHIP PLAY ON PARK COURSE

The event of chief interest at the Park Golf Club Saturday, was the first round match play for the Spring championship cup. There was a large field out, but several matches went by default, owing to the absence of players who were drawn for the match. The second round will be played on Saturday.

The result of the first round for the Spring championship was as follows:

Rev. C. L. Goodrich defeated Dr. H. K. Carroll, by default; Nelson A. Miller defeated W. R. Faber, 1 up; Alexander Gilbert defeated C. W. McCutchen, by default; R. B. Titsworth defeated F. L. Sill, by default; S. St. John McCutchen defeated J. H. Howell by default; Samuel Townsend defeated G. A. Chapman, by default; W. V. Byard defeated A. M. Morrell, 3 up and 2 to play; C. B. Morse defeated R. V. Carpenter, 5 up and 4 to play.

These scores were returned for the Summer, President's and club cups:

Nelson A. Miller, 101, 30-71; U. G. Tingley, 102, 28-74; Samuel Townsend, 103, 25-78; W. V. Byard, 103, 25-78; Miss Lydie Loizeaux, 102, 23-79; C. B. Morse, 99, 19-80; W. R. Faber, 103, 22-81; A. M. Morrell, 112, 30-82; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 106, 23-83.

The leading scores for the women's sumer cup, nine holes.

Miss Lydie Loizeaux, 50, 3-47, Miss Louise Fuller, 76, 28-48; Miss Mildred Parker, 85, 30-55; Miss Grace A. TenEyck, 72, 16-56; Miss May S. Shreve, 57, 18-57.

TRINITY'S START THE SEASON WITH VICTORY.

Trinity Reformed Sunday school's baseball team opened the season on Saturday with a victory over the Watchungs by the score of 6 to 3. Harry VanZandt made a splendid showing in the box and his team mates give him fine support. Russell Doeringer also performed in excellent style behind the bat and Harriman's playing on the initial sack was also a feature.

The team lined up as follows: E. Honeyman, cf; R. Vail, 2b; C. Harrimanfl 1b; R. Hodge, lf; P. Haberle, ss; H. Van Zandt, p; W. Morrison, rf; G. Cole, 3b; R. Doeringer, c.

Games are wanted with all local teams. The officers of the club are: Manager, Raymond Hodge; assistant manager, Elmer E. Gayle; captain, Russell C. Doeringer.

WESTFIELD TO HAVE A TROTTING TEAM.

The first matinee meet of the Westfield Riding and Driving Club will be held at the Fair Acres track there on Saturday afternoon, June 11. The races will be free to the general public and horses from many sections of the State will enter the four events.

The program for the afternoon will be a 2.20 trot and pace, 2.30 trot and pace, 3-minute trot and pace and a free-for-all. The prizes will be cups, donated by E. D. Floyd, J. S. Irving and W. R. Hutchings and horse clothing donated by H. W. Evans.

KIELY AND STOUT ARE SURE OF TITLE

Kiely and Stout have first place cinched in Campbell's two-man tourney competition in which will end on next Monday night. The champers are scheduled to roll two series tomorrow night against Burscher and Schaub and Radine and Bitton, but as the latter team has dropped out of the tourney Kiley and Stout get three games by forfeit and can lose the remaining three games and still retain first place.

Vail and Meyer are holding down second place, although Miller and G. Ortleb and Laing and Blatz, who are third and fourth respectively, may tie for second if they win all their remaining games.

Team Standing.

	Won.	Lost.
Kiley and Stout	27	9

NEW MARKET TEAM HAS GAME TWIRLER.

With his left arm broken, William Tate, of New Market, refused to retire from a ball game Thursday afternoon when it had reached a critical stage in the ninth inning. There were two out, three on bases when he struck the batter out. Then he fell in a faint in the pitcher's box.

The game was between New Market and Stelton teams. A ball was thrown to Tate from first and in an effort to catch it he lost his balance and fell. His left arm doubled up under him breaking it below the elbow.

MR. HARRIS ENTERTAINED JUNIOR DEPARTMENT.

Arthur M. Harris, superintendent of the Junior department of the First Baptist church Sunday school entertained the members and friends to the extent of seventy-five at a lawn fete at his beautiful home on Central avenue on Saturday afternoon.

The children were afforded considerable amusement in playing games, such as lawn tennis and potato racing. Even the pastor, Dr. Chambliss, and Mr. Harris caught the spirit and participated in the sports. After the games luncheon was served on the lawn.

Miss Turner is Lucky.

Miss C. B. Turner, of New York, a trained nurse, a short time after alighting from the 7 o'clock train at the Netherwood station last night notified the police department that she had left her pocketbook containing about fifty dollars and a diamond ring in the seat occupied by her on the train. The police took up the matter with the railroad officials and received information that the pocketbook and contents were safe and that the property would be returned to Miss Turner today.

Lecture on Palestine Tonight.

"A race driver who is attached to a show exhibit is a mark for more questions than the average person is asked in the course of a lifetime," says Lee Lorimer.

Lorimer, the famous Chalmers driver and winner of many of the most important racing events of 1909,is now traveling with the Chalmers "cut out" chassis which has been attracting so much attention at the automobile show. Lorimer's work is to explain the workings and construction of the car. There isn't much Lorimer doesn't know about an automobile, and his talks are most interesting.

"One of the visitors asked me recently how it feels to win a race," said the man who won the Motor Marathon Trophy and many important track events at Readville and Point Breeze. "I wonder if any driver knows how it feels to win a race, I'm sure I don't. In New York a young woman came up to me and said: 'Oh, are you Mr. Lorimer? I've always wanted to see you. You must be such a brave man!' Isn't that enough to take the nerve out of a fellow?—and with about 200 people within hearing, too. In Chicago a man and woman looked over the exhibit and then the man approached me. 'You're Mr. Lorimer, aren't you?' he said. I told him I was. 'Well, I don't suppose you remember me. I was on the back stretch during one of your victories at Point Breeze; I thought perhaps you might recall my face.' Isn't that a wonder!

"These remaks are funny enough, but they aren't half the joke that the queries of job hunters are. A young fellow came up to me the night the show opened in Chicago and said, 'I have always wanted to be an automobile racer. I wondered if you couldn't help me to get a position?' 'Can you drive a car?' I asked. 'No sir,' he replied, 'but I've often ridden in amateur bicycle races. I am sure I could learn.' In the New York show I was buttonholed by a young woman who is certainly original, if nothing else. She told me the story of her life; said she knew how to drive a car and understood the mechanism; her father had once had money, but he failed and she now has to work for a living; she didn't like office work and wondered—well, this is what she wondered. 'You know Mr. Lorimer, I've often read about women who have driven in endurance contests and things of that kind. Now I thought a woman driver on a racing car would make an awful hit. She could make a lot of money if she had the nerve. I have heaps of nerve and I'm really a good driver. I wonder if you couldn't get me a chance to drive in a race for the Chalmers company. Of course, I wouldn't want papa to know, because—, and a whole lot more just like that. I gently but firmly told her that matrimony was just as exciting and paid as well if she won, and wasn't half so dangerous.

"People generally seem to think that a race driver is some strange and unusual species of animal, different from all other human beings. These experiences are entertaining when I'm not busy and they would be mighty funny if I only dared laugh, but I'm usually pretty busy, with this exhibit making such a hit, and I never dare laugh for fear I'll offend someone."

Funeral of Mrs. A. G. Thorn.

The funeral services of Mrs. Albert G. Thorn were held from the late residence on East Front street, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock and were largely attended by friends and neighbors. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, officiated. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Picnicked at Feltville.

Members of the Juniors Auxiliary of Holy Cross church had an enjoyable outing at Feltville on Saturday. The picnickers were accompanied on the junket by Rev. George A. Warner and a number of the Sunday-school teachers.

R. M. Chambliss, of Brownsville, Tennessee, is visiting at the home of his parents, Rev. Dr. and Mrs J. A. Chambliss, of Central avenue, and also at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Gifford Cooley, of Rockview terrace.

Mrs. Pearson, wife of Captain Samuel B. Pearson, of the Ninth U. S. Cavalry, stationed at Fort Russell, Wyoming, will leave town tomorrow to join her husband at Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont, where he is detailed for target practice.

VOTING MACHINE BATTLE

Petition for Special Election Returned to Signers by City's Fathers.

Acting on the request of the petitioners, the Common Council last night by a vote of six to four, returned the big petition demanding for a special election on the abolition of the voting machine. At the last meeting the city fathers pigeonholed the petition after an opinion submitted by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh was read. The city's lawyer had advised that there were two courses open, one to go ahead under the law, which he argued was unconstitutional, and the other to ignore the statute and allow the petitioners to proceed by mandamus. The latter course, he added, would permit the constitutionality of the act to be raised which would rebound to the benefit of the entire State.

George M. V. Moy, representing the petitioners, made a lengthy plea to the city fathers urging that they order the special election and requesting that if they still declined to return the document. Councilman Frank L. Holt, a New York lawyer, supported Mr. Moy's contentions declaring that it is the duty of the Common Council to obey the law as it finds it, and Councilman Duncan W. Taylor stated that the people should have what they want and the city fathers should "not quibble." "We are a legislative body and not a court," said Councilman George S. Clay, also a New York lawyer. "I believe we should accept the law as we find it." Five of the city fathers voted to hold the petition as a matter of record but six voted for its return.

Mr. Moy in his address quoted the law which permits municipalities to hold an election upon the petition of at least twenty-five per cent. of the voters, and stated that he had understood that the Common Council had turned down the petition for an election in this city.

He called attention to the mass meeting held last week, when about one hundred citizens gathered to take action with a view to securing a special election and he read the resolutions adopted then favoring a reconsideration of the action by the Common Council.

The speaker respectfully requested the Common Council to reconsider its action. In this connection he read a letter received from Secretary of State Samuel D. Dickinson, in answer to his letter, stating the number of voting machines purchased, 361, and that special elections had been held in 258 municipalities abolishing the machines and that only seven machines were retained as a result in these municipalities.

In view of this, Mr. Taylor said he thought it worth while to reconsider the action. Mr. Holt stated that he believed it to be the duty of the Common Council to follow the provisions of the law and not attempt to act as a court and determine whether it is constitutional or not.

It was the opinion of Mr. Mygatt as expressed by him that the remedy lay in mandamus proceedings, inasmuch as Corporation Counsel Marsh had advised that the city do nothing. He said that every newspaper article read by him and opinions expressed by lawyers all agreed with Mr. Marsh that the law is not constitutional. He believed that the petition should be withheld as a matter of record. When Mr. Holt questioned the opinion of Mr. Marsh, adding that he had given the Council the choice of two ways, Mr. Mygatt said that Mayor Fisk had conveyed Mr. Marsh's opinion to the Council and advised against the special election.

In reply to Mr. Mygatt's question as to whether Justice Garretson did not render his decision after the last election held to abolish voting machines, Mr. Moy said that any remarks made by Justice Garretson were as arbiter. Sticking to his question, Mr. Mygatt finally made his point that no election had been held since the decision in question, but Mr. Holt declared that not to be a true statement of fact. He said that it referred to the Bayonne case when certain technical points were raised.

"There is one of two courses left for us to follow," said Mr. Clay and as we are a legislative body and not a court, I believe we should accept the law as it is and not try to ignore its provisions."

Mr. Buxton was opposed to returning the petition, and so expressed himself. At this time a vote was taken on returning the petition. Those voting in favor were Councilmen Clay, Gloak, Holt, Frank Randolph, Taylor and Wilson, and those

COMMON COUNCILMEN TO HEAR FOWLER TALK

Acting upon the request of President Tolles, Mr. Clay reported at the June meeting of the Common Council, last night, that he had interviewed Prof. A. S. Herr, of the Plainfield Business College, and that the latter had expressed an earnest desire that the members attend the graduation of the exercises of the college at the Plainfield theatre, Friday night. Mr. Clay suggested that the Council attend in a body and that they meet at the city offices that night and proceed to the theatre. Congressman Charles N. Fowler is to make the address.

Mr. Mygatt called up an amendment to an ordinance relating to the appointment of appointive officers, and it was adopted on third reading. It provides that such officers shall be appointed from January 1 of each year. Another ordinance called up on third reading by Mr. Mygatt, and adopted, repealed sundry ordinances, which are unnecessary, as they are covered by other ordinances.

A resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, authorized the borrowing of $1,000 on account of sewer improvements, and the ordinance calling for an issue of $30,000 worth of street improvement bonds, was adopted on third reading on motion of Mr. Gloak.

PENSIONS FOR POLICE AFTER 20 YRS. SERVICE

Steps were taken at the June meeting of the Common Council, last night to provide a pension system for the members of the police department who have served twenty years, and who can become retired at the age of sixty years upon application. Mr. Mygatt called up the ordinance on second reading and it was adopted and ordered engrossed and after one publication in the official newspapers of the city will become effective.

The pension provided for those eligibile to the provisions of the ordinance, is $500 per annum, to be paid in monthly installments. Mr. Holt drafted the ordinance and presented it at a recent meeting of the Council. Last night Mr. Mygatt moved its adoption on second reading and there was not a dissenting vote. The action was taken more especially at this time for the benefit of Doorman Thomas McCue who is eligible for the retired list.

THEFT SUSPECTS NABBED; THREE BOYS IMPLICATED

Through the efforts of Detective-Sergeant Flynn and Patrolman Vanderweg a trio of alleged youthful thieves and burglars was lodged in police headquarters last night on suspicion of having been implicated in numerous small burglaries and thefts in various parts of the city. Clarence Chescire, Raymond Latourette and George Francis are the names of the young men. They were arrigned before City Judge William Runyon this morning and remaned until tomorrow to enable the police to make further investigations.

During the past two months several stores have been entered and robbed of cigars and other things and recently $100 was stolen from Thomas Timbo's restaurant and apparently no clue could be obtained to the thief or thieves. The police believe that in the arrest of the young men now in custody they have the real culprits for this latter crime and may be able to fasten others upon them.

Borough Police Court.

In the borough police court this morning John Corell and Joseph Terrible were fined two dollars each for annoying young women on the street. Sentence was suspended on Charles E. Long and Nora Sumad, who were arrested on the charge of disorderly conduct. Decision was reserved in the case of Lewis Levine, who was arrested on the charge of violating the junk ordinance. William Moore, a boy, on the charge of fighting, was released with a reprimand.

Thoughtful Little Girls.

Through the efforts of the following five little girls the children at the Day Nursery had a treat of ice cream for their supper this afternoon. Dorothy White, Maude White, Grace Moore, Virginia Glover and Elsa Palmer had a little club and raised the money which they are pleased to use in this way.

SANFORD MAKES REPLY

Dunellen's Mayor, in Addressing Council, Calls His Critics "Kickers"

It was Mayor William A. Sanford's turn at the bat in the Dunellen game of squabble last night. At the Borough Council meeting at that place the Mayor in a dramatic speech defended his policies and actions and denied emphatically that he has been guilty of any dishonest or unfair acts of adminstration since he assumed the mayorality chair of that borough.

In the course of his remarks Mr. Sanford did not forget to rap the opponents of his adminstration, of which there was a good-sized sprinkling in the crowded Council chamber. Mr. Sanford referred to them as the "seventy-three kickers." The first indication of a "hot time coming" came when the Mayor refused to permit F. D. Baerman, one of his political opponents to address the Council. The Council is evidently with Mr. Sanford in the controversy as there was not a sign of disapproval of the course taken by the Mayor in squelching Mr. Baerman.

Mr. Baerman was cut off from speaking again at the close of the session when Mayor Sanford put the motion to adjourn. "I told you I will not talk to you," said the Mayor and then the Council adjourned. Mr. Baerman, however, insisted on speaking, and before the councilmen had an opportunity of leaving their seats he rushed toward them and started to talk. He said very little as the councilman started to leave their seats.

"I want to ask the Mayor a question," said Mr. Baerman, "I would like to know what he means by the seventy-three kickers?"

"I will say something to you pretty soon if you don't shut up; and it will hurt you," retorted the Mayor, as latter made his way to the street.

When the sidewalk was reached Mr. Baerman and the Mayor had another clash in which the latter waxed sarcastic when he shouted, "I tell you, Mr. Baerman, all of the seventy-three signers on that petition are kickers with the exception of Mr. Baerman."

This shot nettled Mr. Baerman and he followed Mr. Sanford toward the street. The latter became vexed, and he turned, faced Mr. Baerman and the crowd and declared with uplifted hands:

"I told you I would say something that would hurt you. Go and pay your debts before you try to deal with honest men—darn you." After giving vent to this remark the Mayor disappeared and another chapter in the controversy was ended.

Mr. Sanford was partially overcome by emotion during his address to the Council and citizens. He said he had steadfastly refused to answer all of the criticism aimed at his character, but since it had pierced the members of his family, he felt it was a personal privilege and his duty to say something. Ordinarily, he said, he would not pay any attention to the charges. In the course of his remarks Mr. Sanford said:

"It has been asserted that I have not done anything for the borough since I was elected Mayor. I deny that accusation. I have done my duty, and the books are open to inspection by the public.

"I defy any person, who has made these charges, and who has uttered these cruel things in an effort to injure my charatcer and hurt my family, to prove them. All these things have been said behind my back. If there are any here, who believe I have been dishonest in my intentions let them say it to my face.

"I have been accused of permitting speak-easies to run, places that have flourished in former administrations, but I have done my level best to enforce the law in the capacity of my office.

"It has been asserted that I have sold out the borough ever since I have been Mayor. I have done my full duty, and I defy the man who made the charge. There is not one word of truth in it. If that man was here tonight (meaning Michael Gallagher) I would say something plain to him.

"It has been reported that I would be asked by a mythical committee of the Board of Trade, to resign from office, but as long as there are men in the borough who voted me into office I will not resign. When I resign from office it will be when I drop dead, not otherwise.

"I have been scolded and criticised because I sold my brother's property to Jews (referring to the Equator Land and Improvement Co.) I tried to dispose of it to borough people, but I could not raise $9,000, which was necessary to purchase the land.

"My opponents have said things of me that are false and untrue. If I was guilty of the things as charged

MISS FLORENCE WAGNER, H. H. RICKETT'S BRIDE

Miss Florence Auria Wagner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wagner, of Watchung avenue, became the bride of Hugh Hanson Ricketts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ricketts, of East Fifth street, at the home of her parents yesterday afternoon. The ceremony took place in the parlor which was attractively decorated in a pink and white scheme of roses, palms and peonies. The bridal party came into the room to the music of the Lohengrin wedding march played by Mrs. Thomas Ricketts. The bride met the bridegroom under a bower of flowers and a large white bell suspended from the chandelier. Here the nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church.

The bride was gowned in a dress of mousseline silk under a net of white point de spite trimmed with heavy lace, and carried a bouquet of white bridal roses. She was attended by Miss Carrie Mitchell, of Bridgeport, a cousin of the bride, who acted as the maid of honor. The best man was Edwin Page, of Philadelphia, a cousin of the bridegroom. The ushers were Frank Mitchell, of Bridgeport, and Jack Ricketts, of this city. The flower girls were the Misses Ruth Potter, of Brooklyn, and Adelaide Ricketts, of this city.

Immediately after the ceremony a bridal supper was served by a local caterer, after which Mr. and Mrs. Ricketts departed for a month's honeymoon. On their return they will reside in Philadelphia.

Mr. Ricketts holds a responsible position with the Yale and Towne Lock Compay, of New York, and is well known among a large circle of friends in this city.

Numbered among the guests were friends from Brooklyn, Elizabeth, Bridgeport, Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore and this city.

DR. NORMAN PROBASCO TO BE MARRIED TONIGHT

One of the larger weddings of the season will take place tonight in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church when Miss Olive Koons, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tilghman B. Koons, of Sanford avenue will become the bride of Dr. Norman Hayes Probasco, son of the late Dr. J. B. Probasco, one of the foremost physicians in this section of the State. The ceremony, a double ring one, will take place at 7:30 o'clock. The Episcopal service, with slight changes, will be used and the nuptial knot will be tied by the Rev. John Sheridan Zelie.

Preceded by the bridal attendants the bride will march down the left aisle to the altar where she will be met by Dr. Zelie and the bridegroom. She will then be given in marriage by her father. Both the Lohengrin and the Mendelssohn wedding marches will be played by Howard Case.

The bride will be gowned in a dress of ivory satin with embroidered chiffon trimmed with rose point and duchess lace and she will carry a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley. She will wear a tulle veil. The bride's attendants are: Miss Mabel Bogardus, of Putnam avenue, who will be maid of honor, and Mrs. Lucius Gilbert and Mrs. Robert McCready of this city, and Mrs. Robert Halsey, of New York, who will be the matrons of honor.

The best man will be Dr. Walter Probasco, of Chicago, a brother of the bridegroom. The ushers will be Leon Thurlow, John Loizeaux, David Scott, Lucius Koons, of this city; Joseph Schirmer, of White Plains, New York; Edgar Skeele, of Madison; Dr. Robert Halsey and William Buckner, of New York, and Dr. James Hanan, of Montclair. There will be no other attendants.

To Lecture at Warren Chapel.

Tomorrow night F. A. Houlthauser, of New York, will deliver his famous lecture on "Martin Luther and His Life," at Warren chapel. This subject as handled by Mr. Houlthauser is said to be of absorbing interest. A collection will be taken.

Former Plainfielder to Wed.

Hudson D. Wilcox, formerly of this city, and Miss Opal Rollands Cranor, of Albany, Missouri, will be united in marriage at the latter place on Tuesday, June 21, at noon.

Sociable and Dance.

A lunch box sociable and dance will be held in Coward's hall tonight under the auspices of Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America.

GRADUATION AT SEMINARY

Two Young Women Receive Diplomas at the Commencement Exercises.

The commencement exercises at the Plainfield Seminary were held on Monday at 10 o'clock, only the members of the school and the intimate freinds of the class being present.

There were two graduates, Miss Sylvia Curtis, daughter of T. E. H. Curtis, of West Eighth street, and Miss Gabrielle McQuaide, a niece of Mrs. Lemuel Serrell, of West Seventh street.

The exercises opened with the Lord's Prayer and a hymn. Gounod's Serenade, sung by the school, was followed by Miss McQuaide's paper on Destruction of the Manasteries in England. This was listened to with great interest. To the delight of the audience, Miss Louise Booth played most charmingly the Etude Mignonne by Schutt and Debussy's Arabesque.

The diplomas were presented by the principal, Miss Arnold. Her closing remarks to the graduates were: "An education if it be worthy of the name, bestows upon you one priceless gift—the power to discern for yourself the beautiful, the good and the great. There are people who go to Italy to see the sky and the sunset and never know that Plainfield's sky is just as fascinating and the sunset over the Watchung mountains just as glorious.

"I am sure one of our greatest surprises in the next world will be the saintly people we saw on earth and never recognized, disguised by garments fashionable or unfashionable. It is easy to praise the picture that the critics have pronounced famous or the book which the ages have made a classic, but the world goes forward in its slow progress towards the light because of those who recognize for themselves the difference between the sham and the reality, between unworthy success and genuine achievement, between the falsehood which makes so fine a showing and the truth which alone is eternal."

At the end of the program, the school rendered "Sing On," by Denza. The drawing of the primary department and the maps of the geography classes were on exhibition in the recitation rooms.

The rehearsals for the three one-act plays are in progress. These will be given on Wednesday morning at 10 and again on Thursday evening at 8:15. Tickets may be obtained at the seminary or from members of the cast.

BOROUGH YOUNG WOMAN WINS HIGHEST HONORS.

Miss Elsa Cook, daughter of Mrs. Caroline Cook, of Summit avenue, has taken highest final honors at the Hunter School for kindergartners in New York. She will read her thesis, "The Woman's Task," at the graduation exercises in the Carnegie Lyceum tomorrow afternoon. She passed all of her examinations with a hundred per cent. standing. She was graduated from the City High School in the class of 1908. While a student here she maintained a high standing in scholarship and was popular among her classmates. A party of the latter will attend the graduation exercises tomorrow.

Miss Cook is the second City High School girl to take honors in a higher institution of learning this year. The other young woman is Miss Gertrude Hunter, who was valedictorian at Barnard.

Boy Bitten by a Bull Dog.

George Randall, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Randall, of 51 Brook avenue, while playing in front of his home, yesterday afternoon, was bitten by a strange bull dog on the hand and thumb. Prompt medical attention was secured and as the lacerations are not deep, no serious consequences are feared.

Broken Rail Causes Trolley Delay.

A broken rail, on the East Second street trolley tracks, between Netherwood avenue and Leland avenue, yesterday afternoon, caused a delay in traffic of between thirty and forty-five minutes.

Local Ball Player Injured.

Bert Trotter, a local ball player, while playing in a game at Metuchen, on Saturday afternoon, wrenched his knee badly in sliding to a base. He is under the care of Dr Carey.

—The Board of Managers of The Children's Home Association will be at the Home on Thursday afternoon, where they will be pleased to see the friends of the Home between half-past three and five o'clock. 6,7 2

PLAYGROUNDS CONSIDERED BY EDUCATION BOARD

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education last night considerable time was devoted to consideration of the playgrounds in the Bryant and Franklin schools and a proposed playground at the new Jefferson School. F. J. Hubbard, C. E., made several suggestions and also explained the progress already made in laying out the grounds of the first two named schools. Mr. Hubbard's suggestions were referred to the building committee with power.

Mr. Hubbard suggested that at the Jefferson school the playgrounds be made in the rear of the school, leaving the slope the same as now. By grading the land in front and on the sides it will leave the back part practically level. Filling in the pond which is now on the grounds will cost approximately $1,000. He suggested boardwalks and steps and a permanent roadway be built.

Regular routine business occupied the balance of the evening and an invitation was received from A. S. Herr for the board to attend the commencement exercises of the Plainfield Business College. Several of the members signified their intention to be present at that event. No resolution was introduced relative to the death of the late Charles F. Abbott.

DUNELLEN PLACES ITS LIGHTING CONTRACT

The Dunellen Council at its meeting last night ratified a five-year contract with the Public Service Corporation at a rate of $18 per annum for each incandescent light. In the contract it states that the $18 covers 4,000 service for each light during the year. The Council is also given the privilege for deducting from bills for any lights that may go out or refuse to furnish illumination due to any defects in the service.

An ordinance was also introduced and passed on its second reading giving the P. S. C. the privilege of laying double tracks on North avenue within the precincts of the borough. This matter was agreed on between the borough officials some time ago, but the ordinance was not introluced until last night. It is the understanding that the company will lay double tracks half the distance this year and complete the job next year.

SUNDAY CLOSING LAW NEXT IN DUNELLEN

Initial steps were taken at the meeting of the Dunellen Council last night to adopt an ordinance which will prohibit the opening of stores on Sunday. At the present time there are numerous peanut, ice cream, candy and cigar emporiums transacting a flourishing business on Sundays and judging by the attitude of the Council last night it is evident that an attempt will be made to enforce the old blue laws before many moons.

The matter was brought before the Council by Councilman Todd, who is a member of the Presbyterian church, and acting on his suggestion the Council instructed Borough Attorney Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., to draft a Sunday closing ordinance and submit it at the regular July meeting.

In the discussion Mr. Todd was asked if the ordinance was intended to stop the sale of cigars. Mr. Todd replied in the affirmative and added:

"I smoke myself, but I do not believe it necessary to have stores open to buy cigars on Sundays. There's plenty of chance to lay them in durthe week."

Want a Municipal Water Plant.

Citizens of Cranford will hold a public meeting tomorrow night when they will vote on the proposition to bond the township for the erection of a municipal water plant. The estimated cost of the proposed plant is $250,000 and as the township's financial condition is good there is a strong feeling in favor of the project.

Corner-Stone Exercises.

The corner-stone of the new Baptist Home for the Aged building at Roseville, will be laid Thursday at 285 Roseville avenue, beginning at 2:30 o'clock. Among the speakers will be Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church. The local Baptist churches will be well represented.

East N. J. Association Holds Its Sixty-ninth Annual Session Today.

Rev. S. J. Skevington, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Baptist church, Newark, was re-elected this morning moderator of the East New Jersey Baptist Association, when the sixty-ninth anniversary meeting convened at the First Baptist church. W. F. Meyerhead, also of Newark, was re-elected stated clerk. There were between 400 and 500 members and friends at the morning session, which opened with devotional services led by Rev. Samuel Alden Perrine, of the Fifth Baptist church, Newark.

After the election of a moderator and clerk, words of welcome were given the delegates by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the entertaining church, and the moderator responded.

The sermon was delivered by Rev. Everett T. Tomlinson, pastor of the Central Baptist church, Elizabeth. The theme of his discourse was "The New and Re-Newed Conception of the Church," in which he advanced the idea that the church is a means to an end and not the end.

Report on letters from the church was read by Rev. C. T. Brownell, of Newark. This covered briefly the spiritual as well as the financial condition of the churches in the association. It showed that there are thirty-six churches with a total membership of 10,184. There were substantial gains in eighteen churches, including 407 baptisms. There were 272 members received by letter and 156 have died.

The contributions to benevolences was $33,876.88 and $2,442.72 was given to the State convention and $837.35 for educational purposes. The Women's Home Missionary Society contributed $2,954.81 and the Women's Foreign Missionary Society gave $2,941.46. The American Publication Society received $724.35, and the Baptist Home for the Aged, $430.20.

The moderator then appointed these committees:

On application of churches—Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, Scotch Plains; Rev. J. W. Musson, Plainfield; Rev. George Gardner. Resolutions—Rev. W. H. Bawden, Perth Amboy; Rev. C. E. Goodall, Roselle; Rev. T. B. Thames, Elizabeth. Place of next meeting—Rev. James Madison Hare, Jersey City; Rev. Albert K. Morris, Jersey City; Rev. George McNeely, Newark. Selection of preacher for next meeting—Rev. W. T. S. Lumbar, Newark; Rev. C. J. Greenwood, Westfield; Rev. E. O. Wilson, Newark. Auditors—William Beveusee and Peter Robertson.

Rev. Samuel Alden Perrine, of Newark, chairman of the committee on obituaries, reported that 139 members had died during the past year, and he gave a brief sketch of the lives of the more prominent ones who have passed away.

Before the close of the morning session, the moderator extended a welcome to the new pastors in the association, which include Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of this city; Rev. A. S. Cole, of Rahway; Rev. C. E. Goodall, of Roselle; Rev. J. J. Allen, of South Plainfield; Rev. Frank Allen, of Metuchen, and Rev. Albert K. Morris, of Jersey City.

It was decided that the moderator nominate the seven members of the missionary committee later in the day. The morning session closed with a few words from Rev. Peter Gibb, of Millington, who has been a member of the association fifty-nine years; Rev. Dr. T. E. Vassar and Rev. Dr. J. C. Buchanan, also numbered among the oldest ministers of the association. Mr. Gibb was the only minister present today who attended the associational meeting here thirty years ago and he talked of the early days.

Adjournment was taken at 12:30 o'clock for dinner, the meal being prepared and served by the women of the entertaining church. The afternoon session was given up to various reports and the consideration of the topic, "The Church," under several themes. The session will close this evening with additional reports of committees and a sermon by Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, of Scotch Plains, on the theme, "The Permanent and Passing in Pentecost, or the Place of the Church in Modern Society."

Dunellen Buys Local Sprinkler.

The street committee, of the Dunellen Council, is now in position to eliminate the dust problem in that borough. The Council, at its meeting last night, voted to purchase one of the Plainfield sprinkling wagons at a cost of $175. It will also necessitate an additional expenditure of $25 to put the apparatus in first class shape.

SPECIAL—Watch papers later in the week for a Ribbon Sale. This sale will arouse the buying enthusiasm of every woman within 25 miles of Plainfield.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Bids for laying concrete sidewalks were opened at the Council meeting last night. The figure of Peter C. Staats, 24 cents per square foot, was the lowest, and he will do the work. William H. Smalley was Staats' closest competitor. The latter quoted 29 cents per cubic foot which was one-sixth of a cent higher than Staats. C. S. Adams' quotation was 40 cents per foot. A petition was received from property owners asking that a cross walk be placed on the westerly side of Washington avenue and Third street. This petition was granted.

William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., is arranging to conduct an outdoor carnival from July 2 to 9. The affair will be held in the western part of the borough. The committee in charge is Lewis Schneider and John M. Campbell. The council sanctioned the carnival last night.

"I understand that the whiskers of the park need trimming," said Mayor Sanford at the Council meeting last night. That was sufficient, and the park committee was ordered to cut the grass and spruce up the village green.

Because of the bad condition of the New Market road the Council at its session last night voted to notify the Middlesex Board of Freeholders.

Mayor William A. Sanford is making arrangements for an European trip which will absent him from the borough from six to eight weeks.

Councilman Berkhiser and wife are rejoicing over the arrival of an heir.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Fanwood B. & L. Co. held its regular monthly meeting last night in the company's rooms. Besides the regular routine business ten new members were added to the roll.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will present a flag to School No. 1 on the morning of the Fourth.

Mrs. William H. Lee, of Front street, has been entertaining friends from Plainfield.

The Bachelors' Club holds its next dance on Tuesday night, June 21.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The official board of the First M. E. church will meet tomorrow night in Vincent chapel after the prayer-meeting.

Commencing next Sunday the session of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school will be held at 9:30 o'clock in the morning.

Children's Day will be observed Sunday morning at Trinity Reformed church. A feature of the service will be the baptism of children.

The Rev. Dr. William H. Neilson, of this city, was one of the three clergymen of the class of 1860 who took part in the baccalaureate service of New York University Sunday afternoon.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire will make an address before the Lennox Road (Brooklyn) Sunday-school, Thursday afternoon, in connection with a Sunday-school parade to be held that day.

City Judge William N. Runyon has consented to teach a Bible class for young men at the Park Avenue Baptist church, and he will assume charge of the class on Sunday afternoon, June 19.

The Junior Mission Band of the First Baptist church will hold its closing exercises Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. An enjoyable festival will be provided, and cake, ice cream and strawberries will be provided.

The Loyal Temperance Legion will meet tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the W. C. T. U. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, will address the children. A special business session will also be held and members are urged to attend.

The Women's Foreign and Home Missionary Societies of the First M. E. church are today holding their last meetings until fall, in Vincent chapel. This morning Rev. Dr. G. H. Whitney addressed the Women's Foreign Missionary Society on South America.

Mr. and Mrs. William McCutcheon, of Myrtle avenue, were among the guests at the marriage of Miss Christina Liggett, daughter of Mrs. John A. Liggett, and Hastings Norton, of Elizabeth, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Samuel P. Savage, on North Broad street, Elizabeth, Saturday afternoon.

Union County Court of Common Pleas.

Notice of hearing objections to assessments for street improvements in the City of Plainfield.

Joseph Harrigan, Harry B. MacDonald and Andrew J. Gavett, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas, by order entered on the twenty-third day of March, 1910, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinance of said city specified in said order, (said ordinance being also hereinafter specified) and the character of the work and improvements for which said assessments have been made and a description of the sections of the particular streets and avenues thereof which are included in said assessment, being as follows, viz:

Union Street, from the southwesterly curb line of Arlington Avenue to the southerly side line of Stelle Avenue;

Stelle Avenue, from the easterly curb line of Madison Avenue to the westerly curb line of Union Street;

Madison Avenue, from the southerly curb line of Stelle Avenue to the macadum already constructed on Randolph Road;

Darrow Avenue, from the southeasterly curb line of West Fourth Street to the northwesterly curb line of West Seventh Street;

Compton Avenue, from the northwesterly curb line of West Front Street to the macadam already constructed on Dunellen Avenue;

Ravine Road, from the easterly curb line of Belvidere Avenue to the southerly side line of Dixie Lane;

under the ordinance of said City entitled: "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable Macadam Pavement, and to provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," approved April 12, 1909, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real estate benefited thereby," approved June 13th, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the clerk of said court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and map prepared by the City Surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, respectively, the total cost of the whole work upon each of the sections of said streets or avenues improved as aforesaid, under the aforesaid ordinance; the portions assessed upon the City at large, and the names, so far as ascertained, of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benefits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the City at large, and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the legislature, as by reference to said report and map will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given, that said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the fifteenth day of June, 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the Court can attend to the same, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

"As You Like It" may be seen many times in a theatre and the auditor yet fail to appreciate the alluring charm that it possesses when heard and seen amid the natural surroundings into which it fits so completely. Full of the spirit of outdoor things, the preference of the green of the forest to the gilt of the court, it finds its proper sphere where the scenery is the trees and the roof the sky. Large calcium lights will illuminate the stage and at the end of each act these lights will go out for a few minutes allowing time to arrange for the next act. Every scene will be preceeded by the strain of song, including many of the original arrangements of the songs that were used by Shakespeare's own company. With the background of trees and the twinkling of the stars overhead, the scene will be one of unusual beauty as the natural opportunities afforded by the grounds of the Plainfield Country Club tonight and will be taken advantage of and those who attend are promised an unusually attractive performance. The performance will be under the auspices of the Plainfield Country Club and the Coburn Players' version is a particularly enjoyable one.

Among the guests at the dinner given in the Essex County Country Club, West Orange, Saturday night, were Mr. and Mrs. August W. Kienike and Mr. and Mrs. Stuart H. Patterson, of this city. The dinner marked the celebration of the fifteenth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bonynge, of East Orange.

MORE COMMISSIONERS FOR THE PLAYGROUNDS

Aside from a considerable amount of important business considered by the Common Council at its June meeting last night, were many minor matters which made the session a lengthy one. Patrolman Charles Anderson, considered one of the best men in the police department, resigned and the resignation was accepted. It is understood that he intends returning to his old position as lineman for the telephone company, where he will receive more money.

Upon the request of the merchants in the city market, Robert J. Wood was appointed a special policeman by Mayor Fisk, and the same was confirmed.

Residents of West Front street, between Plainfield and Grant avenues, petitioned for four additional lights on that thoroughfare, and upon motion of Mr. Buxton the petition was referred to the light committee with power.

Two offers were received by the city for the purchase of that part of Midway avenue known as the "gravel pit." Peter McDonough offered $1,000 for the tract, while W. R. Way offered $1.50 a front foot for the land which has a frontage of about 900 feet. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

The Board of School Estimate informed the Common Council that it had determined the amount necessary to maintain the public schools for the coming year to be $67,000, and that amount will be incorporated in the annual budget.

Residents in the vicinity of Rose street in a communication opposed the grading and sewering of that street, claiming it to be an unnecessary expense as there is but one resident to be benefitted.

Mayor Fisk appointed Lindsley Best and Charles B. Morse additional members of the Playground Commission, and the same was confirmed. Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported the granting of twenty-three permits during May and Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett reported that he had granted twenty-seven sewer permits during the same period. The monthly report of Overseer of the Poor A. D. Ayers was received and filed. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District Court, reported receipts for May to be $114.96, disbursements $30.66, with a balance of $84.30. This report was filed.

Upon motion of Mr. Buxton, $3,000 was transferred from the general to the fire fund. Mr. Holt moved that when the Common Council adjourn it be to meet on Monday night, June 20, at 8 o'clock and it was so ordered.

On motion of Mr. Gloak the ordinance providing for an addition to the storm sewer in Richmond street was adopted on third reading and he offered a resolution which was adopted fixing Tuesday, night, July 6, as the time the Council will meet to receive bids for the work. This resolution carried with it instructions to the city clerk to insert the usual advertisement in the official newspapers of the city and the Engineering News and the plans, forms of contract, bonds, etc., were adopted and filed.

Another resolution by the same member and adopted, authorized the street committee to purchase brick, pipe and castings for the storm sewer work, it being understood that the money for the same is to come out of the street appropriation fund.

Mr. Gloak then introduced a new ordinance providing for an additional extension to the sanitary system of sewers, which was adopted on two readings, and June 5, was fixed as the time for a public hearing. The streets included in this ordinance are Monroe avenue, Hobart avenue, West Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth streets, Sherman avenue, Plainfield avenue, Randolph road, Rose street, Radcliffe, East Front and East Second streets.

Mr. Clay gave notice that the meeting of the Common Council on Tuesday night, July 5, he would move to amend Rule 38, of the Council, so as to change the mode of procedure in the adoption of ordinances in the future.

According to his proposed amendment, an ordinance will first be read by title and a copy supplied to each member. On the second reading there will be opportunity for discussion and amendments and then it shall be placed on the table for at least two weeks before final adoption. It can by a two-thirds vote be referred back in the usual way. In the meantime a copy of the amendment will be sent to corporation counsel for his advice before making the changes as proposed by Mr. Clay and each member will receive a copy of the amendment. An ordinance called up by Mr. Gloak for adoption was that which provides for vacating a portion of an unusued street, being an extension of New street, between Seventh and Eighth streets, but as Mr. Buxton reported that there were objections to the proposed action the ordinance was left on the table until the next meeting.

$30 MATTRESS for $16.98

We have just received from Messrs. Ostermoor & Co. a lot of their regular $30 Mattresses, which they had made up for a big hotel in New York State that burned down about the time they were ready to deliver them. These Mattresses are full size, made in two parts, weight full 60 pounds, 15 pounds more than regular; made with round corners, 5 inch inseam borders and covered with beautiful mercerized French Art twill ticking. We urge immediate action on this special offer, as our supply is of necessity limited; while they last you can buy them for $16.98

$12.50 MATTRESS for $8.50

Here's the greatest Mattress Bargain you've ever heard tell of. A large Mattress Concern making strictly high grade elastic cotton felt mattresses decided to quit making mattresses and devote their factory to the making of adjustable bed couches. We made them an offer and secured their entire stock of mattresses. Among the lot was fifty of their $12.50 advertised mattresses. They are in two parts, weigh 50 pounds, made with round corners, 5 inch inseam borders, covered with satin finished dust-proof ticking and are moth and vermin proof. We could sell them readily at the regular price; while they last you can buy them for $8.50

I would resign, but there is not a scintilla of evidence that I have done anything wrong.

"I have been arrested for malfeasance in office because I didn't arrest McFadden for selling liquor without a license. The county has failed to secure evidence to indict him, and now because the county authorities fail to arrest him, I am arrested."

Mr. Sanford also referred to the drainage ssytem of the Equator Land Company's property and he said it was the only square thing for the borough to do. He explained that the condition of the streets was due to the land being submerged in rainstorms, and it was therefore only right that the borough should remedy the trouble.

It is the impression that the controversy will be settled for all time at a public hearing on the matter of extending Dunellen avenue through the Equator plot from Madison avenue to Gallagher's Corner, which will be held in the borough hall on Thursday night, June 16. At the meeting last night an ordinance, prepared by Borough Attorney Hetfield, authorizing the extension of the thoroughfare by condemnation proceedings, if necessary, was passed on its first reading.

If, at the public hearing, the sentiment of the citizens favor the extension of the street, the Council is likely to act in accord with their wishes by adopting the ordinance at its next regular meeting.

The bid of the Dunellen Lumber and Stone Company for furnishing stone for road repairs was accepted. The prices submitted were: 2½-inch, $1 per ton; 1½-inch, $1.10 per ton; 1-inch, $1.20 per ton; screenings, $1.20 per ton.

A communication was read from Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, stating that if the citizens of that borough vote in favor of the proposed sewerage system, that its committee will be prepared to meet with a committee from the Dunellen Council relative to the latter place connecting with the system. Mayor Smalley urged Mayor Sanford and the Council that it is an important matter which should interest the citizens of that place.

who voted against the resolution were Councilmen Buxton, Mygatt, C. C. Randolph and Tolles.

It is now the intention of those who are behind the petition for an election to increase the number of signatures and present a new petition at the meeting of the Common Council on June 20.

LADIES' CHRISTIAN WORK COMMITTEES APPOINTED.

At the meeting of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church yesterday afternoon the committees for the year were appointed as made by the executive committee on May 17. Owing to the increased amount of work being done it was thought advisable to appoint a corresponding secretary and Mrs. Frank P. Storr was nominated for the position and confirmed. A committee was also appointed to confer with the consistory, of the church regarding the improvements to be made.

The following are the chairmen of the various committees: Devotional, Mrs. George W. Cole; missionary, Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr.; reception, Mrs. Eliza Parse; finance, Mrs. C. E. Van Winkle; visiting, Mrs. William A. Woodruff; sewing, Mrs. Anna F. Gillem; flower, Mrs. Jacob Beckman; temperance, Mrs. Parse; poor, Mrs. Van Winkle.

Borough Health Conditions.

At a meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Health last night it was reported that general health conditions in the borough are considered good. Last month there were seven cases of contagious diseases: 3 scarlet fever, 2 typhoid fever, 1 diphtheria, 1 measles.

Accident at Safe Works.

Lawrence Bray, a workman at the Manganese Safe Works, this morning mashed his hand badly by getting it caught in an emery wheel. The injury is very painful but not of a serious nature. Mr. Bray was attended by Dr. A. H. Dundon.

Monroe Avenue Festival.

The annual strawberry and ice cream festival of the Epworth League of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church will be held on Thursday night, June 9. A musical program will be furnished in conjunction with the festival.

TWENTY-SIX MORE FIRE HYDRANTS ARE ORDERED

In accordance with the action at the recent meeting of the Councilmanic fire committee as to installing a number of new fire hydrants, Councilman D. W. Taylor, at the June meeting of the Common Council, last night, offered a resolution, which was adopted, calling for this improvement. In all twenty-six hydrants were ordered installed in various parts of the city, as follows:

Two-ways-corner East Seventh street and Leland avenue; Leland avenue, opposite Loraine avenue; corner Berkeley avenue and Ravine road; corner Johnston avenue and George street; corner Netherwood avenue and George street; on Columbia avenue, 500 feet east of Leland avenue; corner Leland avenue and East Second street; on Orchard place between Liberty and New streets; corner John and Essex streets; on Arlington avenue and West Third street; on Randolph road and Woodland avenue; on Woodland avenue, 700 feet north of Randolph road; corner Thornton and Kensington avenues; on Prospect and Kensington avenues; on Berckman and East Sixth streets; on Scott place and East Sixth street; on Clinton avenue and West Third streets; on Evona avenue and West Third streets; on Frace avenue and West Third streets; on Leslie avenue and South Second streets; on Manson place and West Third street.

DUNELLEN'S AGITATION FOR A PUBLIC LIBRARY

An illustration of Dunellen's progressiveness, the people of that borough say, is displayed in the formation of an association for the purpose of establishing a free public library. Prominent residents are taking an interest in the project and have expressed a willingness to lend their hearty support to the undertaking. Likewise, the Board of Trade at its last meeting passed a resolution endorsing the movement and promising its earnest co-operation. The association has been formed for the purpose of arousing public interest in the library idea.

"There is no doubt," said J. B. Bogardus today, "that next to the church and the school, the public library is of paramount importance in advancing the moral and intellectual growth of a community. Dunellen is growing rapidly and the need of a good library and reading room is becoming more apparent each year. That the people realize this and intend to correct the deficiency is evidenced by the enthusiasm with which the association's plan has been received. This latest undertaking of the boroughites is a further example of the progressiveness which is placing Dunellen in the foremost ranks of the smaller New Jersey towns."

COLUCCI GETS CONTRACT FOR A SEWER EXTENSION

Under a suspension of rules, the Common Council at its June meeting, last night, received bids for the construction of sanitary sewers in East Front stret, from Berckman street to Leland avenue and in Central street from Seventh street to Woodland avenue. In all ten bids were received, and Alfonso Colucci, of this city, was low man, his bid being $3,279. The other bids in their order were as follows:

Charles A. Peterson, Plainfield, $3,554; Jersey Paving Corporation, Newark, $3,621; T. Foster Callahan, Elizabeth, $3,728; Joseph Wade, Elizabeth, $3,755; Garafano & Mezzino, Summit, $3,783; Louis Jaques, Elizabeth, 3$,805; Eveline Brothers, Waterford, N. Y., $4,016; J. C. Schrade, Williamsport, Pa., $4,395; J. G. Montgomery & Co., Jersey City, $4,662. The contract will probably be awarded at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council to be held on June 20.

Public hearings were granted on the above ordinance, as well as on one to issue $30,000 worth of street improvement bonds, but no one was present to speak for or against the adoption of them. Mr. Gloak also secured permission to withdraw an ordinance providing for an extension of sewers and later he oered a new ordinance with some minor, but important changes including additional streets.

"Your wife says your youngest baby can talk."

"Yes," answered Mr. Bliggins, with a slight hesitation. "But he appears to take naturally to something like Volapuk or Esperanto.—Washington Evening Star.

COLORED PHYSICIANS HOLD MEETING HERE

Dr. James F. Lawson, of East Third street, entertained members of the North Jersey Medical Society at his home last evening, when a banquet was given following a short business meeting. During the session an interesting paper prepared by Dr. T. W. Robinson, a dentist of Jersey City, on "The Care of Children's Teeth" was read by him, followed by a discussion. It was decided to hold the next public meeting in the First Presbyterian church, Jersey City, Sunday, June 19.

After the business, Dr. and Mrs. Lawson entertained their guests at dinner, a fine menu being served, and it was concluded with a social time. The guests:

Dr. T. W. Robinson, Dr. P. F. Ghee, Dr. J. A. Stroud, of Jersey City; Dr. W. H. Washington, Dr. Charles Wolfe, of Newark; Dr. W. C. Burnett, of Montclair; Dr. J. D. Ballard, Dr. W. A. Alexander and Dr. Sullivan, of Orange; Dr. J. C. Anderson, of this city, and William Cooper, of Orange.

FIRST ROUND DRAWINGS FOR THE JUNE TROPHY

In the qualifying round for the June trophy, Class A, at the Plainfield Country Club, Messrs. Barrows and Lounsbery withdrew, which allows J. Whitney Baker with a score of 87, 7-80, and W. Lester Glenney, with a score of 86, 4-82, to qualify. The draw for the first round match play, June 11, Class A, is as follows:

E. T. Willson vs. R. G. Morse; W. Lester Glenney vs. C. C. Burke; J. E. Erickson vs. Arthur Murphy and J. Whitney Baker vs. H. R. Stockton. The draw for the first round match play, June 11, Class B, is as follows: E. J. Patterson vs. D. W. Taylor; George S. Clay vs. W. L. C. Glenney; H. F. Fox vs. H. S. Brown and A. W. Kleinecke vs. A. E. Barclay.

The handicap in match play is ¾ the difference between the handicaps, fractions of ½ and over counting as one. Strokes to be taken at holes as indicated on "table of odds," as posted on bulletin board. Match play rounds, by mutual agreement, may be played before the date set therefor. If, however, the match is not started by 3 p. m. on the day set, the player not appearing shall lose by default. Handicaps posted on day of play shall prevail.

Exercises and the Boy

By George L. Listman
Y. M. C. A. Physical Director.

Whatever aids or contributes to a boy's welfare in mind and body appeals at once to our interest. "The boy of today is the man of tomorrow." Let us not lose time in getting lost in the largeness of complexity of the question, but make a careful study of the boy and his welfare.

Nearly 700 Young Men's Christian Association report work for boys; out of this number about 600 have physical departments. The total membership is nearly 100,000, out of which 75,000 are in physical work. Besides the Young Men's Christian Association's there are numerous societies, clubs and associations, connected with churches, schools and other organizations, well organized doing work for boys between the ages of 10 and 17, and about 80 per cent. have physical work and athletics. The Public School Athletic League is increasing in membership each year, and is well founded in all the large cities, great things are being accomplished in the way of systematic exercise and outdoor athletics. The Sunday School Athletic League which started in Brooklyn a few years ago is reaching the young men of the Sunday schools as well as the boys. A great many of the larger cities and some of the smaller towns have well organized leagues, and we have yet to hear of a failure. The superintendents and officials of the schools are unanimous in their approval of the league.

George L. Listman,

With our public play grounds and public baths, our baseball and athletic fields, the first impression would naturally be that the youth of today is getting all the exercise necessary. Still thousands are left without any bodily exercise (systematic) or any part whatever in this vital work, which means so much to their future.

It is needless for us to expect a sickly boy to be a physically well man. The boy who stores up vitality now has it for future use. We can readily see, and say from past experience that random play will not do enough for a boy, but that he must have something else. Some boys need building up up before they are able to play a vigorous game. Play is apt to develop disproportionally unless varied. Play combined with exercise is most beneficial. Baseball is valued educationally as well as physically, we find here for example, the player develops control of temper, self reliance, perseverance, quickness and judgment, lungs are also benefitted as in most games and sports. The boy has a natural love for games, the whole child is worked upon—body, mind, hand, eye, heart, will and brain. Boys' classes must be made attractive, his love for games encouraged, combined with exercise.

Health does not depend upon the amount of muscles one possesses, but upon the balanced action of all the organs and functions of the body. Develop proportionally and simultaneously the right arm as well as the left, the stomach muscles as well as the biceps. After getting development, continue exercise, for as soon as worked is stopped, as soon as the muscles fail to be nourished, they will lose their vitality.

Thus we have our play grounds with expert supervision, our gymnasiums, athletic clubs, colleges with the best athletic and physical directors obtainable, to give advice and instruct the boy in the exercise and play that is beneficial.

G. Stanley Hall says in "Adolescence" some exercises are more beneficial and more interesting than others. It is because they touch and revive the deep basic emotions of the race. This we see see that play is not only doing things to be useful later, but is rehearsing racial history. Plays and games change only in their external forms, but the underlying neuro-muscular activities and also the psychic content of them is the same. Just as psychic states must be lived out up through the grades, so the physical activities must be played off each in its own time.

Dr. Luther H. Gulick divides play into three childish periods, separated by ages 3 and 7, and attempts to characterize the plays of early adolescence from 12 to 17, and later adolescence from 17 to 23. He says children before 7 rarely play spontaneously, but often do so under the stimulus of older persons. From 7 to 12 games are almost exclusively individualistic and competitive.

Imitation is a good point in a boys favor, and when we get him imitating right principles, our worry for his welfare is lessened.

It has been suggested that a two-year compulsory training for boys between 14 and 19 years of age would serve to lay a foundation, on which he could continue to build. If this were true, it would have untold value.

A boy must be studied. Gymnastic and athletics for men, women and girls are a separte field. On account of the growth and physical changes going on in a boys' life between 13 and 17 years of age great care must be taken. We might classify the years of the boy in relation to his exercise as follows:

5-10 years of age, play, light calisthenics to develop circulation and breathing.

10-16 years of age, calisthenics, light apparatus, games, with very little exertion.

15-20 years of age, apparatus work, calisthenics, games. The exercise can now be increased, the boy in most cases has his growth and development is reaching a climax.

Dr. Otz, in a paper on the effect of exercise on apparatus for boys over 14 years of age, has the following to say: "The results are as follows: Increase of power of the muscles involved, stimulation of nutrition and change of tissue, and all around command of the musculative, for mastering definitely prescribed examples of movements, makes a high co-ordinative power, and lung, heart and circulation experience a moderate increase of action." We draw from the above that after exercise becomes more polished, muscles obey with rapidity which were slow and awkward. In specialists continued exercise of the same kind on the same kind of apparatus sometimes causes deformity, this is the main reason for advising varied games and apparatus work.

Temporary disturbances in the rhymthical breathing only occur during acts of exertion. This fact needs special attention, since such disturbances should and can be avoided, especially in weak and awkward children.

In backward children, where there is a stunted growth of body, clumsy gait, defective speech, deafness (defects of sight and speech more numerous in backward children) dull features, general indolence, no energy, lack of self control, they stand in need of physical training, and exercise in gymnastics and athletics. The effects are not limited to bodily gains, but he arouses all the defects mentioned above, brings himself face to face with his own incompetency and comparison with others.

The result of this is many fold—ambition and energy is aroused, awkwardness is eliminated, confidence in himself is gained, his contact with others gives him proper appreciation of their merits, and a spirit of friendship is awakened.

Some years ago an experiment was tried in the Elmira Reformatory in New York, under the direction of one of the instructors, which gives us the most convincing evidence. Some of the most obtuse dullards that could be found in the Reformatory were selected, and put through a thorough course of physical training for one year. This class began at once to improve mentally as well as physically. All made such successful progress in their studies as to warrant promotion from the lowest into the highest grades, and most of them maintained their improved mental standing after the period of special training had elapsed.

In any of the large cities it will be found that the so-called poorer classes are not only poor in external evidence of wealth, but poorer in person. There is a difference of from four to five inches between the average stature, and fifteen to twenty pounds between the best and poorest natured classes. Can we not conclude from the above that those who have hearing and sight sharpened by systematic play and exercise, will also make use of these improved faculties in the school room and at their work.

Athletics affect a boy's respiration, action of heart, nutrition, change of tissue, nervous ssytem, muscle and bony structure. Different forms of exercise affect the various parts of the body in different degrees. Exercise produces two absolutely different effects, it increases the process of assimilation, by which the body gains new tissue, and it accelerates the process of dissimulation which leads to the destruction of certain raw materials.

All forms of running requires a good heart, long distance running also good lungs. By moderate training the boy will be prepared for any emergency. It is impossible to tell how great a value the previous physical training will be to the boy in after life.

It has been said: "That the best curative for nervousness is physical and manual training. There are thousands of children in our school who are unfitted by physical weakness of muscles and brains to give their best attention to educational work. They are driven by the teachers to cover the ground, to go through the books, to be promoted and finish the course, and by the time they finish the school they are physically unable and incapable of doing any good in this world." In looking over the great men of the world we notice their sound minds and vigorous bodies—power built up while boys which served them through manhood.

A great many children carry one shoulder high, get round shoulders, and other curvatures, from improper posture in school and at home, from different conditions of light and heat, sun shining on them, poor seats, etc. It is up to the parents to see that examinations are made so all defects can be corrected as far as possible. A large per cent of curvatures are found by accident when examined by a physician for some other ailment, or by the examiner when he enters some association. Often times this is found out too late and can not be corrected, if on the other hand the parents will do their duty toward their children this can not happen. Cleanliness, clothing, sleep, food and social life, are all of the utmost importance and should be a careful study of each home.

A boy often becomes deformed by working at one employment. Proportion is lost. The open air is essential. He needs experience of heat and cold. "Life is not all sunshine, neither is it all storm." We should be able to enjoy the one and withstand the other."

A boys greatest height is generally obtained at the age of 15, his greatest weight at 16, his greatest girth at 16, and greatest strength at 16, greatest lung capacity at 18. These figures were taken from a test made in Boston out of 500 boys taking exercise.

Gymnastics aid a boy in height, strength, weight and girth, while athletics develop the lungs. As has been said a boys' field is very important and needs competent men during these years of growth, as advisors.

Stress should be laid on posture and hygienic drills, not on long complicated and drudgery work.

Each boy needs exercise as much as he needs food. Every artery should be filled with fresh blood, every muscle educated, every nerve invigorated by proper movements. It may never be known scientifically what an important and tremendous influence the body and all its organs exert upon the brain, and consequently upon the developmont of the intellect.

In other countries they are finding out the need of the physical boy, and such countries as Sweden, and Germany need no introduction for what they have contributed towards giving ample room and study for their young manhood. Russia is also going ahead through the efforts of the Young Men's Christian Association. In Japan outdoor drills and exercises are required from children between the ages of 6 and 12. In Portugal they recognize the need of physical training, and use their spacious school yards for the work.

The boy who follows up the muscular exercises, and develops his play instinct, will so develop the fine sense of attention and expression, observation and judgment, that he will be able to stand out head and shoulders above his fellow man, not only in physic but in al around intellect and good character, as well as muscular manhood.

54-40 OR Fight

By Emerson Hough

Author of The Mississippi Bubble

(Copyright, 1909, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

There appeared at the crack of the door the wrinkled visage of the old serving woman, Threlka. I knew that she would be there in precisely this way, because there was every reason in the world why it should not have been. She paused, scanning me closely, then quickly opened the door and allowed me to step inside, vanishing as was her wont. I heard another step in the half-hidden hallway beyond, but this was not the step which I awaited; it was that of a man, slow, feeble, hesitating. I started forward as a face appeared at the parted curtains. A glad cry welcomed me in turn. A tall, bent form approached me, and an arm was thrown about my shoulder. It was my whilom friend, our ancient scientist, Van Rittenhofen! I did not pause to ask how he happened to be there. It was quite natural, since it was wholly impossible. I made no wonder at the Chinese dog Chow, or the little Indian maid, who both came, stared, and silently vanished. Seeing these, I knew that their strange protector must also have won through safe.

"Ach Gott! Gesegneter Gott! I see you again, my friend!" Thus the old doctor.

"But tell me," I interrupted, "where is the mistress of this house, the Baroness von Ritz?"

He looked at me in his mild way. "You mean my daughter Helena?"

Now at last I smiled. His daughter! This at least was too incredible. He turned and reached behind him to a little table. He held up before my eyes my little blanket clasp of shell. Then I knew that this last and most impossible thing also was true, and that in some way these two had found each other! But why? What could he now mean?

"Listen now," he began, "and I shall tell you. I wass in the street one day. When I walk alone, I do not much notice. But now, as I walk, before my eyes on the street, I see what? This—this, the Tah Gook! At first, I see nothing but it. Then I look up. Before me iss a woman, young and beautiful. Ach! what should I do but take her in my arms!"

"It was she; it was—"

"My daughter! Yess, my daughter. It iss Helena! I haf not seen her for many years, long, cruel years. I suppose her dead. But now there we were, standing, looking in each other's eyes! We see there— Ach, Gott! what do we not see? Yet in spite of all, it wass Helena! But she shall tell you." He tottered from the room. I heard his footsteps pass down the hall. Then softly, almost silently, Helena von Ritz again stood before me. The light from a side window fell upon her face. Yes, it was she! Her face was thinner now, browner even than was its wont. Her hair was still faintly sunburned at its extremities by the western winds. Yet hers was still imperishable youth and beauty.

I held out my hands to her. "Ah," I cried, "you played me false! You ran away! By what miracle did you come through? I confess my defeat. You beat me by almost half a year."

"But now you have come," said she simply.

"Yes, to remind you that you have friends. You have been here in secret all the winter. Mr. Calhoun did not know you had come. Why did you not go to him?"

"I was waiting for you to come. Do you not remember our bargain? Each day I expected you. In some way, I scarce knew how, the weeks wore on."

"And now I find you both here—you and your father—where I would expect to find neither. Continually you violate all law of likelihood. But now, you have seen Elizabeth?"

"Yes, I have seen her," she said, still simply.

I could think of no word suited to that moment. I stood only looking at her. She would have spoken, but on the instant raised a hand as though to demand my silence. I heard a loud knock at the door, peremptory, commanding, as though the owner came.

"You must go into another room," said Helena von Ritz to me hurriedly.

"Who is it? Who is at the door?" I asked.

She looked at me calmly. "It is Sir Richard Pakenham," said she. "This is his usual hour. I will send him away. Go now—quick!"

I rapidly passed behind the screening curtains into the hall, even as I heard a heavy foot stumbling at the threshold and a somewhat husky voice offer some sort of salutation.

Try Nature's Way of Sprinkling Your Lawn.

There's dry weather coming—plenty of it, and now is the time to get ready to help mother nature keep your lawn nice. Buy a "Fountain" Lawn Sprinkler. You'll find it a good investment. The "Fountain" throws a beautiful mist-like spray that soaks right down in the grass roots without washing any of the soil away. It is made of solid sheet brass, handsomely finished and will last a lifetime. It is the handiest and most beautiful sprayer imaginable. Get a "Fountain" and be ready for the dry weather.

Several other nozzles and sprayers of excellent make on hand.
Gem Nozzle, adjustable straight stream and spray.
Straight Nozzle with rose attachment.
Revolving Lawn Sprays, both high and low styles.

Now about hose. We are selling three exceptionally strong makes this year at very reasonable prices. They are made to stand the highest water pressure..

Para Hose, finest quality, 21c per foot.
Double Diamond Hose, high quality, 16c per foot.
Wallabout Hose, very good quality, 12c per foot.

Use a hose reel and make your hose last longer. This is the simplest and handiest way for taking care of your hose.

A Tubular Steel Hose Reel, such as we have, is hard to equal. Then we have a very serviceable Wooden Hose Reel at a very moderate price.

Grass Trimmers and Edgers, lawn necessities you really ought to have.

FOWLER-MAC MURRAY AS VIEWED BY "OUR JIM"

"You can't lose Jim MacMurray," said James E. Martine, when asked for the expression of his views regarding the announcement of Representative Charles N. Fowler that he would enter the lists for the United States Senatorship. "Jim's a good fellow and also a slick boss, and, 'pon my word, it makes me laugh when I hear and read of his saying that 'the people, not the bosses, will name the next Congressman.' Why, bless your heart, where in creation was there ever a bigger and more domineering boss than Jim?"

When Mr. Martine was pressed for a direct and final answer to the question whether he would became a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress, Martine would only apswer that he sincerely favored the nomination of William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, for that honor.

"I see," continued the "farmer-orator" and former rival of Mr. Fowler for Congress, "that my good friend Fowler has announced that he is quite willing to accept an election to either the lower or the upper house of Congress, and I now await his announcement that he will get in the fight for the Governorship. Those are about the only three officers for which any man can aspire in this year of grace, but, darn it all, when did Charlie Fowler get into the 'holier than thou' class. My friend, ask him how much coin was spent to defeat Flanagan when he aspired to fill Charlie's shoes. I will let you in on the secret that it was about as much as the salary of the President of these United States. Ask Charlie Fowler how much money was put into Morris county at the eleventh hour to prevent my defeat of him when I was a candidate, and ask him from whence it came. Ask Charlie Fowler why it is that he never told his constituents what a bad man John Kean is poltitically until he woke up to the fact that he was being pitched off the band wagon. Why, bless your soul, I have been telling the people about John Kean and his gang of ringsters for years and years, and Charlie kept silent. That was because Charlie was occupying a seat as a stowaway on the political band wagon. He did the same thing—yell stop thief! when he found, after many years, that Joe Cannon was disgusted with him and that he would lose his empty job as chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency.

"I am not a political friend of John Kean, though I must confess that I admire him as an astute politician; but between evils I prefer John Kean with his unfortunate politics and boss domination to one whom I personally consider to be a political exploiter. Yes, Jim MacMurray is going to be Fowler's political manager; that's enough for me—don't it make you laugh? Honest, you know the game, what do you think of it?"

C. LAWRENCE LANDS LEAL'S CHAMPIONSHIPS

C. Lawrence was the winner of the annual athletic championship of Leal's School, which were conducted at the Plainfield Driving Park yesterday afternoon. In the various competitions Lawrence topped the list with 21 points to his credit. F. Driscoll annexed the first honors in the junior class with a total of 18 points.

In the sub-junior class W. Leggett finished first with 15 points. Gold, silver and bronze medals were awarded to winners in the senior events, and silver and bronze medals and ribbons to winners in the junior events.

New records were posted in the broad jump, shot put and half-mile run. The officials were as follows: Honorary referee, John Leal; referee, George L. Listman; judges, F. C. Harlow and W. H. Van Auken; timers, George C. M. Smith and A. W. Hauck; starter, R. J. Lawrence. The summaries follow:

EVERYONE wants to see the famous "Bluebird" Stock Racer and hear Lorimer tell how he won his great victories.

Everyone wants to see the "cut-out" Chassis of the Chalmers, all lighted up and run by a motor so every working part can be seen in actual motion.

Everyone wants to see a Chalmers "30" at $1500 and "Forty" at $2750—the greatest value in the world. The cars that win races just to show they can go; that win endurance tests just to prove their power; that climb hills as if they liked to, but are sold just as all-round cars for everyday use.

Come if you want to learn all about motor cars. Come and see the educational exhibit which caught the interest of 100,000 people in New York City.

Andrew C. Thompson Auto Co.,
413-421 Park Ave. 'PHONE 1510

The Chalmers educational exhibit, showing every detail of motor car construction, which is being shown in the salesroom of Andrew C. Thompson Auto Co., local dealers in Chalmers cars, is proving one of the biggest automobile attractions that ever hit this city. Large numbers of visitors have seen this exhibit each day, both automobile owners and those who hope some day to own a car, and the latter class includes pretty much everybody in the city, finding much of interest in the Chalmers "30" cut-out chassis and in the talks made by the experts in charge.

Wherever this educational exhibit has been shown, it has proved a sensation. When the exhibit was shown in the salesroom of the New York Chalmers dealer 1 172 people saw the exhibit in one day; and so large did the crowds become that it was necessary to install a second exhibit. The experiences of the company in Philadelphia and Chicago were on the same scale.

This exhibit is virtually a collegiate course in automobile construction and operation. It fully illustrates every part of the motor car and, with the interesting lectures which accompany the demonstrations, is a source of much valuable information to the expert as well as to the amateur driver.

THREATENED TO SHOOT UP FANWOOD; NOW IN JAIL.

Luigi Piccizelle, of Fanwood, was taken to the county jail at Elizabeth this morning by Policeman Logan for threatening to shoot and kill Mrs. Johanna Gunzman, of the same town. Logan heard at about 8 o'clock last night that Piccizelle was about ready to shoot up the town and he went looking for the Italian. He caught him on Park avenue standing in the middle of the street threatening everybody that went by.

Patrolman Logan nabbed the man and marched him to the lockup and when searched he was found to be carrying a .38 calibre revolver fully loaded and stuck in his shoe a stiletto with an eight-inch blade, sharp and pointed. Excitement ran high throughout the borough during the time the Italian was at large. No cause was assigned for the quarrel between him and Mrs. Gunzman.

MACHINISTS WON STRIKE

Ten Per Cent. Increase Granted and Men Go Back to Work.

450 EMPLOYES ARE BENEFITED.

All the Local Shops Running With Full Forces This Afternoon as Result of the Settlement.

The strike among the printing press machinists of this city which began last Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock, was settled today at noon when a satisfatcory adjustment of conditions was reached at a conference held at Trade Council Hall. The manufacturers offered to give their men a flat increase of ten per cent, with the alowance of $2.50 for expenses for the outside men.

The offer was accepted by Hugh V. Reilly, business agent of District No. 47, International Association of Machinists, on behalf of the men, and agreements to that effect were signed. The men agreed to return to work at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Those not going back at that time were privileged to return tomorrow morning.

David E. Titsworth, representing the Potter Press Works; David Scott, representing the Walter Scott Printing Press Works and P. W. Hall, of the Hall Printing Company, met the machinists this morning and discussed the situation, coming to the agreement as stated.

The fact that practically all of the men in Potter's shop went out yesterday afternoon, tended to hasten a settlement of the strike. Conditions at the Potter shop are different from those at the other local plants. There are a number of old men who have been employed there for a great many years, and while perhaps they are not entitled to the full rate, it would be unjust to turn them off. In these few instances the manufacturer will probably be exempt from raising the rate. In all 450 men were involved by the strike. They are now pleased with the satisfactory adjustment of conditions.

The only other shop in this district affected by the strike was that of Fuchs & Lang at Rutherford, and that firm granted the increase demanded last week.

J. J. Kepler, of Buffalo, fifth vice-president of the International Association of Machinists, is expected to arrive here this afternoon to approve of the settlement.

Vice-president J. J. Keppler reached Plainfield this afternoon and announced that an open meeting for machinists will be held Monday night at Eagle Hall, to which all machinists are invited. The object is to discuss organization affairs in general.

Strawberry Festival.

A strawberry and ice cream festival will be held on the lawn of the Temple Baptist church tomorrow afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. The following committee will be in charge: Mrs. John W. Musson, Edward Baker, Jr., Mrs. Charles Griffin, Miss Bessie Van Nest and Chris Utsinger. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the church building fund. In case of rain, the affair will be held on Friday.

John Hallahan Let Off.

John Hallahan, of Short Hills, became woozy in the borough yesterday, as a result of imbibing too much applejack. He was arrested by Lemuel Pope. In court this morning Recorder Dolliver suspended sentence on Hallanhan on the condition that he would never drink in the borough again.

Miss Sharkey to Wed.

Miss Agnes W. Sharkey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sharkey, of Whitewood avenue, and Walter S. Stewart, of Watchung avenue, the borough, will be married this evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, will officiate.

Funeral of Miss Ken.

The funeral of Miss Sarah Ken will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from the home of her sister, Mrs. T. J. Kaine, at Hampton Junction. Miss Ken had been at Muhlenberg Hospital two or three weeks, where she underwent an operation. She died on Monday.

Lecture on Astronomy.

Rev. Charles H. Schneegas, pastor of the German Reformed church will deliver an illustrated lecture on astronomy in the German Reformed church tomorrow night. Eighty pictures of planets will be shown. Admission to the lecture is free.

OFFER $50 REWARD FOR JOKERS' ARREST

The trustees of the Scotch Plains Baptist church have voted to offer a reward of fifty dollars for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons guilty of painting and placarding the fence surrounding the parsonage occupied by the pastor, Rev. Franklin T. Mathiews.

The fence was painted and decorated some time during last Friday night. A skull and cross bones with the word "Beware!" was painted on the fence. Pastor Mathiews recently gained the enmity of the sporting element of the village for his activity against playing Sunday ball games and it is the impression of some that some of the persons who are "sore" over the prohibition of Sunday games are responsible for the act. Others view it as a practical joke.

AN ITALIAN COMPOSER MAKES HIS HOME HERE

Signor Nino Fernando Tetamo, of Palermo, Italy, a nephew of Monsignor di Giovanni, Bishop and the Prelate of Pope Pius X, accompanied by his wife, has come to Plainfield to reside, stopping for the present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Story on Somerset street. Signor Tetamo is a distinguished son of Italy, being a composer, director and coach of opera and also a finished pianist.

Signor Tetamo has composed in all forms, operas, symphonies, concerts for grand orchestra and many compositions for piano and song. He has given concerts through Europe and America. In this country he was formerly teacher of repertoire in the Powell Musical Institute, New York. Afterward he was engaged as director at the Imperial Institute in Winnipeg. For the past year, he has been director of music in the State Normal College of Alabama, "Musical America," of New York, said of Signor Tetamo, "he is a composer of great ability, a distinguished director and coach of opera and a magnificent performer."

Signor Tetamo's grandfather was a famous portrait painter. Many of his works are now on exhibiiton in Boston, Washington and Philadelphia, where they have been greatly admired by art lovers. The signor is a personal warm friend of most of the celebrated grand opera stars who appear in New York and other large cities during the season.

NEW MARKET WANTS NO MORE DARKNESS

"Out of the Darkness Into the Light" is just now the popular song in the village of New Market. After being in semi-darkness for a period of six months, the citizens forgot their difference of last year, and voted for an appropriation of $575 which sum will provide the place with thirty-two electric lights.

The usual appropriation was $550 and last year the "insurgents" bucked the lighting commissioners and voted for an appropriation of $250. The commissioners did not reduce the number of lights but continued supplying light just the same until the appropriation ran out.

Then the village found itself in darkness and great was the wailing thereat. There was some relief afforded when a number of philanthropic citizens started a subscription in which sufficient funds were realized to provide about seven lights.

There was practically no opposition to the appropriation at yesterday's election. A total of 54 votes were cast and 44 were for $575. The remaining ten scattering votes were for amounts of $500 and over. The election was conducted in the barber shop adjoining Harkins Hotel and the polls remained open from 4 to 7 p. m.

In the election of three commissioners to serve one year there was a five-cornered competition. Those elected were Justice Clark T. Rogers, 54 votes; Abram G. Nelson, 32 votes; Harry J. Piddington, 31 votes. Township Clerk and Postmaster Charles S. Day received 20 votes and 19 ballots were cast for Herbert L. Pierce.

The election officers were: Former Assemblyman R. F. P. Von-Minden, judge; Charles Rogers, clerk, and Andrew R. Freeman, inspector.

DUNELLEN COMMENCEMENT FIXED FOR JUNE 16

Arrangements for the annual commencement exercises of the Dunellen public schools were made at a meeting of the Board of Education at that place last night. The exercises will be conducted at the Whittier School on Thursday night, June 16. Rev. Ernest O. Brown, will deliver the address to the graduates. The program will also include essays and recitations by the pupils and it will also be embellished by special musical features under the supervision of Professor Mullin, the musical instructor of the schools. The vacation period will extend from June 17 until September 6.

On the following night, Friday, June 17, the boys of the Whittier School will tender a reception to the teachers. A supper will be served and dancing will be a feature.

The teachers' committee announced the engagement of Miss Moser, of Pottersville, to succeed Miss Thompson, resigned, in the Fifth Grade. Bills amounting to $404 were ordered paid.

MEMBERSHIP INCREASE, THE HEPTASOPHS PLAN

A special meeting of Protective Conclave, No. 505, Improved Order Heptasophs, was held last night in the Coward building, the object being to discuss plans for the upbuilding of the order in this community. It is proposed to initiate a class of at least twenty-five young men by July 1. There were present last night Olin Bryan, of Philadelphia, general counsel of the order; O. Dodd Bryan, of Baltimore, of the organization department, and Supreme Committeeman J. V. E. Vanderhoef, of this city.

It was also decided to hold a large open-meeting June 22 at Exempt Firemen's hall and prominent speakers will be present to address the gathering. There will also be an entertainment of music and refreshments.

"AS YOU LIKE IT" AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

"As You Like It," which by many Shakespearean scholars is considered the best of all the bard's comedies, was presented on the Plainfield Country Club's lawn last night by the Coburn Players, of New York, and while the unusual cold weather interfered to some extent with the pleasure of the several hundred patrons, the affair was both a social and artistic success.

The play lends itself with especial facility to an open-air production, and the natural stage setting was ideal in every respect, in fact, the players themselves agreed that it was the best they had had in their experience. The spot selected was at the thirteenth hole, where beautiful trees, with a small body of water in the background, presented a picture of real beauty. The play was given continuously with only a minute or two intermission to denote the change in the acts. The audience was generous in its applause, and nothing was lacking to make the affair all that could be desired, except the weather.

Mrs. Coburn portrayed the part of "Rosalind," in a way that has won for her much praise, and Charles Douville Coburn appeared as "Orlando." Both gave an artistic and intelligent interpretation of their difficult parts. The rest of the cast was made up of finished players who entered into the spirit of the production in a delightful manner.

In the place of an orchestra the Coburn Players employed a quartet of men's voices which furnished the incidental music and their old Elizabethan songs coming from the shrubbery during the pauses in the play added largely to effectiveness of the production.

The performance was under the direction of Augustine Duncan, who was the clever court jester. He is a brother of Miss Isadore Duncan, whose dancing to the music of the Damrosch orchestra won her much praise last winter.

After the perfomance last night many of the patrons, members of the club and their friends, enjoyed the social features provided at the clubhouse.

PREACHING WON'T SAVE

Declares Rev. F. K. Mathiews in Sermon at First Baptist Church.

METHODS MUST EQUAL TIMES.

Next Convention to Be Held at Parmly Memorial Church Jersey City in June 1911.

The final session of the sixty-ninth annual convention of the East New Jersey Baptist association, held last night in the First Baptist church was weel attended some of the 461 delegates, however, having left for their homes before the meeting was called to order for devotional exercises by Rev. George W. Gardner, of New Market. Reports of the resolution committee and the auditors were read and the place for next year's meeting selected.

Two churches were considered by the committee having the next meeting in charge, but their choice, which was unanimously approved of by the delegates, was the Parmly Memorial church, of Jersey City. This church has only just been completed and will be dedicated on June 18 and a large delegation of Baptists from this city will attend the ceremonies. The minister selected to preach the sermon next year was Rev. Dr. T. J. Villiers, of Newark, whose alternate will be Rev. W. H. Banden, of Perth Amboy. The committee having the next convention in charge will consist of the officers of the association, the pastor of the entertaining church and Rev. Albert K. Morris.

The sermon delivered by Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, was a magnificent effort and made a visible impression on the assembled delegates. Mr. Mathiew's topic "The Permanent and Passing in Pentecost, same—ancietn, medieval and mod-Society," was handled with a consummate knowledge of the facts as they are known at the present day. He said in part: "We are living in a time when the church's place in society is not an academic one but a practical one. We are dealing with a real, not an imaginary state of affairs. The church should be the same—Ancient, medieval and Modern. Its purpose is to bring man into fellowship with Jesus Christ and its work to bring man into a knowledge of God.

"How about the reformer in the pulpit? How about all these other modern movements, the Emanuel or healing gospel, and all these other isms and ologies? It is the unique and manifest duty of the church to preach the Gospel. It is the tendency of today to magnify the 'passing' rather than the permanent as it was with the church at Corinth. The people protested when in the nineteenth century the ysaw the launching of the Salvation Army, the Y. M. C. A. and the Young People's movement, but they were new and in keeping with the advance of the times and conditions. New conditions demand new methods and a new message gives the old Gospel in a new way.

"By making man's spiritual life better and giving him a sense of the infinite and spiritual we can more readily get him to assimilate the wishes of God for the conduct of his life and bring him into the brotherhood of Jesus Christ. Religion is the foundation of all good impulses and to know that God is with us in the fight is going to make the fight stronger and bring greater results. For the new times there must be a new message containing something of the old. Preaching will never save the world! It is living that must do it. The consistent life. New educational methods must be considered and heard, but we must always have the old religious motive and we must bring men into vital relationship with the infinite."

Mr. Mathiews read some extracts from the newspapers and magazines of the country to emphasize his points. In all of them it was noticeable that the opinion was expressed that without the controlling influence of religion the whole social fabric of the country would vanish.

Rev. Giulio Begano, pastor of the First Italian Baptist church, of Newark, was received formally into the Baptist Society by Moderator Samuel J. Skevington, who congratulated the new minister on the work being accomplished by him and his church in Newark.

Interesting reports, together with able addresses and a discussion on the theme, "The Church," were the features of the afternoon session which began at 2 o'clock, following the devotional service conducted by Rev. Carter J. Greenwood, pastor of the Baptist church, Westfield. More

SPECIAL ELECTION IN BOROUGH ON TUESDAY

Boroughites are awakening to the fact that the special sewer election falls on next Tuesday, June 14. Judging by the drift of sentiment heard on the street the taxpayers will vote by a substantial majority to authorize the Council to have constructed a sewerage system not to exceed in cost $300,000.

Thus far there has appeared no opposition to the project and the members of the Sewer Commission, as well as the borough officials, entertain the belief that there is almost a united sentiment in favor of the improvement and that the Council will receive practically the unanimous authorization from the citizens to proceed with the matter.

The polls will be open from 6 o'clock in the morning until 7 o'clock at night and the polling places have been designated as follows by Borough Clerk Frederick A. Martin. First district, 39 Somerset street; Second district, 64 Somerset street; Third district, 185 Somerset street.

IF YOU OWN A DOG YOU'RE SOAKED $2.50

People who have dogs and have not renewed their licenses are very apt to hear from the police within a few days. Mayor Fisk is having a list prepared by his clerk of all those who have not obtained the license for their canines this year and as soon as this list is ready the police department will teem with activity. The penalty for not having a license for your dog, according to the ordinance, is $20 and the ordinance will be strictly enforced. Arrests are sure to follow the completion of the list. There are about 1,000 dogs who were licensed last year and so far less than 400 licenses have been renewed.

There is a general opposition it appears, to the fee, $2.50, exacted by the dog ordinance. It is claimed to be altogether out of reason.

BIG CROWD WILL HEAR CONGRESSMAN FOWLER

There is every indication that a capacity audience will be present at the graduating exercises of the Plainfield Business College at the Plainfield theatre Friday night, when Congressman Charles N. Fowlef will be the central figure of attraction. Mr. Fowler is today the chief Eastern opponent of Cannonism and his recent tirades in an open letter attacking other political leaders, including United States Senator John Kean, has also made him an important object in political discussions.

Former Mayor William L. Saunders, of the borough, will preside and introduce the speakers. Mayor Charles J. Fisk will extend a welcome to Mr. Fowler on behalf of the city, and Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough, will speak on behalf of that municipality. Congressman Fowler's subject will be "Your First and Highest Duty." The addresses of the evening, in addition to the one by Congressman Fowler, will be delivered by Mr. Saunders, on "Qualities that Bring Success in Business;" Prof. H. C. Krebs on "A Few Words on Education."

There will also be a musical program. Miss Grace Carroll, contralto soloist to the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will sing. M. A. Korff will have charge of an orchestra of twelve pieces. Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire will make the opening prayer.

The audience will be representative of this section of the State, as there will be people present from the various towns and cities along the line of the New Jersey Central, while the Common Council and Borough Council will occupy private boxes. The graduating class held a short rehearsal at the theatre last night.

Child Horsewhipped.

Louis B. Goldstein, of Cedar street, appeared in the borough court this morning and alleged that his ten-year-old daughter, Lena had been horsewhipped by Catharine Reagan, a daughter of Patrick Reagan, who resides at Cedar street and Harrison avenue. Mr. Reagan has been cited to appear in court tomorrow.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF CHARLES F. ABBOTT

Private funeral services were held for Charles F. Abbott from the home of his daughter, Mrs. James R. Blake on Franklin place, yesterday noon, in charge of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Abbott was a trustee for fourteen years and an active member.

Among those attending the service were members of the Board of Education, with which Mr. Abbott was identified for fourteen years; also business associates from New York. The interment was in Hillside cemetery. The pall-bearers were Leander N. Lovell and H. M. Maxson, representing the Board of Education; Dr. G. W. Endicott, of this city; DeH. Warner, L. T. Warner and R. H. Macdonald, of New York city, who were business associates.

DR. PROBASCO'S WEDDING WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

Miss Olive Koons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tilghman B. Koons, of Sanford avenue, and Dr. Norman Hayes Probasco, son of the late Dr. John B. Probasco, who was for many years president of the local Board of Education, were married last evening, the ceremony being largely attended.

The ceremony took place in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church which was tastefully decorated for the occasion, in a scheme of yellow and white, which was carried out in roses, marguerites, daisies and greens. Shortly after 7:30 o'clock the bridal party marched down the left aisle to the strains of the Mendelssohn wedding march played by Howard Case. At the altar the bride met the bridegroom and the nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. John Sheridan Zelie. The bridal party then left the church by the right aisle to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march.

At the home of the bride a reception was held immediately after the ceremony. The bridal party and Mrs. Francis Tustin, of Philadelphia, an aunt of the bridegroom, received. The decorations at the house corresponded to those at the church in scheme. The reception room and dining room in yellow and the library in green.

After a two weeks' honeymoon Dr. and Mrs. Probasco will reside in this city. Dr. Probasco is a graduate of Columbia University and is a member of the New York Athletic Club.

COUNTY ENDEAVORERS PLAN FOR BOYS' CAMP

A boys' camp is to be established in Union county this year, under the auspices of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union. Those to be entertained during the months of July and August at the camp will be boys from 12 to 15 years of age, from New York city and Union county.

The union will be assisted in its effort by the advice and co-operation of Miss Sara Curry, matron of the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, who will recommend the boys who shall visit the camp. Definite action was taken in regard to the project at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the union, held last evening in the Roselle Baptist church.

Recommendations were presented Monday night to the executive body by Fred C. Lounsberry, of this city, chairman of Fresh Air Department of the union, and adopted.

FIRE CAPTAIN RESTORES LOST CHILD BY 'PHONE.

Willie Hanrahan, the three-year-old son of Bryant Hanrahan of West Sixth street, gave exercise to his nomadic spirit this morning and wandered away from home. The lad disappeared shortly after the breakfast hour and he was consequently not missed by his mother. When the child tried to return home a little later he found himself completely at sea in the labyrinth of west end thoroughfares. His tears attracted the attention of Captain George Mehl of the West End Hose Company, who took the child in charge. After a short while Captain Mehl located the parents by telephone, and took the child home.

Mrs. P. I. Minton, of 119 East Fifth street, is spending two weeks at Long Branch.

YOUNG THIEVES CONFESS

Many Mysterious Robberies Cleared Up by Admissions Made to Chief Kiely.

ROWLEY SUFFERED THRICE.

Other Places Not Mentioned in Confession Probably Traceable to the Trio—Held in $500 Bonds.

There are several business men in this city who ought to be thankful that Clarence Cheshire, Raymond Latourette and George Francis are in the hands of the police for through confessions obtained yesterday from the trio the stores of Harry Dreier, James Blair and the City Market were marked as easy of access and soon would have fallen victims to their specialty of breaking in and stealing. All three were held in $500 bonds for the action of the October grand jury. The credit for the captures is due to Detective John Flynn and Patrolman Mot Vanderberg who had been working on the cases reported for the last six months. Following is a partial list of the depredations of the young men:

On February 24 and March 19 Cheshire and Latourette, according to their confessions, broke into Rowley's drug store on West Front street and on the first occasion secured ten dollars in money and a box of cigars worth three dollars. On the last date they got only fifty cents and a dollar's worth of postage stamps But Mr. Rowley claims that on March 15 the store was robbed of thirteen dollars in cash. This is denied by both boys.

On April 27 Thomas Timbo reported a loss of money stolen after his restaurant had been locked for the night. Here again the confession shows how adroit the thieves were. They waited in the shadow of the empty store at the corner of North avenue and Park. After the patrolman on the beat had started away on his regular rounds the boys sneaked across the street, wrenched the screen door loose, pried open the inner door and rifled the cash register which contained $18.

The complaint of the Eastern Bottling Co. was not for so great an amount. Mr. Johnston declared that on the night of February 10 Cheshire and Francis broke open the back door of the establishment and stole two bottles of whisky and two bottles of beer. One of the bottles of booze was taken over to North Plainfield to a place where a dance was being held and there they drank the stuff.

Miss Minnie Stephenson, who keeps an art store at 241 West Front street, in her complaint alleges that on the night of February 12 Latourette and Cheshire broke into her store and stole twelve fountain pens and other things altogether valued at $35. This was admitted to be true by the two boys. N. Moledezky and Tryfon Zacharopoulos also complained of losses sustained by the thefts of the boys. It is thought that the total will amount to considerably more than $100. Several peanut vending machines were broken open and the pennies stolen from them, the machines being rendered useless.

Bail was furnished this morning for Cheshire and Francis, relatives of both accused boys signing the bonds. W. V. Nash, Jr., appeared for Cheshire and William G. DeMeza appeared for Francis. Latourette was not represented by counsel.

From other confessions made by the boys it would seem that Francis was the brains of the party and planned the robberies. He furnished Cheshire with a bunch of keys with which locks might be easily opened, but force was always resorted to when the keys failed to work.

Fifteen years ago a similar gang got to work in this city, but they were finally rounded up and altogether there were nine of them trying to make a dishonest living.

Run Into by an Auto.

Miss Mary Chandler, of 37 Orchard stret, Elizabeth, was run down by an automobile owned by George E. Hall, of Belvidere avenue, while she was crossing Morris avenue, Elizabeth, Saturday afternoon, receiving bruises on her right hip and having the ligaments of her right leg torn. She says she did not hear the automobile horn and did not know the machine was approaching. Mrs. Hall, who was in the machine, ordered her chauffeur to stop and she gave Miss Chandler her card.

NONSUIT IN X-RAY CASE.

Trenton, June 8.—Upon the ground that questions involved in the suit of Mrs. Laura Page against Professors Henry P. Adams and Howard McClenahan, of Princeton University, to recover $20,000 for the death of her husband, alleged to have been due to X-ray burns, are ones of law and not of fact, Judge Frank T. Lloyd yesterday granted a nonsuit to the defendants in the Mercer Supreme Court. The jury was forthwith discharged. The redress of the plaintiff is now an action in the Supreme Court to settle the law questions in the action.

Motion for a nonsuit was made by Frank S. Katzenbach, counsel for defendants. It was opposed by John H. Backes and John H. Kafes, counsel for Mrs. Page.

Judge Lloyd heard the argument for nonsuit in his conference-room.

New Magazine.

One of the most notable advances in the history of American publications is to be taken on June 12. On that date the Philadelphia North American will begin the publication of a genuine, high-class monthly magazine to be issued without cost to its patrons. The contents will be mainly fiction—stories of love and adventure, pathos, humor, character, action and sentiment. They will be written by authors famous in the magazine field. So great is the demand for The North American of Sunday, June 12, that thousands are placing special orders with newsdealers to make certain of receiving the first number of the new magazine.

These are from our own regular stock.

You cannot match these suits in any Newark store today at anything like the price we are going to sell them for tomorrow. They are the product of the best makers in America; the materials are excellent, the tailoring faultless, the styles pleasing alike to the conservative and ultra-fashionable dressers; they are really high grade $22 to $25 suits, and you can secure a prize in any one of them if you will come tomorrow, Friday and Saturday and buy one at $17.00

CHEAPER SUITS.

These suits would be conservatively priced at $7.50 to $15, but we bought them for about 40 per cent. less than value.

There are suits of worsted, cheviot, cassimere and velour, in the season's best shades. There are styles for young men and older ones; sizes from 31 to 44; they are well made, perfect up-to-date clothes, and surely will be eagerly grasped at the prices we place upon the two lots, $4.50 and $8.50.

NAPOLEON LAJOIE HITTING BALL HARD

Napoleon Lajoie, of Cleveland, continues to tickle the Reach ball in the American League with a regularity that gives him a strangle hold on first place, his average to date being .424. Of the twelve players who are hitting the ball .300 or better, Detroit has four, New York, Philadelphia and Boston two apiece, and Cleveland and Chicago one each. Ty Cobb is second among the regulars with .373, and Tris Speaker third with .341. Frank Laporte, of New York, advanced into the .300 class last week, his average at present being .311 for 32 games.

In the National League Sherwood Magee, of Philadelphia, still leads the regulars in batting with an average of .374. Outfielder Wheat, of Brooklyn, has made the greatest number of hits, 54; Outfielder Bescher, of Cincinnati, has a long lead in base running with 20 stolen bases, and his team mate, Egan, is the leading sacrifice hitter.

Following are the records of players batting .250 or better for ten games of more:

Hallet & Davis Player Piano on board
U. S. S. Michigan U. S. S. South Carolina

Withstands the terrible strain of the firing of the big guns. Marvelous durability of so finely constructed an instrument the wonder of all.

One would naturally think when a 12-inch gun is fired directly over a player-piano it would at least displace some of the delicate mechanism, but the officers of these battleships have written that they have found no such trouble with their Hallet & Davis Player-Piano.

A jar that will snap a 2-inch steel bolt like a match had no effect on this Player-Piano. Fears were entertained after the firing, but a quick test proved that the player-piano responded to the finest shading of accent and the purest quality of tone just the same as before the firing.

No severer test could be devised. Take also into consideration that the salt air alone will spoil an ordinary player-piano in a short time, and you will realize what a truly wonderful player-piano the Hallet & Davis really is.

The player pianos on these battleships were chosen from our regular stock. Not a piece of reinforcement went into them. Since the remarkable demonstration several of the officers have purchased these instruments for their own homes.

FREE LIBRARY OF MUSIC.
The question of expense of music has been solved here. Hallet & Davis customers are under no added expense for their music. We allow each purchaser to exchange rolls in our library at any time without charge.

REASON FOR WONDERFUL SHOWING.
The chief charm, the basic superiority of the mechanical construction of the Hallet & Davis Player-Piano, lies in its simplicity. No unnecessary parts to cause trouble. For the rest, the quality of the tone, the construction of the regular piano, is Hallet & Davis throughout. Three levers and two buttons absolutely control any accent or tempo required. Will repeat perfectly on the softest tones. This instrument has several patented devices which you must get to secure satisfaction. No amount of money can buy a better player-piano.

The Price of the Hallet & Davis 88-Note Player-Piano is $750
Other Player Pianos at $385 to $585. Very Easy Terms Allowed.

Come In and Try a Little Musicale. Those who are not familiar with the delight of a player-piano are requested to drop in any time and try their favorite selections.

We will make you an attractive offer for your upright piano. If you cannot call, write for interesting literature.

The Free Sewing Machine

You have read a great deal about the "Free" sewing machine lately in the magazines. You will doubtless read a great deal more about this wonderful machine in the future, and you will in all probability own one yourself before very long. The sooner you purchase a "Free" the better you will be off. We have been handling this new machine now for some time, and every one that we have sold is a permanent advertisement not only for the machine itself, but for the Bamberger store as well. The "Free" is the machine of today—tomorrow and the future. It is the simplest yet most scientifically constructed sewing machine ever made. A representative of the maker will be with us tomorrow and we'd like to have you drop in and hear what he has to say. $2.00 down and $1.00 a week will buy a "Free"—and the $2.00 applies directly to the cost of the machine, too.

LOCAL BOWLERS TO HOLD A BANQUET

The first annual dinner of the Plainfield Bowling Club will be held at Henry Windham's Waldorf Hotel tomorrow night. The Plainfield team was the winner of the thirtieth prize in the recent N. B. A. tourney conducted at Baltimore and the dinner is to celebrate the success attained by the local pin knigats against the cracks of the country in this competition.

The tenpin sport has taken a big boom in this city during the past two years, or since Johnny Campbell became proprietor of the East Second street "drives." By competing in the national tourneys at Madison Square Garden last year and at Baltimore in April, Plainfield has placed itself on the bowling map.

According to Johnny "Strike" Campbell, who is arranging the affair, and Proprietor Windham, it will be one of the best repasts ever served at that popular eating establishment. There'll be singing, plenty of music, and a big time for the pin knights and their guests.

P. H. S. AND N. P. H. S BATTLE ON DIAMOND.

Plainfield High and North Plainfield High are engaged in their second game of the annual series on Hyde Field this afternoon.

Both nines are confident of a victory. In the first games, which was played several weeks ago on Crescent Oval, the P. H. S. conquered their rivals by a score of 6 to 3. A dispute marred this contest to a certain extent.

than five hundred delegates and friends were present throughout the session and the discussions were spirited.

Rev. J. W. Musson, secretary, gave a concise report of the Ministerial Conference held here a few weeks ago, which was followed with a report of the Permanent Council by Rev. E. O. Wilson, of Newark. He stated that during the past year three candidates for the ministry were passed upon, Rev. Fred Allen, now of Metuchen; Rev. Charles H. Fountain, who was ordained in September and Rev. John Searles, of Stelton, who was ordained in November. It was further reported that the council met yesterday and reorganized by re-electing Rev. Dr. T. B. Thames, of Elizabeth, president, and Rev. E. O. Wilson, secretary and treasurer. There is a balance of $3.95 in the treasury.

The report on proposed changes in the constitution was made by Rev. Dr. T. B. Villiers, of the Peddie Memorial church, Newark. He said that it seemed to be the sense of the association that a two-days' session is not advisable, and upon his motion Rev. W. H. Bawden, of Perth Amboy; Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of this city, and Rev. S. J. Skevington, of Newark, were appointed a committee to confer with the program committee for next year with a view to making suggestions for an improvement of the program; also that a minimum price of twenty-five cents a meal be charged each person by the entertaining church at future meetings of the association.

The motion caused considerable discussion, as some of the ministers favored discharging the committee with thanks instead of waiting another year to accomplish anything. Dr. Villiers' motion prevailed. In the opinion of Dr. Villiers the association is badly in need of a vitalizing influence, and Rev. S. J. Arthur, of Jersey City, said that the association could be made infinitely more effective and of thrilling interest.

The moderator appointed Rev. Dr. T. B. Villiers chairman of the committee on the Board of State Missions. In his report for the missionary committee, Rev. S. J. Arthur brought up the question of helping the Greenville Height's Baptist church in the Jersey City section, of which Rev. M. T. Shelford is the pastor. This congregation is building a new house of worship and is now in need of $575, which was promised by the State convention. The question of raising this amount now when a movement is on foot to secure a fund of $100,000 with which to help weak churches in the State provoked much discussion.

Rev. Mr. Shelford appeared before the association and made a plain statement of fact concerning his work, with the result that the desired amount was raised through subscriptions on the part of the delegates. The fund now being raised by the Baptist laymen has reached $17,000.

Under the theme for consideration, "The Church," Rev. J. Madison Hare, of the Parmly Memorial Baptist church, Jersey City, made a strong address on the subject, "What is the Church?" He traced the scenes and incidents of the formation of the early church by the free Greek community, the idea being that the church was not an end, but a means to the Kingdom of God. The disciples went out and preached the gospel and were witnesses of the truth. In this way Christianity came as it was planned and became inspired and was made vital and strong by Jesus Christ.

"The Church," said Mr. Hare, "is the congregation made up of men and women actuated and filled with God's Holy Spirit."

"How Far Have We Departed from the New tTestament?" was the topic assigned to Rev. W. T. S. Lumbar, of Newark. He spoke first of the voice of the New Testament and then of the early writers. In his opinion the church has departed from the New Testament teachings, particularly regarding the Virgin Birth of Jesus, the ressurection of Christ and the necessity of regeneration. Some people, he said, were of the opinion that the question of the virgin birth of Christ makes but little difference.

The speaker spoke of the characteristics of the early Christians, that they had faith in certain things, especially the efficacy of Christ's message. Today some churches are satisfied if they can hold their own. "We don't expect our gospel to save the foreigners," said Mr. Lumbar, "so we send missionaries abroad to teach these people. If they happen to come here and live near us we move to some other section of the city or town. The trouble is not with the old conception, but with the new application.

"The early Christians were always helpful one to another when the occasion required. Today the church hires a minister to run the organization the same as John Wanamaker hires a man to run his busines and if he is not a success, it wants to get rid of him, where it should be the duty of the members to make the church a success. When we depart from the New Testament church we get away from God and lose our hold on man."

Mr. Lumbar's remarks were followed by a spirted discussion, which prepared the delegates for listening to the next address by Rev. Charles H. Fountain, of this city, on the topic, "Would Faithfulness to the New Testament Church Bring Similar Results Now?" He handled the topic in an able manner, giving a clear idea of the church, and what constitutes it, as well as the New Testament. He emphasized the importance of all Christians being faithful to the New Testament church. Until there was a risen Head there was no body, declared the speaker. The church began on the day of Pentecost and will continue until the marriage of the Lamb and Her Bride. He believed that generally there is a false conception of the early Christians.

An open discussion followed Mr. Fountain's remarks, after which some minor business matters were disposed of in closing the afternoon session.

The women of the First Baptist church prepared and served an elaborate dinner and supper for the 461 delegates. Mrs. Harold Serrell was the chairman of the general committee, assited by these women:

Mrs. George H. Batchelor, Mrs. F. S. Armstrong, Mrs. George White, Mrs. Sydney W. Dunning, Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins, Mrs. Dudley S. Miller, Mrs. John G. MacLaughlin, Mrs. J. L. Manning, Mrs. J. A. Powlison, Mrs. Frank W. Jones, Mrs. George Robins, Mrs. R. W. Barnes, Mrs. VanNest, Mrs. Elvain VanName, Mrs. Fred Dixon, Mrs. Morris Zook, Mrs. Frank T. Ostrom, Mrs. George H. Fountain, Mrs. C. P. Brewin, Mrs. Lewis Matlack, Mrs. E. D. Moffett, Miss Laura J. Runyon, Miss Helen Armstrong, Miss Ella Serrell. The waitresses were the Misses Carrie Coombs, Carrie Demler, Marguerite Dodge, Alice Drake, Amy Conant, Katherine Day, Minnie Serrell, Leora Henry, Emma Heidloff, Donna Campbell, Adelia French and Loraine Dunn.

MUSICALE GIVEN BY MISS DEWEY'S PUPILS

A musicale was presented by the pupils of Miss Carrie C. Dewey in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church yesterday afternoon before an appreciative audience. All of the selections on the program were cleverly rendered and the artists were liberally applauded for their efforts.

Those taking part in the recital were: Misses Helyn Newman, Helen Voorhees, Alice Joy, Jocelyn Nolting, Virginia Nolting, Hazel Coddington, Eveline Nelson, Katherine Brown, Elizabeth Brown, Mary Rushmore, Katherine Bingaman, Hannah Bingaman, Jane Brower, Edith Lowrie, Martha Camp and Duncan Mellor, Chester Alpaugh and Miss Dewey.

GEORGE EDGAR HYATT, AGED SIXTY-THREE, DEAD.

George Edgar Hyatt, aged sixty-three years, died at his home, 753 Carlton avenue, last night, following an illness of seven years which began with a stroke of paralysis. He was a native of New York city, where he lived until he removed here four years ago. He was a member for many years of the Twenty-Fourth Street M. E. church, New York, and the pastor, F. H. Carpenter, will officiate at the services to be held from the late home tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Surviving Mr. Hyatt is a son, William E. Hyatt and a daughter, Miss Nellie L. Hyatt, both of this city; also a brother, William Hyatt, who lives in Wisconsin.

Convention May Come Here.

Plainfield is being considered by the New Jersey Sunday-school Association as its place of meeting in 1911. This year the meeting will be held at Atlantic City in November. The matter will be discussed at a meeting of the Plainfield Ministers' Association to be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow afternoon. Rev. Samuel D. Price, of Camden, and Walter M. Irving, of Cranford, of the State association, have been invited to attend the meeting which may result in the invitation being extended.

Kirmess Profits $2,000.

The committee in charge of the recent May day pageant which was conducted in the city park for the benefit of city playgrounds will show a net profit of about $2,000.

HOOT MON, NAE SCOTCH, DINNA YE KEN THOT?

Glasgow, Scotland, June 8.—Shade of Bobby Burns! The temperance women of the world are about to hold a convention, and in Scotland, of all places. Hoot, mon, Dinna ye ken thot? Hundreds of the ladies are here, coming from the four corners of the earth and Milwaukee, Wis., and they are bonny lasses, even if they would deprive Scotia of its good old Scotch whisky, the best in the world, bar none, and distilled by men whose fathers and father's fathers have been engaged in the distilling business since Scotland went Presbyterian. Yea, Chief MacDuff will tell you of that.

The meeting, which will continue through all of this week, is the eighth annual convention of the World's Christian Temperance Union. The Countess of Carlisle is the president, and will preside, while Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, of Portland, Me., is vice-president-at-large. Fifty nations are represented among the cold water delegates. The United States branch of the W. C. T. U. has the largest membership, about 300,000, with Great Britain second, with 250,000 adherents of the cause.

Some of the women attending the Glasgow convention will go to Spain later for the congress on the suppression of the "white slave" traffic, which is to be held in Madrid in the fall. This congress was originally scheduled for May, but was postponed because of the absence from Madrid this spring of the Infanta Isabel of Spain, who is interested in the movement. Festivities in the Argentine Republic require the Infanta Isabel's presence in May, so the congress had to be put off.

Schneider in Trouble.

Isaac Schneider, a former Plainfield dry goods merchant, was sentenced to jail in Elizabeth this morning on a charge of wrongfully obtaining goods from the firm of Larkey Bros., of Newark. The firm obtained a judgment for $104.51 against Schneider and when an attempt was made to attach his real estate it was found that it was all mortgaged. Schneider was represented by Robert Newton Crane, of this city.

Seminary Performance.

The first presentation of three one-act plays by the pupils of the Seminary was given this morning in the Seminary auditorium. This presentation is simply a preliminary to the one to be given tomorrow evening, and was somewhat in the nature of a dress rehearsal. The parts were very creditably take as a whole.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Harman, of West Eighth street, have returned from an extended trip abroad.

GIRL'S LOVER BLAMED FOR HER DISAPPEARANCE.

Jersey City, June 8.—Behind the disappearance of Emma Golden, fifteen years old, of 69 Newark avenue, is much mystery. The police have been called upon by the girl's mother and also Thomas Ford, seventeen years old, of 314 Montgomery street, the girl's lover, who the police and the mother seem to think know the whereabouts of the missing one.

For a month Miss Golden and Ford have been keeping company.

Mrs. Golden, when her daughter did not return home, had Ford summoned before Judge Queen. The youth denied knowing her whereabouts, and said he had not seen her since Saturday night, when he walked down the street with her.

Judge Queen, when he heard the story, turned the young man over to Captain of Detectives James Larkins. That officer had Ford and Mrs. Golden brought to his office and he questioned the youth. The latter denied any knowledge of the missing girl's whereabouts. He was told, however, to produce her within twenty-four hours. He left the office promising to do all he could to find her.

Their Punishment Light.

All the young men, colored and white, who were implicated in charge of a serious nature several weeks ago in which three young colored girls were concerned, were sentenced in the Union county court today to pay a fine of $50 each and to be under probation for a period of two years.

St. Stephen's Social Club will hold a dance at St. Stephen's parish house tomorrow night. Refreshments will be served.

Rev. Dr. E. G. Read, of this city, will address the colored W. C. T. U. tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Calvary Baptist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Quass, of 1220 West Third street, are parents of a girl born to them yesterday morning.

OIL ON THE STREETS AS DUST PREVENTATIVE

The work of oiling the streets of this city has now assumed proportions sufficient to show the result and to have heard opinions on the work. In the majority of cases the work has received approval the only objection so far raised being that of the cyclists whose tires have suffered in some instances through coming in contact with the wet compound.

Three different compounds or preparations have been tried and as a matter of fact they are all good. At the present time it is impossible to say which of the three is the best. Later results will determine. Tarvia B., Standard, Texas Oil and the Saybolt compound are the three.

Park avenue has been covered with tarvia with a top dressing of stone which has made that thoroughfare one of the best streets in the city. East Front from Watchung to Leland avenue had a dressing of Dustoline as did all the side streets between those two streets. North avenue from Park to Watchung also received the dustoline treatment. The city wagons were employed on West Front street excepting between Mariners' place and Grant avenue. Standard and Texas Oil were used on the following streets: West Seventh, East Seventh, part of West Eighth, and Plainfield avenue. Tarvia was used on Sycamore avenue, Washington avenue, Grove street and Madison avenue to the borough line.

The Saybolt machine was used on part of West Eighth street, Crescent avenue, East and West Ninth streets, Franklin place and two blocks on Kensington avenue. Other streets treated were Webster place, Hillside avenue, Woodland avenue (a part), Belvidere avenue, Hobart avenue, (a part) Grant avenue, Central avenue, Sycamore street and Watchung avenue. With the Saybolt machine the cost to the city is 1 1-5 cents per square yard. There are about three square yards of material used to each running foot of street.

SOMERVILLE.

The funeral services of the late John A. Seltzer, who was killed suddenly on Saturday by falling down stairs, was held at his home on East High street Monday, and were conducted by Rev. William Stockton Cramner, pastor of the First Reformed church. Interment took place at Tremont, Pa.

Rev. Dr. D. B. Mulford, professor of English literature in Rutgers College at New Brunswick, preached on Sunday in the First Reformed church, the pastor, Dr. Cramner, being a delegate to the General Synod, which is in session at Asbury Park.

The thirteenth annual birthday party of the First Reformed church was held Monday evening in the chapel of the church under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. A pleasing program was rendered.

Rev. M. J. Church, pastor of the Methodist church, is spending the week in Carlisle, Pa., attending the commencement of Dickinson College.

Mrs. E. McClaren and Mrs. Clarence Duryea and daughter Helen, of Davenport street, are spending a week with relatives at Freehold.

Rev. Dr. B. F. Randolph, of Plainfield, the district superintendent, preached Sunday in the Methodist church on West High street.

Herman Schwed, of Plainfield, spent Sunday and Monday with his brother, Charles Schwed, on West High street.

Miss Selinda Rowland is visiting her sister, Mrs. Arthur Thurston, at Centerville.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The festival given in Washington hall last night for the benefit of the First Baptist church was a marked success. Numbers from New Market, Plainfield, Oak Tree and Potters enjoyed the affair.

The P. S. C. will begin the work of extending the gas mains from Plainfield to South Plainfield next week. The mains will come down Park avenue to Maple avenue and out Maple avenue to the village.

The final examinations for the pupils of the eighth, ninth and tenth grades in the township school have been concluded.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Randolph, of New Market, are visiting friends in the village.

Library Directors Meet.

The directors of the Plainfield Public Library held its monthly meeting last night. Reports were read from the treasurer and librarian. The former's report will be presented to the Common Council at its next meeting. Steps were taken toward the preparation and issuing of departmental catalogues. A committee on publicity was appointed to prepare and publish matters of interest from the librarian's report.

A. L. Case, of this city, has been elected State deputy of the State Association of the National Association of Stationery Engineers. The meeting was held on Sunday at Jersey City.

NOTICE.

Members of Court Plainfield, 1144, Independent Order of Foresters, are hereby notified that the next regular meeting of the Court will be held at our old lodge rooms, Knights of Columbus Hall, East Front street, Friday evening, June the 10th, at 8 o'clock. The Court will meet thereafter in above place on the second and last Fridays of each month. The entertainment committee has made special arrangements for a fine entertainment and an excellent spread for the meeting of June the 10th, and requests all members to be present. Edw. J. McCue, Chief Ranger; Henry Hansen, Recording Secretary. 6 8 2

CARD OF THANKS.

The family of Mrs. William Kline of West Third street, wish to extend their thanks to the neighbors and friends who so kindly aided them by their sympathies and friendly attentions during their sorrow and bereavement in the loss of their wife and mother.

Mr. Wm. Kline and Family.

JIMMY EMERY TO GET TRYOUT WITH NEWARK

Jimmy Emery, the local boy, who recently returned from the Reading Club, of the Tri-State League, is to get an opportunity to display his mettle as an infielder in the Eastern League. Jimmy will report to Manager Joe McGinnity, at Newark, on Monday afternoon, and disport in a uniform before the keen eyes of the "Iron Man."

McGinnity is in need of a couple of fast utility infielders and after trying out a couple of youngsters this week he will give the "Pride of Plainfield" a chance on Monday and Tuesday. A local scout recommended Emery for a trial at the Newark-Providence game in Newark yesterday.

"If you think Emery has the goods send him over Monday and Tuesday and I will look him over" was the command of the Newark manager, after all of Jimmy's good points were related.

ANNUAL RECEPTION OF COLORED ODD FELLOWS

The fourteenth annaul reception of Union Lodge, No. 4026, Grand United Order of Odd Fellows, will be held at Saengerbund Hall, Thursday night, June 23. There will be a musical entertainment from 8:30 to 10 o'clock, and M. V. P. John C. Asbury, of Philadelphia, editor and manager of the Odd Fellows' Journal, will make an address.

The first part of the evening will be devoted to a fine program to be presented by talent from this city and elsewhere. In addition to the address by Mr. Asbury, who will speak on the subject, "The G. U. O. of O. F. from 1843," Deputy Grand Master W. H. Corbin will speak on "The Order in the State;" Past Grand Master James H. Penn, on "The G. U. O. of O. F. and Its Principles." Dr. J. C. Anderson will be master of ceremonies.

All lodges and Household of Ruth have been invited. The grand march will start at 10:30 o'clock. The committees in charge of the affair are as follows:

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

William Bateman, forty-five years old, who tripped and fell downstairs at his home, 904 South Sixth street, Camden, Sunday, died in Cooper Hospital Monday. He had sustained a fracture of the skull.

About to pick up a puppy in the presence of its mother, at Newton avenue and Federal street, Camden, Monday, William Nicholson, seventeen years old, was bitten on the leg by the mother. The wound was cauterized at the Homeopathic Hospital.

Supposed to have been attacked with the rabies at the time of the circus parade in Camden Monday a young shepherd dog caused excitement in the vicinity of Broadway and Federal streets, scattering the crowds in all directions. The dog was killed by policemen's revolvers.

To avoid future trouble on possible technicalities, George W. McCauslin, postmaster at Narberth, Pa., who is accused of misusing $900, was taken from Camden to Trenton Monday by Deputy United States Marshal Schmitz so that the proper legal formalities of taking him from New Jersey to Pennsylvania might be complied with. He was arrested at Atlantic City.

Returning from a trip to the country, members of the family of Joseph Jennings, leader of the Third Regiment Band, found that their home, at 411 North Second street, Camden, had been ransacked Monday and silverware and jewelry to the value of about $150 carried away. Taking advantage of pretty vines hiding the view to the porch, the thieves entered through a front window.

The face of Dr. W. E. Jonah, of 1616 Pacific avenue, Atlantic City, was cut in a dozen places Monday night when his chauffeur drove the physician's touring car into a fire hydrant at Pacific and South Carolina avenue, to avoid striking a woman and two little girls who had been stalled by traffic. The driver had the alternative of striking the frightened group, crashing into the automobile of Dr. Floyd McCall or running upon the sidewalk. Dr. Jonah was showered with flying glass.

William Joshua Potter, an artist, who gave his address the Hotel Grand, 68 Montgomery street, Jersey City, but is said to be of Manhattan, was married to Helen Southwick Marshall, also an artist, of 52 South Broad street, Trenton, on Saturday last in the parlor of the Hotel Grand, Justice of the Peace Alfred Horender performing the ceremony. The bride said she was thirty-four years old. Potter gave his age as twenty-five. The witnesses were Mamie F. Whitehead and J. W. Little.

To relieve the congestion of traffic in lower Montgomery street, Jersey City, which is the principal thoroughfare of that city, the Street and Water Board has decided to take two feet from either sidewalk, from Greene to Henderson street, and to compel merchants to remove all obstructions from in front of their places of business. The Public Service Corporation will also be compelled to move back its poles, and the board will insist that those of a more ornamental variety be erected in their places.

Surrendered by his bondsman, P. Joseph Metzger, who was convicted in the Camden Criminal Court on a charge of obtaining $1,000 under false pretenses from Curt Werkmeister, of South Bethlehem, Pa., and sentenced to two years in jail, was committed Monday in Camden. Decision on an appeal to the Supreme Court is now pending. Christian Molt, of Gloucester City, the bondsman, gave no reason for his action in surrendering the man. Metzger was an official of the Germania Brewing and Distilling Company, of Egg Harbor, at the time he was accused of the fraud.

Open-air cells for lawbreakers have proved such a detriment to minor crime that Burlington may order the installation of an outside cell or two in the new city hall. Contractors are now remodeling the old hall and have removed the roof, leaving the steel-barred cages exposed to the elements, and offenders who have had the experience of spending a showery night in such confinement have been willing to sign any number of pledges to gain their freedom. Two tramps, who had the experience of sitting up all night under umbrellas loaned by the police, expressed their preference for the ball and chain.

Through the managers of the Palisades Amusement Park and the Automobile Club of Hudson county, orphans of the various homes throughout Hudson County will be given their annual automobile ride and outing next Saturday afternoon. Fifty automobiles will visit the homes and carry the children to the Palisades Amusement Park, where the little ones will be treated to rides in the aeroplane coaster, tree top sleighs, automobile frolic, Wild West show, etc. After enjoying everything for "fun that's new under the sun" in the "Twentieth Century Garden of Eden," the management will provide a course dinner for the little visitors.

The Purist.

"What's the cause of all that awful rumpus in the New York Evening Post sanctum?"

"A couple of misplaced adverbs are trying to do up a split infinitive."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Pakenham's Price.

The happiest women, like nations, have no history.—George Eliot.

The apartment into which I hurriedly stepped I found to be a long and narrow hall, heavily draped. A door or so made off on the right-hand side, and a closed door also appeared at the farther end; but none invited me to enter, and I did not care to intrude. This situation did not please me, because I must perforce hear all that went on in the rooms which I had just left. I heard the thick voice of a man, apparently none the better for wine.

"My dear," it began. "I—" Some gesture must have warned him.

"God bless my soul!" he began again. "Who is here, then? What is wrong?"

"My father is here to-day," I heard her clear voice answer, "and, as you suggest, it might perhaps be better—"

"God bless my soul!" he repeated. "But, my dear, then I must go! To-night, then! Where is that other key? It would never do, you know—"

"No, Sir Richard, it would never do. Go, then!" spoke in a low and icy voice, hers, yet not hers. "Hasten!" I heard her half whisper. "I think perhaps my father—"

But it was my own footsteps they heard. This was something to which I could not be party. Yet, rapidly as I walked, her visitor was before me. I caught sight only of his portly back, as the street door closed behind him. She stood, her back against the door, her hand spread out against the wall, as though to keep me from passing.

I paused and looked at her, held by the horror in her eyes. She made no concealment, offered no apologies, and showed no shame. I repeat that it was only horror and sadness mingled which I saw on her face.

"Madam," I began. And again, "madam!" and then I turned away.

"You see," she said, sighing.

"Yes, I fear I see; but I wish I did not. Can I not—may I not be mistaken?"

"No, it is true. There is no mistake."

"What have you done? Why, why?"

"Did you not always credit me with being the good friend of Mr. Pakenham years ago—did not all the city? Well, then I was not; but I am, now! I was England's agent only—until last night. Monsieur, you have come too soon, too late, too late. Ah, my God! my God! Last night I gave at last that consent. He comes now to claim, to exact, to take—possession—of me . . . Ah, my God!"

"I cannot, of course, understand you madam. What is it? Tell me!"

"For three years England's minister besought me to be his, not England's property. It was not true, what the town thought. It was not true in the case either of Yturrio. Intrigue—yes—I loved it. I intrigued with England and Mexico both, because it was in my nature; but no more than that. No matter what I once was in Europe, I was not here—not, as I said, until last night. Ah, monsieur! Ah, monsieur!" Now her hands were beating together.

"But why then? Why then? What do you mean?" I demanded.

"Because no other way sufficed. All this winter, here, alone, I have planned and thought about other means. Nothing would do. There was but the one way. Now you see why I did not go to Mr. Calhoun, why I kept my presence here a secret."

"But you saw Elizabeth?"

"Yes, long ago. My friend, you have won! You both have won, and I have lost. She loves you, and is worthy of you. You are worthy of each other, yes. I saw I had lost; and I told you I would give you her—and Oregon! Well, then, that last was—hard." She choked. "That was—hard to do." She almost sobbed. "But I have—paid! Heart and soul . . . and body . . . I have . . . paid! Now, he comes . . . for . . . the price!"

"But then—but then!" I expostulated. "What does this mean, that I see here? There was no need for this. Had you no friends among us? Why, though it means war, I myself to-night would choke that beast Pakenham with my own hands!"

"No, you will not."

"But did I not hear him say there was a key—his key—to-night?"

"Yes, England once owned that key. Now, he does. Yes, it is true. Since yesterday. Now, he comes . . ."

"But, madam—ah, how could you so disappoint my belief in you?"

"Because"—she smiled bitterly—"in all great causes there are sacrifices."

"But no cause could warrant this."

"I was judge of that," was her response. "I saw her—Elizabeth—that girl. Then I saw what the future years meant for me. I tell you, I vowed with her that night when I thought you two were wedded. I did more. I vowed myself to a new and wider world that night. Now, I have lost it. After all, seeing I could not now be a woman and be happy, I—monsieur—I pass on to others, after this, not that torture of life, but that torturing principle of which we so often spoke. Yes, I, even as I am; because of this—this act—this sacrifice—I can win you for her. And I can win that wider America which you have coveted; which I covet for you—which I covet with you!"

I could do no more than remain silent, and allow her to explain what was not in the least apparent to me. After a time she went on.

Keep the Family Together

IN the nature of things the young people marry and move away. They should not only have telephone service in their own homes, but should see to it that there are telephones in the homes of the parents. Remember that the old folks get lonesome. Think of the pleasure a daily conversation with their children will bring them. Don't let the hurry of life crowd from your mind the thoughts of those who have done so much for you.

Older people are less apt to install telephone service because it was not a convenience of their day and they are not eager to take up modern methods. Could you do a more unselfish act than install a telephone for the old folks so that intimate relations between your house and theirs may exist?

Remember, too, that every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance station.

Have you a Telephone?

KATIE BERKO PLACED ON TRIAL FOR MURDER.

New Brunswick, June 8.—The trial of Katie Berko on a charge of manslaughter in having killed her infant child at Perth Amboy, was resumed before Judge Lyon and a jury yesterday morning. The State completed its case Monday, the claim being that the young woman who was a maid at the Packer House at Perth Amboy threw the child into the furnace at the hotel.

Chauncey Ward, fireman at the hotel, told of finding the child's body in the furnace. Miss Julia Hidock, who slept with the defendant, also testified as to the girl's actions. Coroner Fred Garretson and Dr. Edgar Carroll were also called, the latter testifying that the baby was, in his opinion, alive when placed in the furnace, although on cross-examination it was brought out that there was an absence of blood in the heart, which might have been caused by death from hemorrhage.

HEALTH BOARD AGAINST LIME TO PURIFY WATER.

Trenton, June 8.—In support of the report of Health Officer Dr. Alton S. Fell, the local Board of Health Monday night adopted a resolution introduced by Commissioner Francis B. Lee, protesting against the use of the chloride of lime process or other germicide methods of purifying drinking water.

Dr. Fell referred to State Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, who decries the value of germicides, and declares the growth of Bright's disease may be traced to the practise. The decomposition of matter in water may develop powerful poisons that will enter the body. Dr. Fell said it had never been proven Deleware river water had caused typhoid, and while the lime treatment was cheap, it might be expensive in the end.

Mrs. James Brand, formerly of West Third street, has removed to Netuchen. For the past year she has been living at Dunellen.

Lee Lorimer, the well-known Chalmers driver, is one of the attractions in the exhibit of Andrew C. Thompson Auto Co. Lorimer was talking last night about his racing experiences, and some of the things people ask him about them.

"A lady approached me recently," said Lorimer, "and asked me if that Bluebird '30' was really a racing car. I told her it was. 'And is it just the same as all the other Chalmers '30's' she asked. I told her 'yes.' 'Well,' she said, 'maybe you are telling me the truth, but I never saw a regular Chalmers touring car go as fast as you say that car has been driven in races.'

"I was so astonished for a moment that I couldn't speak. When I finally discovered what she was driving at, I said to her, very probably you never have seen a Chalmers touring car go as fast as this car has been driven, but certainly you would not want us all to be arrested for breaking the speed laws, would you? She went away apparently convinced that I was poking fun at her. This is the attitude of most people who see the little 'Bluebird.' Unless they have actually seen the little car in a race they think that we must be fooling them when we say it is the same car as our regular stock model, except with a different body."

LATE MISSION WORKER HAD SOLD JERSEY HOME.

Westfield, June 8.—It was only a few months ago that Rev. Robert Craig, who died at Ottawa, Ontario, Monday, sold his home here and with his wife and daughter went to live with his uncle, John McKellar, at Ottawa.

Mr. Craig was a Canadian by birth. When his health failed in the East he went to Arizona and took a pastorate there. He improved so much in health, and was recognized as so valuable a worker, that he was engaged as synodical missionary by the Prsebyterian Board of Home Missions, with Arizona and New Mexico as his field.

After a few years he was brought to New York and made one of the associate secretaries of the home board, with especial charge of the school work. In connection with this he was also overseer of the educational work of the Woman's Board of Home Missions.

Some time ago he went to Alaska to visit the mission schools there. As told he suffered shipwreck, and his health was undermined by the shock and the expos.

Since his return he had been for a portion of the time at his home in Westfield and part at a sanitarium.

STATE A. O. H. WILL CONVENE IN PATTERSON.

The biennial State convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will be held in St. Joseph's School Hall, Paterson, Tuesday, August 30. The county organization is making extensive plans for entertaining the 1,500 delegates who are expected to attend. Dean William McNulty and Mayor McBride, of Paterson, the latter a member of the order, will make the principal addresses.

A meeting of the Passaic county association was held last night in Emerald hall when plans of entertainment were discussed. The headquarters of the State association will be in the Broadway Hotel, where the banquet in the evening will be served. The St. Joseph's School hall will be reserved for business sessions of the convention.

The convention will open with a solemn high mass in St. Joseph's church, Paterson, to which most of the priests of the county are expected to attend. The Ladies' Auxiliary will assist in entertaining the guests. The State convention entertainment committee is as follows: Richard McGinn, president; James Coyle, vice-president; Harry McDonough, recording secretary; Thomas Brady, treasurer; Robert McBride and James Coffey.

Philadelphia's Best Paper.

When a daily newspaper numbers among its readers tens of thousands who dwell in communities remote from the place of its publication there is prima facie evidence that narrow local interests play but a comparatively small part in the scheme of its existence. The strong following of "The Philadelphia Record" outside of Philadelphia, in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland, is a case in point. The out of town subscribers of "The Record" do not read it in preference to other city dailies solely to find out what is going on in Philadelphia. Their favor has been won and held by its special appeal to their likings and requirements in other directions.

BURSCHER REGISTERS A 250 SCORE.

Rolling scores of 443 and 430 Burscher and Schaub captured the odd game in the two-man tourney at Campbell's alleys last night and with their mark of 443 set a new high score for the tourney.

Kiely and Stout, who have the championship of the tourney won, were the victims. The scores:

Burscher	223	250	157
Schaub	220	180	182
	443	430	339
Stout	190	200	171
Kiely	182	173	211
	372	373	385
Burscher	193	196	156
Schaub	194	177	246
	387	373	402
Stout	184	160	204
Kiely	179	168	213

LOCAL ATHLETES IN STATE Y. M. C. A. MEET.

George Linke and F. B. Newell, two stars in the Y. M. C. A. squad of athletes, are entered in the annual State Y. M. C. A. meet which will be held at East Orange Oval on Saturday afternoon. Linke will compete in the 100 yard dash and 220 yard run and Newell will strive for honors in the high jump and pole vault. Physical Director George L. Listman is down on the program as one of the timers.

The entry list which closed yesterday contains the names of 150 athletes. The associations that will be represented in the meet are Plainfield, Orange, Newark, Paterson, Asbury Park, Elizabeth, Madison, Ridgewood, Red Bank and Montclair. Eleven events are carded for the program.

SOUTH PLAINFIELDS ARE AFTER GAMES.

The South Plainfield B. B. C. has several open dates for games with first class teams in this vicinity. Games can be ararnged from June 26 to July 4 inclusive, by addressing P. A. McDonough, manager, South Plainfield.

The "Southerners" are playing a gilt-edged brand of ball this season. For next Sunday the attraction will be the Ford Field Club. The latter nine bears an excellent reputation and a hard game is anticipated.

SINGER CO. TO CUT $30,000,000 MELON

The Singer Manufacturing Company will distribute a $30,000,000 stock dividend at the meeting of the stockholders called for June 16 in Elizabeth. This is one of the biggest "melon cuttings" that the country has known in a long time.

The stock of the Singer company was quoted Saturday, before announcement of the distribution, at $562 a share, which is not far behind Standard Oil, quoted Saturday at $623 a share. With the news of the distribution of $30,000,000 to stockholders the shares will likely surpass those of the Rockefeller trust.

The company has at the present time a surplus of more than $30,000,000, but the directors, while believing that the stockholders should share in the increased profits, desire to retain the surplus as working capital. Hence the stock divend. The par value of the Singer stock is $100.

The meeting of the stockholders June 16 will authorize an increase in the capital stock of the company from $30,000,000 to $60,000,000. From this increase the stock dividend of $30,000,000 will be declared.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

F. A. Holtzhausen will give a talk at Warren chapel at 8 o'clock tonight on "Martin Luther and His Life." The public is invited.

The regular monthly meeting and social of the Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will be held tomorrow night at the parish house. Final arrangements will be completed for the all-day fete that is being planned for Saturday, June 25.

EXPERIENCES IN ARMY

During His 12 Years Service, Mac Donald Had Some Exciting Times.

HAS SIXTEEN BULLET WOUNDS.

Because of Injuries Received He Was Retired and Will Get a Pension in all Probability.

Bronzed almost to a coppery hue by exposure to tropical suns and the piercing blasts of Alaskan winds, Martin B. MacDonald, a native Plainfielder, returned to the city yesterday after an absence of twelve years during which time he served Uncle Sam as a member of the Thirty-second, regular, light artillery. The narration of some of the stirring adventures he encountered during his long term resembles stories by Harding Davis, Jack London and other writers of vigorous fiction. Mr. MacDonald's soldiering was mostly in Cuba and the Philippines with odd stays at Fort Sill, Alaska; the Presido, San Francisco, and Monterey, Cal. As a side experience to army life he was caught in the Frisco earthquake and carries sixteen bullet wounds as mementoes of Cuban and Filipino marksmanship. Because of injuries he was retired from service last April and the authorities at Washington are considering his application for a pension.

MacDonald is the son of John MacDonald, who lived for many years on Mountain avenue and later on Terrill road, but who now resides in Garwood. He first enlisted on May 23, 1898, at Fort Slocum, New York, and was sent to Cuba. His regiment was in the thickest of several of the hardest-fought battles of the Spanish-American war but the Plainfielder emerged with only two flesh wounds caused by bullets and a bad barbedwire tear received in a charge on a barricade. When peace was declared he was transferred to Fort Sill and had just gotten accustomed to the Alaskan climate conditions and dreariness when his regiment was sent to the Philippines. There he remained for six years and the fact that he is alive today is due more to good luck than management.

During his service in these possessions MacDonald underwent all the sufferings and privations that make war exactly what General Sherman said it was. Weary marches on half ration, sleeping on the rain soaked ground and tortures by huge gnats and biting flies were mere bagatelles. The men were kept too busy dodging the enemies' bullets and tropical fever germs to give anything else any more than passing consideration. On one occasion the Thirty-second was inveigled into a swamp where the men sank to their arm-pits and were then subjected to a merciless storm of leaden missiles. Scores pitched forward and sank beenath the surface of the black mud. MacDonald was one of the more fortunate ones to be extricated alive.

While the swamp held him prisoner he was hit by bullets six times and was more dead than alive when removed to the hospital tent. MacDonald is now minus a couple of ribs on the left side where the surgeons did a lot of patching up.

Finishing his second enlistment in 1906, he decided that he had had enough of the fighting game and made up his mind to return home. A transport took him to San Francisco, where he bought a ticket for New York intending to start two days later. His plans went hilter-skelter the next morning as the big earthquake demolished the hotel he was in and turned him into the debris-laden street sans clothing, sans money and sans ticket. He figured the best way to get food and lodging was to re-enlist and the thought was as good as the deed. He made application at the Presido, was quickly accepted and a few hours later was doing picket duty in the streets of the stricken city.

When order was restored from chaos in San Francisco, the Plainfielder was sent back to the Philippines and there he remained until shortly before his discharge early in the present spring. Part of his last days as a soldier were passed in southern California and it gave him an excellent opportunity to observe the workings of the "yellow peril," of which Eastern people hear a great deal, but know very little.

MacDonald declares that one-fourth of the working population along the Pacific coast is Japanese and Chinese and that they are invading every branch of business and labor. He pays tribute to the Japs by asserting they are the smartest race in the world, but declares that their aptitude is what is going to hasten an open breach between

WOMEN USHERS AT PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Proctor & Sanderson, proprietors of Proctor's theatre on West Front street, are planning an innovation at the popular house by the introduction of women ushers, replacing the young men who held these positions. While the change will be new in this city, it has been in vogue in many of the New York amusement places for some time.

In speaking of the change today, Mr. Sanderson said that he was especially anxious to caterer to the women and children at his theatre and for the purpose of assuring them that they would receive every attention, he had decided to engage women ushers. Great care will be exercised in the selection of women for the positions, the object being to maintain the high standard established at this house.

H. C. KREBS ADDRESSED WARREN TWP. GRADUATES

The commencement exercises of the public schools of Warren township were held at the Mt. Bethel church last night, being largely attended by children, parents and friends. The principal address of the evening was delivered by Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of the borough schools, who spoke on the topic, "Education." He said that it was the duty of the parents to give their children all that was possible during the early days of the children, emphasizing it as a valuable asset. Edmund E. Sage, president of the Board of Education, also made an address.

The program was as follows:

Invocation, Rev. Peter Gibb; recitation, "Lady Wentworth," Sarah Elizabeth Bornmann; class history, Martha Elizabeth Betzold; oration, "Speech of Regulus," Walter Jacob Koechlein; recitation, "A Second Trial," Bertha Edna Kirch; presentation, Kathryn Nettleship Reed; recitation, "And Old Sweetheart of Mine," Lillian Henrietta Williams; class statistics, Lois Eidah Appell Peck; essay, "Effect of Railroads," Erik Walberg; recitation, "The Last Hymn," Edith Louise Cooper; censor, Janes Sides; oration, Andrew Haye; president's address, John Edward Betpold; presentation of diplomas, Prof. H. C. Krebs; address, Edmund E. Sage; address, Prof. H. C. Krebs; class song, class '10; benediction, Rev. Peter Gibbs.

The graduates and their addresses are as follows:

Mt. Bethel, Erich Walberg, Andrew Haye; Mountain View, John Betzold, Martha Betzold; Warrenville, Sarah Bornmann, Kathryn Reed, Edith Cooper, Lillian Williams; Springdale, Janes Sides, Walter Koechlein, Bertha Kirch; South Stirling, Lois Peck.

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS TO PRESENT COMIC OPERA.

The annual concert of the Plainfield High School will be held at the Plainfield High School auditorium on Saturday night, under the direction of Charles Lewis, the music teacher. This entertainment will surpass any that has ever been given in former years by the pupils. The feature of the evening will be the presentation of the second act of Gilbert and Sulivan's comic opera "The Mikado."

The pupils who are taking parts have witnessed the opera as now being presented in New York, and under the coaching of Mr. Lewis and Mr. Howe they will present something pleasing for their audience. Besides this, the whole school will render the choral cantata, "The Wreck of the Hesperus," by Charles Anderson and H. W. Longfellow. Mrs. George Milton Sellick, of New York, will sing several soprano selections. The cast of "The Mikado has already been published.

Foresters to Entertain.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, is making arrangements for a fine entertainment to be held at Knights of Columbus Hall, tomorrow night. The committee is comprised of John P. Cline, chairman; Frederick Breem, Louis Feiring, John F. Casey, F. Winbenreid and no efforts are being spared to make the affair one of the best in the history of the court. This will mark the return of the court to its former meeting place.

Congregational S. S. Sociable.

Tomorrow evening a sociable will be given to the members of the Congregational Sunday school celebrating the close of the new membership contest.

VICTORY FOR BORO HIGH

Plainfield High Team Goes Down in Defeat in the Second Game.

THE SCORE THREE TO NOTHING.

Each Nine Has Won a Game and the Deciding Contest Will Take Place Next Week Probably.

The P. H. S. baseball team went down in defeat yesterday afternoon before the superior playing of the North Plainfield High School aggregation. The game was played on Hyde Field, in the borough, and was the most exciting of the season. The final score was 3 to 0, it being a clean shut-out for the city boys. The victory filled the borough lads with glee and they celebrated last night in enthusiastic fashion.

All the scoring was done in the fifth inning, when N. P. H. S. put three tallies over the plate in clever fashion. Stine reached first on a single, followed by Adams, who got a pass. C. Smith then hit a bounder to Terry, the opposing pitcher, who fumbled, allowing Smith to fill the bases. Percy Bailey then knocked a high fly, allowing Stine to score the first run. Some more fumbling by Terry, who seemed dazed by the playing of his opponents, allowed Adams to come home and Smith soon followed with the third run. That ended the scoring.

P. H. S. seemed to lose its grip after that and although they succeeded in shutting out the borough boys during the rest of the contest they were unable to solve the mysterious curves of Smith and could not score. During the fifth inning, Umpire George was hit in the stomach with the ball and a brief intermission was sufficient to allow Terry to steady himself.

Rooters for both teams were out in large numbers and enlivened the game considerably. After the fifth inning it was all N. P. H. S. although the P. H. S. supporters did their best to cheer the team on to victory.

This gives each team a victory and arrangements are now being made for the third and deciding contest which will probably be played early next week. The score:

GOV. J. F. FORT WILL SPEAK.

Brig.-Gen. D. F. Collins, of the Second Regiment, and His Staff Will Attend the Exercises on Tuesday.

Having accepted the honor of dedicating "Old Glory" on the campus of the College at Mt. St. Mary, on Tuesday afternoon, June 14, at 3:30 o'clock, Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will assemble at Post headquarters at 2 o'clock that afternoon, in full uniform, white gloves and cane; those without uniform, dark clothing and uniform hat.

Stages will leave Post headquarters at 2:30 o'clock sharp. There will be a special meeting at Post headquarters Monday night, June 13, at 7:30 o'clock for instructions and final preparation. The regular encampment will be held at 7:30 o'clock following the dedication.

Governor J. Franklin Fort will be the speaker on the above occasion, and pursuant to a resolution adopted at a meeting held June 6, Co. K will assemble at the armory at 2 o'clock on June 14, to act as escort of honor to His Excellency, who will attend the commencement exercises to be held at the college that afternoon. The olive drab uniform, with husset shoes, canvass puttees, olive drab shirt and cap will be worn. No drill of the company will be held Monday night, June 13.

Brig.-Gen. D. F. Collins, of Elizabeth, and his staff will also attend the exercises at the college.

BATTALION SCHOOL AT CO. K ARMORY

Regimental orders have been issued for a battalion school of instruction to be held at the armory of Company K, on Tuesday night, June 14, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of instructing the officers, non-commissioned officers and cooks of Companies C and I, of Elizabeth; K, of Plainfield, and M, of Elizabeth, regarding rations, their preparation and uses for the maneuvers to be held at Gettysburg July 9-19.

Captain Condit S. Atkinson, regimental commissary, will have charge of the school of instruction here and privates of the above companies are also urged to attend as they will learn much that will be of benefit to them. Heretofore, Company K has gone to Sea Girt during the summer, but this year it was decided to send the regiment to Gettysburg.

PLAINSCLOTHES MEN TO SLEUTH FOR SPEED MANIACS.

Finding that the assignment of uniformed officers to regulate automobile speeding in the streets has proved ineficacious Chief of Police P. S. Kiely has substituted a corps of patrolmen and specials in plain clothes which should have the desired effect.

Complaints of speeding and narrow escapes have been coming into the chief from all over the city and he is determined to put a stop to the practice. Yesterday accompanied by an automobile driver of experience the chief traveled over the town noting the special streets selected by the sped artists and on these streets the special plainclothes men will be posted and arrests will follow any violation of the speed laws.

Will Assist at Roosevelt Wedding.

Rev. Gordon M. Russell, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Cranford, will assist Rev. Dr. Henry M. Sanders, in performing the wedding ceremony of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Miss Eleanor Alexander, at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, New York, June 20

Held in $2,000 Bonds.

Lingi Paccialleo, the Italian arrested in Fanwood on Monday, was put under $2,000 bonds yesterday to await the action of the October grand jury. Paccialleo attempted to shoot up the town, especially a woman friend. He is being defended by Robert Newton Crane.

Lecture in German Reformed Church

Rev. Charles H. Schneegass, pastor of the German Reformed church, corner of Craig place and Duer street, will give a lecture on astronomy in the church tonight. The lecture will be accompanied with stereopticon views. A collection will be taken.

TO REACH HIGHEST COURT

Fight Between Somerville Water Company and the Borough.

ANOTHER SUIT IN PROGRESS.

Questions involving Constitutional Law Now Confront the Litigants—Injunction Denied.

The Somerville Water Company which was defeated by the borough of Somerville in the former's suit for injunction, has begun another suit with the same object. In the first suit one of the points made by Craig A. Marsh, who was associated as counsel for the borough with James L. Griggs, the local counsel, was that the alleged charter right of the water company was subject to the borough ordinance which requires a permit from the chairman of the committee on streets and sidewalks before any borough streets can be opened and the water company had not applied for or obtained a permit.

This point was sustained by Vice-Chancellor Walker and the injunction was denied with costs.

After that decision the water company made application to the chairman of the committee as required by the ordinance, and under the advice of counsel the permit was not granted. Thereupon the second suit for injunction was started and the argument took place at Trenton on Tuesday. Hon. Alvah A. Clark and Judge Case appeared as counsel for the water company and Mr. Marsh and Mr. Griggs for the borough.

The water company having made application for the permit required by the borough ordinance, the point on which the first case was decided, is not presented in the present suit. The points which appear in the present suit involve some questions of constitutional law. Some of the points were whether the water company was ever legally incorporated; whether the charter of the town of Somerville was constitutional; whether the consent of the corporate authorities of the township of Bridgewater, of which Somerville is a part was necessary to the incorporation of the water company, or its right to dig up streets or lay pipes or sell water.

Other questions were whether, if the constitutional objections are not sustained the proper remedy of the water company was not by certiorari or mandamus from the Supreme Court instead of injunction from the Court of Chancery.

The case is one of the most important ever brought in this part of the State. Incidentally, the water company claims that the borough outhorities are obstructing the water company of the exercise of its vested charter rights in order to force the company to make an unfair contract with the borough or else bring about municipal ownership of a water supply system. On the other hand the borough claims that the huge 36-

VASSAR DIPLOMAS FOR TWO PLAINFIELD GIRLS

Miss Avis Irene Aldrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo A. Aldrich, of Sherman avenue, a graduate of P. H. S. Class '06, and Miss Kate Huntington, daughter of Mrs. Albert Huntington, of Sherman, also a graduate of P. H. S. Class '06, were among the 217 young women graduated from Vassar College, yesterday. It was the largest graduating class in the history of the college.

Miss Huntington is a niece of Dr. James M. Taylor, president of Vassar College, who made the address at the commencement exercises, yesterday. Both young women are well known here and were popular in their class at Vassar.

DR. EGEL PRESIDENT OF DENTAL SOCIETY

Officers were elected and a dinner and social session was held at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Dental Society at the Park Club, last night. The society entertained several out-of-town guests and altogether it was one of the most enjoyable gatherings in the history of the society. The business meeting was held at 6 o'clock, when these officers were elected:

President, Dr. C. M. F. Egel, of Westfield; vice-president, Dr. W. E. Stelle; secretary, Dr. C. W. Montfort; treasurer, Dr. Charles L. Moore.

Following the business session the dentists and their guests enjoyed a fine dinner served by Mrs. Henry Johnson, of the club. Afterward there was an informal program with short speeches and story-telling by the members and their guests.

The guests present were Dr. F. C. Brush and Dr. William Hutchinson, of New York city; Dr. F. C. Ard, Dr. Marcus L. Clawson and Asa F. Randolph, of this city, and Dr. William Woolsey, of Elizabeth. These members were present: Drs. Frank T. Clawson, Frank Wells, F. W. French, Charles Davis, W. E. Stelle, Elmer Giddis, Guy Hillman, Charles L. Moore, O. B. Whitford, C. B. Leonard, Raymond Stevens, David G. Atwood, C. W. Montfort, of this city; E. D. Frost, of Elizabeth; W. F. Naylor, T. J. Hogan, of Dunellen; George Voorhees and W. F. Naylor, of Somerville. Dr. Frank T. Clawson was the toastmaster for the evening.

Miss Harris to Speak.

Service of more than ordinary interest will be held under the auspices of the Christian and Missionary Alliance tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and again in the evening at 7:45 in the German Reformed church on Craig place. Miss Josephine Harris, for many years a missionary to the Congo, will be the speaker. She is well known and appreciated in Plainfield, and it is hoped she may have a large audience.

Young Women's Christian Association Wednesday Night Class Basketball Team.

Of all the activities of the Young Women's Christian Association in the athletic department, is the Wednesday night class, a photograph of whose members is shown. The class recently closed its activities until the fall season and its success has been marvelous all along the line.

During the winter the work of the class has been such as to indicate that indoor sports and athletics will occupy a prominent part in the coming years of the association. All the members have displayed great proficiency in gymnastics and the basketball quintet made an especially fine showing.

But five games of basketball were played by the five and in four they were returned victorious over their opponents. Perhaps the most notable achievement was their victory over the Trenton Y. W. C. A. five which is acknowledged to be one of the strongest teams in the State in the association.

In the accompanying photograph are the Misses Gertrude Mair, Elizabeth Becker, Nona Becker, Margaret Mosher, Reba Kline, Edna Snedeker, Helen Southard, Ida Englehardt, May Chamberlain, Ada Saith and Alice Boyd. Miss Mosher has charge of the athletic department of the association.

ASSAULT CASE HEARING

Peter Fugman Admitted to Bail to Await Grand Jury's Action.

SQUIRE HUGHES ON BENCH.

Defendant is Refused a Warrant for Arrest of the Aged Man He Is Alleged to Have Assaulted.

Peter Fugman, of Watchung, was arraigned before Justice Hughes at that place last night on the complaint of Adolf Limon, who charged the defendant with assault, and was held in $200 bail to await the action of the grand jury. His brother-in-law, Hugo Maul, furnished the bond. Winfield S. Angleman appeared as counsel for Limon and William G. DeMeza represented the defendant.

After the hearing, Mr. DeMeza asked Justice Hughes for a warrant for the arrest of Limon on a similar charge, but the justice said that inasmuch as he had held Fugman and placed him under bonds, he could not entertain a complaint against Limon in the same case.

Limon was a witness in his own behalf, while Fugman was called and Hugo Maul was also a witness. The ownership of the pigeons over which the trouble arose was practically settled according to Mr. Maul's testimony, who admitted that they were owned by Limon. The alleged assault took place Sunday night, May 29, when, according to Limon, he was attacked by Fugman, because he objected to his carrying away some pigeons from the barn at Maul's Hotel. His eyes were bruised and battered and almost closed, while he suffered greatly from injuries to his chest.

In his testimony, Fugman said that when he and Limon met they both clinched and that Limon was injured in the fall. He claimed that Limon held fast to him and that it was necessary to "brush him" as he called it, to unfasten his grip.

The hearing attracted a majority of the male population of Watchung and the countryside, the case having aroused considerable interest. It was reported today that the defendant appeared before a Justice of the Peace at Mt. Bethel later and secured a warrant for the arrest of Limon on a charge of assault.

Y. W. H. A. ASSOCIATION HOLD A DANCE.

More than fifty couples representing six different cities joined the Young Women's Hebrew Association last night at a dance held in Y. M. H. A. hall on Grove street. Young people from Newark, New York, Perth Amboy, New Brunswick and Elizabeth joined the local association in one of the most enjoybale affairs of the season.

Dancing to music furnished by Stewart's orchestra was indulged in until 2 o'clock this morning, with an intermission for refreshments at midnight. The committee having the dance in charge included the Misses Tillie Kanter, chairman; Esther Wolfe, Rose Rosenson and Lillian Kadish.

Public Hearing on Ordinance.

The Common Council has arranged for a public hearing to be held in the Council Chamber, Tuesday evening, July 5, on the proposed ordinance for adoption, entitled an ordinance to regulate the storage and handling of volatile liquids, which includes gasolene, naphtha, etc. Notices have been sent to all owners of automobile garages and others who handle these liquids in any quantity to be present at the hearing and express their opinions on the ordinance.

Will Celebrate the Fourth.

Excelsior Band, of this city, will hold a Fourth of July celebration afternoon and evening at West Third street hall, between Liberty street and Plainfield avenue, July 4. There will be good music and refreshments will be served by the Ladies' Auxiliary. The committee in charge comprises Frank Gillett, chairman; William Hurling and Isaac Van Pelt.

Miss Anna H. Rafferty a Graduate.

Miss Anna Hildegarde Rafferty, of Sandford avenue, is among the young women who will be graduated from the College of St. Elizabeth, Madison, on June 16, receiving the degree of bachelor of arts.

They Get Bail.

Bail was furnished yesterday for two of the young men accused of burglaries at stores in the city. Charles Moerwinkle signed the bond for Clarence Cheshire and Mrs. Elizabeth went security for Francis.

NOTABLES MEETING IN PLAY CONGRESS

Superintendent of Schools Richard E. Clement and B. H. Campbell, chairman of the Playground Commission of Elizabeth, are honorary vice-presidents of the Playground Association of America, whose fourth annual congress opened in Rochester, N. Y., yesterday. Neither is able to attend but Union county has a delegate present, Harry W. Marshall, president of the Plainfield Commission.

"Every aspect of the play question is to be discussed at the congress, not merely the matter of school playgrounds. The recreation of the American people in general will be considered from every viewpoint. The moving picture problem will have an important place in the session, and John Collier, of the People's Institute and head of the Moving-Picture Board of Censors in New York City, will address the congress. Likewise Mrs. Charles H. Israels, chairman of the committee on assessments and vacation resources of working girls, will discuss the public dance hall. Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes will talk on 'The Possibility of Relieving the Monotony of Factory Work.'

"Another speaker will be Frederic Thompson, of Luna Park and Hippodrome fame, who will tell 'Why Wholesome Shows Pay.' Ernest Thompson, the author, will give us an address on 'The Message of the Indian and the Outdoor Life,' and Charles F. F. Campbell, one of the greatest authorities on the education of the blind in America, will show motion pictures of blind children actually playing football. A special session will be given to the subject of story-telling to children.

LONG BRANCH READY FOR G.A.R. ENCAMPMENT

Long Branch, June 9.—Active work toward entertaining the forty-third annual State Encampment, G. A. R., which opened a three-day session today, is being done by a joint committee of the Board of Trade and the veterans at Long Branch. The last scheduled meeting was held Tuesday evening at City Hall, although another conference was held last night to make final plans for the celebration. Five hundred flags have been purchased, which will be carried by school children, who will act as escorts to the veterans. It is planned to make the campfire a crowning feature.

Four hundred young women clad in white bearing an American flag and making a tour of shore resorts in one hundred automobiles with veterans as occupants, will be spectacles at the encampment.

A department commander, to succeed City Clerk of Newark James F. Connelly, whose term in that office expires, and a senior department vice-commander are the important elective offices to be filled. The Jersey nomination for national senior vice-commander will be made and Governor Fort will announce his appointment of representatives from this State to the national encampment to be held September 10 at Atlantic City.

The veterans are talking of candidates for the various offices. Judge James Onglis, of Paterson, is prominently mentioned for department commander, but James Applegate, of Trenton; Senior Vice-commander Dr. Henry Chavanne, of Salem, and James R. Campbell, of Long Branch, have their adherents among the delegation. Mr. Campbell, it is said, will not permit his name to be used. William F. Washington, now junior vice-commander, is out for the senior vice-commandership.

Among those who seek the Jersey nomination for the national election are: Colonel James R. Mullikin, of Newark, now assistant adjutant-general; Charles Burrowe, of Rutherford; Alfred Atkins, of Roselle Park, and Frank O. Cole, of Jersey City.

The parade will take place Friday morning at 10 o'clock. It will start from the Hotel Scarborough, the departmental headquarters during the encampment.

The young women will lead the way to the Casino where Governor Fort and the Mayor of Long Branch will welcome the soldiers. The session there will last until 2 o'clock when the auto tour will start for the residence of the Governor at Sea Girt and the resorts as far as the Rumson road.

The camp fire will be lighted tomorrow night and about it the Governor and Commander-in-chief Henry M. Nevius, of Red Bank, will be hailed as the guests of honor. At this time the Governor will make public his choice for national encampment representatives.

The officers will be elected and reports received on Saturday morning.

The G. A. R. ranks are thinning rapidly. When the encampment met here in 1895 there were close to 7,000 veterans. Today the number is not far above 4,000, with 106 posts.

COMMUTATION'S GAIN $1,300,000 AT LEAST

New York, June 9.—In advancing commutation rates, the railroads entering New York have made increases which will insure to them additional revenues per annum in the amount of approximately $1,300,000, of which nearly one-half will be required by railroads approaching the metropolis through New Jersey.

On the New Jersey Central an increase of 25 cents for each monthly ticket was the rule or an additional cost to the commuter of $3 a year. The total added income on this line will amount to between $35,000 and $40,000 per annum.

The New Haven, which has made the largest advances, has increased commutation rates sufficiently to insure to itself additional revenues of between $400,000 and $500,000 per annum. The New York Central's increases, it is estimated, will add only $150,000 per annum to the company's income.

On the five New Jersey lines the aggregate increase in commutation rates will not add more than $600,000 to the gross revenues of all the roads per annum.

On the Erie, which carries approximately 30,000 commuters daily, the added revenues per annum from the advances made will aggregate $240,000, or about $8 from each commuter.

On the Lackawanna, which carries the same number of commuters, the added revenues will be the same with the same average for each commuter.

On the Lehigh Valley, which carries few commuters, the increase will be almost negligible.

On the Pennsylvania which does a considerably smaller commuting business than either the Erie or the Lackawanna, the annual increased revenues will not exceed $50,000.

The average additional cost to the New Jersey commuters therefore will figure down to less than $5 per annum.

On the other hand, on a basis of 30,000 commuters handled daily by each the New Haven and the New York Central the increased cost to each per annum will average $10.50, or more than double the amount the New Jersey commuters will be called upon to contribute to the respective incomes of the roads which furnish them with transportation.

OPPOSITION TO JUDGE'S RECOMMENDATION FAILS.

Hackensack, June 9.—Hereafter, when insane patients are transported to the Morris Plains Asylum from Bergen County, they will be accompanied by medical attendants, a physician for the male and a nurse for the female unfortunates, during the trip to that institution. This was decided upon after opposition by the Board of Chosen Freeholders at its regular monthly meeting Monday afternoon after it had been recommended by Common Pleas Judge Milton Demarest.

In his communication the judge stated that the plan he proposed he thought to be more humane than the present method, so that the patient could receive medical treatment on the way if it was found necessary.

He further advised that he had taken the matter up with both the Englewood and Hackensack hospitals, and learned that both institutions would supply either a nurse or a physician for $4 for each trip, which is made in all cases by automobile. The letter came through the Lunacy Committee, who approved of the plan.

After the reading of the letter, Freeholder William Conklin, of Englewood, spoke against the proposition in the following terms:

"I move to lay the matter on the table, for the reason that it is apparent to me and to many others that one-half of the county officials are spending two-thirds of their time in devising methods and means of spending the taxpayers' money. There is no use of sending any more help with the constables who are designated to convey these patients to Morris Plains than there is in sending me. In the Englewood Hospital there are two internes. How either one of these can be spared at any time I do not know. The method in the past has been a perfectly satisfactory one, so why should we change At least, so far as the public knows, there has been no objection to the method. There is no good reason why this request should be granted."

The motion to table was voted down by 16 to 8. The question was carried with only three votes in the negative, without any further discussion.

HEARING IN FIRE CHIEF CASE.

Rahway, June 9.—Charges were preferred before the Common Council by the members of Franklin Hose Company Tuesday night against Fire Chief H. L. Lamphear, alleging that at a fire Saturday night in the William E. Ludlum residence he struck a fireman named Joseph Moore, who was working on a ladder. Lamphear denies the charge.

It was moved that a committee of three members be named by the president of the Council and that the Mayor appoint three citizens, before whom the complaints can be heard. The Council will meet again on the evening of June 14 for this purpose. I. F. Bartlett, acting chairman, appointed Councilman Martin, Armstrong and Trembly as the committee from the Council.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Marcus M. Staples, sixty-four years old, a well-known resident of Beverly, stricken with appendicitis Monday, was taken to a Philadelphia hospital, where he died under an operation.

Attacked by a dog near his home Tuesday, William Greenan, ten years old, of 1920 South Sixth street, Camden, was bitten on the right thigh. The wound was cauterized by Dr. Bicker.

Uremic poisoning caused the death at Cooper Hospital, in Camden, Tuesday afternoon of Mrs. Kate Maley, fifty-eight years old, of Winslow Junction. Mrs. Maley was taken suddenly ill while on a visit to Camden on Sunday.

The fifteen-year-old son of Dr. S. S. Cole, of Vineland, has mysteriously disappeared. The last seen of him was last Saturday. He was fond of hunting birds' nests, and his parents fear he may have fallen from a tree somewhere.

Several boys playing along Lake Lenape, at Mays Landing, Monday evening, reported seeing a man drown, and the small stream where he disappeared was searched yesterday by several persons, but no trace of a body could be found.

The newly organized Women's Christian Temperance Union, with 203 members and twenty-six working departments, had its initial meeting in the Presbyterian church, Williamstown, badly demoralized by the appearance of two half-grown church mice that held the body at bay nearly an hour Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Julia Schlitz, of 32 Cottage street, Bayonne, yesterday was sent to jail for ninety days by Recorder Mara in that city for biting Patrolman James Maroney on the hand. The policeman was taking the woman to the station in the patrol wagon when she suddenly attacked him and sank her teeth in his hand. The wound was a bad one and Maroney had to go to the City Hospital.

With her jaws nearly locked, Helen N. Scott, eleven years old, of 627 Cedar street, Camden, was admitted to Cooper Hospital last night. About two weeks ago the child was vaccinated and she was getting along nicely until yesterday, when she complained of stiffening of the jaws. Physicians say that the vaccination is not responsible for the girl's condition. They declare that there must have been some subsequent cause for the disease.

GOSSIPY BITS ON DOPE OF DIAMOND STARS

Thirty winners—count 'em, thirty! That's the mark Orval Overall proposes shooting for in the present National league pennant race. For this feat it is said that Orvie will be awarded $1,000.

Last season Overall fell shy of the high water figure, winning twenty-one and losing ten games. Most of the defeats were scored by opposing teams that didn't register over three or four hits at the most. That's why the Chicago player hopes, with the graces of a kindly fate and the all around generalship of the Cub machine, to win thirty games this season.

Pittsburg, the one club in the league that most fans regard as Overall's Nemesis, will have plenty of chances to mix it during the summer. Orvie himself considers Exposition park his hoodoo. For years, while a member of the Cincinnati Reds and the Cubs, Overall tried his best to beat the Pirates on their old grounds, but always came out a bad second.

Trainer Mike Martin of the Reds, who has had ample time and opportunity to look over the fine specimens of physical manhood that are on the Red team, pronounces Bob Bescher, the smiling left fielder, the strongest man on the team, everything taken into consideration.

"It is very seldom that you run across a man built like Bescher," said Martin. "He combines every form of strength known and if he but realized it would be one of the greatest athletes in the world.

"Bescher is faster on his feet than nine hundred and ninety-nine out of every thousand men his size. He has one of the best throwing arms in baseball, can slide into bases as well as any man living, has a tremendous pair of shoulders that can place enough power behind a bat to drive a ball to the farthest point in any ball park and, crowning all, has as fine a disposition as any man in the world.

"Bescher's habits are of the best, and I expect to see him develop into one of the greatest players in the game's history. I have often marveled at the speed displayed by Outfielder Ty Cobb of the Detroit club, but Cobb has nothing at all on this big fellow."

Are American league fans to see an incarnated Jesse Burkett in the left field, the position the famous "Spider" so ably filled in the nineties under Fat Tebeau?

Nap veterans see in Art Krueger, secured from Columbus, the almost exact counterpart of Jesse Burkett. They are hopeful that he will prove just as capable a performer with the ash furniture as the old "Spider" and even a better fielder.

Lajoie, Flick and others who know Burkett when they got their first glimpse of the Columbus man were struck by the resemblance Krueger bears to the man who made life miserable for pitchers in the old days.

Larry said when he got a side view of Krueger he was on the point of going up and giving him a slap on the back. He thought it was Burkett. He recalled, however, that Burkett's visits to Cleveland are few and far between. Later he was introduced to Krueger. Art smiled when Larry told him about his resemblance to Burkett.

FAVOR SPECIAL SESSION

Lawmakers May Gather to Prevent Higher Passenger Rates in Jersey.

MANY ARE INTERVIEWED.

Relief for Commuters Who Are Asked to Put Up More Money for Transportation Appears to Be Assured.

Many more of the lawmakers of the State who favor a special session of the Legislature to enact laws to prevent the collection of higher passenger rates in this State made statements defining their positions yesterday. Few of them fail to come out squarely in favor of the plan to convene the Legislature.

Vivian M. Lewis, commissioner of banking and insurance and leading Republican candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, appears decidedly pronounced in his views. His reply to the direct "Are you in favor of calling the Legislature in special session?" was:

"Certainly. I am in favor of any action necessary to insure a reduction of railroad rates to a resonable basis."

Assemblyman John J. Matthews, of Hunterdon county, said: "I am in favor of a special session to consider the proposed increase of railroad rates."

Assemblyman John V. L. Booraem, of Middlesex, when asked if he favored the calling of a special session said "Yes."

Assemblyman Joseph P. Tumulty, of Hudson, said last night that he joined with Senator Fielder in urging Governor Fort to convene the Legislature in special session for the purpose of protecting commuters and other patrons of railroads within the State.

"Let the Legislature enact a genuine public utilities bill, not a makeshift like the one to become a operative July 1," he said. Then the present situation will be obviated."

Assemblyman Sullivan, of Hudson, said:

"I am certainly in favor of a special session of the Legislature to adjust the railroad rates. As I stated on the floor of the House when the Wakelee public utilities bill was up for passage, it is absolutely worthless, and the Republicans knew when they voted for the measure that it would be ineffective. Had the Republican majority been sincere in their advocacy of a public utilities bill they would have passed the Martin bill. That was a genuine public utilities measure and would have accomplished results."

Assemblyman Isaac T. Nichols, of Cumberland, one of the champions of Governor Fort in the last session, said: "I favor a special session as to commuters."

Assemblyman W. E. Ramsay, of Middlesex, when asked the question, replied: "I certainly do."

Assemblyman Samuel A. Ridgway, of Salem, said: "I have no objection."

Senator Robert E. Hand, of Cape May, said: "The Legislature met in session last winter for the purpose of transacting such legislation, and I consider such legislation unnecessary until the Legislature convenes."

Assemblyman Henry R. Tatem, of Camden, said: "I favor a special session of the Legislature. The commutation rates should be adjusted by the Public Utilities Commission."

Assemblyman Walter Heritage, of Gloucester, said: "Do not favor a special session."

Assemblyman J. William Huegel, of Essex, said:

"If by calling a special session and amending the public utilities law with a rate-making clause will prevent the railroads from increasing their rates by all means let us do it."

Assemblyman Charles A. Meyer, of Sussex, said:

"I am in favor of a special session."

Assemblyman Duane E. Minard, leader of the Essex delegation in the House, said:

"You ask my opinion of a special session of the Legislature to be called for the purpose of preventing, if possible, the proposed increase in railroad passenger rates in the State.

"From a legal standpoint I have not considered the question at all. As a general proposition it seems to me that it is our duty to do everything in our power to protect the interests of our people, and to prevent them from the necessity of paying larger amounts for transportation than is absolutely necessary.

"As a member of the Legislature I am anxious to see done whatever may be done to relieve the condition which confronts us, and I certainly will do all in my power to accomplish an adjustment that will be equitable and fair to the people, especially in our suburban communities, who rely so largely upon transportation to New York, Newark and Philadelphia as a part of their means of livelihood."

$30 MATTRESS for $16.98

We have just received from Messrs. Ostermoor & Co. a lot of their regular $30 Mattresses, which they had made up for a big hotel in New York State that burned down about the time they were ready to deliver them. These Mattresses are full size, made in two parts, weight full 60 pounds, 15 pounds more than regular; made with round corners, 5 inch inseam borders and covered with beautiful mercerized French Art twill ticking. We urge immediate action on this special offer, as our supply is of necessity limited; while they last you can buy them for $16.98

$12.50 MATTRESS for $8.50

Here's the greatest Mattress Bargain you've ever heard tell of. A large Mattress Concern making strictly high grade elastic cotton felt mattresses decided to quit making mattresses and devote their factory to the making of adjustable bed couches. We made them an offer and secured their entire stock of mattresses. Among the lot was fifty of their $12.50 advertised mattresses. They are in two parts, weigh 50 pounds, made with round corners, 5 inch inseam borders, covered with satin finished dust-proof ticking and are moth and vermin proof. We could sell them readily at the regular price; while they last you can buy them for $8.50

America and Asiatics within the near future. They can learn almost any trade or business in a year and will work for half the wages paid white men.

"I can state for a positive fact," said the narrator, "that because of this Jap and Chinese invasion industrial affairs in San Francisco today are in a most deplorable condition. There are fully 30,000 white men walking the streets because the little brown fellows and the coolies are working for smaller pay."

MacDonald stated it seemed odd that all the time he was away, outside of Cuba, he met only one Plainfielder. This was Martin Kane, a former bartender, who he ran across in Pekin, China, four years ago as he was on his way home from the island. Kane was then working in the office of the American ambassador and appeared to be enjoying the best of health.

Premier Annual Outing.

The Knickerbocker Division of the Premier second annual outing will pass through this city on their way to Cape May via Philadelphia tomorrow probably at noon. There will be 150 cars in line and they will make an imposing demonstration of the modern manner of traveling. The route from here will include Princeton and Trenton over the regular automobile route. At Philadelphia 500 more cars will join the Knickerbocker division. Altogether there will be about 800 cars in line when the automobilists arrive at the Cape. Prizes are to be awarded for "sane" driving and other things.

The annual strawberry and ice cream festival of the Epworth League of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church will be held tonight. In addition to the good things to eat a musical program will be provided.

inch main which it stopped the water company from laying in the streets of Somerville is out of all proportions to the needs of Somerville and was being laid to enable the water company to supply not more than 20,000,000 gallons per day to three other municipalities east of Somerville under a contract which the water company had no legal right to make and because of which the Attorney General could take proceeding for forfeiture of the water company's charter.

The fight is being carried on with intense energy on both sides. Each side has employed eminent engineers and well known counsel and without doubt intend to carry the case to the court of last resort no matter which way the Vice-Chancellor may decide.

The impression seems to prevail that the court will now find it necessary to decide the vital questions of constitutional law which were not necessary for the dicision of the first case.

St. Joseph's Dance.

Final arrangements were made last night by the united societies of St. Joseph's church for the progressive euchre and dance to be held at the Sebring auditorium on Thursday night, June 16. Music for the dance will be furnished.

MUNICIPAL WATER IS STRONGLY URGED

Municipal ownership of its water and electric light plants was unanimously indorsed by voters at Cranford last night at a public meeting called for the purpose of discussing water conditions in Cranford.

During the past few weeks there have been many complaints regarding the supply as furnished by the Plainfield Union Water Company. It was claimed that the water was cloudy and that it emitted a bad odor. Samples of the water were sent to the State Board of Health for analysis. That body reported the water was colorless and free from odor. Notwithstanding this report the residents were not satisfied and engaged an expert from New York to make an analysis. He, too, reported the water to be colorless and without odor.

Despite these reports, the public meeting last night was called and resolutions were adopted condemning the water supply and favoring the town owning its own plant, together with its electric light system. The Rev. George Francis Green declared the experts erred in making their reports as to the condition of the water. He declared that there is a disagreeable stench about it, and that particles are visible in it. Other speakers intimated that the reports had been influenced.

A committee including William Tufch, E. G. Woodling, H. N. Fiske, W. H. Sperry and Charles Hansel was named to confer with members of Council regarding the feasibility of the town purchasing its own water and electric light systems. This committee is to report back to the citizens at a meeting to be held the latter part of he month.

INCREASED FARE FALLS HARD ON STENOGRAPHERS.

Many of the commuters on the Jersey suburban lines are girl stenographers employed in New York, and the proposed advance in fares will affect them acutely. To make up the 20 per cent. increase in rates on the railroads many of the girls are preparing to practise economies on their travels. "My evening paper and the candy that I buy at the ferryhouse on the return trip will have to be foresworn," said one girl last week, and others are in line to make similar sacrifices. Curtailment of the number of cigars smoked each day will afford many of the male commuters means of retrenchment. —New York Tribune.

New Steel Plant for Bayonne.

The Bethlehem Steel Corporation has purchased the plant formerly occupied by the Goubert Manufacturing Company, on Ingham avenue, Bayonne. It is announced that the Bethlehem corporation will erect a large plant on the site.

GRADE CROSSINGS TO BE ABOLISHED

Steps toward the abolition of all grade crossings in Elizabeth along the tracks of the Long Branch Railroad were taken at a conference last night between Elizabeth Council and representatives of the railroad. C. W. Huntington and E. E. Corwin, representing the railroad company, told Council the company is willing to eliminate grade crossings, but that it expected the city to meet it half way. The matter was laid over until the next meeting, when it is expected that definite action will be taken.

The city of Elizabeth has been fighting for the abolition of grade crossings for over a year, especially those at Elizabeth avenue and East Jersey street, in which trolley cars run. Those crossings have been the scenes of several accidents.

The sprinkling of the streets with oil during the summer was also taken up and Council awarded the contract to the Standard Oil Company, whose bid was 92-100 of a cent per square yard for the first application and 88-100 of a cent per square yard for the second and third applications.

HERE AND THERE.

Joseph A. Neill, of Netherwood avenue, who is employed by the Walter Scott Printing Machine Works, returned home Tuesday night after an eight months' stay in the South erecting presses. While away he erected presses at Nashville and Knoxville, Tenn.; Houston, Texas, and Birmingham, Alabama. While in Birmingham he erected an octuple press in the office of the Birmingham Age-Herald. This is one of the largest printing machines in the South and is a marvel of workmanship and capacity. Mr. Neill met Chief Kiely on the street in Birmingham, while the latter was attending the convention of police chiefs, and was the guest of the chief at the banquet given by the police chiefs. Today Mr. Neill left for Erie, Pa., where he will erect a printing press for the Scott Works.

DID THE FISHES GET HER DIAMOND BROOCH?

Small boys were busy all morning diving into the New Market lake in an effort to locate a costly diamond brooch lost by Mrs. Lester B. Harris, of West Front street, while fishing yesterday afternoon. A crisp ten dollar bill will be handed to the youngster who locates the brooch in the mud, and who restores it to its owner. Mrs. Harris was out in a rowboat with a party yesterday and in some way the brooch became loose and unknown to Mrs. Harris dropped into the water. Its loss was not detected at once, however, and for this reason the exact spot where it was dropped is unknown. The brooch was valued at $300.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A public election was held Tuesday night in the fire-house for the purpose of electing the lighting commissioners for the coming year. An appropriation of $540 was made for the lighting expense of the coming year. The commissioners elected were William J. Leddin, William Reilley and Thomas Duffy.

The Fords F. C. will have to play a fast article of baseball if they put it over the locals next Sunday. The batteries will be: Fords, Eagan and Simonson; South Plainfield, Frederickson and Mullin.

Irving Smith has made a local record for bass fishing. Yesterday he made his 77th catch, one of them being a black bass weighing 2 pounds and 14 ounces.

N. P. H. S. Juniors' Play.

"Pygmalion and Galatea," a mythological comedy by W. S. Gilbert, will be presented by the junior class of the North Plainfield High School tonight at the Park Club. The cast has had many rehearsals and a clever production is assured. The cast: Pygmalion, John P. Watson; Leucippe, Harry B. Jackson; Chrysos, Andrew Stiglitz; Agesimos, Herbert A. Stine; Memos, Edward F. Boden; Galatea, Adelaide Stiglitz; Cynisca, Agnes De Camp; Daphne, Lena Rilling; Myrine, Elizabeth Conroy. The action of the play takes place in Pygmalion's studio. Miss Claire M. Stahlberger is the coach, and under her direction the rehearsals have been all that could be expetced. Jacob Abrams is the business manager, and Pierson Bailey acts as stage manager.

Mrs. Runyon Wants Blasting Stopped

Mrs. Clementina B. Runyon, widow of Chancellor Runyon, who was at one time Ambassador to Germany, with several of her neighbors yesterday asked Vice Chancellor Emery, in Newark, for an injunction to enjoin the Morris County Crushed Stone Company from continuing blasting at is quarry, near Millington, in Morris county. The complainants aver that the blasting as done at present is nerve racking and house wrecking. There are a large number of witnesses on both sides to testify.

MRS. RAYMOND NOW TO RESUME MAIDEN NAME.

Trenton, June 9.—An order has been signed by Chancellor Pitney permitting Mrs. Elizabeth G. Raymond, who was recently divorced from her husband, former Assistant Prosecutor Thomas L. Raymond, of Essex, to resume her maiden name of Elizabeth G. Gummere.

The order was secured by former Supreme Court Justice Gilbert Collins, who represented Mrs. Raymond in her application for a divorce.

THEATRE MEN AROUSED.

Theatrical managers in Asbury Park do not take kindly to the recent order of Mayor T. Frank Appleby that Sunday enteretainments will not be permitted this summer. Manager Rosenberg of the Casino on the Boardwalk announced yesterday that, notwithstanding the Mayor's objection, he would give a travelogue entertainment next Sunday evening.

Asbury Park is to have a new all-year-'round theatre. It will be erected on Mattison avenue, on the site of Central Hall, and will be modern in every way. Work on the improvement will be started at once.

Harry W. Smock is the new president of the Young Men's Christian Association, he being chosen to succeed C. E. Carleton. The association recently raised $20,000, which will be spent for maintenance and improvements.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kelly, who have been residing on Grove street for several months, have gone to Seabright, where they will spend the summer.

There will be a special meeting at the Salvation Army headquarters this evening in charge of Adjutant and Mrs. Jackson, assisted by Captain Gallagher and others. There will be special singing. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

BACKS PROTEST OF WESTFIELD TAXPAYERS

Westfield, June 9.—Declaring that former methods of taxation have been unequal and unfair, that there have been omissions and errors in valuations, which should not have been made by any board of assessors, and recommending a new system, which, they declare, will provide better facilities for the equalization of taxes, Councilmen A. J. Wilson, R. F. Hohenstein and Edward D. Floyd have now submitted their report as the special committee appointed by Mayor Alpers to investigate the charges made by Harrison avenue property owners against the local Board of Assessors at the regular meeting of the Council. The report upholds the property owners' protest.

To overcome the weakness of the present system the committee recommended that an assessor' roll be published in sections as soon as practicable after being prepared and supplied to the property-holders of such sections and a notice of time for hearing be given by the assessors before the rolls are finally made up.

It further recommends that land should be assessed separately from buildings thereon, that where property fronts on two or more streets it should be assessed for the whole frontage, that the assessment should be increased upon lands, whether buildings are upon it or not, where the property is improved by public improvements and that the land should be taxed regardless of the condition of the buildings upon it. The report continues:

"The figures submitted to the Council by the Harrison avenue people show some strange situations, which go to show that more care should be taken in the matter of placing valuations for assessments not only in the residential but also in the business section.

"We feel that the committee should not ignore the protests of the Harrison avenue citizens, nor the facts shown at the large public hearing.

"The protest was well founded and the facts presented to the Council at the hearing, a copy of which has been before this committee, show more than a strange condition.

"They show unequal and unfair taxes, omission to tax at all in some cases and errors in valuation which should not have been made yb any board of assessors. The Council should recognize the justice of the protest made, and the fact that the amendments for 1909 were not in accordance with law, and should commend the protestants for having called the Council's attention to the tax condition and the Council should itself give closer supervision to the Board of Taxation this year."

The Council took favorable action on an ordinance providing for a sane and safe Fourth of July, in which not only the sale of firecrackers was restricted as to time, but there were limits placed on the size of the crackers to be sold. Other noisemakers, such as revolvers, small cannon and torpedoes, were stricken from the list as being dangerous to life and limb.

Several protests were filed against the passage of the ordinance by local merchants, who claimed they had already bought their supply of fireworks and would lose considerable money if the ordinance was put into effect.

SEEKING TO DISBAR A LAKEWOOD LAWYER.

Trenton, June 9.—As chairman of the committee on ethics and grievances of the State Bar Association, Senator Harry V. Osborne presented to the Supreme Court Tuesday an application for a rule requiring William Hyres, of Lakewood, to show cause why he should not be disbarred. Justice Swayze took the papers, which will be considered by the main branch of the Supreme Court.

The substantial allegations made against Mr. Hyres are that he was guilty of unprofessional conduct in retaining funds belonging to a client. The case was considered by the ethics committee of the State Bar Association, before which Mr. Hyres was cited to appear.

After hearing his side of the case the committee decided that the circumstances were of such a character that the facts should be submitted to the Supreme Court. This was done in the form of an application for a rule to show cause why he should not be disbarred. The court may either allow or refuse to issue the rule in its own discretion.

Let the Cat Out.

"Well, my little man," queried the minister who was making a call, "do you always do as your mamma tells you?"

"You bet I do," answered the precocious 5-year-old, "and so does papa."

He Was Easy.

Husband—Now you are in a good humor, Mary, tell me why you don't blow up the servants as you do me?

Wife—Oh! there's a very good reason for that—they won't stand it.

The Bride's Delight Is a Piano

Give "her" a piano if you would be sure of achieving pre-eminence in the estimation of the bride—nothing you can think of will delight her more, nothing will prove more of an ornament to the home, nothing will give more pure pleasure, nothing will be more prized amongst all the gifts a bride may get—and you need not fear duplication.

"She can't play a piano," did you say.

Then give her an Autotone.

The Autotone, you know, is the piano all can play whether they are musicians or not, whether they know a note of music or not. The bride can play it, the groom can play it—even little children can play it.

We are glad to sell one or the other—Piano or the Autotone—in any grade it suits you best to buy.

The makes of Pianos we represent are without a peer in the piano world. Of the two hundred and fifty makes of pianos now on the market we represent eight, not one of which has not a well-earned reputation for musical, artistic merit, and stability.

Leading our list are the Hardmon, Kranich & Bach, Hazelton and Lindeman Pianos. Following close are the Leins, Harrington, Hahne, Hensel and Spencer.

You can pay as much as $1,200 for a beautiful Grand Piano or as little as $200 for the lowest cost Spencer.

The Autotone Self-Playing Instrument may be had in the Hardman, Harrington and Hensel makes at prices as high as $950 and as low as $500.

The latest addition to our piano family is the Boudoir Piano, which, while somewhat diminutive in size, is strong in tone, and is just the sort of an instrument thousands are looking for—one that takes up the minimum amount of floor space.

All Our Pianos and Autotones Are Sold on the Easiest Terms.

If you are interested visit out palatial Warerooms on the Second Floor, or drop us a card, and our representative will call and explain the merits of the various instruments we represent.

NEATNESS IN BOYS AND GIRLS.

Neatness is always attractive to grown-ups, and the best place to begin is with the little boys and girls.

It is difficult, as everyone who tries it knows, to teach children to keep their belongings in order, or to be careful and neat; but when once the habit of neatness is inculcated, it is of inestimable value to the boy or girl in his or her future life and well worth all the trouble incurred.

An ingenious mother thought out an excellent plan. She made it an unalterable rule that there should be a place for everything and everything kept in its place. When any of the family found anything belonging to another member of it out of place they were at liberty to put it in "chancery." The chancery was a room, kept locked and presided over by the mother. Every article entered there called for one cent to effect its release. At first caps, slates, pencils, slippers came teeming in, and following them the pennies for release, and these formed a fund for purchasing something to promote tidiness—such as waste paper baskets, paper racks, slipper cases and so on.

Soon, by firmly adhering to the rule of demanding the ransom money, the articles coming to chancery decreased and the lesson was thoroughly taught to all the children, from the oldest ones away at college to the little maid of 4 years of age at home and mother's "right-hand." Outside the chancery door there hung a slate with a pencil attached and when any article was confiscated the date was noted.

A certain time fixed for their detention was a wise forethought, for if the articles or toys must remain in chancery three or four days or a week their little owners will think more of being deprived of their treasures than even of paying the necessary penny to release them; and the toy comes out again with a certain freshness that makes it doubly attractive.

But parents should always remember that they must set a good example, and the servants should be instructed to remember neatness as absolutely imperative. Children are very quick at detecting inconsistencies, and notice at once the fact that their elders are not practising what they are so sternly preached.

SHOULD NOT RELY ON BEAUTY ALONE.

The pretty girl is apt to rely on her beauty alone to achieve popularity, and it is because she sometimes does not exhibit any beauty of mind and character that she so often fails in her desire. In fact, there is a certain amount of pride and haughtiness about many girls possessed with good looks which makes them the reverse of amiable.

Knowing that she has not personal beauty to depend upon in order to make herself popular, the plain-looking girl cultivates an amiable and good-tempered natured, and this at once appeals to those with whom she comes in contract and makes them forget her plainness. She is a ready, sympathetic listener, and encourages people to talk of themselves rather than of herself.

On the other hand, the pretty girl generally prefers that the pretty girl should be the theme of conversation and it is generally the man who can pay her the prettiest compliments and greatest admiration who finds her the most agreeable.

It has often been asked what constitutes an ideal girl, and a well-known authority says it is one who combines with high culture a love of the domesticated and a desire to please. This last should not be so excessive as to degenerate into vanity and conceit, but should be sufficiently powerful to induce its possessor to dress attractively, keep her pretty hair at its glossiest, and be as smart and neat and up-to-date in all matters pertaining to the toilet as any of her less useful sisters.

GARDEN HINTS.

Hotbeds should be watered in the morning only and then only on bright days.

There are more dollars in the garden than is often realized. There are health and pleasure, also.

Keep the soil of hotbeds from getting suddenly cold on cold nights or during sudden cold spells.

It is not the cost or the rarity of the plants that give pleasure in gardening. There is much pleasure in watching things grow, more so when we can assist or encourage them to grow.

Any ordinary well trained soil will grow nasturtiums. Thin soil is better for them than rich, for in the latter they run to leaf and are apt to rot off in wet weather. Nasturtiums should be sowed as early as the ground is ready.

Good Substitute.

"I wanted to use a perforated stamping pattern," says a needlewoman, "and being unable to find my cake of stamping paste, I took a blue marking pencil, dipped the point in kerosene and went carefully over the perforated lines. On removing the pattern I had a clear, well defined marking, with none of the smudging which sometimes results from the stamping paste. Keep the pencil point well wet with the kerosene."

"Now—now, I say—Pakenham the minister is sunk in Pakenham the man. He does as I demand—because he is a man. He signs what I demand because I am a woman. I say, to-night—but, see!"

She hastened now to a little desk, and caught up a folded document which lay there. This she handed to me, unfolded, and I ran it over with a hasty glance. It was a matter of tremendous importance which lay in those few closely written lines.

England's minister offered, over the signature of England, a compromise of the whole Oregon debate, provided this country would accept the line of the forty-ninth degree! That, then, was Pakenham's price for this key that lay here.

"This—this is all I have been able to do with him thus far," she faltered. "It is not enough. But I did it for you!"

"Madam, this is more than all America has been able to do before! This has not been made public?"

"No, no! It is not enough. But to-night I shall make him surrender all—all north, to the very ice, for America, for the democracy! See, now, I was born to be devoted; immolated, after all, as my mother was before me. That is fate! But I shall make fate pay! Ah, monsieur! Ah! monsieur!"

She flung herself to her feet. "I can get it all for you, you and yours!" she reiterated, holding out her hands, the little pink fingers upturned, as was often her gesture. "You shall go to your chief and tell him that Mr. Polk was right—that you yourself, who taught Helena von Ritz what life is, taught her that after all she was a woman—are able, because she was a woman, to bring in your own hands all that country, yes, to fifty-four forty, or even farther. I do not know what all can be done. I only know that a fool will part with everything for the sake of his body."

I stood now looking at her, silent, trying to fathom the vastness of what she said, trying to understand at all their worth the motives which impelled her. The largeness of her plan, yes, that could be seen. The largeness of her heart and brain, yes, that also. Then slowly, I saw yet more. At last I understood. What I saw was a horror to my soul.

"Madam," said I to her, at last, "did you indeed think me so cheap as that? Come here!" I led her to the central apartment, and motioned her to a seat.

"Now, then, madam, much has been done here, as you say. It is all that ever can be done. You shall not see Pakenham to-night, nor ever again!"

"But think what that will cost you!" she broke out. "This is only part. It should all be yours."

I flung the document from me. "This has already cost too much," I said. "We do not buy states thus."

"But it will cost you your future! Polk is your enemy, now, as he is Calhoun's. He will not strike you now, but so soon as he dares, he will. Now, if you could do this—if you could take this to Mr. Calhoun, to America, it would mean for you personally all that America could give you in honors."

"Honors without honor, madam, I do not covet," I replied. Then I would have bit my tongue through when I saw the great pallor cross her face at the cruelty of my speech.

"And myself!" she said, spreading out her hands again. "But no! I know you would not taunt me. I know, in spite of what you say, there must be a sacrifice. Well, then I have made it. I have made my atonement. I say I can give you now, even thus, at least a part of Oregon. I can perhaps give you all of Oregon—to-morrow! The Pakenhams have always dared much to gain their ends. This one will dare even treachery to his country. To-morrow—if I do not kill him—if I do not die—I can perhaps give you all of Oregon—bought—bought and . . . paid!" Her voice trailed on into a whisper which seemed loud as a bugle call to me.

"No, you cannot give us Oregon," I answered. "We are men, not panders. We fight; we do not traffic thus. But you have given me Elizabeth!"

"My rival!" She smiled at me in spite of all. "But no, not my rival. Yes, I have already given you her and given you to her. To do that—to atone, as I said, for my attempt to part you—well, I will give Mr. Pakenham the key that Sir Richard Pakenham of England lately held. I told you a woman pays, body and soul! In what coin fate gave me, I will pay it. You think my morals mixed. No, I tell you I am clean! I have only bought my own peace with my own conscience! Now, at last, Helena von Ritz knows why she was born, to what end! I have a work to do, and, yes, I see it now—my journey to America after all was part of the plan of fate. I have learned much—through you, monsieur."

Hurriedly she turned and left me, passing through the heavy draperies which cut off the room where stood the great satin couch. I saw her cast herself there, her arms outflung. Slow, deep and silent sobs shook all her body.

"Madam! Madam!" I cried to her. "Do not! Do not! What you have done here is worth a hundred millions of dollars, a hundred thousand of lives, perhaps. Yes, that is true. It means most of Oregon, with honor, and without war. That is true, and it is much. But the price paid—it is more than all this continent is worth, if it cost so much as that. Nor shall it!"

Black, with a million pin-points of red, the world swam around me. Millions of dead souls or souls unborn seemed to gaze at me and my unhesitating rage. I caught up the scroll which bore England's signature, and with one clutch cast it in two pieces on the floor. As it lay, we gazed at it in silence. Slowly, I saw a great, soft radiance come upon her face. The red pin-points cleared away from my own vision.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The Story of Helena von Ritz.

There is in every true woman's heart a spark of heavenly fire, which beams and blazes in the dark hours of adversity.—Washington Irving.

"But madam; but madam—" I tried to begin. At last, after moments which seemed to me ages long, I broke out: "But once, at least, you promised to tell me who and what you are. Will you do that now?"

"Yes! yes!" she said. "Now I shall finish the clearing of my soul. You, after all, shall be my confessor."

We heard again a faltering footfall in the hallway. I raised an eyebrow in query.

"It is my father. Yes, but let him come. He also must hear. He is indeed the author of my story, such as it is.

"Father," she added, "come, sit you here. I have something to say to Mr. Trist."

She seated herself now on one of the low couches, her hands clasped across its arm, her eyes looking far away out of the little window, beyond which could be seen the hills across the wide Potomac.

"We are foreigners," she went on, "as you can tell. I speak your language better than my father does, because I was younger when I learned. It is quite true he is my father. He is an Austrian nobleman, of one of the old families. He was educated in Germany, and of late has lived there."

"I could have told most of that of you both," I said.

She bowed and resumed:

"My father was always a student. As a young man in the university, he was devoted to certain theories of his own. N' est-ce pas vrai, mon drole?" she asked, turning to put her arm on her father's shoulder as he dropped weakly on the couch beside her.

He nodded. "Yes, I wass student," he said. "I wass not content with the ways of my people."

"So, my father, you will see," said she, smiling at him, "being much determined on anything which he attempted, decided, with five others, to make a certain experiment. It was the strangest experiment, I presume, ever made in the interest of what is called science. It was wholly the most curious and the most cruel thing ever done."

She hesitated now. All I could do was to look from one to the other, wonderingly.

"This dear old dreamer, my father, then, and five others—"

"I name them!" he interrupted. "There were Karl von Goertz, Albrecht Hardman, Adolph zu Sternbern, Karl von Starnack, and Rudolph von Wardberg. We were all friends—"

"Yes," she said softly, "all friends, and all fools. Sometimes I think of my mother."

"My dear, your mother!"

"But I must tell this as it was! Then, sir, these six, all Heidelberg men, all well born, men of fortune, all men devoted to science, and interested in the study of the hopelessness of the average human being in central Europe—these fools, or heroes, I say not which—they decided to do something in the interest of science. They were of the belief that human beings were becoming poor in type. So they determined to marry—"

"Naturally," said I, seeking to relieve a delicate situation—"they scorned the marriage of convenience—they came to our American way of thinking, that they would marry for love."

"You do them too much credit!" said she slowly. "That would have meant no sacrifice on either side. They married with the deliberate intention of improving individuals of the human species! Father, is it not so?"

Some speech stumbled on his tongue; but she raised her hand. "Listen to me. I will be fair to you, father, fairer than you were either to yourself or to my mother.

"Yes, these six concluded to improve the grade of human animals! They resolved to marry among the peasantry—because thus they could select finer specimens of womankind, younger, stronger, more fit to bring children into the world. Is not that the truth, my father?"

"It wass the way we thought," he whispered. "It wass the way we thought wass wise."

Try Nature's Way of Sprinkling Your Lawn.

There's dry weather coming—plenty of it, and now is the time to get ready to help mother nature keep your lawn nice. Buy a "Fountain" Lawn Sprinkler. You'll find it a good investment. The "Fountain" throws a beautiful mist-like spray that soaks right down in the grass roots without washing any of the soil away. It is made of solid sheet brass, handsomely finished and will last a lifetime. It is the handiest and most beautiful sprayer imaginable. Get a "Fountain" and be ready for the dry weather.

Several other nozzles and sprayers of excellent make on hand.
Gem Nozzle, adjustable straight stream and spray.
Straight Nozzle with rose attachment.
Revolving Lawn Sprays, both high and low styles.

Now about hose. We are selling three exceptionally strong makes this year at very reasonable prices. They are made to stand the highest water pressure..

Para Hose, finest quality, 21c per foot.
Double Diamond Hose, high quality, 16c per foot.
Wallabout Hose, very good quality, 12c per foot.

Use a hose reel and make your hose last longer. This is the simplest and handiest way for taking care of your hose.

A Tubular Steel Hose Reel, such as we have, is hard to equal. Then we have a very serviceable Wooden Hose Reel at a very moderate price.

EVERYONE wants to see the famous "Bluebird" Stock Racer and hear Lorimer tell how he won his great victories.

Everyone wants to see the "cut-out" Chassis of the Chalmers, all lighted up and run by a motor so every working part can be seen in actual motion.

Everyone wants to see a Chalmers "30" at $1500 and "Forty" at $2750—the greatest value in the world. The cars that win races just to show they can go; that win endurance tests just to prove their power; that climb hills as if they liked to, but are sold just as all-round cars for everyday use.

Come if you want to learn all about motor cars. Come and see the educational exhibit which caught the interest of 100,000 people in New York City.

CHALMERS' EXHIBITION ATTRACTS ATTENTION

The Chalmers' exhibition at the salesroom of the Andrew C. Thompson Auto Co. is attracting much interest. A feature is a cut-out chasis, electric lighted and motor driven, which shows every part of an automobile in motion, just as when running on the road. There are many other features, including crank shaft kept in motion by an electric fan, and last but not least the "Bluebird" racing car, which won the Indiana trophy massaque light car race in the Vanderbilt cup race, Merrimac Valley, St. Monico, and first in every race in Atlanta during a whole week's racing. Lee Lorimer, the famous racing driver, winner of some of the most important races, is in charge.

Lorimer, the winner of the Motor Marathon, and many of the important track racing events of 1909, is now a special demonstrator with the Chalmers' Educational Exhibit, which has been attracting so much attention.

"It's postively amazing some of the things people say, after I have very carefully explained the motor to one woman," said Lorimer today. "She smiled at me sweetly and said, 'Is this a two cylinder engine?' I guess I must have looked amazed, for she flushed and said, 'Oh, I beg your pardon; it is a six cylinder isn't it? How stupid of me.' A man came up to the exhibit the other day and carefully felt of the tires. 'Oh, I say,' he said, 'I didn't know these tires were solid.' 'They're not solid,' I told him. 'But I can't dent them,' he continued, 'and I always supposed pneumatic tires were soft.' It was a woman who got off one of the best I've encountered yet. This cut-out chasis is lighted inside the cylinders, in the crank case, in the transmission housing and, in fact, throughout with tiny electric lights. That's so the working parts can be seen easily.

"It's actually astonishing how little the general run of people, even those who drive cars, know about automobiles. No mistake was made when this Chalmers cut-out chasis was called an educational exhibit. Since I first went on the road with the exhibit I have put straight on the principles of automobile construction no less than 100,000 people. And that is no exaggeration. But in addition to those who know nothing about automobiles, the wise ones like to examine the chasis. Any person outside of a mechanic or an engineer can learn a whole lot about the workings of a car by studing the Chalmers exhibit."

Although the garage and show room, seventy-five feet by fifty feet, is not quite complete, it promises to be the finest in the State. It is probably the best lighted in this city. Electricity both for light and power is furnished by a private electric light and power plant. The show room, large and attractive, has a large turn-table in the centre. This room is devoted entirely to storage even the washstand is located in another room. The repair department is probably the finest and best equipped in the State, located on the second boor. This floor is reached by a large electric elevator, there is also an extra large washstand, engine room and stock room located on the ground floor.

MISS AGNES SHARKEY BRIDE OF W. S. STEWART.

Miss Agnes Sharkey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sharkey, of Whitewood avenue, and Walter S. Stewart, of Watchung, the borough, were married at 7:30 o'clock last evening. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, and was followed by a reception.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss E. Blanche Sharkey, as bridemaid, and Robert L. Alpaugh, of this city, was best man. The couple will reside on Watchung avenue, the borough. Mr. Stewart is employed in this city as a stationary engineer.

Proctor's Great Show.

Forest Cheney, an exceptionally good violinist, will appear at Proctor's theatre today with the change of bill. He is a clever performer, possessing a style decidedly his own. The "Three Dancing Sunbeams," three acrobatic dancers are good, and will doubtless make a hit. Weston and Berner present a comedy sketch, and Rose and Seavers, in a comedy sketch, "The Automobile Disaster," will interest the motor sports.

New Market Court.

Justice Rogers yesterday rendered judgment for possession of premises in favor of W. M. Ostrander in two landlord and tenant cases. The defendants were A. E. Hickman and Henry Robinson. Former Assemblyman Von Minden was the attorney for the plaintiff in both actions.

GEO. WATSON
Selling Out Entire Stock To Close Estate

All Men's Clothing, Furnishings, Hats, Shoes, etc., in the Geo. Watson Stores at Broad and Market Streets, will be closed out

Below Cost

The Geo. Watson Stores is one of the landmarks of Newark. Established over 60 years ago, it has, by reason of the honesty of its business methods and the high standard of quality excellence which has been maintained in its stock, become famous throughout the whole State of New Jersey.

Since the decease of the owner his fine business principles have been upheld and the same superiority of quality has distinguished the stock of this store. Today the name of Watson stands for all that's fair and best in merchandising in Newark and beyond.

The stocks now in the store are at the full tide of completeness, embracing the very latest fashions in Men's Clothing and accessories of all kinds, and only the necessity for the settlement of the estate could warrant such a sacrifice as is now announced.

It is deemed unnecessary to urge upon those who read this announcement the extraordinary nature of the opportunity now presented.

THE SALE BEGINS SATURDAY JUNE 11th, 8:30 A. M.

The store will be closed until then in preparation.

LECTURE ON MARTIN LUTHER PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE.

A large audience listened to a splendid lecture on Martin Luther and his life given by Dr. F. A. Holtzhausen, of New York, formerly of Germany, in Warren chapel last night. The dominant note in the lecturer's picture of the wonderful experiences of the great German Reformer was his fortitude under trying circumstances. The sublime faith of Luther, his determination and his eventual triumph were all vividly portrayed by the lecturer.

Dr. Holtzhausen showed a wonderful familiarity with the subject and kept the audience spellbound. After the lecture a collection was taken up which was highly satisfactory. It was the same lecture that was given at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church last week and which was reviewed in this paper at the time.

Children Get Playgrounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred B. Jenkins, of Llewellyn Park, have given to the town of West Orange a three-acre plot to be forever dedicated to the use of the younger children as a playground. It is stipulated that the ground shall be for the little children only and that it shall be closed on Sundays.

HOME FOR AGED WOMEN

Catharine Webster's Bequest to Be Used for Old Ladies Institution.

TO FORM A CORPORATION.

A Meeting to Be Held on Tuesday, June 21, to Elect the Officers and Directors for the Home.

At a meeting held at the office of John Van Winkle last night for the purpose of forming a corporation to carry out the provisions of the will of the late Catharine Webster, preliminary steps were taken to that end. The will provides for the establishment through such a corporation of a home for aged women and the corporate name will be Plainfield Old Ladies' Home.

Those present at the meeting and who will act as incorporators are the following: Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, William J. Buttfield, Charles E. Vail, Charles J. Fisk, Clarence B. Vail, George D. Hallock and Horace G. Phillips. A meeting will be held on Tuesday, June 21, to complete the incorporation and elect a board of directors.

Miss Webster, at the time of her death about three years ago, was the oldest member of the Plainfield meeting of the Religious Society of Friends, and she always was active in the work of the society. She was a remarkable woman for her age in many respects, having frequently made a pleasure trip to and from California alone. She delighted in travel and was of a very observing nature. She was a pleasing conversationalist and possessed strong descriptive powers of mind.

The home to be established for aged women is the old homestead at East Second and Church streets, according to Miss Webster's will, and it is expected that those who have been chosen as incorporators will soon plan to cary out the provisions of the will.

WILL NOT BE WITHOUT PASTORS THIS SUMMER

Owing to the fact that he had made a previous engagement to speak in Brooklyn in connection with the annual Sunday school demonstration, Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire did not address the Plainfield Ministers' Association yesterday. He will do so, however, at some future date.

There was a discussion of vacation plans with a view to having at least one or two of the ministers here during the summer season to officiate at funerals and look after other duties connected with their office. This was done last year and the plan was satisfactory. The local undertakers will also be informed as to the whereabouts of the pastors so that they can be reached quickly in case they are needed.

The association will hold its next meeting with Rev. C. L. Goodrich at the Congregational church. In the meantime a program for the meeting will be prepared. Those present at yesterday's meeting were Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, Rev. Dr. G. H. Whitney, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, Rev. L. R. Howard, Rev. John Y. Broek, Rev. J. W. Musson and Rev. C. S. Kemble.

THE WEATHER.

Showers tonight and Saturday; moderate to brisk east winds with fog.

Maximum, 78; minimum, 54.

Festival Was a Success.

The strawbery and ice cream festival held on the lawn of the Temple Baptist church yesterday afternoon and evening, was a sucess in every particular. Despite the inclement weather, a large number of people enjoyed the affair and a substantial sum was realized for the church building fund. This committee was in charge: Edward Baker, Jr., chairman; Mrs. Frank Stewart, Mrs. John W. Musson, Mrs. Edward Baker, Jr., Mrs. Charles Griffin and Frank Stewart.

Funeral of George E. Hyatt.

The funeral services of George Edgar Hyatt were held from the late home on Carlton avenue, at 8:30 o'clock, last night, and were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. F. W. Carpenter, pastor of the Twenty-fourth street M. E. church, New York, of which Mr. Hyatt was a member for many years, conducted the services. The burial took place today at Hillside cemetery.

LITTLE FOLKS ENTERTAIN

Under Miss Bullock's Direction, the Youngsters Give a Performance.

FUN FOR THE CHILDREN.

And for the Grown-ups too, for the Evening's Affair Made Them Long to Be Young Again.

If the audience at the Franklin School entertainment last night enjoyed themselves half as much as the little folks who participated, Miss Noel J. Bullock, the principal, and her associates responsible for the perfection shown by the children, may feel repaid. It was a select audience, composed of those who had children in the performance, those who wished their children were taking part, and those who simply wished they had children if they could be as dainty and wideawake as the little ones in costumes on the stage. And the audience was always appreciative of the children—even when they belonged to other folks, which unfortunately is not always the case.

From opening chorus to grand finale and flash light picture the work was done with a snap and go whish made it real fun for the children on the stage, and often real funny for the onlookers. Little folks are so much nearer nature than their elders that it seemed wholly natural to hear them sing of lillies, buttercups, and hollyhocks, and daintily appropriate costuming added much to the beauty of the changing pictures. It was not the best of weather for forget-me-nots and pansies. One or two of the little flowers failed to blossom, but the fact seemed to take nothing from the real enjoyment of those who sang and danced through their several parts, to leave the stage amid rounds of well merited applause.

The boys could sing—and sing heartily, and if the little girls beat them at this they more than made up for it in the enthusiasm of their dancing. There was more than one bald head in the audience who would have changed places with anyone of the little lads—and thrown his bank account in to boot—just to be a grasshopper or a busy bee once more.

Several of the children gave piano solos, and these were rendered with an accuracy and expression truly remarkable in such young performers. Miss Pearle V. Knapp was busy most of the evening playing marches and accompaniments, and the success of the program was due in no small degree to the care she exercised in taking time from the children as they danced or sung. Without exception the little people did excellent work, showing the result of careful training. The affair was altogether enjoyable, and if there was a note of pathos anywhere it could have been found in the heart of the older men of the audience who longed—last night at least—to be a bumble bee or a grasshopper, and play once more among the flowers.

PLAINFIELD GRADUATES TO ATTEND PEDDIE EXERCISES.

Plainfield Graduates of Peddie Institute have received invitations to attend the forty-fourth annual commencement exercises to be held June 12-15. On Sunday morning, June 12, Rev. Dr. Edward Judson, of New York, will preach the baccalaureate sermon and in the evening, Dr. Enoch Perine, of Bucknell University, will preach.

On the following afternoon at 2 o'clock, the dual track and field meet, Peddie vs. Trenton High School, will be held and in the evening at 8 o'clock there will be the Junior prize declamation contest. Tuesday morning, June 14, at 10 o'clock class day exercises will be held, followed at 3 o'clock in the afternoon with a baseball game between Peddie and the Hightstown team. At 6:30 there will be a promenade concert and the alumni and class reunions will be held at 7:30 with the Junior reception at 8:30. The commencement exercises will be held Wednesday morning, June 15, at 10:30, when Rev. Dr. Robert Staurt MacArthur, of New York, will make the address. The commencement dinner will be held at 1 o'clock.

Announce Approaching Wedding.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. William M. Walsh, of 226 East Second street, to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Anna Lillian Walsh, and Isaiah William Crowell, of Winthrop, Mass. The ceremony will be performed Saturday afternoon, June 18, at 5 o'clock, at the home of her parents. Rev. Mr. Sylvester, rector of the Episcopal church, Somerville, will officiate.

STATE S.S. CONVENTION MAY TAKE PLACE HERE

The question of extending an invitation to the State Sunday School Association to meet here in 1911 was considered at some length at a meeting of the Plainfield Ministers' Association, held at the Crescent Avenue Presbtyerian church yesterday afternoon. The matter was laid before the ministers by Rev. Samuel D. Price, representing the State association. The majority were in favor of the proposition, but felt that a conference should first be held with the superintendents of the Sunday schools before taking definite action.

Such a conference has been called for Monday night at the Y. M. C. A. when it will be decided whether to extend the invitation. Mr. Price explained very fully the scope and plan of such a gathering, stating that Plainfielders would be called upon to provide free entertainment for a very few visitors, the majority standing the expense themselves.

It was further explained by Mr. Price that the State association provides a good program, including addresses by the most prominent Christian workers obtainable and such gatherings are always of great benefit, he said, to a community and its Sunday schools. The session lasts about two days and a half. The association has received an invitation to go to Trenton in 1912, and the 1911 date is still open.

REV. AND MRS. MATHIEWS THIRTEEN YEARS MARRIED

The thirteenth wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. Franklin K. Mathiews was celebrated pleasantly last night at the Baptist church parsonage, Scotch Plains, when a large number of the congregation gathered to offer congratulations. The parsonage was well filled with guests and the evening was given up to genuine sociability. During the festivities two handsome cut-glass dishes were presented to Mrs. Mathiews on behalf of the congregation. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Mr. Mathiews has been pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church eighteen months and has been successful in his work. He came here from the South, his pastorate previous to that being at Ridgewood. He is beloved by his people both as pastor and preacher. Aside from his pastoral work, Mr. Mathiews finds time to contribute interesting articles to religious periodicals. Mrs. Mathiews is also highly esteemed by the members of the church as a coworker with her husband.

Tonight Last Night for Local Automobile Exhibit.

The Chalmers Educational Automobile Exhibit which has been the centre of attraction at the A. C. Thompson Automobile salesroom during the past week, will go to New Haven Saturday noon. If you have not already seen this exhibit you should not fail to take advantage of this means to study the workings of an automobile. ***

BOOST EXCURSION RATES

Jersey Central Also Raises the Price of Ten and Fifty Trip Tickets.

THE SINGLE FARES, TOO.

New Order as Posted Goes Into Effect on July 1.—Report That it Would be Recalled is Semi-Officially Denied.

Closely following the recent announcement that the New Jersey Central on July 1 would raise the monthly commutation rates for suburban traffic twenty-five cents per month, comes the information now that there will be an increase in the rates for excursion tickets, which will materially effect Plainfield and nearby towns. The latest increase is not a great surprise, the fact having been intimated when the commutation rates were jumped.

The new single and excursion rates for Plainfield and vicinity follows:

	Single.	Exc.
Plainfield	.60	$1.05
Netherwood	.60	1.00
Grant Avenue	.65	1.10
Clinton Avenue	.65	1.15
Fanwood	.55	90
Dunellen	.70	1.20
Bound Brook	.80	1.35

The new rate for the fifty-trip tickets will be as follows: Netherwood, $17.75; Plainfield, $18.50; Grant avenue, $19.25; Clinton avenue, $20.

This will be the new rate for ten-trip tickets: Netherwood, $4.50; Plainfield, $4.75; Grant Avenue, $4.95; Clinton Avenue, $5.20.

There was a rumor today that these rates would be held up pending the action of Congress, but inquiry at the office of W. C. Hope, general passenger agent of the New Jersey Central, this afternoon, brought the information that nothing had been heard there of such action and that the rates would become effective July 1 as planned and announced.

Children's Day at the 'Plains.

Elaborate Children's Day exercises will be held at the Scotch Plains Baptist church, Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock, in charge of the pastor, Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews. In addition to a special program of music by the children's choir of the church, and Frank Fitzgerald, the gospel singer and church choir, there will be addresses by Walter M. Irvin, and J. E. Church.

Caught a Fine Bass.

John Doughty Jr., the eleven-year-old son of John Doughty, of the borough, caught a fine black bass in Tier's pond yesterday. The fish is considered one of the finest specimens seen this year, weighing two pound and six ounces. The lad caught the fish with a rod and reel.

BOROUGH HIGH JUNIORS ARE SEEN IN COMEDY

The members of the Junior class of the North Plainfield High School acquitted themselves creditably last night in their presentation of the mythological comedy, "Pygmalion and Galatea," before an audience of several hundred friends at the Park Club auditorium. The clear enunciation and stage presence showed quite plainly the advantage of careful coaching. The play consumed two hours time, after which dancing was enjoyed until midnight. Squier's orchestra furnished the music

Although the work of every one in the cast was commendable, J. Percival Watson, as Pygmalion, and Andrew Stightz as Chrysos, and also as Agesemos, appeared to merit particular mention. Miss Claire M. Stahberger, the coach, was presented with a book by the cast in appreciation of her services. The costuming of the players was also under the direction of Miss Stahberger.

The cast: Ppgmalyon, John Percival Watson; Leucyspe, Harry B. Jackson; Chrysos, Andrew Stiglitz; Agesimos, Andrew Stiglitz; Memos, Edward F. Bodin; Galatea, Adelaide Stiglitz; Aynisca, Agnes DeCamp; Daphne, Lena Rilling; Myrine, Elizabeth Conroy.

Jacob Abrams was the business manager and Pierson Baily the stage manager. A small profit was realized from the play.

BENEVOLENT BAND'S ANNUAL LAWN PARTY

Under the auspices of the Benevolent Band of The King's Daughters, of which Mrs. Frank Sprague Martin is the president, a successful garden party was held yesterday afternoon on the handsome and spacious lawn of Mrs. Stephen A. Ginna on Watchung avenue. The lawn was attractively arranged with booths and tables, the colors of the order being used with good effect.

Among the things offered for sale were cake, fancy and useful articles, aprons, flowers, ice cream, lemonade and fancy baskets. The sale was most successful, about $145 being realized by the women. The heads of the various committees in charge were as follows:

Fancy articles, Mrs. L. R. Hopton; ice cream, Mrs. W. L. C. Glenney; useful articles, Mrs. F. V. L. Jones, Mrs. E. B. Shoemaker; candy, Mrs. E. E. Parvin; aprons, Mrs. Lewis Miller, Mrs. H. J. Cochran; cake, Mrs. E. F. Craft and Miss Mary L. Storrs; flowers, Miss Eva Browne; baskets, Miss Katherine Browne; lemonade, Mrs. Josiah Browne and Mrs. Henry Lapsley. Aside from the sale, the social features were greatly enjoyed by the large number of patrons present.

Will Entertain Primary Department.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Murray, of 205 West Ninth street, will entertain the primary department of the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church Sunday-school, at their home tomorrow afternoon.

SEMINARY PERFORMANCE

Three Plays Produced by the Students Merit General Approval.

AUDIENCE IS ENTHUSIASTIC.

Dancing is Enjoyed by Members of the Cast and Their Friends Following the Entertainment.

Seminary Hall was filled last evening by an expectant audience some of whom were present at the dress rehearsal of the day before. Their anticipations were fully realized.

First came the elusive fairy tale, "The Land of Heart's Desire," by the Irish poet, W. B. Yeats. On a May eve, the plot runs, a humble Irish home is encompased by an invisible host of fairy folk playing, singing and dancing in the ethereal fashion of such sprites, while the most bewitching of their number enters the cottage in the form a child and so fascinates the newly married bride that she is ready to leave all for the Land of Heart's Desire.

"A land where even the old are gair and even the wise are merry of tongue."

The second play took one to the artistic workship of Taddeo Ferrari, a famous violin maker of Cremona. The master's most gifted pupil, Filippo, is hopelessly deformed, but he is the possessor of an heroic soul. This play gives the story of Fillippo's renunciation of fame for the sake of Giannina, whom he loves, but who proves to be devotedly attached to his rival, Sandro.

Last of all came the rollicking farce of "The Orange Girl," an unpublished play by a Radcliffe graduate. In this farce a series of misunderstandings between Helen Morrison and George Colby, who have come in costume to an artists' studio, keep the audience in delightful suspense until the moment the curtain falls.

Where all the characters were so well taken it seems unfair to mention individual parts, but the audience had no such scruples and again and again showed its appreciation of exceptionally good interpretations of both tragic and humorous situations.

Dancing followed for the members of the cast and their friends.

"The Land of Hearts' Desire"—Bridget, Dorothy Leal; Father Hart, Eleanor Hatch; Marie, Gertrude Bowlby; Shawn, Helen Strong; Child, Monica Sharretts.

"The Violin Maker of Cremona"—Ferfrari, violin maker, Alverda Holland; Filippo, apprentice to Ferrari, Marie Boies; Sandro, apprentice to Ferrari, Edith Palmer; Giannina, Sylvia Curtis; Lucit, Gwendolen Gough; pages, Monica Sharretts and Dorothy Beeken.

"The Orange Girl"—Mr. Cuttle, Gertrude Bowlby; George Colby, Jean Wharton; Sandy MacDonald, Alverda Holland; Helen Morrison, Gabrielle MacQuaide; Mrs. Murphy, Gwendolen Gough.

Schumann-Heink Recital.

The Musical Club take great pleasure in announcing a recital by the great contralto, Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, to be given on Friday evening, December 2, next, in the High School auditorium. Mme. Schuman-Heink needs no introduction to any public. Her wonderful voice has a world wide reputation and her charm of manner makes her a favorite everywhere. Plainfield is very highly favored in having the opportunity to her such a great artist.

Will Make Commencement Address.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbtyerian church, will deliver the address at the annual commencement exercises of the Bernardsville High School, on Thursday night, June 16. On Friday night, June 17, he will give his lecture on "Palestine," at the Presbyterian church, Dunellen.

Lyman—Grant.

John R. Lyman, formerly a local reporter was married on May 28, in Hoboken, to Miss Mabel Grant, of North Plainfield. The witnesses to the ceremony was the bride's father, Robert Grant, of Grove street, and a brother. The couple will live in New York.

Brass Kettle Inn to Open.

The Brass Kettle Inn, on the Springfield road, corner of Glenside avenue, will be opened tomorrow as a first class chop house and tea room. Beefsteak and mushroom dinners a specialty. Finest cusine.

Club Run on June 23.

The club run of the Plainfield Automobile Club to Princeton, has been changed from June 16 to June 23, starting from the Park Club at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

WIFE PASSES AWAY, HE ENDS HIS LIFE

Dr. F. P Boulanger, Devotedly Attached to Wife, Follows Her in Death.

Owing to grief attending the death of his wife Matilda, Dr. Frank T. Boulanger, a veterinary surgeon of Hoboken, committed suicide this morning by inhaling illuminating gas. Mrs. Boulanger died yesterday after an illness of about two weeks and it is believed that her husband could not think of life without her and so made away with himself.

According to a dispatch from Hoboken, where the tragedy occurred, Dr. Boulanger left his house at 2 o'clock this morning and went to his office. At 8 o'clock an employe, George Carrig, went to open the office and discovered the doctor sitting upright with a gas jet turned on full tilt with a tube in his mouth and dead. So far as known the doctor left no letters explaining his act, but it is believed by those who have known the couple that their attachment was such that he could not bear the separation.

Dr. Boulanger succeeded the practice of the late Dr. John H. Dixon, who had also married a sister of Matilda, the wife of Dr. Boulanger. Both women were sisters of City Clerk James T. McMurray, who is in Hoboken today attending to the arrangements of the funeral of his sister.

Dr. Boulanger was thirty-four years old and his wife one year his junior. Mrs. Boulanger leaves four brothers and three sisters surviving. They are J. T., Hugh and Chas. G. MacMurray, of this city, and Andrew MacMurray, of Westfield, Mrs. Lewis J. Geary, of this city, Mrs. D. J. Dixon, of Hoboken, and Mrs. George Campbell, of Summit. Her mother, Mrs. James MacMurray, lives at Summit.

BAD YOUNG NEGRO HELD FOR THE GRAND JURY

Edward Peterson, a sixteen-year-old colored boy, was held under $100 bonds this morning by City Judge William N. Runyon for the action of the grand jury on a charge of entering and larceny. Richard Kea, of 648 South Second street, was the complainant.

Peterson, who has an unenviable record, lives in the same house with Kea and yesterday while Kea was away and Peterson alone in the house the later unlocked Kea's apartments and stole a revolver valued at $5. When Kea returned home he noticed that someone had been ransacking the apartment and he notified the police. It did not take Detective Sergeant Flynn long to make up his mind as to the thief and he nabbed Peterson and found the revolver on him.

Since he was ten years old Peterson has been a bother to the police. He was first arrested on June 2, 1905, for creating a disturbance and was found guilty of disorderly conduct for which he was fined $5. The fine was afterwards remitted. On January 8, 1908, he was convicted of larceny; July 10, 1907, robbery; January and May, 1909, he was arrested twice, once for gambling and once for fighting, and again on October 3, last year, for disorderly conduct. With this record to go by the chances are that Peterson will be placed in an institution where he will be harmless for some time to come.

Offers a Scholarship.

Superintendent H. C. Krebs of the North Plainfield schools, was today notified by President Warfield, of Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., that the choice of scholarship in full in the Latin, scientifis or classical course and half tution in the chemical, civil, mining or electrical engineering course would be awarded to any student that Superintendent Krebs might nominate for the honor from the North Plainfield High School. The scholarship is for one year and it will be renewed providing the student makes a creditable standing in his studies.

Latourette Released.

Raymond Latourette, one of the young men implicated with Cheshire and Francis in the burglarzing of stores in this city, was released under $500 bail yesterday. Charles Arnold, of Liberty street, signed the bond.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A number of Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews' parishioners (of the Baptist church) tendered he and Mrs. Mathiews a surprise party last night in honor of their thirteenth wedding anniversary. The pastor and his wife were taken entirely by surprise, but were equal to the occasion and the old parsonage was soon the scene of a happy gathering, several pleasant hours being spent playing games, enjoying music and social church chats. During the evening cream, chocolate and cake were served. Mr. and Mrs. Mathiews received a number of pretty as well as useful presents, which will be cherished as mementos of their thirteenth wedding anniversary.

Invitations are out for the wedding of Cora Davis, daughter of Mrs. Frederick A. Miller, of Front street, to Arthur Glover Stevens, of Plainfield. The marriage will be solemnized Wednesday evening, June 22, at the bride's home.

Children's Day exercises will be held Sunday evening at the Methodist church. A pleasing program has been arranged and the friends of the school and church are invited to attend.

Tomorrow the local ball team meets Plainfield on the home grounds. Manager Alberts has a strong lineup and the fans are assured of a good game.

Jackson Darby, who has been living for several months in Elizabeth, has returned to town.

M. A. Rose, of Terrell road, is serving as juror at the present term of court at Elizabeth.

Warren MacCauley has accepted a position with the Anchor Post and Iron Co., of Garwood.

Deegan and Alberts will be the battery in the game tomorrow against Plainfield.

The public school closes for the summer vacation Thursday afternoon June 23.

WOMAN EDITOR WIELDS BALL BAT AND HATPIN.

Passaic, June 10.—Armed with a hatpin and a baseball bat Mrs. Emma Lindenstruth, editor of the Passaic Wochenblatt, a German weekly paper, held off several officers Wednesday. They had come to levy on her printing office, which she acquired after the death of her husband two and a half years ago.

Mrs. Lindenstruth was busy in the composing room setting up type when the constables arived armed with the sheriff's paper. Mrs. Lindenstruth refused to be ejected. She was in house attire and begged the officers to withdraw while she arrayed herself in street costume. This was allowed.

When Mrs. Lindenstruth appeared from her bedroom she carried a baseball bat in one hand and a long sharp pointed hatpin in the other.

"We want you to vacate these premises on an order from the court," said Constable Gordon.

Mrs. Lindenstruth refused. The constable grabbed her by the arm and then she began wielding the baseball bat and the hatpin both at the same time. Things were getting exciting. The constables did not want to get hurt themselves. Finally she was escorted to the street.

—The south side of West Front street, west of Grant avenue, has been given a coating of oil, and Liberty street was similarly treated on Wednesday.

CLOSED PORTALS.

There are on exhibition at the Reed & Barton company's shop, Fifth avenue and Thirty-second street, New York, three beautiful silver prizes to be contested for at the Triennial Conclave of the Knights Templars in Chicago next August. The grand prize is a massive sterling silver centrepiece, twenty-nine inches high, embellished on the front with the Knights Templars emblem, and is to be awarded to the winning commandery of the United States outside Illinois. A sterling shield and helmet will be given to the successful commandery in Illinois outside Chicago, and to the most proficient commandery in Chicago will be awarded a sterling libation set of twenty-five pieces, including the ewer, twelve goblets and twelve candlesticks.

Retired Banker Dies.

Cranford, June 10.—Benjamin F. Ham, seventy-four years old, died suddenly yesterday morning at his home, Brookside place. He was a retired Wall street banker and broker, treasurer of the Union Water Company and was prominent in Union Pacific Railroad circles in former days. Three daughters and a son survive him.

STATE BAR "EXAMS."

Trenton, June 10.—The regular State bar examinations were conducted at the State house yesterday. The number of candidates to take the test as attorney was fifty-four and thirty-five attorneys appeared for examination as counsel. This is about the usual number. The successful candidates will be announced in a few days and then those who passed will appear before the Court of Edrrors and Appeals and take the oath required of all lawyers in this State. The bar examiners are Frank H. Sommer, of Newark; Howard M. Cooper, of Camden, and Charles H. Hartshorne, of Jersey City.

THE VALUE OF BOOKS.

Books as containing the finest records of human wit, must always enter into our notion of culture. The best heads that ever existed—Pericles, Plato, Julius Caesar, Shakespeare, Goethe, Milton—were well-read, universally educated men and quite too wise to under value letters. Their opinion has weight, because they had means of knowing the opposite opinion.

We look that a great man should be a good reader, or, in proportion to the spontaneous power, should be the assimilating power. Good criticism is very rare and always precious. I am always happy to meet persons who perceive the transcendent superiority of Shakespeare over all other writers. I like people who like Plato. Because this love does not consist of self-conceit.

Books are good only as far as a boy is ready for them. He sometimes gets ready very slowly. You send your child to the schoolmaster; but 'tis the schoolboys who educate him. You send him to the Latin class, but much of his tuition comes, on his way to school, from the shop windows. You like the strict rules and long terms; and he finds his best leading in a byway of his own, and refuses any companion but of his choosing.

THEY WANT TUTTLE AS THEIR CANDIDATE

William E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, chairman of the Democratic County Committee, is being quietly boomed by his friends as the Democratic Congressional candidate and from present indications he will be the unanimous choice of the Union county Democrats when the delegates assemble in convention in the fall. There is apparently no question as to Mr. Tuttle running. He was in Elizabeth on Tuesday and talked the matter over with prominent Democrats there. It was learned yesterday he has practically decided to enter the race.

James E. Martine, the "Farmer Orator," who a few years ago gave Congressman Fowler the closest run the latter ever had, favors Mr. Tuttle and will not try for the nomination in opposition to the Democratic county chairman.

Notice has been sent out to the members of the Democratic County Committee stating that the first gun in the campaign will be fired at a meeting of the County Committee to be held at the headquarters of the Elizabeth Democratic Club, 21 Broad street, in that city tonight.

"We are getting on the job early this year," said a prominent Elizabeth Democrat yesterday, "because we realize that the opportunities for success are more favorable than they have been for the last decade.

An effort was made to learn whether or not Mr. Tuttle's boom for Congress would be formally launched at the meeting tonight but the members of the County Committee who were seen expressed the opinion that the meeting would simply be a "get-together" affair and there would be no "booming."

The standing committees to serve for the coming year will be announced at the meeting and several prominent speakers will be present and give "short talks" along practical lines. Refreshments will be served and suitable entertainment provided.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

A lodge of the Order of Moose was instituted in Woodbury last night with more than 100 charter members.

The Cumberland Board of Freeholders adjourned their session Wednesday to attend a circus which was in town.

Ventnor is to join Atlantic City in forcing a "sane Fourth," Mayor Richards having issued a proclamation forbidding the explosion of dangerous fireworks anywhere in the resort.

Thomas A. Wilson, a Camden contractor, who is repaving King street, Gloucester, gave the street its first pavement in 1870. He is nearly ninety years old, but still actively at work.

With a delinquent tax list amounting to about $4,000 the Winslow Township Committee has found it necessary to employ a special collector, and has appointed E. A. Cramer in that capacity.

In response to a petition signed by 164 of the 430 voters of Woodstown borough a special election has been ordered by the Council for Tuesday, July 12, to decide upon the retention or rejection of the voting machine.

Horse will be king for the remainder of the week at the grounds of the Camden County Country Club, at Collingswood. The fifth annual exhibition of the West Jersey Horse Show Association opened yesterday morning.

On the ground of desertion Mrs. Mary D. Rudloph, of 223 North Tenth street, Camden, has been granted a divorce from Louis S. Rudolph, of Washington, D. C. Mrs. Rudolph was also given the custody of her eighteen-year-old son.

The first person was committed to the Cumberland county jail for refusal to pay his tax by Collector William H. McGar Monday. He is Herman Biddle, of Willow street. He owed $1.93 tax and fifty cents costs, making a total of $3.43.

At the annual meeting of the Alumni Association of West Jersey Academy, Frank R. Bacon, of Bridgeton, was elected president; James Le Roy Lafferty, of Newark, vice-president, and Devoe Tomlinson, of Bridgeton, secretary and treasurer.

The Millville Woman's Club met yesterday afternoon and considered the method which should be pursued in the elimination of the house fly and the English sparrow. The question of our public schools in their relation to health was also discussed.

Dr. Francis Newton Thorpe, of Mt. Holly, has accepted a call to the chair of constitutional history at the Western University of Pennsylvania at Pittsburg, to take effect upon his return from a year's trip to Germany, on which he will leave next month with his family.

A party is being formed to search the woods and ponds for Burton Cole, the fifteen-year-old son of Dr. S. S. Cole, of Vineland, who disappeared last Saturday. The boy is six feet tall and has a tatto mark in the palm of his hand. He wore green trousers, blue coat and blue serge cap.

John W. Manning, president of the Trenton Water Board, has resigned, and his resignation has been accepted. His term did not expire until January, 1913. No reason was assigned for the resignation, but it is understood it was tendered because of criticism to which the board has recently been subjected.

Alleging that a fire which just one year ago burned over a large area to the south of Toms River village was started by a locomotive on the Philadelphia and Long Branch Railroad, six property owners in the vicinity are now suing that subsidiary company of the Pennsylvania Railroad for amounts that aggregate $60 000.

Judge Scott in Paterson yesterday acquitted Ralph Improto, Salcatore Falboe and Charles Silverstine, striking weavers of the Doherty & Wadsworth Co., charged with threatening to kill Adolph Glick. The court gave the men a warning not to interfere with any other man's privileges, and one of these is that a man may work for whom he pleases.

Escaping from the State Home for Boys at Jamesburg, Raymond Ruskin, seventeen years old, was captured in Camden Wednesday as he was about to leave a freight train at Front and Vine streets. In reply to a question Ruskin said: "I got tired of being cooped up and got out; that's all." The boy was employed in the kitchen at the home and disappeared last Saturday.

Jewels valued at $20,000 were overlooked Monday night by a thief who broke into the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Manz, 2 South Brighton avenue, Chelsea. The intruder was frightened off by the return of members of the family, and only a few articles of silverware were taken. Mrs. Manz's jewels had been left in a case on her dressing table, and how the thief came to miss them is a mystery.

The action of the Board of Freeholders of Salem county Wednesday afternoon in refusing to build another State road in Woodstown Borough was a disappointment to the citizens of that municipality. The freeholders' committee inspected the street which the borough authorities desired improved and recommended to the board that the work be done. The proposed improvement was defeated by a vote of 8 to 3.

SPANISH WAR "VETS" ENCAMPMENT TOMORROW.

Members of the State camps of Spanish War Veterans are interested in the annual State convention of the organization to be held in Paterson, tomorrow, and Camp Bageley, of this city, will be represented. Besides the election of officers the delegates will arrange for the participation on June 18 in the parade welcoming the return of Theodore Roosevelt. The program tomorrow will include a meeting of the council of administration at 1 o'clock, reception of delegates and department encampment business. This will be followed by a parade at 6 o'clock in the evening and mess at 7 o'clock.

A change in the office of department commander is scheduled to take place. William D. Newman, of Hackensack, will retire and Captain C. Albert Gasser, of Newark, is the most prominent candidate to succeed to the head of the department. Other probable changes are the promotion of Frederick Edge, of Jersey City, from junior to senior vice-commander. Harmon S. Stratton, of Paterson, is said to be the leading candidate for junior vice-commander.

John J. Brereton Camp of Paterson will entertain the visiting delegates. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Veterans' Association will hold their convention at the same time.

FIFTY UNDER TEST FOR TEACHER'S CERTIFICATES.

Trenton, June 10.—Fifty applicants for State teachers' certificates presented themselves before the State Board of Examiners at the State house yesterday. The examinations will continue for three days and it is expected that by Saturday there will be about 250 candidates taking the examinations.

The subjects in which examinations were given yesterday were geometry, botany, literature, stenography, principals and practice of the kindergarten and business practice. The subjects to be taken up today are psyschology, manual training, physics, drawing, chemistry, bookkeeping, commercial arithmetic, music, ancient and modern languages. On Saturday the examinations will be in theory and practice, science of education, school law, history of education and physical training.

Several new members will be received at the next communion service at the First Baptist church.

GOLF.

A triple tie for the lead marked the first round in the Women's Eastern Golf Association championship tournament over the links of the Huntingdon Valley Country Club Wednesday. Mrs. E. C. Wheeler, Jr., of Wollaston, the title holder; Miss Fanny Osgood, of Brooklyn, an erstwhile champion, and Mrs. R. H. Barlow, one of the foremost of the Philadelphia set, returned scores of 87 each.

Only about a third of the women who were gathered here on Monday and yesterday for the intercity matches remained over for the Eastern tournament, and out of the twenty-one cards returned only two belonged to contestants from the New York district. The best of these was an 89 by Miss Julia R. Mix, of Englewood, good enough to place the former champion of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association in fourth place, a stroke behind Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, of the home club.

In getting her 87 Miss Osgood reeled off a fine 41 on the homeward journey. In fact, her card for the entire round was consistent, showing nothing worse than sixes. Mrs. Barlow got a capital 5 at the 495-yard third hole against the wind, and her only bad hole was a 7 at the ninth.

Mrs. Wheeler started out in rare form, reaching the turn in 41, the best of any. A poor start cost Miss Mix a 6 at the first and an 8 at the third, but thereafter until the seventeenth, where a 7 was recorded, the Englewood girl had a succession of fine holes.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and act on several applications.

HE SEEKS INJUNCTION IN THE SNEAD CASE

Franklin W. Fort, the son of Governor Fort and counsel for Miss Virginia Wardlaw, one of the sisters who are now awaiting trial for murder on the charge of having been responsible for the death of Ocey W. Snead, has filed a bill in the United States Circuit Court at Trenton asking for an injunction to restrain Prosecutor Wilbur A. Mott from using as evidence against Miss Wardlaw any property which may have been obtained by them by illegal search and seizure. The court has issuded a notice to the prosecutor and six of his assistants in the prosecution of the Wardlaw and Snead cases of its ruling that Fort's application will be returnable for argument in Trenton next Monday.

The step that Mr. Fort has taken is said to be an unusual one and designed to test the right of the police and public prosecutors to enter the house of suspects and carry away evidence in the shape of letters, photographs, etc., without being armed with a search warrant.

A great mass of documentary evidence was collected by New York and New Jersey detectives in the various houses that the women occupied, and all of it was turned over to the prosecutor of Essex County. This was done at the time under the protest of Miss Wardlaw and her two sisters, who were jointly charged with her.

Besides Prosecutor Mott those included in the injunction sought by Mr. Fort are former Assistant Prosecutor Louis Hood, William J. Kinsley, a handwriting expert in the service of the prosecutor; Alfred J. Hargan, a detective attached to the prosecutor's office; Chief of Police James Bell, of East Orange; Harry M. Riker and Harry J. O'Neill, detectives of East Orange.

FELL IN FIT ON HOT STOVE, BADLY BURNED.

Trenton, June 10.—An effort not to excite her neighbors may cost Mrs. Anna Cheeseman, a Trenton woman, her life, as she is in a precarious condition at St. Francis' Hospital suffering from terrible burns. Mrs. Cheeseman, who has been subject to fits from childhood, was seized with an attack Wednesday and fell over a hot stove. Although she suffered excruciating pain, she was unable to drag herself to a place of safety.

Realizing her condition was serious, she started to walk to St. Francis Hospital, and determined not to excite her neighbors by asking for aid. Before she reached the hospital she fell unconscious in the street and was not discovered for an hour afterwards. Those who found her believed she was intoxicated and had her removed to the Second precinct police station. There her real plight was discovered. Physicians at the hospital are doubtful as to her recovery.

The Junior Band of the First Baptist church will hold its closing exercises this afternoon.

DELAY MOVE TO LEARN STATE BOARD'S SECRETS.

Trenton, June 10.—The mandamus proceedings instituted on behalf of Mark M. Fagan, of the Hudson County Tax Board, to compel the State Board of Assessors to disclose information relative to the assessment of the new Pennsylvania Railroad tunnel, were reached on the call of the calendar in the main branch of the Supreme Court yesterday.

Merritt Lane, who appeared for Mr. Fagan, told the court he was ready to proceed with the case, but the attorney-general, who represented the assessors, had been unable to prepare for oral argument. For this reason Mr. Lane asked that the case be set down for argument next Monday. Justice Swayze demurred to this suggestion, saying there was no assurance that the court would be here next Monday. He also criticized the practice of lawyers who failed to have their cases prepared in time for argument on the regular call and then expect the court to fix later dates to suit their convenience.

Justice Garrison, who was presiding in the branch, suggested that as Mr. Lane was ready to go on with his side of the case, and the court was prepared to hear the argument, he would be quite within his rights to move the case and argue it. Mr. Lane said he was unwilling to do this, as the question involved was one of great public importance, and he wished to take no unfair advantage of the attorney-general. He pointed out that the rule in the mandamus proceedings was granted only a few days ago, and with the pressure of legal work coincident with the Supreme Court term it had been difficult for lawyers to find the hours and minutes necessary to prepare their cases.

There was no representative of the attorney-general's office in court at the time, and Mr. Lane said he would like an opportunity to consult the office before moving the case.

It was agreed that the case should be marked for argument next Monday. If the court is not in session on that day an effort will be made to have the branch sit on Monday following, when the court will be here for the reading of opinions in the Court of Errors and Appeals.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan, of Duer street, both graduates of Peddie Institute, are planning to attend the commencement exercises in connection with which Mrs. Tonzo Sauvage, who was Miss Elsie Peddie, will give a banquet to the Kalamathia Society, of which she is a member.

Plainfield, N. J., June 10, 1910.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Children's Day will be observed at the Seventh-Day Baptist church tomorrow morning at the time of the regular service.

A dance was held in the parish house of St. Stephen's church last night under the auspices of the Junior Boys' Club.

The Men's Association of Warren chapel, will meet tonight and listen to an address by Rev. Ernest R. Brown, pastor of the Presbtyerian church, Dunellen.

At a business meeting of the Men's Association of Heavenly Rest church last night plans were perfected for all day festival on Saturday, June 25. The members enjoyed a smoker.

An old-fashioned singing school entertainment will be held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church probably on Tuesday night, June 21. Several rehearsals have been held and the affair promises to be an enjoyable one.

At the Plainfield Rescue Mission tonight at 8 o'clock, in the W. C. T. U. rooms, Charles Jacobs, a reformed drunkard from the old Jerry McAuley Mission, New York, will give a talk on his life. There will be special music.

Appreciate $5,000 Bequest.

The Board of Managers of the Children's Home, together with a number of friends and well-wishers of the Home, held a social gathering at the institution yesterday afternoon, following a short business meeting. Refreshments were served. The women recalled with much pleasure the recent bequest of $5,000 to the Home through the will of the late Mrs. Minnie E. Edgerton and expressed gratification over the remembrance.

Hill Climbing Contest July 9.

Under the auspices of the American Automobile Association the Plainfield Automobile Club will hold a hill climbing contest on Johnston's Drive on Saturday, July 9. Permission has been obtained from the North Plainfield Township Committee for the affair, also for practice climbs on the three preceding days, July 6, 7 and 8, from 9 o'clock in the morning to 3 in the afternoon. The course is seven-eights of a mile long.

Democratic County Committee Meet.

The Democratic County Committee will meet tonight in Library hall, the headquarters in Elizabeth, to discuss matters appertaining to the fall campaign and other things of interest to the party in this section. In addition to the talkfest there will be an entertainment and refreshments for the faithful who attend.

HOSPITAL MEMORIAL TO HAROLD POMEROY

Impressive ceremonies marked the dedication of the Alfonzo Rockwell Cluett Foundation Building of Pawling School, New York, yesterday. Rt. Rev. Dr. P. Gray, bishop of Florida, Rt. Rev. Dr. Harding, bishop of Washington, and Henry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago, were present. The building dedicated yesterday was the gift of George Bywater Cluett, of Troy, who gave $150,000 for its erection in memory of his son, Alfonzo Rockwell Cluett, who was a pupil of Dr. Gamage, the headmaster of the school.

Following fast upon the Cluett Foundation will be a chapel, the gift of George D. Cross, president of the alumni association. Then will follow a hospital, which will be built by Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Pomeroy, of Park place, this city, in memory of Mrs. Pomeroy's son, Harold Lawrence Mulford, who died in February last.

KNIGHTS OF THE PIN GATHER AT BANQUET

A jolly crowd of bowlers and their guests gathered round the festivie board at Henry Windham's banquet room last night to render homage to the valiant team which went to Baltimore and returned with the prize belonging to thirtieth place in the international tournament, and which, by the way, put Plainfield prominently before the bowlers of other cities not alone for their excellent handling of the heavy globes but for their geniality and all-around sportmanship.

Francis J. Blatz was the toastmaster and he made 'em all take notice that he has it on some of the others by a gift of humor hard to beat. The banquet was all that could be desired and was thoroughly enjoyed by the fifteen diners.

V. W. Nash, Jr., tol dhow it happened, why the first prize was not brought back by the Plainfield contingent, and Charlie Matthews told how the Baltimore people impressed him. "Alvah" Burscher gave an imitation of how to always carry the ready money and if you haven't got it how to get it. Wm. Smith, Chief Kiely, Edward Laing, Alvah Vliet, and W. R. Causebrook contributed their share toward the general enjoyment in witty speeches and Chauncey F. Stout prognosticated something better for 1911 when Buffalo will be the battle ground. James F. Buckle contributed a charactertistic speech which was much enjoyed.

The team in whose honor the banquet was given are: W. V. Nash, Jr., W. R. Causebrook, Norman Burscher, William Schaub and Charles Matthews. Former Mayor Buckle, George I. Forgerson, William Cass and George Firstbrook were guests of the club.

Can You Beat This.

Rival claimants for the honor of having grown the largest as well as the most lucious strawberries are found in the persons of William W. Waters, of Dunellen, and George Schenck, of Piscataway township. Judging by reports received today they are both entitled to some sort of a prize. Mr. Walter's prize berry measures 1⅜ inches thick, 1¾ long and 2½ wide, giving the berry a circumference of 6¼ inches. Mr. Schenck's berry is of a flatter variety but has a circumference of exactly eight inches. Both berries were on exhibition yesterday in Dunellen and were pronounced the largest ever produced in that section of the State.

To Cook Cabbage.

To have good cabbage without bacon put in your granite pot a large kitchen spoonful of lard and let it come to a hard boil. Having cut your cabbage as for slaw, only much coarser, drop it into the hot lard right from the water. Sprinkle a generous tablespoonful of salt and a small quantity of cayenne pepper through the cabbage, adding only two tablespoonfuls of water. Cook with a lid, only removing it occasionally to stir the cabbage and to see that the salt has drawn sufficient liquor to prevent burning. When done, it is superior to old-time boiled cabbage and requires much less time to prepare. Cooking with a close-fitting lid does the work. Never allow cabbage to cook until it is red, because this not only injures the flavor, but makes the vegetable indigestible.

WESTFIELD'S SCHOOL ELECTION WAS WARM

The citizens of Westfield at a school election, yesterday, carried the proposition to build an eight or ten-room addition to the Washington School, as against the one to pur- Mountain avenue and ilding at a cost of The proposition which was carried calls for an expense of $65,000.

The election was one of the most exciting in the history of the town. The polls opened at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and it was 11:30 o'clock last night when the votes were counted and the result announced.

The Board of Education, composed of nine members, was divided on the propositions, six being in favor of building a new school on Mountain avenue and three favoring the building of an addition to the Washington School. E. A. Merrill was the leader of the majority members, and Edward F. Low led the minority forces. The leaders spared no expense in waging a campaign, great quantities of literature being scattered broadcast. The Mountain avenue site was called the "dump" by the opponents to the proposition, and circulars headed "Dump the Dump" was used with good effect throughout the town and made the slogan of the battle.

There was in all 1,350 votes cast, of which number 686 were for the proposition to build an addition to the Washington School; 342 were in favor of the Mountain avenue plan, while 322 votes were cast against both propositions.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL AT MONROE AVE. CHURCH

The attendance was well over the three hundred mark despite the rain at the strawberry and ice cream festival given by the Epworth League of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church last night in the church auditorium.

Twenty individual tables were in use continuously from 7:30 until a late hour for the serving of shortcake, strawberries and ice cream. The decorations, a striking feature, were by John McCormick, a candy well and a lemonade booth being features of a well planned decorative scheme.

The general committee headed by N. Mansfield Smith, the president of the league, were much pleased with the results.

The executive committee consisted of N. Mansfield Smith, chairman; strawberries, Mrs. Harry Gardiner; shortcake, Mrs. N. Mansfield Smith; decorating, John McCormick; ice cream, Miss Gertrude Grey; supervisor, Miss Phoebe Shaw; candy well, Miss Minnie Gunzelman; lemonade booth, Miss Mary Pound; treasurer, John McCormick.

Among the waitresses were the Misses Mildred Barnes, Pauline Bodine, Olive Cline, Jennie Grey, Bessie Gunzelman, Lillian Harris, Gertrude Grey, Flora Kirch, Anna Lee, Sophia Le Poidiven, Alice Lude, Nellie Lawton, Louise McCormick, Edith Ricketts, Rose Droll, Ada Thompson, Martha Camp, Matilda Mulford, Josephine Peterson, Louise Praed, Irene Sawyer, May Stafford, Marion Praed, Violet Staples, Laura Sutphen, Violet Stewart, Ethel Young and Louise Ricketts.

Mrs. Edward Beekman assisted at the lemonade booth and Miss Mary Matthews at the candy well. The proceeds will be devoted to the support of the league's missionary in Africa.

In Borough Court.

Recorder Dolliver today dismissed the complaint of Louis Goldstein against Patrick J. Regan for the alleged encouragement which Regan gave to his daughter Catharine in striking with a horse whip Lean Goldstein, the daughter of Louis Goldstein, of Prideville, the borough. The Recorder strongly condemned the practice of bringing trivial complaints to the courts for action.

Will Give Victors a Strawride.

As a reward for defeating the Plainfield High School team this week, Councilman W. L. Smalley, Jr., of the borough, will give the members of the N. P. H. S. team and their girl friends a straw ride, tonight, after which they will enjoy a spread.

Mrs. Edward Simons and daughter, Marion, of Germantown, Pa., are visiting Mrs. Simons' sister, Mrs. Edgar F. Sheppard, of Westervelt avenue.

BIG MATCH FOR THE NEW JERSEY GUARDS

Sea Girt, June 10.—The conditions regulating the Governor's champion marksman's match, which will be shot on the range here August 16, have been made public by Brigadier-General Bird W. Spencer and are as follows:

This match is open to all officers and enlisted men of the National Guard of New Jersey except previous winners.

Entries may be made up to 1:30 o'clock upon application to the officer in charge in person.

Distances, 200, 300 and 500 yards, rules as prescribed in the code. Competitors making less than 10 at 200 or 300 yards will not continue in the match.

Scores made in this match will be counted for record if desired, but the competitor must request in writing within ten days after score is made that the credit be given on his score sheet.

Ammunition—Any. Service ammunition will be furnished by the State to all who desire it. Each competitor must use the rifle issued by the State without any alteration.

All competitors will wear the service uniform.

All ties will be decided in accordance with the rules of the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice.

A circular has been issued by General Spencer covering class practice for marksmanship during the summer camp. The circular is as follows:

One battalion (four companies) from each regiment will be sent to the range each day—on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Four adjoining targets at 200 and two adjoining targets at 300 yards will be assigned to each company.

All practice of each company at 200 and 300 yards will be had on the targets assigned.

As soon as sufficient men are entitled to shoot at 300 yards, a 200-yard target will be closed and a corresponding numbered target will be opened at 300 yards.

Targets at 500 yards will be assigned to each company and all practise of each company will be held on targets so assigned.

Officers must remain at the targets assigned their respective companies, and will require the enlisted men to remain directly in the rear thereof.

The following order has been issued from regimental headquarters in Passaic:

In compliance with general orders No. 3, headquarters division, N. G. N. J., dated Jersey City, May 10, 1910, and general orders No. 2, headquarters First Brigade, dated Newark, May 16, 1910, this regiment will encamp on the State camp grounds at Sea Girt, N. J., from Saturday, July 23, to Saturday, July 30, next, inclusive.

Pay will be allowed as provided for in paragraph 123 of "An act concerning the militia of the State," approved May 16, 1906, as amended by an act of the Legislature, approved April 12, 1910.

By permission the encampment will be named "Camp Fort."

This command will report in olive drab service uniform and haversacks.

Each enlisted man will take his khaki service uniform with him, and provide himself with at least one change of underclothing, articles of toilet use, shoe blacking and brush, and make provision for shaving.

No enlisted man shall be taken to encampment unless enlisted before the thirty-first day of March of this year, unless such enlisted man shall have served at least six months in the army, Marine Corps or National Guard as militia of this or any other State, or has received equivalent military instruction in an educational institution.

Servants, grooms or camp followers will not be permitted to wear the State uniform or any part thereof.

The quartermaster will forward requisition for transportation and camp equipage and make such arrangements as will be necessary for the movement of the regiment to and from Sea Girt on July 23 and 30. He will arrive in camp with a detail on Friday, July 22, before 9 p. m. The commissary will make requisition for subsistence.

Enlisted men will not be permitted to leave the limits of the State camp grounds, except for surf bathing immediately in front of the camp ground, or for some important emergency which requires their presence at home.

The minimum strength of each organization attending annual camps should not be less than four full sets of fours (thirty-two men, i. e., twenty-eight privates and four corporals), and the appropriate number of sergeants, six. No company will be considered as warranting the expenditure of federal and State funds for transportation, subsistence and pay that has a strength less than that indicated above.

A Forecast.

Jones—What do you think will be the end of the woman question?

Brown—Won't be no end. They'll always be askin' 'em.

Pretty Summer Rugs

It's splendid policy to take up your good rugs in the warm weather, providing, of course, you have Summer rugs to put down. No room should be without a rug altogether, it is too desolate—too cheerless—too unhomelike. You haven't any idea how many pretty designs you can get in Summer rugs and how cheaply you can buy them. They're fine for bedrooms the year round. We have everything from an 18-inch door mat to a full 9x12 rug—and we have been told that our assortments are the best in town. May we spread a few of these cool, comfortable floor coverings for you tomorrow?

PA AND THE BOND OF SYMPATHY

I wish that pa was runnin' things; I bet you then we'd see
Some changes that would make the folks rise up and shout with glee;
If pa was where Taft is today, he'd bring the prices down,
And "Uncle Joe" would sneak away and Aldrich 'ud leavetown;
The men who pack the pork would all be put in jail unless They'd get down on their knees and crawl! Is pa mad? Well, I guess.

If pa was runnin' things you bet the people that consume
Would stand a show all right, all right—their stock would have a boom;
He'd fix it so when Teddy gets back home he'd whoop for joy
And slap pa proudly on the back and call him bully boy;
He'd make them shut up Wall street, too; he'd stop the bulls and bears;
The workingmen, when pa got through, would all be millionaires.

Last night when pa was tellin' how he'd run the government,
Ma said: "It's easy for you now to blame the President;
But I can't see why you should think you'd be so great and strong,
When nearly everything you do appears to turn out wrong;
If you could run things there so well why don't you practice, dear,
And fix it so that we could go ahead a little here?"

Pa laid his stogies down and threw his paper on the floor,
And ma began to shrink; she knew that there would be a roar;
"A man's a fool," he said, "to hope that he can ever find
A bond of sympathy with one that's got a narrow mind!"

Utility Boxes.

Utility boxes of all sorts and descriptions. They come with handles, castors, wheels and feet so that they may be moved about with ease. They are generally of sandlewood inside, while outside they come in sandalwood, wicker, mahogany with leather top and brass trimmings, in mission finish, with cretonne covers, and with stenciled covers. Many of these make very handsome seats with the addition of a cushion or two. The long ones may be converted into very cozy window seats, while those shaped like cubes will fit into any convenient niche, and do nicely as a stool. Waste paper baskets and little stands may be obtained to match, so that you are not obliged to litter your room up with too many styles.

Beats Any Sunrise.

The rooster's crow does very well
As music now and then;
But the thing that stands for something
Is the cackle of the hen.
While the first may crow the sun up,
We aren't likely to forget
That a fresh egg served for breakfast
Beats the finest sunrise yet.

Heroes.

What a hero one can be without moving a finger! The world is not a field worthy of us, nor can we be satisfied with the plains of Troy. A glorious strife seems waging within us, yet so noiselessly that we but just catch the sound of the clarion ringing of victory, borne to us on the breeze. There are in each the seeds of an heroic ardor, which need only to be stirred in with the soil where they lie, by an inspired voice or pen, to bear fruit of a divine flavor.—Thoreau.

Didn't Care for Him.

Little Eleanor's mother was an American, while her father was a German. One day, after Eleanor had been subjected to rather severe disciplinary measures at the hands of her father, she called her mother into another room, closed the door significantly, and said: "Mother, I don't want to meddle in your business, but I wish you'd send that husband of yours back to Germany."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Called on "Mr. Anthem."

At an English school, once upon a time, when a concert was being held, the choir was on the program to sing an anthem, and their place was designated by the single word "Anthem." The gentleman who was master of ceremonies, a high-toned, pompous individual of the old school, when he came to that part of the program, announced, in a dignified way: "Mr. Anthem will now favor us."

The Cataracts of Life.

HIS ARTISTIC EFFORT

Dinner was over and Enderby had lighted his cigar, but had not settled down for the evening.

"Suppose you chuck that work basket for once and we go over to mother's," he said to his wife. "We haven't been there in two weeks."

"I know it," she answered, "but I can't to-night. Somebody has to stay with the baby, and Augusta's going out."

"Augusta's going out! That has a familiar sound."

"Unreasonable, dear. You [illegible] or have the least trouble with Augusta when we engage our evenings ahead."

Enderby indulged in a mild snort. "Engage our evenings ahead! If it's come to this, it's time we made a strike for liberty."

Mrs. Enderby dropped her embroidery in consternation. "If you should do anything to make Augusta leave—" she began.

"Don't you worry. If I should act, it would be done so artistically she'd never know it happened."

He took up his newspaper and Mrs. Enderby thought he had forgotten all about it. However, next morning, just as Augusta was bringing in the breakfast, he looked across the table and said:

"Don't forget the reception to-night, Dorothy. We ought to take the 8:03 train."

Augusta went out with a perceptible cloud on her face and Enderby grinned.

"What do you mean?" his wife demanded.

"I mean we're going over to mother's to spend the evening. If it's necessary to invent important engagements, I can do it."

Enderby came home early that night, and Mrs. Enderby thriftily proposed that he put in his extra quarter of an hour opening the crate of fresh eggs that had just come from Wisconsin. Augusta happened to be in her own room at the time and when Enderby came back to the library he was carrying, with furtive glee, a paper bag containing a dozen fresh eggs.

"I just happened to think it would be nice to take these over to mother," he said.

"That's so; I'm glad you thought of it. Oh, we can't, either!" Mrs. Enderby added, remembering the evening's program. "How would it look to Augusta if we started to a reception with a bag of eggs?"

"Why do you suppose I sneaked 'em in here now, if not to guard against that very thing?"

"Well, what are you going to do with them, now that they're here?"

With a masterful stride Enderby walked to the waste basket and buried the eggs beneath its contents. His wife laughed outright at the triumphant look on his face.

"But I'm afraid she'll see us when we start," she suggested. "And here's another complication—we'll have to dress for a reception, just to go over to your mother's."

"That's all right," he answered. It'll be a treat to the folks to see us in our good clothes for once."

Augusta put the baby to bed that night and then came to the library for final directions from her mistress, who was just getting into her evening wrap. Enderby, high hat and cane in hand, was impatiently awaiting Augusta's departure, when suddenly, as if prompted by some imp of darkness, Augusta walked across the room and picked up the waste basket.

"I forgot to empty this to-day," she apologized.

"Oh, never mind!" Enderby and his wife gasped in duet, but Augusta, with unprecedented swiftness already was disappearing through the doorway.

"There!" said Mrs. Enderby, turning on her crest-fallen husband. "This whole thing is your affair and you may get out of it the best way you can. I shan't be here when she comes back!" She disappeared into the bedroom just as Augusta's footsteps were heard approaching.

Augusta pushed aside the portiere and halted, holding at arm's length the paper bag. "Eggs!" she announced. "I found 'em in the waste basket!"

"In the waste basket? How very singular," Enderby exclaimed. Then he raised his voice in craven tones. "Dorothy!" he called. "What do you know about a bag of eggs in the waste basket?"

There was a half-minute of dead silence, but just as Enderby was wondering what to try next a rustle sounded and Mrs. Enderby swept regally into the room.

"I know that a bag of eggs ought to be here on this table," she answered, coolly. "I thought we'd have time before the 8:03 train to leave them at your mother's. If you've reached the pass, George, that you absent-mindedly drop a bag of eggs into a waste basket, you need a guardian. Put them on the table, Augusta."

With a pitying look at her hair-[illegible] employer Augusta obeyed. [illegible] waited just long enough to get her get out of sight before he took two long steps across the floor to his wife and silently, but warmly, expressed his appreciation.

As soon as she could, however, she held him off with both hands. "George Herbert Enderby," she said, trying not to laugh, "your behavior was simply yellow! And that's the last artistic scrape I shall ever help you out of—so beware!"

How Fat May Be Removed Rapidly by a Simple Home Remedy Without Causing Wrinkles, Disturbing the Diet or Necessity for Exercise.

"Fat is nothing but unused energy," says a prominent physician, and the man or woman who is burdened with it can easily get rid of it if they wish. All they need is ½ ounce of Marmola, ½ ounce of Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ ounces of Peppermint Water; all of which they can get at any good drug store for a few cents. Then let them take one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime until they are down to the weight they want to be.

This simple home receipt is far and away better than any or all the patent or secret medicines, for it reduces the fat safely and harmlessly. The ingredients are in fact beneficial to the system, having both tonic and purifying qualities, and so help rather than distress the stomach. The remedy does not cause wrinkles, for it reduces one gradually and naturally, preserving a good outline, and, best of all, needs neither physical exercise to help it do the work, nor does it require any change in diet—one can get results and still take things easy—eating meanwhile just what, when and how he or she pleases. Be sure and get the Marmola in a sealed package, so that you get Marmola and not a substitute.

REST ESSENTIAL TO HEALTH.

There has been much talk and writing recently in relation to the need of simple living. Too much stress cannot be placed upon this need. In the large cities complexity tends to increase, but to a very great extent individual control is possible. The network of duties, desires, opportunities and privileges require control.

When husbands and wives cannot find time to confer quietly together that they may know each other; when children are denied or deny themselves companionship with parents; when friends in the mad whirl of living find time only to come together for a social function or distracting amusement, they cheat themselves of the best that is in them. These diversions are not bad in themselves and are to be enjoyed in moderation, but not in excess.

For the prevention of disease, and in this connection wrong nerve and mental conditions especially, it is not only necessary to live properly in so far as healthful functions of cells and organs is concerned, but it is most necessary to feed the intelligence. Under no circumstances should the mind be permitted to dwell upon the ceaseless reiteration of the hardships and disappointments of the daily grind of life which exist for all, varying in degrees only. This is just as harmful as the constant dwelling in thought upon the aches and ills of the body. It is not the way to health nor happiness.

One's thought, even when well-trained and disciplined, is not fed by the reading of sensational newspapers and books. Such reading does not dignify, strengthen or ennoble. The intellect fed on trash is like the body fed on innutritious food. This does not apply to good literature of lighter vein, which, read judiciously, serves as a means of rest and diversion.

To the end that life be healthy it should be simple, direct and earnest, yet not all work. Work never hurts, never kills, but it may be persisted in too long and monotonously. Worry, on the other hand, is productive of mischief which work can never parallel.

Velvet Cake.

Use one cupful of granulated sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter or lard, three eggs, one-half cupful of sweet milk, two cupfuls of flour, one-half cupful of cornstarch and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Beat the sugar, yolks of eggs and butter together until smooth; all milk, sift together the flour, cornstarch and baking powder and add to mixture. Lastly add the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in layers, put together with date filling and ice the top. This makes a cake that is always smooth and velvety and keeps well.

Mustard Greens.

Wash the mustard leaves thoroughly cut them in shreds or run them through a food chopper and put them over the fire, dripping wet, in a tightly covered saucepan. If necessary, add water very judiciously, in small quantities, so there will be no liquid on the greens when they are done. Season with salt and cayenne pepper and stir in one tablespoonful of corn meal, sprinkling it carefully and stirring hard, so it will not form lumps. Let the greens cook until both they and the meal are thoroughly done.

The collection of vestments is the most complete in the world and every kind of embroidery is represented.

Horrible Method of Suicide.

There are many ways of taking one's own life, but that chosen the other day by a Swedish sailor, chief engineer of a boat lying at Queensborough, Ireland, was crude and horrible. Having suffered from insomnia, the man soaked his clothing with paraffin and then set himself alight. He suffered fearful agonies and lingered for 48 hours.

The Problem of Glorianna

The teacher called the new pupil to her desk.

"Why," she asked the small colored girl, "didn't you enter with the rest of the class at the beginning of the term?"

"Ah'm very delicate-like, teachah," explained the child. "My maw, she don't nevah expect to raise me, no ma'am." She rolled her great eyes affectedly. "So Ah ain't nevah ben to school much. De teachahs all has took mighty good care of me in the schools Ah've ben at; Ah've ben to five already. De las' teachah she always called me 'angel-chile.' She suah wuz a nice lady, she wuz!"

"What is your name?" asked the teacher.

"Gloryannah Annabel Snow. Yes, ma'am. Ah was named for mah two aunts. Dey wuz very beautiful ladies. Mah Aunt Gloryannah hed the mos' beautifulles' long yellah hair an' w'ite skin an' blue eyes. Mah muthah says Ah take after mah Aunt Gloryannah terrible close."

The teached looked at her round chocolate face and kinky little braids and could not conceal a smile.

"An' mah oddah aunt—Aunt Annabel, that wuz—hed the mos' beautifulles' red hair, long an' straight—!"

The teacher felt called upon to interrupt this romance.

"What is your father's name?"

"Ah ain't got no fathah. Mah muthah's a widow lady. Hit's awful stylish to be widow ladies an' weah long black veils. Ah don't nevah remembah mah fathah, but mah muthah she got hehself a long veil las' wintah an' she suah does look fine. When Ah'm growed up Ah'm goin' to be a widow lady, too."

"What is your mother's name?" inquired the teacher.

"Mah muthah? Oh, she's awful stylish with front names. She mos' always keeps heh end name, but she changes heh front names real often. Jus' now hit's Arabella Vivienne."

"What is your mother's occupation?" The teacher glanced at the clock uneasily, regretting the waste of time.

"Oh, mah muthah, she used to wash foh a few ladies. She say if you want any washin' done she'll do hit right reasonable. But now she say that no ladies goes washin' no moah. Dey all cahries lil' bags an' go manicurin' an' haihdressin'. So when they asks mah muthah wheah she goin' she say she goin' to a board meetin'!"

"Very we'l, Glorianna. Now take that front seat and work the arithmetic lesson on the board."

Glorianna took the seat. When the half hour was up the monitors collected the children's papers aud reported that the new pupil had none.

"Glorianna," said the teacher, severely, "where is your arithmetic paper?"

"Ah ain't got none, teachah," explained the child. "Ah nevah does no numbahs. Ah don't like numbahs—nevah did. So when the oddahs does their numbahs Ah composes po'try. Ah'll recite you the po'try Ah composed when the children wuz doin' theih numbahs. Hit's 'bout you-all's eyes," beguilingly to the teacher.

"No, thank you, Glorianna. Hereafter you will do your 'numbers' as the rest do if you intend to stay in this room. All children must be industrious here. What would you do if you grew to be a big girl and couldn't do any numbers? Wouldn't you be ashamed?"

"No, ma'am. Ah ain't nevah gon' to be a big girl. Ah'm goin' to be refined an' delicate when Ah grows up, yes, ma'am. An' mah muthah says ez long ez Ah'm aristocratic an' artistic an' hez 'complishments Ah don' need no 'rithmetic an' sech things. Ah kin sing, too. Ah've sung at the nickel theatah lots uv times. Once Ah got 50 cents. Now I'll sing fo' you-all."

Fortunately the dismissal bell rang before Glorianna had time to mention any more accomplishments, for the other pupils were spellbound by her eloquence.

However, in the following week the budding poetess was compelled to do her "numbers" three times, much to her disgust. She coaxed, pleaded, scolded, flattered and sulked to no avail. The teacher was callous to her wiles. Still that capable young person found she could not curb Glorianna's flow of speech. Glorianna talked almost unceasingly. Her leadership stirred the gentle little ones to disobedience more than once. They all decided that "numbers" was unnecessary and their once idolized teacher was nearly distracted by their disobedience.

Glorianna came to school one day with an added air of importance. She handed her teacher a note written on highly scented pink paper. It announced that her mother was about to move to a "more refined" neighborhood and that Glorianna consequently could go to a school where the teacher would be more "sympathetic."

"Your honor," interrupted the prisoner, "I demand to be treated as a lady. The evidence should show also that I egged an opposition speaker, knocked a platter of food from a warden's hand, bit his thumb and kicked him in the stomach."

Accordingly, the clerk was instructed to amend the records.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

The librarian's report of the Plainfield Public Library has within a few days been laid before the directors and in due course the facts it contains have been forwarded to the municipal authorities of Plainfield. The marked progress in every department of work is entitled to public conmmendation and appreciation. It is interesting, for example, to note the steady and large increase in book circulation for the past five years. Beginning with the year ending May 31, 1906, the circulation was 46,802; the following year it was 49,472; the next year it was 53,005; year before last it was 62,670; and last year it was 69,626.

Last year the books added by purchase and gift aggregated 2,530, besides 846 musical scores. Including the music scores, the Babcock Library and the Tyler Library, the library lists call for 44,240 volumes. Of these, however, 2,396 have in the course of several years been withdrawn by reason of various accidents, losses and wear and tear, leaving the actual total at 41,844. The Babcock Library and the Tyler Library being composed of books of high value and useful reference, will be more appreciated as the years go by in educational work. The percapita circulation of books last year in relation to the population of Plainfield was 3.16 against 2.94 a year ago. 7,536 persons patronized the Library, of whom 765 are newly registered. Musical scores have circulated during the last year to the number of 1,432 against 551 of the previous year.

Mrs. Babcock has generously given $1,000 for the cataloguing of the scientific library, and this work is already under way.

The Reading Room has been largely patronized by the scholars of the public schools.

During the year 74,498 persons have visited the building, and of these 2,517 were Sunday visitors. Two hundred and thirty-two periodicals and newspapers are at the service of the patrons of the Reading Room. More than 200 books daily are taken from the library to be read, and the deposit stations are serving an excellent purpose and increasing circulation.

These figures, gleaned from the Librarian's report, serve but feebly to show the increase of energy in the administration of this valuable public enterprise, and the increase of the public appreciation of its facilities and opportunities.

The history of the library covers a series of benefactions, beginning with that of ex-Mayor Job Male, and including those of George H. Babcock and Mason W. Tyler. Most of what the library has was given to it by the public spirited citizens of Plainfield. From the city it has of late received $7,500 per annum. Out of this it compensates a force of about half a dozen librarians and assistant librarians, defrays all expenses of operation, covers and recovers books and magazines, and adds upwards of 2,500 new books to its stock.

Its officers and directors are enthusiastically devoted to the prosperity of this public spirited enterprise, and its possibilities for usefulness are opening out in a marvelous manner. It will not, however, be found practicable to carry on this work according to its merit, and according to the increasing demands of a more educated public, within the limits of the building now occupied by the library. It is in pressing need of larger accommodations, and these must be supplied in order to open the way for success on broad and valuable lines of work. A single paragraph of the librarian's report may be quoted as indicating an extending line of usefulness.

"Never before has the library come in such close contact with the school-pupils and teachers, especially those of the High School. During the hour from 1 to 2 p. m., two assistants are now obliged to be at the delivery desk to meet the wants of the pupils as they leave the school building for the day. That the library is better reaching the teachers is shown by the sum total of 3,648 books taken out on teachers' cards, exceeding last year by 1,732."

The librarian is Miss Florence M. Bowman. The president is Alexander Gilbert; vice-president, L. V. F. Randolph; treasurer, J. Herbert Case; secretary, William M. Stillman; and other directors are W. F. Merrill, C. Boardman Tyler, Dr. Leonard Waldo, W. H. Larabee and Dr. B. VanD. Hedges.

Celebrated Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Bailey, of Summit avenue, celebrated the twenty-third anniversary of their wedding Wednesday night. The affair was in the nature of a surprise arranged by their many friends. The evening was devoted to sociability, during which there was a musical program and refreshments were served. Mr. Bailey is one of the efficient letter-carriers at the local postoffice. He is also choirmaster at St. Joseph's church. The couple received a number of gifts.

PROHIBITION NOMINEE SEES VICTOY AHEAD

William Lunger, of North Plainfield, has issued the following letter of acceptance as the Prohibition candidate for Representative for the Fourth New Jersey district, which comprises Somerset, Mercer, Hunterdon counties:

Having received the nomination for member of the House of Representatives of the United States from the Fourth Congressional District by the unanimous vote of all the delegates of the convention, allow me to acknowledge it as a great and distinguished honr, coming as it does from a party that is openly committed to the destruction of the traffic in intoxicating drinks.

The drink traffic is the nation's greatest enemy. The whole system of license endangers our country and threatens our peace and prosperity. This governmental policy is rapidly ruining our citizens and blighting our homes. The saloon is bad everywhere and we have no right to permit any city or State to debauch its citizens. Every distillery, brewery and saloon must have a federal license before its doors can swing open for business. Uncle Sam last year collected about $185,000,000 as revenue from this institution. Every voter shared in the profits, as this vast sum went into the treasury of the American government, which is only a corporation with all voters as stockholders. The stockholders are controlled by factions or parties and parties run the government. Both old parties are committed to the license policy, regulating the liquor traffic. The party candidate is our agent. The party is our agent. The government that issues the licenses is our agent. The keys of all the distilleries and breweries are in the hands of our agents. And we are the biggest partners in the concern.

Our agents when we say so will change this policy and not before. The government is made up of individuals; the will of the majority is the policy in force.

The liquor question is the only live financial problem before the people today. According to the American Grocer this country pays out annually one and one quarter billion dollars for drink, and the indirect cost—poverty, crime, loss—is equal to three-quarters of a billion dollars more. That is five times as much as America pays for bread, eleven times as much as it pays for education, thirteen times as much as it pays for its religion and churches, and one hundred and seven times as much as it pays for all its home and foreign missions. It is about four times as big as the Steel Trust, eight times as big as the tariff, and compared with the free silver question in American politics, it is "sixteen to one."

That is the great and only financial question that is likely to absorb the thought of this country for years to come. This is a financial basis, big and broad enough to found a political party upon. The moral phase of the question is bigger than that. It is the overthrow of the liquor traffic, which is the direct cause of most of the drunkenness, vice, pauperism, crime, Sabbath desecration, gambling, prostitution, graft, civic corruption, municipal wickedness and official crime. It is responsible for 5,000 suicides, 10,000 murders, 50,000 young women beginning a life of shame, half a million young men starting on a life of drunkenness; and 70,000 drink murdered men every year. This is the moral basis of this reform, and it is big enough to furnish a platform for a State or national political party.

Thus both financially and morally the Prohibition party stands for the only great question and the only truly national question before the people today.

For forty years thousands of Christian citizens have been voting for license. How is the government to know that we are against the partnership in the liquor business unless we protest against our country manufacturing drunkards and gathering in blood money from the victims of the curse. It can never be legalized without sin; so declared the bishops of the Methodist church some years ago. If that declaration was true at the time it was made, as we believe it was, it is true today. Having accepted this declaration then as the truth, are not there thousands of professing Christians who have been supporting political parties whose policy has been and is now for license and regulation, guilty of committing sin.

There are many no doubt who are opposed to the saloon and who would like to see the wholse business, root and branch, swept from our land, and yet they are not with us, thinking, perhaps, that they can accomplish something in a non-partisan way by the method of local option.

Let us look into this local option method with a view of ascertaining the facts.

Every reform is in its last analysis one of method. Methods are principles in action. A wrong application of a right principle is as ineffective as the application of a wrong principle.

The liquor traffic may be defined as the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes, which cause more crime, insanity, pauperism and other public disorders than any other cause to which these miseries may be attributed. Local option is that principle of government which recognizes the right and duty of the people of any political division of government to control what exclusively concerns themselves. Its origin is rooted in the Declaration of Independence in these words:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident: That all men are created free and equal; that they are endowed by the Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."

The principle is as sound as government itself, and must ever be the paladium of American civil liberty.

What exclusively concerns the people of the political divisions to which the option is proposed to be given is the question which must determine the practibility of the principle. We must admit that the liquor traffic can not be the exclusive concern of the people of any municipality or county. If the traffic produce crime, insanity, pauperism and other public disorders, for the punishment, care and prohibition of which the people of the whole State must build penitentiaries and asylums and maintain public officials the General Assembly of the State is in duty bound to prohibit it. It can not be constitutionally or sanely relegated to the option of the people of any minor subdivision of the State.

The liquor traffic is not saloons individually or collectively; they are but the branches of the upas tree, of which the brewery and the distillery are the roots. Local option in most States affects only the retail sale of intoxicating liquors within the prohibited territory. In consequence many towns and counties that have voted saloons out under local option still have the manufactory.

Laws are of two kinds remedial and mandatory.

Remedial laws execute themselves. Mandatory laws never do, but require the executive arm of government to make them effective. Prohibitory laws are of the latter class, and without the executive arm of government in favor of their enforcement, are without force to accomplish the purpose for which they are enacted.

This is a fatal defect in local option. Is local option permanent In local option elections which ever way the election results a petition at the end of two or three years can be presented to bring on another contest, with the possibility of reversing the former vote. For an illustration will give a report of the election held in 240 places in the State of Illinois on April 5, 1910. This report shows that thirty-nine "dry" towns went "wet;" nineteen "wet" towns went "dry;" seventy-two "wet" towns retained saloons, while 110 "dry" towns remained true to their colors. This shows a loss of twenty towns for the "drys."

Is Local Option Morally Consistent?—The method of Local Option in reference to the drink traffic, has been perpetually calling men to use part of their political powers against the liquor traffic, while it has left them under the delusion that they could harmlessly support the liquor traffic with the rest of their political powers. It has sent thousands to the polls to vote the saloon out of town or county, while it has encouraged them to a course of political action that has nailed the saloon fast upon the State. It has led sometimes here and there in a campaign for State prohibition, while it has supported an anti-prohibition Federal government to nullify State prohibition.

It has never presented the prohibition question as the supreme issue, the controlling principle of their political action. It has never imitated the practical common-sense of Lincoln, and said to the voters: We want the men who think the liquor traffic wrong to quit voting with the men who pretend to think the liquor traffic right. It must be apparent to all broad minded men who have been supporting this movement that this method must be changed; that another plan must be adopted. It must be apparent to them that real progress waits for that change.

The claim is made, however, that Local Option while not all that may be desired, nevertheless, furnishes needed object lessons of the benefits of Prohibition, and is thus a stepping stone to State and National Prohibition. The States of Maine and Kansas have been Prohibition States for nearly half a century, and have furnished object lessons full, clear and unanswerable, and, moreover, neither ever had a foot of Local Option territory in it.

Ohio has also twice cast a majority vote for Prohibition, 1851 and 1883, without Local Option. Other States have tried Local Option for a quarter of a century, and are today no nearer to Prohibition than when they begun.

Local Option is only a compromise with, not a cure of the liquor evil. It is not sufficient for the solution of the problem; it is not efficient in its results, even as to the suppression of saloons; it is not permanent in its character; it is not consistent in morals; it is not necessary for the further education of the public, and it is no longer safe as an experiment. It merely cuts off some branches of the upas tree and leaves the roots to grow, and send out other shoots, under protection of State and National laws; places the execution of the law in the hands of its enemies; inaugurates an endless game of "pussy wants a corner" with saloons, instead of a war of extermination against the whole infernal traffic; compels moral inconsistency in the State, and encourages hypocrisy in the voters; consumes time, money and energy to little or no permanent advantage, and finally settles nothing, but endangers the progress of the whole cause.

But let us be consistent in dealing with this problem and adopt the method of Clinton N. Howard, when he said: We are everywhere for that local Prohibition that gives us the right to vote out the saloons. But do not ask us to stop there. We cannot. We will not. With ten million Christian voters, "marching as to war, with the cross of Jesus going on before," do not ask us to limit our endeavor to a campaign of town and county against an organized enemy that is investing the entire field, stretching its battle line from courthouse to capital, and infesting the politics of the nation from policeman to President. We cannot and we will not consent to the inconsistency of voting out the saloon in the town and county and voting in the saloon power in State and Nation.

The dangers which beset the present wave of Prohibition victories are comprehended in one peril. All the States and cities lately won may be lost by the treachery of dominant old parties in league with the vanquished liquor hosts. Temporary crusades and popular enthusiasm outside of party lines may influence local and State Prohibition legislation. The only guaranty of permanent establishment of Prohibition law as in every other reform, is in the success and assendency of a political party pledged to its honest administration in State and Nation. Not for one moment should we allow this truth to be obscured, but we should preach it everywhere with confidence in our position, the righteousness of which is affirmed by the historical facts in every epoch of our political history.

Only an aggressive Prohibition party vigorously agitating everywhere the principle of State and National Prohibition will prove a sufficient bulwark against a disastrous reaction from the present era of speedy advance.

The old party politicians now opposing Prohibition legislation in our State Legislatures and in the halls of Congress comprise largely those men who depend upon the liquor traffic for their election and who could not be elected without the help of its corrupt influence.

The Prohibition party has for forty years been the only permanent aggressive power in politics for State and National Prohibition. Unwaveringly it has preached the gospel that the only hope of National Prohibition lies in the union of all temperance people in one political organization. Such a union should be effected at the next election in local, State and National politics, and as party Prohibitionists we should busy ourselves to this all important end.

And what of other issues?

A party composed of the enemies of the liquor traffic will contain the best blood of the nation, and can be depended upon to represent the whole people. Measured by its blessings to humanity, the organization and perpetuation of the Prohibition party outranks every political achievement recorded in the annals of our country—aye, in the world's history.

At the end of forty years of unfaltering trust in the right we are in sight of the promised land. The saloon and the liquor party giants that have possessed the land are moving, and have got to move on and give way to the conquering hosts of the mighty army of God, of home and of country. A vote against the liquor traffic is the climax of Applied Christianity. A vote for the Prohibition party is a Masterstroke for Righteousness.

As the door of the Prohibition party is ever open we invite men of every shade of politics, of every creed in religion, to join with us in our earnest efforts, and the saloon with the party that defends it, will go down to a disastrous defeat, beneath the wrath of the American people, unwept, unhonored, and unsung.

Believing in the righteousness of our cause and that the only solution to the settlement of he liquor traffic is by State and National prohibitory laws, forbidding the manufacture and sale of all intoxicating drinks for beverage purposes, and by placing in power a political party that is pledged to secure their enforcement, I accept the nomination for Representative in Congress. Relying upon Divine Providence for help and for guidance, I will endeavor to do my humble part in bringing about a triumphant and speedy victory.

Yours for Victory now,
WM LUNGER.

CATCHES MAN WHO SHOOTS HER SISTER.

Jersey City, June 10.—After her eight-year-old sister had been wounded in the foot by a bullet that was intended for another, Adelina Archilupo Wednesday night went in pursuit of the man who had fired the shot and caused his arrest.

The man boarded a trolley car and the girl stood on the track in front of the vehicle and held it up until a policeman arrived and arrested the fugitive. He was John Mayo, of 261 Railroad avenue.

He and Joseph Scerbo, of 222 Fourth avenue, Brooklyn, had quarreled over a girl in a store at 438 Third street. Scerbo slashed Mayo with a razor and the latter fired two shots at Scerbo. One of the bullets hit Scerbo in the left side. The other hit Jennie Archilupo, who was standing on the sidewalk.

'The Currency Doctor'

Reprinted from the Saturday Evening Post.

Rising negligently at his desk in the House of Representatives one afternoon no so long ago, the Honorable Charles Newell Fowler, of New Jersey, exuded some 123,380 words on the subject of a Financial and Banking System of the United States. Those who know Mr. Fowler, and have followed his career, were astonished he did not make it an even 200,000 just for luck; but he did not. He restrained himself. What he had in mind for that afternoon was a mere paragraph of 123,380 words, and he heroically held himself down to those few remarks.

To be sure, the Honorable Charles Newell Fowler did not exude the 123,380 vocally, then and there. He wanted to, but the House of Representatives wouldn't stand for it. It was the unanimous opinion that one vocal hour would be about all for Charles, and the rest of it might be extended in the Congressional Record, where, two days later, said extension took place to the extent of seventy-eight of those sprightly pages. This was a sad blow to Charles, for it would have afforded him keen delight to hurl at each angular one of those 123,380 words at the head of the ancient Speaker, provided the speaker would have left his head within hurling distance, which he would not. Still, as the National Appropriations Bill was under consideration and other patriots had several topics to talk about, such as Government lands, and the tariff, and the rules, an hour was all that could be spared.

You will understand from this little foray into oratory by Charles that he is somewhat of a financial authority. He is. He understands all about Finance from wampum to clearing-house certificates. He is the sole author of a bill to establish a complete financial and banking system for the United States, penned by his own hand, and also the author of a bill creating a currency commission Embodying, as they did, the very last word on these complicated subjects and, affording immediate relief, should they be incorporated into law, it has so fallen out that about all this eminent economic enthusiast has been able to do toward bringing about said relief is to stand up and make an occasional exposition of his theories, like that compact little slug of 123,380 words. The fact is that they are working Mr. Fowler in the House of Representatives under a strong pull, as the racing men would say. Or, still lingering in the realm of sports, every time Mr. Fowler tries to make a shot they put the reverse English on him. It is probably not a betrayal of confidence to write that Mr. Financial Fowler does not like Mr. Speaker Cannon, nor is it more than a loosely guarded secret that Mr. Cannon isn't particularly strong for Mr. Financial Fowler. Up to date Mr. Speaker Cannon has had the better of it, still retaining a modicum of his czarish powers. Indeed, it is quite possible that so long as any of the present persons remain in control of our legislative destinies, at either end of the Capitol, Mr. Fowler's reform of our currency and banking system will be entirely declamatory.

The Student Turns Reformer.

Among the various brands of reform affected by our leading reformers there is none more popular than reform of our currency and banking system. You can dig up a financial reformer who has the panacea in his head, at his finger's ends and scribble on the back of an envelope, at almost any crossroads, and you couldn't get all of the pamplets and books written on the subject, by persons who have the only genuine cure, into Madison Square Garden if you stood them up edgeways. It seems unhappily the case that so soon as a man begins to study our financial system he, simultaneously, discovers a cure. Also, he begins to talk and write on the subject. Also, again, he is convinced that his is the only way.

It happens that, for some time previously to the present Congress, Mr. Fowler was chairman of the House Committee on Banking and Currency. It happens that Mr. Fowler is not chairman of that committee at the moment, and reposes snugly in the Committee on Insular Affairs, down low on the list. The reason is simple. When Speaker Cannon made up his committees for the present Congress he left Mr. Fowler off, put the kibosh on him, as it were, and stuck Mr. Vreeland in the emnient place occupied by Mr. Fowler, Mr. Vreeland being a financial authority himself, but co-ordinating more closely than Fowler to the ideas of Uncle Joe.

Now, Fowler, being a student of finance, became, ere long, a reformer of finance. He formulated his reform. Then, as chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency and in various oratorical episodes, he remarked that he had the only Simon-pure cure, all others being spurious, and none genuine without the sign manual of Doctor Fowler. It worked with him just as it has worked since the days when some prehistoric financial reformer wanted to reduce the issue of clamshells and put out more arrowheads as the medium of exchange, and proclaimed that his method was the only way to get things on a scientific basis.

Mr. Fowler was sure. Others were not so sure. Then came along the plan for a monetary commission, hailed with great delight by the celebrated Nelson W. Aldrich as the haven of rest for him after his many weary years in the Senatorial harness. Mr. Aldrich had his plan. Mr. Fowler merely said, in a few mild paragraphs of several thousand words each, that what Mr. Aldrich proposed was barbaric, ignorant, unscientific and un-Fowlerian, and he insisted upon the Fowler method. The result of it all was that Mr. Aldrich had his way, that Mr. Fowler was deposed as chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, and that after a period of introspection in his New Jersey home, Mr. Fowler handed to the press one night a few remarks concerning the venerable Speaker, in which he called the Speaker every name in the dictionary down to zopilote, explaining, causally, that in addition to all this the right way to reform the currency was the Fowler way, and none other.

Mr. Fowler is an earnest man. He is about as humorous as a protested note. Convinced that the Fowler way is the real way, he had nothing to say about the monetary-commission legislation except that it is ignorant, iniquitous and repudiated, and that what he announced on this subject went double for N. W. Aldrich and J. G. Cannon.

So he bided his time. Then came that afternoon when he got the floor. "Under the circumstances," he said, "I deem it my duty, as I deem it the duty of every other man who has given the subject serious study, to come forward and present my views on this all-important subject;" and he came forward and presented his views to the extent of 123,380 kords, and had, in reserve, a few more views—say about two million more words' worth. Passing rapidly from the opening sentence to appendix forty-six of said veiws I can only say that if there is any species of currency that is not reformed in that effort it is poor, worthless, depleted, shiftless currency, and cannot be reformed anywhere or anyhow.

But that was not all that was concerning the mind of Mr. Fowler. In the moments of leisure he allowed himself during the arrangement of his 123,380 words in serried ranks he had a few other thoughts, principally on the subject of his former friend, but present obsession, Joseph G. Cannon. Having participated in the warfare, as an in urgent, on the afternoon when they tore Uncle Joe from the Rules Committee, he demanded more. One morning he arose and announced he had a question of the highest privilege to present to the House. It turned out to be a simple resolution that did nothing but take away all the committee-appointing power from the Speaker and give that power to the House. "What," Fowler undoubtedly thought, "is the use of chopping off merely a casual leg or arm from the Speaker? Why not decapitate him and be done with it?" Of course he didn't get anywhere, but his intentions were good just the same.

COOKING FOR TWO IS HARD.

Cooking for two demands much shrewdness, indeed. Small-quantity cookery calls for special training, which the successful housewife must generally gain for herself. One of the first steps is to study recipes not so much for ingredients as for proportions.

It is just here that the "born cook" shines. She may not measure with cup and spoon, but she measures unerringly with her eye or hand or both; she tastes often and she has a just sense of proportion. If she makes bread she knows by the look of the dough or by its feel when to stop putting in liquid, and, other things being equal, that is why her biscuits or popovers are successful; for the one thing that makes bread good or bad is the proportion of liquid to flour.

She knows that in cake making she is safe if she uses half as much butter as sugar, from two to three times as much flour as sugar, and from one-half as much milk as sugar to an equal amount. The matter of eggs depends on her conscience largely, but twice as many eggs as there are cupfuls of sugar is a good rule. This reading of recipes is more valuable than appears at first glance. If there are two eggs to a cake the other ingredients can be figured out easily. If there is only half a cupful of sugar in the house a very good cake may result. The size may be below the average, but it will be enough for two.

Every recipe in the cookbook should have a note as to the number of portions it makes. In this way the cook will be no more hampered by catering for a small family than for a large one. It is as easy to divide a recipe as to multiply by two or three. On the other hand, it is as easy to make a recipe for a quantity not mentioned in the original recipe by simply observing proportions.

CORPORATIONS PAY $2,538,897.79 IN TAXES

Showing agrgegate taxes of $2,539,897.79 assessed against 7,143 miscellaneous corporations. Irvine Maguire, secretary of the State Board of Assessors, has filed with the State Comptroller, Henry J. West, a preliminary schedule of the corporations taxes for 1910. The corresponding schedule filed last year showed 6,829 companies with an aggregate tax of $2,522,358.67, making the taxes for this year show an increase of $17,539.12.

The schedule just filed is made up as follows: Five life insurance companies incorporated in this State with a tax of $457,015.39; one parlor, palace or sleeping car company, tax $4,307.57; five express companies, $1,563.54; 7,132 companies taxed upon capital stock, tax $2,077,011.29. Practically the only increase in the taxes this year is in the classification of insurance companies, the advance on these corporations being $17,745.70.

The largest tax paid by a single company is that by the Prudential Insurance Company, of Newark, its assessment being $342,788.38. Another large assessment is that against the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company, also of Newark, which is $104,681.52. From those large sums the asessments scale down to amounts of less than $1.

The assessments against the companies with capital stock issued to the extent of $100,000,000 or more, are as follows: Amalgamated Copper Company, capital stock, $153,887,900, tax $11,444.59; American Tobacco Company, capital $118,931,500, tax $9,696.57; International Harvester Company, $120,000,000, tax $9,750; International Mercantile Marine Company, $120,000,000, tax $9,750; Rock Island Company, $150,000,000, tax $11,250, and the United States Steel Corporation, capital stock, $868,583,600, tax $47,179.18.

GIRL SWALLOWS BILL.

Endeavors to Hide Evidence by Chewing Money.

Atlantic City, June 10.—Charged with having stolen $18 from Augustus Roach, a visitor, Alice Grayem, a pretty 18-year-old girl, started to swallow the stolen bills when a constable visited her home to place her under arrest.

The girl had swallowed a $1 bill and was chewing down a $5 and a $2 bill when the constable grabbed her and forced her to disgorge the money. Roach identified the half-chewed currency as a portion of the roll which he claimed to have lost and the girl was held for court despite her tearful pleas.

BE GOOD, SWEET MAID.

And there is not any special bar placed upon cleverness as an attractive concommitant, but the main thing is to be good. Not half good, or just a little otherwise, but wholly, sincerely, absolutely good.

It is given to us to inherently know the good from the bad, and there is not one of us who does not feel the deep blush of shame or self-disappointment when she does something that is a departure from her spiritual ideal.

Of course, the good thoughts are but partly forceful if they remain treasured in the individual. "Do noble things" also. The day-dream is not worth much if it be unfulfilled by good actions. And that brings us to the important point of this tale. Each woman has her own thoughts, with her own ideals enthroned in the secret sanctuary of her life; beyond the portals others rarely dare venture. But just as soon as the energy of a woman's life becomes crystallized into deeds, then she gives a part of herself to others, and her actions, are, so to-speak, shared with mankind.

How important, then, is the thought that the gift which we share with others should be good, true, noble! In little things, in great events the same immovable lodestar of goodness should influence us. It is natural to be good. The glow of spiritual delight when goodness characterizes an act proves this. The afterglow of discontent, uneasiness and self-dissatisfaction speaks for the worth of deeds that are out of the straight and narrow path.

From the mean remark, uttered to bring down the laugh of the listeners, to the deliberately planned evil action, there exists countless intermediate gradations, but there is an undeniable innate knowledge of their lack of goodness in the mind of each individual.

Let your sojourn in this world be marked with goodness. It is such a little word, but it means so much to you, to your people, to the ones whom you have never met; for, like the tiny pebble cast into the pond, it causes ever-widening lines to circle from it in force and influence that are inestimable.

So, be good, sweet maid!

54-40 OR Fight

By Emerson Hough

Author of The Mississippi Bubble

Illustrations by Magnus G. Kettner

(Copyright, 1909, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

"And perhaps it was wise. It was selection. So now they selected. Two of them married German working girls, and those two are dead, but there is no child of them alive. Two married in Austria, and of these one died, and the other is in a madhouse. One married a young Galician girl, and so fond of her did he become that she took him down from his station to hers, and he was lost. The other—"

"Yes; it was my father," she said, at length. "There he sits, my father. Yes, I love him. I would forfeit my life for him now—I would lay it down gladly for him. Better had I done so. But in my time I have hated him.

"He, the last one, searched long for this fitting animal to lead to the altar. He was tall and young and handsome and rich, do you see? He could have chosen among his own people any woman he liked. Instead, he searched among the Galicians, the lower Austrians, the Prussians. He examined Bavaria and Saxony. Many he found, but still none to suit his scientific ideas. He bethought him then of searching among the Hungarians, where, it is said, the most beautiful women of the world are found. So at last he found her, that peasant, my mother!"

The silence in the room was broken at last by her low, even, hopeless voice as she went on:

"Now, the Hungarians are slaves to Austria. They do as they are bid, those who live on the great estates. They have no hope. If they rebel, they are cut down. They are not a people. They belong to no one, not even to themselves."

"My God!" said I, a sigh breaking from me in spite of myself. I raised my hand as though to beseech her not to go on. But she persisted.

"Yes, we, too, called upon our gods! So, now, my father came among that people and found there a young girl, one much younger than himself. She was the most beautiful, so they say, of all those people, many of whom are very beautiful."

"Yes—proof of that!" said I. She knew I meant no idle flattery.

"Yes, she was beautiful. But at first she did not fancy to marry this Austrian student nobleman. She said no to him, even when she found who he was and what his station—even when she found that he meant her no dishonor. But our ruler heard of it, and, being displeased at this mockery of the traditions of the court, and wishing in his sardonic mind to teach these fanatical young nobles to rue well their bargain, he sent word to the girl that she must marry this man—my father. It was made an imperial order!

"And so now, at last, since he was half crazed by her beauty, as men are sometimes by the beauty of women,

"Yes; It Was My Father," She Said at Length.

and since at last this had its effect with her, as sometimes it does with women, and since it was perhaps death or some severe punishment if she did not obey, she married him—my father."

"And loved me all her life!" the old man broke out. "Nefer had man love like hers. I will haf it said. I will haf it said that she loved me, always and always; and I loved her always, with all my heart!"

"Yes," said Helena von Ritz, "they two loved each other, even as they were. So here am I, born of that love."

Now we all sat silent for a time. "That birth was at my father's estates," resumed the same even, merciless voice. "After some short time of travels, they returned to the estates, and, yes, there I was born, half noble, half peasant; and then there began the most cruel thing the world has ever known.

"The nobles of the court and of the country all around began to make existence hideous for my mother. The aristocracy, insulted by the republicanism of these young nobles, made life a hell for the most gentle woman of Hungary. Ah, they found new ways to make her suffer. They allowed her to share in my father's estates, allowed her to appear with him when he could prevail upon her to do so. Then they twitted and taunted her and mocked her in all the devilish ways of their class. She was more beautiful than any court beauty of them all, and they hated her for that. She had a good mind, and they hated her for that. She had a faithful, loyal heart, and they hated her for that."

"But your father resented this?"

She nodded. "Duel after duel he fought, man after man he killed, thanks to his love for her and his manhood. He would not release what he loved. He would not allow his class to separate him from his choice. But the women! Ah, he could not fight them! So I have hated women, and made war on them all my life. My father could not placate his emperor. So, in short, that scientific experiment ended in misery—and me!"

The room had grown dimmer. The sun was sinking as she talked. There was silence, I know, for a long time before she spoke again.

"In time, then, my father left his estates and went out to a small place in the country; but my mother—her heart was broken. Malice pursued her. Those who were called her superiors would not let her alone. See, he weeps, my father, as he thinks of these things.

"There was cause, then, to weep. For two years, they tell me, my mother wept. Then she died. She gave me, a baby, to her friend, a woman of her village—Threlka Mazoff. You have seen her. She has been my mother ever since. She has been the sole guardian I have known all my life. She has not been able to do with me as she would have liked."

"You did not live at your own home with your father?" I asked.

"For a time. I grew up. But my father, I think, was permanently shocked by the loss of the woman he had loved and whom he had brought into all this cruelty. She had been so lovable, so beautiful—she was so beautiful, my mother! So they sent me away to France, to the schools. I grew up, I presume, proof in part of the excellence of my father's theory. They told me that I was a beautiful animal!"

The contempt, the scorn, the pathos—the whole tragedy of her voice and bearing—were such as I cannot set down on paper, and such as I scarce could endure to hear. Never in my life before have I felt such a pity for a human being, never so much desire to do what I might in sheer compassion.

But now, how clear it all became to me! I could understand many strange things about the character of this singular woman, her whims, her unaccountable moods, her seeming carelessness, yet withal, her dignity and sweetness and air of breeding—above all her mysteriousness. Let others judge her for themselves. There was only longing in my heart that I might find some word of comfort. What could comfort her? Was not life, indeed, for her to remain a perpetual tragedy?

"But, madam," said I, at length, "you must not wrong your father and your mother and yourself. These two loved each other devotedly. Well, what more? You are the result of a happy marriage. You are beautiful, you are splendid, by that reason."

"Perhaps. Even when I was 16 I was beautiful," she mused. "I have heard rumors of that. But I say to you that then I was only a beautiful animal. Also, I was a vicious animal. I had in my heart all the malice which my mother never spoke. I felt in my soul the wish to injure women, to punish men, to torment them, to make them pay! To set even those balances of torture!—ah, that was my ambition! I had not forgotten that, when I first met you, when I first heard of—her, the woman whom you love, whom already in your savage, strong way you have wedded—the woman whose vows I spoke with her—I—I, Helena von Ritz, with history such as mine!

"Father, father"—she turned to him swiftly; "rise—go! I cannot now speak before you. Leave us alone until I call!"

Obedient as though he had been the child and she the parent, the old man rose and tottered feebly from the room.

"There are things a woman cannot say in the presence of a parent," she said, turning to me. Her face twitched. "It takes all my bravery to talk to you."

"Why should you? There is not need. Do not!"

"Ah, I must, because it is fair," said she. "I have lost, lost! I have told you I would pay my wager."

After a time she turned her face straight toward mine and went on with her old splendid bravery.

"So, now, you see, when I was young and beautiful I had rank and money. I had brains. I had hatred of men. I had contempt for the aristocracy. My heart was peasant after all. My principles were those of the republican. Revolution was in my soul, I say. Thwarted, distorted, wretched, unscrupulous, I did what I could to make hell for those who had made hell for us. I have set dozens of men by the ears. I have been promised in marriage to I know not how many. A dozen men have fought to the death in duels over me. For each such death I had not even a thought. The more troubles I made, the happier I was. Oh, yes, in time I became known—I had a reputation; there is no doubt of that.

"But still the organized aristocracy had its revenge—it had its will of me, after all. There came to me, as there had to my mother, an imperial order in punishment for my fancies and vagaries, I was condemned to marry a certain nobleman. That was the whim of the new emperor, Ferdinand, the degenerate. He took the throne when I was but 16 years of age. He chose for me a degenerate mate from his own sort." She choked now.

"You did marry him?"

She nodded. "Yes. Debauchee, rake, monster, degenerate, product of that aristocracy which had oppressed us, I was obliged to marry him, a man three times my age! I pleaded. I begged. I was taken away by night. I was—I was— They say I was married to him. For myself, I did not know where I was or what happened. But after that they said I was the wife of this man, a sot, a monster, the memory only of manhood. Now, indeed, the revenge of the aristocracy was complete!"

She went on at last in a voice icy cold. "I fled one night, back to Hungary. For a month they could not find me. I was still young. I saw my people then as I had not before. I saw also the monarchies of Europe. Ah, now I knew what oppression meant! Now I knew what class distinction and special privileges meant! I saw what ruin it was spelling for our country—what it will spell for your country, if they ever come to rule here. Ah, then that dream came to me which had come to my father, that beautiful dream which justified me in everything I did. My friend can it—can it in part justify me—now?

"For the first time, then, I resolved to live! I have loved my father ever since that time. I pledged myself to continue that work which he had undertaken! I pledged myself to better the condition of humanity if I might.

"There was no hope for me. I was condemned and ruined as it was. My life was gone. Such as I had left, that I resolved to give to what shall we call it?—the idee democratique.

"Now, may God rest my mother's soul, and mine also, so that some time I may see her in another world—I pray I may be good enough for that some time. I have not been sweet and sinless as was my mother. Fate laid a heavier burden upon me. But what remained with me throughout was the idea which my father had bequeathed me—"

"Ah, but also that beauty and sweetness and loyalty which came to you from your mother," I insisted.

She shook her head. "Wait!" she said. "Now they pursued me as though I had been a criminal, and they took me back—horsemen about me who did as they liked. I was, I say, a sacrifice. News of this came to that man who was my husband. He had not the courage of the nobles left. But he heard of one nobleman against whom he had a special grudge, and him one night, foully and unfairly, he murdered.

"News of that came to the emperor. My husband was tried, and, the case being well known to the public, it was necessary to convict him for the sake of example. Then, on the day set for his beheading, the emperor reprieved him. The hour for the execution passed, and, being now free for the time, he fled the country. He went to Africa, and there he so disgraced the state that bore him that of late times I hear he has been sent for to come back to Austria. Even yet the emperor may suspend the reprieve and send him to the block for his ancient crime. If he had a thousand heads he could not atone for the worse crimes he has done!

"But of him and of his end I know nothing. So, now, you see I was and am wed, and yet am not wed, and never was. I do not know what I am, nor who I am. After all, I cannot tell you who I am or what I am, because I myself do not know.

"It was no longer safe for me in my own country. They would not let me go to my father any more. As for him, he went on with his studies, some part of his mind being bright and clear. They did not wish him about the court now. All these matters were to be hushed up. The court of England began to take cognizance of these things. Our government was scandalized. They sent my father, on pretext of scientific errands, into one country and another—to Sweden, to England, to Africa, at last to America. Thus it happened that you met him. You must both have been very near to meeting me in Montreal. It was fate, as we of Hungary would say.

"As for me, I was no mere harebrained radical. I did not go to Russia, did not join the revolutionary circle of Paris, did not seek out Prussia. That is folly. My father was right. It must be the years, it must be the good heritage, it must be the good environment, it must be even opportunity for all, which alone can produce good human beings! In short, believe me, a victim, the hope of the world is in a real democracy. Slowly, gradually, I was coming to believe that."

She paused a moment. "Then, one time, monsieur—I met you, here in this very room! God pity me! You were the first man I had ever seen. God pity me!—I believe I—loved you—that night, that very first night! We are friends. We are brave. You are man and gentleman, so I may say that, now. I am no longer woman. I am but a sacrifice.

"Opportunity must exist, open and free for all the world," she went on, not looking at me more than I could now at her. "I have set my life to prove this thing. When I came here to this America—out of pique, out of a love of adventure, out of sheer daring and exultation in imposture—then I saw why I was born, for what purpose! It was to do such work as I might to prove the theory of my father, and to justify the life of my mother. For that thing I was born. For that thing I have been damned on this earth unless I can make some great atonement. For these I suffer and shall always suffer. But what of that? There must always be a sacrifice."

The unspeakable tragedy of her voice cut to my soul. "But listen!" I broke out. "You are young. You are free. All the world is before you. You can have anything you like—"

"Ah, do not talk to me of that," she exclaimed imperiously. "Do not tempt me to attempt the deceit of myself! I made myself as I am, long ago. I did not love. I did not know it. As to marriage, I did not need it. I had abundant means without. I was in the upper ranks of society. I was there; I was classified; I lived with them. But always I had my purposes, my plans. For them I paid, paid, paid, as a woman must, with—what a woman has.

"But now, I am far ahead of my story. Let me bring it on. I went to Paris. I have sown some seeds of venom, some seeds of revolution, in one place or another in Europe in my time. Ah, it works; it will go! Here and there I have cost a human life. Here and there work was to be done which I disliked; but I did it. Misguided, uncared for, mishandled as I had been—well, as I said, I went to Paris.

"Ah, sir, will you not, too, leave the room, and let me tell on this story to myself, to my own soul? It is fitter for my confessor than for you."

"Let me, then, be your confessor!" said I. "Forget! Forget! You have not been this which you say. Do I not know?"

"No, you do not know. Well, let be. Let me go on! I say I went to Paris. I was close to the throne of France. That little duke of Orleans, son of Louis Philippe, was a puppet in my hands. Oh, I do not doubt I did mischief in that court, or at least if I failed it was through no lack of effort! I was called there 'America Vespucci.' They thought me Italian! At last they came to know who I was. They dared not make open rupture in the face of the courts of Europe. Certain of their high officials came to me and my young duke of Orleans. They asked me to leave Paris. They did not command it—the duke of Orleans cared for that part of it. But they requested me outside—not in his presence. They offered me a price, a bribe—such an offering as would, I fancied, leave me free to pursue my own ideas in my own fashion and in any corner of the world. You have perhaps seen some of my little fancies. I imagined that love and happiness were never for me—only ambition and unrest. With these goes luxury, sometimes. At least this sort of personal liberty was offered me—the price of leaving Paris, and leaving the son of Louis Philippe to his own devices. I did so."

"And so, then you came to Washington? That must have been some years ago."

"Yes; some five years ago. I still was young. I told you that you must have known me, and so, no doubt, you did. Did you ever hear of 'America Vespucci'?"

A smile came to my face at the suggestion of that celebrated adventuress and mysterious impostress who had figured in the annals of Washington—a fair Italian, so the rumor ran, who had come to this country to set up a claim, upon our credulity at least, to being the descendant of none less than Amerigo Vespucci himself! This supposititious Italian had indeed gone so far as to secure the introduction of a bill in congress granting to her certain lands. The fate of that bill even then hung in the balance. I had no reason to put anything beyond the audacity of this woman with whom I spoke! My smile was simply that which marked the eventual voting down of this once celebrated measure, as merry and as bold a jest as ever was offered the credulity of a nation—one conceivable only in the mad and bitter wit of Helena von Ritz!

"Yes," Said She, "Among Other Things I Have Been 'America Vespucci!'"

"Yes, madam," I said, "I have heard of 'America Vespucci.' I presume that you are now about to repeat that you are she!"

She nodded, the mischievous enjoyment of her colossal jest showing in her eyes, in spite of all. "Yes," said she, "among other things, I have been 'America Vespucci!' There seemed little to do here in intrigue, and that was my first endeavor to amuse myself. Then I found other employment. England needed a skillful secret agent. Why should I be faithful to England? At least, why should I not also enjoy intrigue with yonder government

Corporation Notice.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Common Council, of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on Monday, the sixth day of June, 1910, an ordinance of which the following is a true copy, to wit:

AN ORDINANCE

To Provide for the Construction of a Further Addition to the System of Sewerage Already Constructed in the City of Plainfield.

Whereas, There has been constructed in said city a system of sewarege, and such action in relation thereto has from time to time been taken as is set forth in the several ordinances of said city relating thereto, and particularly the ordinances respectively entitled, "An Ordinance to Provide for the Construction of an Addition to the System of Sewerage already constructed in the City of Plainfield," approved November 6, 1897, and "An Ordinance to provide for the Improvement of Sewage Disposal Works, Beds and Appurtenances, of the City of Plainfield," approved April 4, 1901, to which several ordinances reference is hereby made for greater certainty; and,

Whereas, In the opinion of the Common Council the public good requires that a further addition, as herein described, to the system of sewerage already constructed, should be now constructed in and for said city, under the provisions of the acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided, and the Common Council has so determined and does hereby so determine; therefore,

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that a further addition to the system of sewerage already constructed as aforesaid, be constructed in and for said city, under the provisions of the acts of the Legislature above referred to, including the necessary force mains, air mains, operating vaults, buildings, wells, motors, compressors, receivers and pumps, lifts or ejectors, with all the appurtenances required to complete the same, of the character, description, dimensions and material shown on plans adopted by the Common Council and filed in the office of the City Clerk May 2, 1910, which said plans are entitled "Sewerage System, City of Plainfield, N. J., Extensions and Pumping Stations, 1910." Sheets 1 and 2, and according to such further plans as the said Common Council may hereafter direct, in and through the following described streets, avenues, property, lands and rights-of-way described, mentioned and referred to in this ordinance, to wit:

Monroe Avenue, from West Third Street to Sherman Avenue;

Hobert Avenue, from West Seventh Street to West Eighth Street;

West Fourth and West Fifth Streets, from Prescott Place to Monroe Avenue;

West Sixth Street from the line of Prescott Place produced to Monroe Avenue;

West Seventh Street, from a point 575 feet east of Monroe Avenue to a point 1,100 feet west thereof;

West Eighth Street, from Grant Avenue to the southerly City line.

Sherman Avenue, from Plainfield Avenue to Monroe Avenue;

Plainfield Avenue, from Stelle Avenue to the southerly City Line;

Randolph Road, from Plainfield Avenue to a point 280 feet west of Central Avenue;

Rose Street;

Radcliff Place.

Sec. 2. That house connections shall be constructed from the above named sewers to the curb lines as shown on the above-mentioned plans, also on East Front Street from Berckman Street to Leland Avenue and on Central Street, as shown on plan now on file in the City Clerk's office, entitled "Sewerage System, City of Plainfield, N. J., Extensions, 1910," dated April 15, 1910, was presented, read and ordered to be considered and acted upon by said Common Council at a regular meeting thereof to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in said City of Plainfield, on Tuesday, the fifth day of July, 1910, at the hour of eight o'clock in the evening of that day, and at such meeting ample opportunity will be given to all parties in favor of or opposed to the improvement contemplated by said ordinance, to present their views with reference to the same in writing, or otherwise, as the Common Council may at that time direct, and public notice is hereby given of the intention of the Common Council to cause said improvement set forth in this ordinance to be made, and such persons or corporations as may object thereto, are requested to present their objections in writing at the City Clerk's office, No. 151 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at or before the expiration of ten days from the date of this notice, or to the Common Council at its first meeting held after the expiration of the said ten days, and said Common Council at such meeting, to be held on the fifth day of July, 1910, as above stated, or afterward, may proceed to consider and pass such ordinance, notwithstanding any objection.

By order of the Common Council.

J. T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

Dated Plainfield, N. J., June 6, 1910.

Plainfield, N. J., June 6, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

A General Ordinance to provide for the payment of pensions to qualified retired members of the police force of the City of Plainfield.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Whenever the Common Council shall ascertain and determine, and by resolution adjudge and declare, that any member of the police force of said city who at the time of the adoption of such resolution shall have honorably served upon the police force of said city for twenty years continuously and reached the age of not less than sixty years is, in the judgment of the Common Council, entitled to be retired upon a pension, said Common Council may thereupon, upon the written request of said member of the police force of said city, and upon receiving and accepting his resignation, adopt a further resolution that such member thereupon be forthwith constituted a retired member of said police force.

Sec. 2. That forthwith after receiving and accepting such resignation and after the adoption of both of said resolutions provided for in Section 1 of this ordinance, and not otherwise, such retired member of the police force of said city, constituted as such and designated as such in said resolution, shall be entitled to receive and shall be paid a yearly pension of five hundred dollars, payable in monthly installments, during the term of his natural life.

Sec. 3. This ordinance shall take effect ten days after the date of one publication thereof in each of the official newspapers printed in said city.

EMMIE LOU'S MUSKETEER

By PHIL SIMMS

Emmie Lou was all right until the Fenton stock company came to the opera house. After that a certain coldness sprang up between her and Alpheus Boggs, and it was even said the engagement had been broken off.

Alpheus never had been accused of being handsome. Also he had bunions and big feet, and clerked in a hardware store.

Lonsdale von Ruville was a different sort of a person. His feet were small and bunionless, while his eyes seemed made for love glances and flashing defiance at those who would oppose him. He was leading man with the Fenton Stock.

Emie Lou was entranced. Every day she watched him. How he could fight. How bravely he met all comers with his slender sword, and how easily he vanquished them all!

One day Bettie Scruggins remarked in Emmie Lou's presence that she had heard it said play-actors were very deceiving. But Emmie Lou merely sniffed.

But with the Fenton Stock was one woman who agreed with Bettie, and she a little timid creature who played "A Villager," or "First Voice," was in private life none other than Mrs. Lonsdale von Ruville, or, to be more exact, Mrs. Ebenezer Rumph, which was the leading man's other name.

She knew what it was to go days without a kind word; what it meant to feel the weight of his fist upon her; what it meant to be ignored, sneered at, forsaken.

Miss Janet Rannie, leading woman, pretty and blonde, was the wife of the heavy, Thomas Ragsdale, most popular man in the cast, and whose name off the stage was Dennis O'Hagan.

Lonsdale was sweet as pie on Miss Rannie and made no bones of it. Miss Rannie laughed at him. Thomas looked on but said nothing, trusting implicitly in his pretty wife.

It was the last week of the engagement, and D'Artagnan was being given the bravest interpretation he'd ever enjoyed. Lonsdale was his handsomest and the women in front were calling him all the dear names in the category. Emie Lou had shaken hands with him the day before at the after-matinee reception on the stage, and out in front was now in momentary danger of taking wings and flying right into the air in sheer happiness.

The applause was deafening when the curtain went down. In a darkened corner of the stage Lonsdale met Miss Rannie. He caught her by the wrist.

"You've played with me long enough," he whispered hotly into her ear. "You don't care for that chump husband of yours! You—"

"Brute!" Miss Rannie cried, and tore herself from his embrace as the stage manager came up.

The great duel scene was drawing nigh. The audience was holding its breath in anticipation. How D'Artagnan would face them and slay them one by one!

When, just before he took his cue, the stage manager whispered something into Ragsdale's ear, he became livid, then purple.

With a bewitching smile Lonsdale crossed swords with the heavy. The first stroke and parry sent a thrill through the audience and likewise through Dennis O'Hagan, for the "heavy" was not the actor, Thomas Ragsdale, any more.

"You puppy!" he cried, loud enough to be heard in the street, "you would insult my wife, would you? you whelp!"

And with that he grabbed Lonsdale von Ruville by the nape of the neck and with the flat side of his sword figuratively caned the leading man into a frazzle.

"Take 'im off! Take 'im off!" bawled Von Ruville in terror, dropping his sword. "He's killing me!"

He fell to his knees in abject fear, and O'Hagan's musketeer boots started a tattoo on his back that lasted as far as the stage door. Then the curtain fell, with the audience roaring.

Just as matters had been adjusted back of the footlights, so had they out in front. Everybody came to set things in their right light.

Detective's Queer Error.

An incident which proved humiliating to a Russian detective occurred in one of the principal squares of Copenhagen. A distinguished looking foreigner went up to a policeman, and pointing to a man who was crossing the square, said: "Kindly arrest that man. I am a Russian detective, and I have tracked him from St. Petersburg. He is a murderer, and I have a warrant for his arrest in my pocket." The policeman took both men to the police station, despite the protests of the second man.

There it was ascertained that he, too, was a Russian detective who was in Copenhagen for the purpose of watching over the safety of Empress Marie. Before catching his colleague the first detective, who had been thrown on the wrong track in an unexplained fashion, had traced him from Helsingsfors to Stockholm and thence to Denmark.

An Utter Failure.

"That man couldn't make a success of anything."

"What makes you say that?"

"Why, he actually made a failure of a butcher shop."

That every cloud has a silver lining is a comforting belief based largely on faith.

The Usual Result

(Time a winter evening. Place, the comfortably furnished living room of a house in a Chicago suburb. Cawthorn is seated before an open fire, holding between his fingers an unlighted cigar, which he surveys critically. Louise, his wife, is seated at a desk, frowning and biting the end of her pencil.)

Louise—There's no question about it, Dan; we really ought to economize.

Dan (striking a match)—Well, haven't I been smoking my Christmas cigars for nearly a month? (Puffs the cigar.) If smoking your Christmas cigars instead of buying the kind you like isn't economy I don't know what is!

Louise—You can, at least, be thankful that I didn't give you any! I've been married long enough to know better than to do that!

Dan—What put it into your head to economize?

Louise (with solemn intensity)—What do you suppose that wretched bank has done?

Dan (smiling in anticipation)—I can't imagine.

Louise—Sent me a notice that my account is overdrawn! Did you ever hear of such a thing? They might have known that I would come down and put in some more money just as soon as you give me my next month's allowance!

Dan—But didn't you know? (Comes over and picks up a checkbook.) Why, these stubs are all blank! When you write a check, don't you subtract—

Louise—Of course not! I never could subtract right. When I want to know how much money I have in the bank I just go and ask them. They're supposed to know. What is a bank for, anyway?

Dan—But if you—

Louise—Please don't bother, Dan. How can I subtract when there isn't anything in the bank to subtract from? The only thing to do now is to practice strict economy. Not that I'm ever the least bit extravagant! I hope you realize, Dan, how much you owe to my good management.

Dan—Of course, I do. (Sits down.) I was telling Blankley, just the other day, that the way you manage things housekeeping is almost as cheap as living at a hotel. We had quite an argument.

Louise—Didn't he believe you?

Dan—Well, I had to show him. You know Blankley lived in Missouri till he was almost old enough to vote.

Louise (with an uncomprehending stare)—I don't see what that has to do with it. But, really, it takes a woman to economize. Why, I read, just the other day, of a woman who made herself a perfectly lovely net waist out of her husband's old linen mesh underwear. Now, a man never would have thought of doing that, would he?

Dan—Not in a thousand years! Its a pity I can't afford to wear mesh underwear.

Louise—Yes, isn't it? And to-day, I found a recipe for making the most delicious cake without eggs, milk, butter or sugar! What would you think of that?

Dan—I prefer to reserve judgment till I've eaten the cake. By the way, was the dinner we had to-night constructed on the economical lines?

Louise (nodding her head emphatically)—Wasn't it splendid?

Dan—Well, I didn't seem to be able to recognize anything.

Louise (triumphantly)—I knew you wouldn't. Left-overs from soup to dessert! Mary worked on that dinner for hours and hours! She says if we are going to have such meals often she will have no time to wash and iron and we'll have to hire a laundress, but of course we can't afford that.

(The telephone bell rings and Louise hurries out to answer it. Dan puffs the last inch of his cigar and looks thoughtfully at the fire.)

Louise (returning)—It was Mrs. Blankley. She wanted us to be on the list of patrons for the charity ball. I told her of course we'd be delighted. (Sits down and begins to play with her pencil. Brief silence.) Dan!

Dan—Well?

Louise—I'm rather glad, after all, that you don't agree with me about the need of economy.

Dan—Why, I didn't say—

Louise—I know you didn't, dear, but I can always tell just how you feel about things without your saying a word. I suppose it's a sort of sixth sense. And since you don't think it necessary to economize, don't you think—

Dan—Yes?

Louise—Well, my evening gown is positively threadbare and—

Dan—And you ought to have a new one before the charity ball?

Louise—You clever man! How did you guess it? But (looking serious) my bank account?

Dan (gallantly)—Tell them to send the bill to me.

Louise (jumping up and running toward him)—Dan, you are the dearest thing!

ROOSEVELT THEIR IDEAL

Saunders and Fowler Tell Young Men to Emulate America's "First Citizen."

AT BUS. COLLEGE EXERCISES.

Mayors Fisk and Smalley Also Address the Graduating Class at Big Meeting Held at the Theatre.

Flanked on either side by men of note and in a stage setting of floral beauty, last night, the graduates of the Plainfield Business College heard words of praise and wisdom from the lips of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Congressman Charles N. Fowler, former Mayor William L. Saunders, Superintendent of Schools H. C. Krebs, and the Principal of the College, A. S. Herr. Of the twenty-four graduates seventeen were young women and it was stated by Mayor Fisk that he knew it to be a fact that of the twenty-four twenty-one had already been engaged to enter business careers. The graduates looked the real thing in their mortar-boards and gowns.

Congressman Fowler, who was intensely interested in the proceedings, made a splendid speech, full of good advice to the graduates, and while many had expected a dive into the political situation he carefully avoided the subject. When asked before leaving the city whether he would relinquish his Congressional aspirations to make the fight for the Senatorship in the Fifth district, Mr. Fowler answered. "Um! Ah! I don't think I care to say that I will or won't." To the further querry, "Are you going to make a fight for the Senatorship, anyway?" he replied, "I did not expect to be interviewed tonight, so I am not prepared to answer that, either."

The Plainfield theatre was crowded to the doors when the exercises began, Martin A. Korff's orchestra beginning the proceedings with an overture. After the invocation by Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, Mr. Saunders introduced the speakers, incidentally paying a tribute to Hugh B. Sweeney who made the arrangements for the exercises. Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, who was second on the list of speakers, failed to put in an appearance thereby disappointing a number who had come to hear him.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the singing by Miss Grace Carroll, contralto soloist of the First Presbyterian church. She received two recalls and graciously responded. Mayor Fisk made a characteristic speech of congratulation, walking across the stage to shake the hands of both Mr. and Mrs. Herr. The Mayor declared that he had watched the progress of the college from its very beginning to the present and was prepared to say that the Plainfield Business College was one of the best educational mediums in the city. Its development had been remarkable and the city had cause to be proud of it.

Mr. Saunders' subject, "Qualities that Bring Success in Business," was full of meaning not only to the graduates, but to every man and woman in the audience. Honesty, Concentration and Courage were the three requisites, he said, and the three essentials for a successful career.

Mr. Saunders said that to be commonly honest is the first essential to success. But industry, he said coupled with concentration and aided by the courage of one's convictions were the very best equipment that a young person starting out in business life could have. Of Hugh Sweeney Mr. Saunders had much to say as to the exacting duties of this young man and told how Mr. Sweeney inveigled him into presiding at this function. Simply because Mr. Sweeney had done something for him when he sold 100 tickets for Trelawny of the Wells he could not refuse to do something for him on this interesting occasion. He used Mr. Sweeney as a shining example of industry.

Mr. Saunders referred to Theodore Roosevelt and Thomas A. Edison as the two foremost men of the world and at the mention of Mr. Roosevelt's name the audience burst into loud and prolonged applause. He told of Mr. Roosevelt's democratic spirit and his forcefulness and his great capacity for work and held him up as an example worthy to imitate.

Professor Herr addressed the graduates briefly telling them what it means to the city to have such a splendid array of talent from which to select employes for their business. He declared that education could not be bought or sold. The diplomas which they had earned by their industry represented no more

SUDDEN DEATH OF JOHN J. HARRINGTON

John J. Harrington, brother of T. F. Harrington, of Greenbrook road, died suddenly at Hotel Belmont, New York, yesterday following an attack of heart disease. Mr. Harrington was the Tammany leader in the Sixteenth Assembly district, and was a frequent visitor to this city. His body was taken yesterday to his summer home at Larchmont, where the funeral will be held on Monday at St. Augustine's church.

Mr. Harrington was born on the East Side, New York, fifty-one years ago, and at an early age began work in a slaughter house on the river front. Two years ago he was elected leader of the Sixteenth Assembly district, entering the contest against Francis J. Lantry, who had been leader for years, but who was not acceptable to Charles F. Murphy. Mr. Harrington was a director of the Broadway Trust Company, of the Nineteenth Ward Bank and of the New York Butchers' Calfskin Association. He was a member of several Catholic orders and of the Elks and the Press Club. He leaves a wife.

SOMERSET COUNCIL IS NINETEEN YEARS OLD

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., celebrated its nineteenth anniversary last night. The lodge room was taxed to its capacity there being representatives present from Franklin, Plainfield and Benevolent councils.

During the evening addresses were made by State Vice Councilor LaRue, State Deputy Clunn, Rev. Ora Jerome Shoop and Rev. C. S. Kemble. The program also included mandolin and guitar selections by William and Edward Stewart, piano selections by Gus Meigner and vocal selections by George Watt.

The present membership of Somerset council is 396 and the lodge is in a fluorishing condition and one of the most active councils in the State.

COUNCILMAN SMALLEY ENTERTAINS BALL TEAM.

Councilman William L. Smalley, Jr., entertained the members of the North Plainfield High School baseball team and their friends to a straw ride last night. The "blow" on Mr. Smalley's part was due to N. P. H. S.'s victory over Plainfield High on the diamond last Wednesday afternoon.

Springfield was the destination of the merrymakers and there were about twenty-five in the party. The trip was made in one of Frank Mobus' commodious stages and an enjoyable time was had.

There will be no third game played between the teams as anticipated. It was suggested that a deciding game be played on Tuesday, but owing to scholarship conditions of some of the players it was decided by the faculties to dispense with the game.

A Military Drama.

Under the auspices of the New Jersey Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, and the principal patriotic and social organizations of the State, and in co-operation with the State Militia a series of military and patriotic entertainments on a spectacular scale have been ararnged to take place in the principal cities and towns of New Jersey in the autumn. "The Luck of MacGregor," a stirring and picturesque military drama, by Edward Vroom, has been chosen for the vehicle.

Death of Miss Whitney.

Miss Georgia S. Whitney, daughter of the late Bennett and Susan Whitney, died this morning at her home, 748 West Front street. Miss Whitney came to live in this city about two years ago. The funeral service will take place at her late residence on Tuesday, June 14, at 10 o'clock in the mroning and the interment will be at New Brunswick.

Dukes to Tour Europe.

James B. Duke, of Raritan, president of the American Tobacco Company, and Mrs. Duke started on an extended tour of Europe yesterday. While there they will inspect some of the castles for the purpose of obtaining ideas for the new home he contemplates.

Mrs. Patsy Jackson.

Mrs. Patsy Jackson aged about 75 years of age, died this morning at the home of Mrs. Charlotte Anderson, at 94 Manning avenue. She is survived by a daughter, and a son who resides in Chicago.

ANOTHER TRUST COMPANY

Proposed Concern Will Take Up Business of Borough National Bank.

CAPITAL TO BE $100,000.

The New Company Will Open Its Office in September—The Promoters Consider that Its Prospects Are Bright.

A new trust company for Plainfield, to be known as "The State Trust Company," has filed articles of incorporation with Commissioner of Banking and Insurance Watkins at Trenton, and the details of organization are now in progress at the present time. At present there are three National banks and one trust company here. The new concern proposes to take over the business of the Borough National bank, which has been successful during the twelve months of its existence, in which time it has secured deposits amounting to $150,000. The capital of this institution is $50,000 and the assets $235,000. As a result of this amalgamation, the Trust company will be able to offer depositors of the borough bank increased facilities. The community, the men interested say, will thereby benefit by a more equal distribution of banking facilities, without, however, increasing the number of financial institutions at present existing.

"The new company will be essentially a people's institution," said one of those interested today, "the stock being widely distributed among Plainfielders and North Plainfielders and the policy being controlled by no single interest. There are now $8,000,000 of bank desposits in town. This amount represents an increase of $6,000,000 during the past eight years and as the population of the city is increasing rapidly, the organizers feel that there is a splendid future for the new company, especially as it is proposed to extend the campaign for business throughout the State, to communities where there are either no banks or where the banks pay no interest, and to such, banking by mail facilities will be offered that will enable depositors to transact their business by post even more conveniently than they otherwise might in person.

"The location of the banking room will be central and will be modernly equipped, so that it will compare favorably with the high standard already set in this respect, and when the institution starts early in September, it will be able to offer every possible facility for the transaction of national, fidiciary and safe deposit business."

The names of the officers and directors, who will all be residents of Plainfield and North Plainfield and will be engaged in business either here or New York, will be announced shortly, the election not yet having been held. The capital of the new institution will be $100,000 and the surplus $50,000.

MISS McCARTHY DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Miss Mary McCarthy, aged twenty-five years, dauhgter of Mr. and Mrs. James McCarthy, of Terrill road, died yesterday after a lingering illness. Miss McCarthy was well known in this city in a large circle of friends.

The funeral service will be conducted at St. Mary's church on Tuesday morning.

Will Hold Union Services.

Pastors of several churches are arranging, as they did last year, to hold union services Sunday evenings during July and August. The churches who will join in the movement include the First Baptist, First Methodist, Trinity Reformed and the First Presbyterian churches. Last year's arangement was very satisfactory and the congregations at these services were large. The pastors of the above churches will do the preaching.

Accounting of Danz Estate.

Before Judge Lyon, in the Middlesex County Court at New Brunswick, yesterday, the accounting of Emma F. Danz, executrix of the estate of Lena H. Danz, of New Market, was approved. It showed an estate of $4,125.89 and a balance, after all debts, charges and legacies had been paid of $131.62.

Miss Miller Entertained.

Miss Lulu Miller, of Watchung avenue, entertained a number of friends last night in honor of her eighteenth birthday. Thirty friends were present and the time was enjoyably spent in dancing and the playing of games.

RAIN AFFECTS ATTENDANCE.

Notwithstanding This All Classes Filled Well but Late Arrivals Cause Delay in Judging.

Dismal, wet, disagreeable weather kept the attendance at the second annual bench show of the Plainfield Kennel Club at the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club Park down to a minimum today, but notwithstanding this drawback many dog fanciers and breeders braved the elements and took pride in the fact that even without a large gallery to watch the awarding of ribbons the glory was sufficient to compensate them for their courage in facing the drizzle. The judges were early on the grounds and tackled the problems before them with a vigor which showed that however hard it might rain or however unpleasant the task seemed in the murky atmosphere there would be sufficient glory attached to a duty well done to compensate them for their labors.

A full list of entries of all breeds are on hand and judging began on the small dogs first and ten rings are being used. At the hour of going to press no kennels had been finished.

These are the officers of the club: President, Abraham G. Hooley; first vice-president, John C. Haywood; secretary, Charles E. Faber; treaurer, Edward F. Feickert; board of governors, Abraham G. Hooley, John C. Haywood, Charles E. Faber, Edward F. Feickert, Edmund L. Mackenzie; bench show committee, Abraham G. Hooley, chairman; Charles E. Faber, R. W. K. Anderson, Dr. E. H. Berendsohn, E. F. Feickert, Edmund Rushmore, Frank W. Thompson; superintendent and secretary of the show, Edmund Rushmore; veterinarian, Dr. E. R. Voorhees.

The following are the judges today:

Irving H. Auerbach, Esq., Collies.

Mrs. Carl Baumann—Yorkshire terriers, maltese terriers and toy black and tan terriers.

Theodore Crane—Dalmatians.

J. E. DeMund, M. D.—Irish wolfhounds, Scottish deerhounds, whippets, bloodhounds, beagles, Newfoundlands, foxhounds, Esquimaux, Basset hounds, Italian greyhounds, old English sheep dogs and West Highland white terriers.

N. F. Feury, M. D.—Boston terriers.

WILLIAM LAWSON HEATH MARRIES IN WACO, TEX.

Miss Hazel Walters, daughter of Mrs. Hilldesheim, of Waco, Texas, and William Lawson Heath, formerly of this city, and now residing at Waco, were married at that city on Wednesday. The bride has many friends here. Mr. Heath is engaged as cotton broker and is associated with his father-in-law. He is a graduate of Steven's Institute.

Mr. Heath first met his bride at a dance given at Stevens Institute at the time of his graduation two years ago. Two months ago he received a bequest of $75,000 as the sole heir of his grandmother, Mrs. Carlton Heath, of Boston, and he then proposed and was promptly accepted by his bride.

George A. Moorehouse.

George A. Moorehouse, of McKinley place, died at noon today following complications resulting from a stroke of apoplexy. He was about seventy years old and was a well known citizen of this place. For many years he was a member of Queen City Lodge, I. O. O. F., and Perseverance Lodge, No. 73, K. of P. For twenty-one years he was superintendent of the blacksmith shop at Scott Printing Press Works. He is survived by a wife, two daughters, Edith and Flora, and a son, William H. Moorehouse.

Vagrant From Montclair.

In the police court this morning James Brown, colored, who claims Montclair as his home, was arraigned for vagrancy. Judge Runyon told him to get back to Montclair and never return under penalty of going to jail.

MRS. JOS. ROSENBAUM DIES IN BROOKLYN

W. W. Warnock, of Craig place, and Mrs. Margaret Wilson, of Grove street were apprised by telegram at noon today of the death of their sister, Mrs. Joseph Rosenbaum, of Brooklyn, which occurred early this morning at Liberty, N. Y. Her health had been impaired for the past two years and she went to Liberty several months ago in the hope that the change might prove beneficial. The funeral will be held at the place of death and burial will be in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Rosenbaum was formerly Miss Laura Rayside Warnock, of this city, daughter of the late Alexander and Laura Warnock. She lived in Plainfield until shortly before her marriage, after which she resided in Brooklyn. She was thirty-eight years old and is survived by her husband and one son, aged seven. Beside the relatives here she also leaves another sister, Miss Eleanor Warnock, of New York, and a brother, Harry, of San Francisco. She had a host of local friends who will hear of her death with keen regret.

OPEN AIR MEETING SUNDAY AFTERNOONS

The religious work committee of the Young Men's Christian Association is planning to hold a series of out-door Sunday afternoon meetings beginning on Sunday, June 19. The meetings will be held on the lot next to the First Baptist church and will be addressed by able speakers who have had experience in out-door evangelistic work. They will last but an hour, from four to five, and will be featured by attractive music.

The speaker at the meeting of Sunday, June 19, will be David Hughes, widely known as the "Well, Gypsy Smith." Mr. Hughes was formerly superintendent in charge of the open-air meetings conducted by the National Bible Institute in New York city. Though still a young man he has had a wide experience in evangelistic work beginning with the Welsh Revival, in which he was closely associated with Evan Roberts.

Attendance at the meetings will not be restricted to any. All will be welcome.

SHADE TREES ARE SERIOUSLY THREATENED.

Henry Crofut White, president of the North Plainfield Shade Tree Commission, has issued a circular, relative to the invasion of elm leaf beetles, which he is circulating among borough property owners urging that steps be taken for the protection of trees from the insect.

The circular states that the commission has made arrangements to spray trees by the agent at the following special rates: Trees 6 inches to 12 inches in diameter, 75 cents; 12 to 18 inches, $1.25; 18 inches to 2 feet, $1.75; 2 feet to 2½ feet, $2.25.

An Assault Case.

In the case of Thomas Waldron against Michael Crowley and Robert Wallace for an alleged assault committed on the night of May 21 the testimony of Waldron was heard by Judge Runyon and Waldron was cross examined by Walter Hetfield. The case was then postponed until June 18, a week from today.

Court Warns Mortenson.

Viggo Mortenson, of 932 West Third street, was warned this morning by City Judge Runyon that if his son, Holger Mortenson continued to annoy Mrs. Brancatti, a neighbor, by shooting nails from an air gun imperiling the lives of herself and children he would have to pay a fine of $25.

Drunk Cost Him $5.

Samuel Goff, a peddler, was arrested yesterday while lying helplessly drunk in a cellarway on East Second street. He contributed five dollars to the city treasury.

Gone to Bermuda.

James C. Pope, of West Fourth street, and Charles Davis, of Madison avenue, left today for Bermuda. They will be gone about two weeks.

Eagle Stars Victorious.

The Eagle Stars defeated the Essex Street Stars this morning by a score of 22 to 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Tetamo are the parents of a girl born yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Story, of Somerset street, with whom they are staying for the present.

SLAYER GETS 30 YEARS

Judge Parker Gives Buckley Maximum for Second Degree Murder.

MERCY IS SHOWN BY JURY.

Alvah A. Clark's Plea for Leniency, Alleging that Young Criminal Is in Poor Health, Proves Unavailing.

In the Somerset County Court at Somerville this morning, John Vincent Buckley, who on April 21 shot and killed Mrs. Frederick J. Coveiy, of the borough, was sentenced by Judge Parker to serve thirty eyars at hard labor in State prison. This is the maximum penalty for murder in the second degree but it carries with it a reward of one day off in six for good behaviour, which means that he may regain his freedom in 1931. The youthful slayer received the verdict without so much as the quiver of an eyelash and nodded pleasantly to several acquaintances as he was led back to his cell in the county jail. He will be taken to Trenton Monday morning by Sheriff Ross to begin his long term.

Robert Newton Crane, who was associated with Alvah A. Clark in the defense of Buckley at his trial, was not in court when the prisoner was arraigned for sentence and the plea in his behalf was made by the senior member of the counsel. Mr. Clark asserted that since his conviction the young man had been examined by physicians and that in their opinion his health is seriously impaired. For that reason, he argued, the ends of justice would be met if a lesser sentence than the maximum penalty were imposed. The chances are, Mr. Clark said, deprivation of air and sunshine would cost the boy his life within a few years. He also emphasized the fact that his client is but twenty years old and he was led into temptation by a woman much older than himself.

In referring to the counsel's plea and in passing sentence Judge Parker said:

"Buckley, this is a painful duty the court has to perform, but in the opinion of myself and my associate, Judge Case, the jury showed you all the leniency you are entitled to when it returned a verdict of second degree murder instead of first. I believe it did not go far enough as your crime was cold-blooded and premeditated. The fact that you carried a pistol around with you, to my mind, is conclusive proof. Your youthfulness in all probability had much to do with the lesser verdict as no especial credence can be given your story of self defense. You probably intended to kill the deceased and yourself, too, but as you failed in the suicide the State demands that you pay the penalty for your crime. I realize that the State prison is not the best place in the world for air and sunshine, but until the present condition of affairs is remedied prisinors have to take the accommodations. If your health is impaired, as Mr. Clark has stated, I am quite sure it is due more to your own habits rather than natural causes; therefore I impose the full penalty for murder in the second degree—thirty years in the State prison at hard labor."

None of Buckley's relatives was in court, but nearly a score of friends, including several borough young women, were interested spectators.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT PARK AVENUE BAPTIST.

The Children's Day program at the Park Avenue Baptist church will be unusually attractive this year. The exercises will be held in the main auditorium tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock, and will include songs and recitations by the elementary department; selections by the Sunday-school orchestra and solos by Miss Edith Bechtel and Chester Chamberlain, formerly soloist of Grace church choir. William Holmes will also sing.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor, will deliver an address of exceptional interest. He will give a missionary talk to the children on "Africa." Mr. Maguire having labored for several years among the Africans, he will bring to his audience his actual experiences. He will also exhibit a number of curios which he brought from Africa, including the famous necklace belonging to a "Witch Doctor."

The afternoon session of the Sunday-school will also be of interest to the entire membership. The lesson is to be omitted and in its place the school will enjoy a program arranged by the superintendent, George E. Hall, in recognition of the 200 attendance which was reached last Sunday.

BOY'S DEATH FOLLOWS FALL OF MONTH AGO.

Roselle Park, June 11.—From injuries received more than a month ago, when he fell down the cellar stairs in his home in Westfield avenue, Roselle Park, Raymond Multon, aged nine years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Nulton, died Thursday afternoon in the St. Elizabeth Hospital, Elizabeth.

Since his fall young Nulton has twice been in the hospital and physicians have worked hard to save his life. He struck his head in the fall, and it is thought broke a blood vessel. On several occasions the boy has been subjected to the X-rays at the hospital. Young Nulton was popular as a school boy in the borough. Besides his parents he is survived by a brother, Edward, and a sister, Elizabeth.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., June 1, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

To License, Regulate and Prohibit Shows and Exhibitions.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That no person or corporation shall, for any price, gain, or reward, exhibit or cause to be exhibited in the City of Plainfield any traveling or other show, circus or menagerie, or give or have or cause to be given or had any theatrical or variety performance or play, concert or other entertainment, or have or make or cause to be had or made, any exhibition of whatsoever nature, or maintain or conduct or cause to be maintained or conducted any theatre, opera house, music hall, or other place of public entertainment without first obtaining a license therefor, to be granted by the Mayor, as herein prescribed; provided, however, that the provisions of this ordinance shall not apply to a concert or entertainment given for charitable or benevolent purposes.

Sec. 2. That no owner, occupant or other person or persons having the possession or care of any house, building or room or any lot of land within the City of Plainfield, shall suffer or permit any such traveling or other show, circus or menagerie, theatrical or variety performance or play, concert or other entertainment, or any exhibition of whatsoever nature such as are mentioned in the preceding section of this ordinance, to be exhibited, acted, shown forth or performed for any price, gain or reward, in or upon his, her or their said house, building or room or lot of land, unless the party or parties so causing such traveling or other show, circus or menagerie, theatrical or variety performance or play, concert or other entertainment, or any exhibition of whatsoever nature as aforesaid, shall first obtain such license in the manner herein prescribed.

Sec. 3. That the license fees to be charged for such licenses respectively shall be as follows, to-wit:

For a license for a circus with or without a menagerie the sum of not exceeding Two Hundred Dollars for each day;

For a license for a concert the sum of not exceeding Ten Dollars for each concert;

For a license for a theatre, opera house, or music hall, the sum of One Hundred Dollars a year; and for a license for any other place or public entertainment, the sum of not exceeding Twenty-five Dollars a year; and each such license for a theatre, opera house, music hall, or other place of public entertainment, shall expire on the first day of January following the date of the granting of such license;

For any moving picture show or entertainment, the sum of not exceeding Ten Dollars for each day;

For any exhibition or entertainment for which the amount of the license fee is not herein specifically fixed, the fee to be charged for such license shall not exceed the sum of Twenty-five Dollars for each such exhibition or entertainment.

Sec. 4. That the Mayor shall have the authority to determine the amount of any license fee within the limits aforesaid, and to decide whether a license is required under the terms of the preceding section when there is doubt upon application, and also authority to grant or withhold a license. Upon the Mayor deciding to grant any license, and the payment of the license fee to the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield or the Chief of Police, and the production of his receipt therefor to the Mayor, there shall be given to the applicant a license which shall state the name of the person licensed and the purpose and length of time or number of exhibitions or entertainments for which the license is granted. The Mayor shall also have authority to revoke any such license upon proof to his satisfaction after reasonable notice to the person or corporation holding such license and reasonable opportunity for him or it to be heard, that such licensed person or corporation, or any person acting on his or its behalf has given or caused to be given any exhibition of any nature whatever of an immoral nature or tendency, or in violation of any law of the State or any ordinance of the City, and after such revocation such person or corporation shall be deemed to be not licensed and be and remain liable under this ordinance in the same manner as if such license had never been granted.

Sec. 5. No moving picture show shall be given at any time or in any place within the said City without the written permission first obtained by the Mayor, in which shall be set forth the time and place at which such moving picture show may be given.

Sec. 6. That any person or persons who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance shall on conviction be subject to a fine not exceeding One Hundred Dollars or imprisonment not exceeding sixty days or both such fine and imprisonment.

Sec. 7. That the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance relating to shows and exhibitions," approved July 9, 1869; the ordinance to amend said ordinance, approved November 10, 1884; the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to license, regulate and prohibit shows and exhibitions," approved December 8, 1897; the ordinance entitled "A Supplement to an ordinance entitled 'An Ordinance to license, regulate and prohibit shows and exhibitions,' approved December 8, 1897," approved July 12, 1898; and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances which conflict with any of the provisions of this ordi*nance* be and the same are hereby repealed.

Union County Court of Common Pleas.

Notice of hearing objections to assessments for street improvements in the City of Plainfield.

Joseph Harrigan, Harry B. MacDonald and Andrew J. Gavett, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas, by order entered on the twenty-third day of March, 1910, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinance of said city specified in said order, (said ordinance being also hereinafter specified) and the character of the work and improvements for which said assessments have been made and a description of the sections of the particular streets and avenues thereof which are included in said assessment, being as follows, viz:

Union Street, from the southwesterly curb line of Arlington Avenue to the southerly side line of Stelle Avenue;

Stelle Avenue, from the easterly curb line of Madison Avenue to the westerly curb line of Union Street;

Madison Avenue, from the southerly curb line of Stelle Avenue to the macadam already constructed on Randolph Road;

Darrow Avenue, from the southeasterly curb line of West Fourth Street to the northwesterly curb line of West Seventh Street;

Compton Avenue, from the northwesterly curb line of West Front Street to the macadam already constructed on Dunellen Avenue;

Ravine Road, from the easterly curb line of Belvidere Avenue to the southerly side line of Dixie Lane;

under the ordinance of said City entitled: "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable Macadam Pavement, and to provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," approved April 12, 1909, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real estate benefited thereby," approved June 13th, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the clerk of said court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and map prepared by the City Surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, respectively, the total cost of the whole work upon each of the sections of said streets or avenues improved as aforesaid, under the aforesaid ordinance; the portions assessed upon the City at large, and the names, so far as ascertained, of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benefits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the City at large, and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the legislature, as by reference to said report and map will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given, that said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the fifteenth day of June, 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the Court can attend to the same, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

AN ORDINANCE

Regulating and Prohibiting the Discharge of Fire-Arms and Fireworks.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. No person or corporation shall within the limits of the City of Plainfield fire or discharge any cannon, toy cannon, gun, revolver, or toy pistol or other appliance for discharging metal or paper caps such as are used in toy pistols, or fire-arms of any description whether the same be loaded with blank or full charge; provided that this section shall not apply to persons engaged in military exercises or to members of the Police Department while on duty, or to the use of a revolver, pistol or other fire-arm in defense of life or property.

Sec. 2. No person or corporation shall fire or discharge any fire-cracker, torpedo, fireworks of any character, or any other thing containing or composed of powder or other explosive or combustible material, or set in motion any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, upon any street, lane, highway or public place of the City of Plainfield.

Sec. 3. No person or corporation shall within the limits of the City of Plainfield fire or discharge any firecracker, torpedo, or firework, or set in motion any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, except that firecrackers made of soft paper loosely wrapped containing no other explosive but black powder and not over five inches in length and torpedoes not over three-*quarters of an inch in diameter and fire*works other than sky-rockets having sticks attached or any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, may be set off and discharged upon private property on the Fourth day of July of any year, unless the Fourth day of July falls on Sunday and in such event then on the Fifth day of July, between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and twelve o'clock midnight, but at no other time, provided, however, that at any time the Mayor may upon written application made at least twenty-four hours before the time when said event is to occur, give permission for the display and discharge of fireworks except sky-rockets having sticks attached or any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, at a time and place to be specified and under the direction of a person or persons to be named in the written permit issued by the Mayor.

Sec. 4. Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of sections one, two and three of this ordinance shall on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding Twenty Dollars for each offense.

Sec. 5. That section one of an ordinance entitled "An ordinance concerning fire-arms and other deadly weapons," approved April 9, 1895, as amended and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

AN ORDINANCE

To Amend an Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance Concerning Dogs," approved May 3rd, 1909.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Section 10 of an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance concerning dogs," approved May 3rd, 1909, be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sec. 10. Every dog so seized and impounded, shall be kept, fed and kindly treated by the said poundkeeper for a period of not less than seventy-two hours from the time of impounding, and the owner or person entitled to the custody of any dog so seized and impounded may within said period redeem said dog upon paying to the said poundkeeper the sum of one dollar for each twenty-four (24) hours or part thereof that the said dog is so impounded, one-half of which shall be for the use of the said pound-keeper, and the other half for the use of the city. No dog so seized and impounded shall be redeemed by the owner thereof or released by the poundkeeper unless a proper license and a tag are procured for said dog previous to such release.

AN ORDINANCE

to Provide Separate Sewers or Drains to Carry Off the Surface Water in a Portion of Richmond Street.

Whereas, the city finds it necessary, and the Common Council hereby so determines, to provide separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in a portion of Richmond Street hereinafter specified, and the water flowing into Cedar Brook through said portion of said street, and the Common Council has determined, and doth hereby determine that the public good requires the construction of the sewers or drains hereinafter specified:

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in said portion of Richmond Street and the water flowing into Cedar Brook as aforesaid, be constructed in and for said city of Plainfield in Richmond Street from North Avenue to East Second Street, with six inlets at East Third Street and six at East Second Street, as shown for said portion of Richmond Street on a map on file with the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield, entitled "Map for Separate Sewers or Drains to carry off the Surface Water in a Portion of Richmond Street, City of Plainfield, N. J., March, 1910," (to which map reference is hereby made and the same made a part hereof) said separate sewers or drains to be constructed on said portion of Richmond Street between the above mentioned points, as shown on said map, with the necessary manholes and appurtenances to compete the same, and to be of the dimensions and materials and to be laid along such lines and at such grades and in such manner as indicated and specified on said map.

Sec. 2. That the costs and expenses to be incurred under this ordinance shall be paid with money to be raised by taxation (by general tax for street improvements) pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, as other moneys are raised in said city.

Adopted by the Common Council, June 6, 1910, approved by the Mayor, June 7, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

to authorize the issuing of municipal bonds for the purpose of obtaining money from the sale thereof for the permanent improvement of streets and highways of the City of Plainfield, pursuant to Chapter 200 of the Laws of 1898, during the year 1910.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That for the purpose of obtaining money from the sale thereof for the permanent improvement of the streets and highways of said City during the calendar year 1910 with permanent and durable material of a kind to be determined in each instance by the Common Council before the work is commenced, to an amount not exceeding fifteen dollars per capita for each of the Inhabitants of said City according to the last official census, but not for more than the amount limited by law, the Common Council of said City do hereby, pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of said State entitled "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real estate benefited thereby," and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, authorize the issuing of thirty coupon municipal bonds of the City of Plainfield of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, and amounting in all to Thirty Thousand Dollars ($30,000), which bonds shall be dated July 1st, 1910, and shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum (5 per cent.) per annum, payable semi-annually, and be payable three years from the date thereof, with the option to the City to redeem or pay off the said bonds, or any one or more of them, at any time after one year from the date thereof and before three years from the date thereof, on giving personal notice to said holders of said bonds or thirty (30) days notice by advertisement in the official newspapers of the City of the *Intention to make such redemption or pay*ment, which bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and bear the corporate seal of the City and be attested by the City Clerk, and may severally or collectively when ordered by resolution of the Com*mon Council be sold for an amount not* less than par value; and there shall be raised by tax in each year hereafter such sum of money as may be necessary to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds and the principal of such bonds as may mature during that year, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefited shall when collected be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds.

Sec. 2. That before any improvement shall be authorized pursuant to the Act of the Legislature referred to in Section 1, it shall be necessary to enact an ordinance designating the street or streets or parts thereof to be improved, together with the kind of pavement proposed to improve them, and all work shall be given out upon contract to the lowest responsible bidder and only after bids therefor have been solicited and received, the Common Council to have the right to reject any and all of such bids.

Sec. 3. That streets or parts of streets to be improved with durable macadam pavement shall be so improved in accordance with the following specifications, that is to say, durable macadam pavement with bituminous binder, shall be laid to a depth running from six (6) inches in the center to four (4) inches at the side, as shown on plan entitled "Plan showing standard cross-sections of streets of the City of Plainfield, N. J., filed in the office of the City Clerk April 30th, 1910," said macadam pavement to be in every respect equal to the macadam with bituminous binder on Union Street between Arlington Avenue and Stelle Avenue in said City. The ordinance specially designating said streets or parts of streets shall also designate in each instance the width to which said macadam shall be laid.

Sec. 4. That after said improvements shall have been completed, the Common Council shall, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, apply to the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union for the appointment of Commissioners to estimate and assess benefits upon the owners of the lots or parcels of land and real estate pecu*liarly benefited by such improvements*, in proportion, as near as may be, to an amount equal to the amount of benefits actually acquired by the lands and real estate bordering on said streets or portions thereof respectively, by reason of such improvements respectively; and in case the costs and expenses aforesaid shall exceed the amount of said benefits, the excess thereof shall be paid by the City at large and raised by general tax; no property owner thereof to be in any case assessed beyond the amount of benefit actually derived from said improvements.

Adopted by the Common Council, June 7, 1910, approved by the Mayor, June 7, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

to Amend an Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to Regulate the Appointment and Tenure of Office of Appointable Officers," approved December 13, 1887, as amended.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Section 1 of the Ordinance to which this is an amendment, be and the same is hereby amended by striking out the words, "Monday of February" where they twice occur in said Section and substituting in lieu thereof in each instance the following words, that is to say, "day of January."

Sec. 2. That Section 3 of the Ordinance to which this is an amendment, be and the same is hereby amended by striking out all that part of said Section beginning with the words, "in the case of any policeman charged with any neglect or misconduct," and ending with the words, "in the manner above indicated upon report of Police Board," being all that part of said Section 3 which follow the words first above quoted.

Adopted by the Common Council, June 6, 1910, approved by the Mayor, June 7, 1910.

NEWS AND NOTES
BY GEORGE E. FIRSTBROOK

RUTGERS COLLEGE NOTES.

New Brunswick, June 11.—The college paper expresses its congratulations to President Demarest for the degree he has recently received from Columbia College. It says:

"We wish to congratulate Dr. Demarest for the degree of LL. D. conferred upon him by Columbia. We believe that by his conscientiousness in every endeavor, by his keen insight into affairs, and by his sound wisdom, he has justly earned this great honor bestowed upon him and our college by such a famous institution as Columbia."

Professor Julius Nelson recently went to Port Republic to see about his oyster laboratory. He expects to have another at Barnegat before June 22. Professor Nelson's boats, one of which is a floating laboratory, wintered at Port Republic.

Rev. P. T. Pockman, '75, delivered a speech at the recent jubilee of the Second Reformed church of Jersey City.

Arthur V. Schenk, '05, of Highland Park, has been elected clerk of the Board of Education of that place.

The last meeting of the season of the Young Men's Christian Association of the college was held Wednesday night in Van Nest Hall. Dr. W. W. Knox, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city, spoke on "The Outlook." After the meeting, the members were introduced to F. E. Wilber, '05, who is to fill the position of regular secretary of the association during the next college year. This securing of a secretary is a new advance in the work of the Christian Association. Mr. Wilber, after graduating here, was for three years the secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Pennsylvania State College. He is now studying at the Theological Seminary of this city, and will take general charge of the Rutgers Association next year.

The annual baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. Paul Sutphen, class of 1876, of Cleveland, O., in the Second Reformed church of this city, on Sunday, June 19, at 7:30 p. m.

Frank H. Van Winkle, '10, of Jersey City, has received a Munn Fellowship in electrical engineering at Princeton University.

BALTUSROL CADDIES' STRIKE COMPROMISED.

All is well again between players and caddies at the Baltusrol Golf Club. The strike of the caddies for an increase of five cents an hour was brought to an end Thursday. The boys did not get just what they wanted. The arrangement was made that George Lowe, the professional at the club, acting for the golfers, agreed to pay the caddies fifty cents a round of eighteen holes. It takes about three hours to make the round.

Mr. Lowe also told the boys the players would pay the fifty cents if only ten holes were played, but that for less than ten holes the allowance would be twenty-five cents. The proposition appealed favorably to the club-carriers, who immediately agreed to the terms.

Miss Mildred McKenna, of Philadelphia, has returned home after a short visit with friends in the borough.

Mrs. F. M. Ward, of Fairview avenue, left yesterday for the Adirondacks, where she will spend the summer months.

AN ORDINANCE

In a fast and well-played game the Plainfield Juniors defeated the Highland A. C. by the score of 10 to 4, on Thursday. The winning team made thirteen hits to four for the opposing team.

Eugene Lidgate, the P. H. S. catcher, who has been playing right garden for the Plainfields, has quit the local aggregation to play first base for Scotch Plains. Lidgate is due to play with the Plains nine today, weather permitting.

Jimmy Emery will report to Joe McGinnity at Newark on Monday for a tryout with the Indians. Newark is sadly in need of an infielder and if the local boy looks good to the Newark manager he will be given a job.

than what they would make out of their lives. He said the college not only prepared the students for their entry into business life, but also helped in character building and training which would be a valuable asset throughout their lives. This sentiment was applauded and was referred to in subsequent speeches. The diplomas were then presented while the orchestra played, the graduates passing the rolled parchments in rythm with the music.

Professor Krebs on being introduced paid his compliments to Mr. Saunders for his habit of always throwing bouquets at his fellow boroughites. We know that education is development and we members of the eduactional department have looked askance at some of the advertised so-called business colleges which promise much and accomplish little, but all the educators here are proud of the record of the Plainfield Business College for what it has accomplished and we give it our endorsement and hearty support.

Then followed the distribution of flowers in which Rev. Mr. Maguire, Mayor Fisk, Mr. Krebs, Mr. Herr and Mr. Sweeney took part while the orchestra added to the scene with some appropriate music.

Mr. Fowler's speech which immediately followed was in part as follows: "The interest I have in young people is greater than anything in my public life. Saunders and I will soon be dead, but Charlie Fisk will go living for ever. The American child is being educated with the influence of a thousand years behind him. This school of Mr. Herr is, as has been said, a character building place as well as an educational institution and as such must take its place among the factors in the upbuilding of your city. In speaking of ideals I take issue with Mr. Saunders when he says that we should not have ideals in the distance. Nobody can succeed in life without practical ideals. Without them you will attain nothing. It may happen that a woman may some day become President of the United States and it may happen within the lives of some who are here."

Mr. Fowler urged the physical as well as the mental development of all students for by keeping the body healthy the mind is more receptive and likely to be better stored with knowledge and consequently better fitted to cope with the problems of life. "Concentration," he said, "is the thing. Train the mind so that everything that you have absorbed may be always at your command. Character is the one big asset and the courage of your convictions is another and the acquirement of both requires both in great degree. There is no such thing as luck taken in the larger sense. None of you know what you can do until the opportunity to do something arrives, but when that time comes be ready to do. You will be if you will but heed your present opportunities.

"Everyone should see to it that the city, county, State and the world should be just a little better for their having lived in it. Be as near like Theodore Roosevelt as you can, grasping the meaning of things. Your first and highest duty is to build you a character refined, strong and pure so that at the end of your lives it may be purified and later glorified."

Mr. Fowler's speech received prolonged applause.

Several members of the Common Council of this city and that of North Plainfield were interested spectators, some on the stage and others in boxes. Congressman Fowler's wife occupied Box A and appeared to enjoy the proceedings. The orchestra under Mr. Korff's direction rendered several fine selections. When the strains of the Star Spangled Banner were heard the audience arose and sang it with vigor. Many remained to personally congratulate Mr. Herr and the graduates.

"LET US PAINT YOUR HOUSE"

STATE MILITIA TO ACT FOR NATIONAL G. A. R.

An entire company of State militiamen will probably be at Atlantic City during the coming encampment of the G. A. R. at Atlantic City, if plans of the law and order committee are carried out. While no definite arrangements have been made it is said by a member of the committee that a discussion of ways and means had brought out the fact that it would be impossible to get enough men in the city to properly guard the line of the parade which will be a feature of the meet.

"We have only so many policemen at our disposal," he stated, "and the number is far from adequate. We had counted on having the Morris Guards and Company L help out along this line, but the former organization, I believe, has been unable to promise any assistance, it being impossible for their members to get out on that day. Company L I have no reports of, but imagine that they will be in the same boat, too busy to help.

"We first contemplated swearing in extra men as deputies, but these would be ununiformed and unorganized and for the same money, if not less, we can have a company of militiamen here. They would not come as such, it being a purely personal trip on their parts, but if we paid their expenses I am sure that we could easily have them here, as the occasion will be one which they will all like to witness. Nothing definite has been decided, but we will take the matter up shortly and see what can be done."

GOV. FORT ADDRESSES CIVIL WAR VETERANS

One of the big features of the forty-third annual State Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, now in session in Long Branch, was the big campfire at the Ocean Park Casino last night, at which Governor John Franklin Fort was the principal speaker. Department Commander James F. Connelly presided. The spacious hall was filled, and there was music by the Long Branch Military Band.

Governor Fort in his address referred to his visit at Salem Church and the dedication of a soldiers' monument, laying great emphasis on the reception given by the Confederates. Speaking of the veterans, he said:

"It is now forty-five years since that terrible civil war conflict ended. None who fought in it are any longer young. About all the great generals of that war have passed over the river. A vast majority of your comrades either fell in battle or have since gone to join the great company whom no man can number.'

"You men were a part of the great volunteer army that made the fight for the Republic from 1861 to 1865. That was the last great volunteer army the world saw or will ever see. The rebellion in this country saw the last great fighting force that would be composed of citizen soldiers.

"The nation which has the largest standing army and the best trained body of skilled reserves to call into the field in an emergency is the most likely to succeed in our time. To win, the man who follows the flag must love it.

"You are left here to recall your trials, defeat and final victory. Those were terrific days. You did your part well. Your country owes you a debt it can never pay. We are a united republic because of what you did. We are a great world power because you made us a great home power. What you did was for others, you risked all that the nation might live; that your children might enjoy the liberty and civic blessings which the fathers had bequeathed us."

Past National Commander in Chief Henry M. Nevins, of Red Bank, followed Governor Fort and reviewed the final struggle before victory. There were vocal selections by Mrs. C. L. Cozzens and the Rev. Dr. Alfonso Dare, of Long Branch; bugle call and solos by Paul Kramer, of New York, with a recitation by Miss Ruth Wingert, daughter of Past Commander Henry Wingert, of Long Branch.

Five hundred veterans attended the opening session of the encampment at the Casino yesterday. The delegates were welcomed by Mayor Charles O. McFaddin, with a response by the department commander. Because of the drizzling rain the salute scheduled by the five hundred school children was postponed. Yesterday afternoon the delegates were taken for a ride.

The principal business conducted yesterday included the nomination of officers and delegates to the State encampment, the reading of the reports of the commander and staff and the appointment of the various committees.

The special order of business at 9 o'clock this morning, at which hour adjournment was taken, was the election of officers. Past Commander James Campbell, of Long Branch, who is also a past State junior vice commander of the State encampment, was unanimously elected delegate at large to the National Encampment, which meets at Atlantic City next September.

The opening session yesterday was attended by delegates representing ninety of one hundred and six posts. Past National Commander in Chief Nevius, of Red Bank, was appointed chairman of the Committee on Resolutions.

BODY OF CHILD IS EVIDENCE IN DIVORCE.

Trenton, June 11.—"The evidence of the assault on the wife is reproduced on the body of her child, subsequently born, and so corroborates the testimony of the wife of the brutal assault made on her by the husband, that I respectfully recommend a divorce for Mrs. Elizabeth H. Beers from her husband, Harry C. Beers," thus writes Special Master in Chancery W. Holt Apgar in one of the strangest divorce cases ever held in the New Jersey courts.

The evidence showed that the husband persistently neglected the wife, often leaving her and the children in the house without food or money, and that he often abused her. On one occasion he knocked her down, it was testified. Her unborn child subsequently showed exact corroborative evidence of the assault, and this was the main point in the special master advising the divorce.

Skull Cracked in Fight.

Salem, June 11.—As the result of a fight at the Salem glass works Thursday morning, Alonzo Patrone, fifteen years old, is in Cooper Hospital, Camden, with a fractured skull, and Joseph Toulson, 16 years old, is in the county jail, charged with the assault.

MANY ELKS WILL GO TO THE CONVENTION

More than a dozen of Plainfield Elks and their families are planning to attend the National reunion at Detroit next month. The largest party leaving for the city on the lakes will be the "Detroit Club," for which a special car will be attached to the train chartered by Jersey City Lodge.

The special train will leave the West Elizabeth station of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at 8:25 Sunday morning, July 10. The itinerary is as follows: Monday, Niagara Falls, Hotel Imperial, sight-seeing tour; Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Detroit, Hotel Pontchartrain, which is the headquarters of the grand lodge; Friday, Windsor and London, Ontario, to Toronto, Queen Hotel; Saturday, sight-seeing and evening sail through the St. Lawrence River to Thousand Islands; Sunday, July 17, Alexandria Bay, Thousand Islands House, sails among the islands; Monday, continue through the St. Lawrence river and Lachine Rapids to Montreal, night sail to Quebec; Tuesday, seeing Quebec; Wednesday, return to Montreal, sight-seeing; Thursday, through Lake Champlain to Fort Ticonderoga, through Lake George, train to Troy, Hotel Rensselaer; Friday, July 22, start for home over the New York Central, arriving at Jersey City about 6 p. m.

A number of Plainfielders are also planning to accompany Newark Lodge to Detroit, while others will travel independently of tours.

Ten Strawberries to Quart.

Flanders, June 11.—"Comet strawberries" have made their appearance here. E. Gifford Hildebrant has just picked some which measured five and three-quarters inches in circumference. Ten of them would just fill a quart basket.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Ground was broken Thursday for the $60,000 addition to the Cooper Hospital, Camden.

His right leg broken by getting caught in the wheel of a moving wagon, Henry Roller, a general storekeeper at Folsom, was admitted to Cooper Hospital, Camden, Thursday.

Alfred Sturm, of 79 Graham avenue, Paterson has a badly crushed left foot as the result of his dropping a ladle on it while at work at the Rogers plant Thursday.

Thrown from a trolley car from which she was alighting, Mrs. Morris Odell, wife of the assistant city clerk of Camden, is confined to her home, 732 Washington street, with a sprained shoulder and numerous cuts and bruises.

The striking weavers of the Doherty & Wadsworth silk mills, in Paterson, are holding a carnival to raise funds to enable them to continue the strike, and to judge from the attendance at the opening, the big show, which will last ten days, will be a success.

According to the estimates of the members of the Paterson Board of Finance, Thursday afternoon, after it had finally passed the annual tax levy, the tax rate for 1910 will probably be $1.70, for it is believed that there will be a drop of about one point from the rate of last year. The increase in the levy over that of last year is $65,296.95.

The body of William V. Hoover, of Camden, was one of the crew of the launch Star which turned turtle in Cold Spring Inlet, near Cape May, two weeks ago. Thursday night was found on Two Mile Beach buried in the sand. Frank Bradway, of the Breakwater Construction Company, found the body near the site of the fatal accident.

The Camden jury, which is sitting in judgment in the $10,000 damage suit brought against the county of Camden by Isaac Bleakley, a farmer at Mt. Ephraim, for the flooding of his farm lands, Thursday took an auto trip to the scene to view the land. The farmer contends that the flooding was caused by a county bridge damming up the water.

An ordinance granting to the Salem Electric Company a fifty-year franchise was presented to the Salem Council Wednesday night and laid over to June 22. The company is the successor of the Electric Light, Heat and Power Company, which was given a perpetual franchise in 1888, and to avoid legal complications it has asked for a new franchise. It proposes to make extensive improvements to the plant and issue bonds.

Stability of an iron-bound seat in their phaeton saved the lives of Mr. and Mrs. William Riker, when their team was hit and demolished by an automobile on a country road, near Burlington. The seat was the only part of the vehicle to remain intact, and, with the occupants still in it, was hurled into the air, the man and woman having a remarkable escape from death. Mr. Riker, is able to be about, but Mrs. Riker's condition, it is said, is critical. Grangers, it is said, will demand an investigation of the Riker accident.

"DRUMMERS" ON BUSINESS GAIN.

New York, June 11.—Bringing reports of multiplying business in every part of the country, nearly one thousand commercial travelers trooped into the breeze-swept corridors of the Manhattan Beach Hotel Thursday for the New York State Council's tenth annual convention. The United Commercial Travelers' Association has 60,000 members throughout the country.

Thursday was the first of a four-day convention, the feature of which was stories of increasing prosperity in business all over the United States.

"The Georgia peach crop is the finest we have had in years, and the Alabama corn and cotton crops are looking fine," said Rev. H. C. Compton, Athens, Ga., the only preacher-commercial traveler in the United States.

"Never were times more prosperous in the Northwestern part of this country than they are today," said C. W. Hodgson, of Portland, Ore.

"The jewelry business is more sensitive to financial conditions than any other. It was the first to feel the panic of 1907, and it has been the last to recover. But during the last few months it has picked up wonderfully," said J. E. Burt, a jewelry salesman of Philadelphia.

A "prosperity congress," to be held under the auspices of the Commercial Travelers' Association in the near future, was discussed at the executive session.

Jumps to Death Under Train.

East Orange, June 11.—Mrs. George W. McKenzie, wife of a salesman in New York, threw herself under the wheels of the Buffalo express near the Grove street station in this city yesterday, and was instantly killed. The police were told that Mrs. McKenzie was recently discharged from the State asylum for the insane at Morris Plains.

GEO. WATSON SELLING OUT

To Close Estate

Entire Stock Below Cost

The necessity for closing the estate of the late Geo. Watson forces the closing out of the entire stocks contained in the Geo. Watson Stores at Nos. 793-795 Broad Street and 166-168 Market St., Newark

The Sale Begins Monday

June 13th, 8:30 A. M.

The opportunity afforded by this necessary sacrifice needs no emphasis to gain the appreciation of the people of Newark and surrounding cities.

The stocks of the Geo. Watson Stores are known to include the very finest and most fashionable Men's Clothing, Furnishings, Hats, Shoes, etc., and the offering of such merchandise at prices averaging half its actual cost will be met with ready acceptance.

The following price list, though far from complete, shows the sweeping extent of the reductions now in effect on of Mexico at the same time? There came also Mr. Van Zandt of this Republic of Texas. Yes, it is true, I have seen some sport here in Washington! But all the time as I played in my own little game—with no one to enjoy it save myself—I saw myself begin to lose. This country—this great splendid country of savages—began to take me by the hands, began to look me in the eyes, and ask me: 'Helena von Ritz, what are you? What might you have been?'

"So now," she concluded, "you asked me, asked me what I was, and I have told you. I ask you myself, what am I, what am I to be; and I say, I am unclean. But, being as I am, I have done what I have done. It was for a principle—or it was—for you! I do not know."

"There are those who can be nothing else but clean," I broke out. "I shall not endure to hear you speak thus of yourself. You—you, what have you not done for us? Was not your mother clean in her heart? Sins such as you mention were never those of scarlet. If you have sinned, your sins are white as snow. I at least am confessor enough to tell you that."

"Ah, my confessor!" she reached out her hands to me, her eyes swimming wet. Then she pushed me back suddenly, beating with her little hands upon my breast as though I were an enemy. "Do not!" she said. "Go!"

My eye caught sight of the great key, Pakenham's key, lying there on the table. Maddened, I caught it up, and, with a quick wrench of my naked hands, broke it in two, and threw the halves on the floor to join the torn scroll of England's pledge.

I divided Oregon at the forty-ninth parallel and not at fifty-four forty, when I broke Pakenham's key. But you shall see why I have never regretted that.

"Ask Sir Richard Pakenham if he wants his key now!" I said.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The Victory.

She will not stay the siege of loving terms,
Nor bide the encounter of assailing eyes,
Nor ope her lap to soul-seducing gold . . .
For she is wise, if I can judge of her:
And fair she is, if that mine eyes be true;
And true she is, as she hath proved herself. —Shakespeare.

"What have you done?" she exclaimed. "Are you mad? He may be here at any moment now. Go, at once!"

"I shall not go!"

"My house is my own! I am my own!"

"You know it is not true, madam!"

I saw the slow shudder that crossed her form, the fringe of wet which sprang to her eyelashes. Again the pleading gesture of her half-open fingers.

"Ah, what matter?" she said. "It is only one woman more, against so much. What is past, is past, monsieur. Once down, a woman does not rise."

"You forget history—you forget the thief upon the cross!"

"The thief on the cross was not a woman. No, I am guilty beyond hope!"

"Rather, you are only mad beyond reason, madam. I shall not go so long as you feel thus—although God knows I am no confessor."

"I confessed to you—told you my story, so there could be no bridge across the gulf between us. My happiness ended then."

"It is of no consequence that we be happy, madam. I give you back your own words about your torch of principles."

For a time she sat and looked at me steadily. There was, I say, some sort of radiance on her face, though I, dull of wit, could neither understand nor describe it. I only knew that she seemed to ponder for a long time, seemed to resolve at last. Slowly she rose and left me, parting the satin draperies which screened her boudoir from the outer room. There was silence for some time. Perhaps she prayed—I do not know.

Now other events took this situation in hand. I heard a footfall on the walk, a cautious knocking on the great front door. So, my lord Pakenham was prompt. Now I could not escape even if I liked.

Pale and calm, she reappeared at the parted draperies. I lifted the butts of my two derringers into view at my side pockets, and at a glance from her, hurriedly stepped into the opposite room. After a time I heard her open the door in response to a second knock.

I could not see her from my station, but the very silence gave me a picture of her standing, pale, forbidding, rebuking the first rude exclamation of his ardor.

"Come now, is he gone? Is the place safe at last?" he demanded.

"Enter, my lord," she said, simply.

"This is the hour you said," he began; and she answered:

"My lord, it is the hour."

"But come, what is the matter, then? You act solemn, as though this were a funeral, and not—just a kiss," I heard him add.

He must have advanced toward her. Continually I was upon the point of stepping out from my concealment, but as continually she left that not quite possible by some word or look or gesture of her own with him.

"Oh, hang it!" I heard him grumble, at length; "how can one tell what a woman'll do? Damn it, Helen!"

"'Madam,' you mean!"

"Well, then, madam, why all this hoighty-toighty? Haven't I stood flouts and indignities enough from you? Didn't you make a show of me before that ass, Tyler, when I was at the very point of my greatest coup? You denied knowledge that I knew you had. But did I discard you for that? I have found you since then playing with Mexico, Texas, United States all at once? Have I punished you for that? No; I have only shown you the more regard."

"My lord, you punish me most when you most show me your regard."

"Well, God bless my soul, listen at that! Listen at that—here, now, when I've—madam, you shock me, you grieve me. I—could I have a glass of wine?"

I heard her ring for Threlka, heard her fasten the door behind her as she left, heard him gulp over his glass. For myself, although I did not yet disclose myself, I felt no doubt that I should kill Pakenham in these rooms. I even pondered whether I should shoot him through the temple and cut off his consciousness, or through the chest and so let him know why he died.

After a time he seemed to look about the room, his eye falling upon

CASE AFTER CASE.

Plenty More Like This in Plainfield.

Scores of Plainfield people can tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills. Many a happy citizen makes a public statement of his experience. Here is a case to it. What better proof of merit can be had than such endorsement?

Robert Love, 44 Duer street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "For eight or nine years I was a victim of kidney complaint. Every cold I contracted settled in my kidneys and caused my back to ache severely. Any heavy lifting or much standing gave me additional pain. In the morning upon arising, my back was very lame and this did not disappear until I exercised for some time. I doctored and used several so-called kidney cures, but it was only a waste of money. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in the newspapers, I procured a box at Randolph's Pharmacy and began their use. When I had taken about half the contents of the box, my condition was greatly improved and before long the pain left me entirely. I will always stand ready to speak a good word for Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Keep the Family Together

IN the nature of things the young people marry and move away. They should not only have telephone service in their own homes, but should see to it that there are telephones in the homes of the parents. Remember that the old folks get lonesome. Think of the pleasure a daily conversation with their children will bring them. Don't let the hurry of life crowd from your mind the thoughts of those who have done so much for you.

Older people are less apt to install telephone service because it was not a convenience of their day and they are not eager to take up modern methods. Could you do a more unselfish act than install a telephone for the old folks so that intimate relations between your house and theirs may exist?

Remember, too, that every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance station.

Have you a Telephone?

Old Stage Coach to Quit.

Montclair, June 11.—Some of the Montclair commuters are facing a calamity that they regard as even more alarming than the proposed increase in the commutation rates on the suburban railroads. The Clinton avenue stage coach, which has operated between the Clinton avenue section and the railroad stations for twenty-five years, it is announced, will be discontinued on July 1. The irregular and unremunerative patronage is given as the cause.

Mrs. Edmund Pack, of Park avenue, is still quite ill.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Ebenezer Baptist church is preparing for a lawn party on July 4. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the church.

The Watchung Sunday-school will hold elaborate Children's Day exercises at the chapel tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Sunday-school of the First Baptist church will hold Children's Day exercises at the usual hour of Sunday school tomorrow afternoon.

Children's Day exercises will be held at the Netherwood Reformed church tomorrow morning and in the evening the pastor, Rev. Royal A. Stout, will preach.

There will be a Bible talk at 33 Watchung avenue, tomorow afternoon at 3 o'clock by J. G. Kuehn, of the Brooklyn Tabernacle. The subject will be "Laying Up Treasures in Heaven."

Rev. E. W. Roberts will preach at the Shiloh Baptist church tomorrow morning on the "Simplicity of Faith" and in the evening there will be the Lord's Supper, after preaching by Rev. J. S. Burton.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Netherwood Reformed church held a meeting at the home of Miss Sadie Johnson Thursday night, and planned for a strawberry festival to be held on Tuesday night, June 21.

Senior Exams Over.

The Senior examinations at the Plainfield High School ended yesterday. The lower classes will take their examinations next week, beginning Wednesday. The class day exercises of the graduating class will be held Tuesday night, June 21.

BATTLE OF SPRINGFIELD ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

The one hundred and thirtieth anniversary of the battle of Springfield will be celebrated June 23 by the New Jersey Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, in the small Revolutionary burying plot on the North Nursery Farm, south of Morris avenue in Springfield. A flagpole has been erected on the plot and the exercises will be for the purpose of dedicating the flagpole and unfurling a flag over the graves of the Revolutionary heroes.

The exercises will begin promptly at 3:30 o'clock. If the weather is clear they will be held on the plot. If stormy, they will be held at the historic Springfield Presbyterian church. David L. Pierson, of Orange, is chairman of the committee which is arranging the celebration.

The exercises will be opened by the children of School No. 1, 300 in number, who will sing "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean." The Rev. Dr. J. H. Egbert, pastor of the Chatham Methodist church, will deliver the invocation. The principal address of the day will be then delivered. The name of the man chosen to make the address has not yet been announced.

The school children will sing "America." Judge Edward S. Atwater, of Elizabeth, president of the New Jersey Society Sons of the American Revolution, will then be presented with the flag by a committee, headed by Mr. Pierson. The Rev. William Hoppaugh, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will make the prayer of consecration. The singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the school children will complete the program.

The erection of the flagpole will mark the second celebration of the battle held in the burying ground. In 1896, the society erected a granite shaft with a suitable inscription and planted a hedge around the plot. The small burying ground is on a hill and steps are being built to lead to it.

The Sons of the American Revolution consider the Battle of Springfield one of the most important fought in the Revolution. It was here that the invasion of New Jersey by the British was checked. On the day of the battle Springfield was burned and when the church was in flames Pastor Caldwell, "The fighting parson of the Revolution," tore up the hymn books of the church and gave them to the soldiers for wadding, shouting, "Give 'em Watts, boys, give 'em Watts."

Y. W. C. A. MEMBERS TO HOLD A LAWN FETE.

A Japanese lawn fete will be given next Thursday night under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association. Mrs. Eliott T. Barrows is chairman of the committee and the proceeds of the affair will go toward the Silver Bay fund.

At the meeting of the committee last night two ticket selling squads were organized, the captains being Miss Florence Brower and Miss Ida Englehardt. Under the supervision of Miss Margaret Goddard, the committee also made posters to advertise the affair. Miss Louise Saunders will take a part.

NEW SCHOOL HEAD NOT ELIGIBLE, SAYS COUNSEL.

New Brunswick, June 11.—City Attorney Robert Adrain has filed an opinion with the Board of Education, holding that Professor L. E. McGinnes, of Stellton, Pa., the new city superintendent of schools, was not eligible for the position at the time of his election, as he did not hold a State certificate. The board will notify him to that effect. Professor W. C. Armstrong may be re-elected next Wednesday night to succeed him.

MYSTERY OF A GIRL IN BOY'S CLOTHING.

Paterson, June 11.—The feminine features and small feet of a person dressed in boys' clothing attracted the attention of Patrolman John Gannon yesterday morning. "He" was taken to police headquarters, and there confessed to the police matron, Mrs. Nolan, that "he" was a girl.

Police Court Blotter.

Robert Hart, Jr., whom Detective Sergeant John Flynn accused of loitering and "rushing the growler" on East Second street yesterday, was allowed to go when he explained that it was but a temporary lapse from sobriety and that he had steady work on that street.

School Fund Hearing.

Atlantic City, June 11.—The Senate committee that is investigating the expeditures of school funds in the State will hold a two-day session here on Wednesday and Thursday. The committee will hear any person who has any suggestions or complaints to make.

Collis H. Case, of East Front street, left this morning on the American liner "St. Louis" for Europe, where he will spend a month.

THEY WOULD CHANGE ATTORNEY'S OATH

The twelfth annual meeting of the New Jersey Bar Association will be held at the Hotel Chelsea, Atlantic City, on Friday and Saturday, June 17 and 18, and promises to be of unusual interest.

Among the matters to be taken up will be the recommendation of the committee on ethics and grievances that a statute be pased regulating lawyers' contingent fees and that the oath of attorneys in use in the State of Washington be adopted. This oath is as follows:

I do solemnly swear:

I will support the constitution of the United States and the constitution of the State of New Jersey;

I will maintain the respect due to courts of justice and judicial officers;

I will not counsel or maintain any suit or proceeding which shall appear to me to be unjust, nor any defense except such as I believe to be honestly debatable under the law of the land;

I will employ for the purpose of maintaining the causes confided to me such means only as are consistent with truth and honor and will never seek to mislead the judge or jury by any artifice or false statement of fact or law;

I will maintain the confidence and preserve inviolate the secrets of my client and will accept no compensation in connection with his business except from him or with his knowledge and approval;

I will abstain from all offensive personality and advance no fact prejudicial to the honor or reputation of a party or witness, unless required by the justice of the cause with which I am charged;

I will reject from any consideration personal to myself the cause of the defenseless or oppressed or delay any man's cause for lucre or malice. So help me God.

This oath, if adopted, will have to be sworn to by every member of the association. The canons of professional ethics, which will be submitted to the association, have been adopted by the American Bar Association and comprise about fourteen printed pages in pamphlet form. They touch upon most things pertaining to the legal practice, and are intended to maintain a high professional standard among the lawyers.

PRINCETON MUST FIGHT FOR $10,000,000 LEGACY.

Salem, Mass., June 11.—An appearance will be filed in the court here today by William Odlin, of Boston, in behalf of Mary F. Cutler, of Andover, who seeks to break the will of the late Isaac Wyman, of Salem, by the terms of which the bulk of the testator's property of $10,000,000 is left Princeton University.

The grounds for the breaking of the will are placed as unique influence on the part of Princeton University and the fact that Wyman was incapacitated.

A Grand Jury Case.

James Bolen, a barber, of Central avenue, was allowed to go on his own recognizance to await the action of the October grand jury for an alleged assault upon Patrolman Charles Anderson while the latter was in the discharge of his duties in making an arrest on the evening of May 24. Walter Hetfield, Jr., represented the State while William G. De Meza defended Bolen. Seven witnesses were examined for the defense while Andrson's only witness was Edward Britton, who corroborated the testimony of Anderson.

Foresters Celebrate.

Court Plainfield No. 1144, I. O. F., celebrated its return to its old lodge rooms last night. High Treasurer Walter Williams, of Jersey City, and High Physician M. L. Clawson made speeches and after the business session about 150 members sat down to an enjoyable colation. An entertainment was furnished. The committee in charge was: John R. Cline, chairman; Frederick Breem, John F. P. Casey, Lewis Feiring and Frank Winzenreid.

Bozack—Hansen.

Miss Hanna Hansen and Andrew Bozack, were married on Thursday evening at St. Mary's rectory by Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church. Miss Sophie Bowe, of Raymond avenue, was bridemaid and James Fitzgerald, of Scotch Plains, acted as best man. Mrs. Bozack is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hansen, of Johnston avenue. Mr. Bozack is a member of the Scotch Plains fire department.

BACCULAUREATE SERMON

Plainfield High School Senior Class Goes to Borough for Their Preacher.

AT CHURCH OF HOLY CROSS.

Rev. George A. Warner Will Deliver the Sermon to the Graduating Class on Sunday Morning.

The City High School graduating class will go to the borough next Sunday morning to hear a baccularreate sermon by Rev. George A. Warner, rector of Holy Cross church. The idea of a bacculaureate sermon is a new wrinkle in the graduation festivities of the local high school and has never been tried before. It was first broached at a class meeting held recently, when one of the members suggested the institution. It met with an enthusiastic reception and the Rev. George A. Warner was asked to preach the sermon. This he has consented to do.

The bacculaureate sermon will take the place of the usual sermon next Sunday morning and will be a part of the regular service. Special provision will be made for the graduating class in the reservation of the front seats in the centre aisle, and every member of the class is expected to attend. The class numbers about 48.

The Rev. Mr. Warner has thus far no idea of what he is going to take for the topic of the sermon. It is not likely that he will follow the plan of collegiate bacculaureatte preachers in taking up for discussion some significant social movement, owing partially to the immaturity of his audience and partly to the fact that he is identified in no such specialized work. He was playing pool when seen this morning by a Daily Press reporter; and between shots told what he thought of the proposed bacculaureate sermon. "Yes, I think its a good idea," he said; but he didn't specify why. He thought that it was, perhaps, a little unusual for a City High School class to go to the borough for a part of their graduation exercises. As to the sermon itself, he didn't have the slightest idea of what it would be about.

The bacculaureate sermon is in line with a movement that has been going on in the City High School for the past five years in adopting collegiate institutions. Class Day was the first to be adopted, than the names of "Freshman," "Sophomore." "Junior" and "Senior" were adopted, and the sermon bids fair to become a permanent institution. The Rev. Mr. Warner has spoken at the City High School exercises at numerous times and as a courtesy he was selected to preach the bacculaureate sermon.

GOFF SOLD MRS. PITTS BADLY CRIPPLED HORSE.

On complaint of Mrs. S. G. Van Hoesen, special agent of the S. P. C. A., Mrs. Margaret Pitts, of Leland avenue, was arraigned on a charge of cruelty to a horse, this morning. It developed, however, that Mrs. Pitts was not to blame for the condition of the animal and in fact as soon as she discovered that it was useless she called Dr. Carpenter, the veterinary, who declared that the horse was suffering from incurable ailments.

Mrs. Pitts then notified William Goff, from whom she had bought the horse, and demanded the return of the sixteen dollars which she had paid for the animal. Goff declined to refund the money which will necessitate a civil suit to recover. In the meantime Judge Runyon ordered the horse destroyed, remarking that Mrs. Pitts had been victimized.

Hawkins Got Promised Sentence.

Charles Hawkins, colored, was sentenced to sixty days in the county jail this morning by Judge Runyon. Hawkins was arrested on complaint of his wife, Fannie, who declared that last Thursday night while drunk Hawkins threatened to kill her. On Saturday night Hawkins came home drunk and on Sunday morning continued his spree with liquor he had brought home. Mrs. Hawkins locked the refrigerator in which the stuff was stored. Hawkins promptly smashed the icebox door to get at the booze and again threatened Mrs. Hawkins. The sixty day sentence was one promised by the judge several months ago.

English Divine in Pulpit.

The Rev. Mr. DeVinne, of Ipswitch, England, who is visiting C. Dekin, of Clinton avenue, occupied the pulpit last evening at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church.

SPECIAL ELECTION IN BOROUGH TOMORROW

There is no doubt that the residents and property owners of North Plainfield are in earnest in their intentions to build a sewerage system. There appears to be an unanimity of opinion as to the imperative need of such a system for the borough and judging from the action of property owners in promptly signifying their consent the plan proposed meets with general approval.

In two weeks consenting signatures representing over two and a half millions out of a total of about $3,800,000 of ratables was obtained. Every effort has been made, so it is said, by the people of the borough to induce the city to join the project and more than two years time has been consumed in this endeavor. But the vacillating policy of the city has resulted in the borough adopting its present course—the installation of its own independent system.

If the North Plainfield voters desire this improvement they must turn out in force tomorrow and record a decisive vote.

JUDGE RUNYON'S AID FOR PASTOR MAGUIRE

City Judge William N. Runyon, who for thirteen years has been serving as pianist, teacher and leader of the young men of Hope chapel, announced yesterday at the chapel services his resignation from these activities and that hereafter he would take up a similar line of work at his home church, the Park Avenue Baptist. Yesterday's music was a special feature in recognition of the fact that it was Judge Runyon's last Sunday at the chapel in his official capacity.

Rev. L. R. Howard and F. H. Andrews made short addresses concerning the popular man. Mr. Howard said that it was with a deep sense of regret that the chapel was to lose Mr. Runyon and he felt sure his influence would always last. He said that all were conscious of the loss his absence would make in the chapel life and he was sure that the Judge would always be with them in spirit. "No one questioned the wisdom of his decision," said Mr. Howard, "for he is doing what has been taught at the chapel, that is the duty of every member to his church." Mr. Howard publicly thanked Judge Runyon for his long service.

Mr. Andrews spoke briefly of Judge Runyon's work during the past thirteen years. The Judge before taking up the lesson of the day, made a statement to his class, explaining the reasons which actuated him in making the change. He said that it was the life-long wish of his mother and of his father also that he engage in the work at the Park Avenue Baptist church, it being the church of his ancestors for a great many years.

Judge Runyon explained that when Rev. Mr. Maguire came here and accepted the pastorate, he promised him that he would do all that he could to help him and that later he asked him to take up the work at the church. He said that it was very hard for him to sever his relations at the chapel and praised every member of his class for united support and loyalty.

Tomorrow night there will be a meeting of the William N. Runyon Association when resolutions will be adopted concerning his recent action.

W. D. MURRAY TALKS ON OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

There will be a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association at the Irving School tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. A lecture entitled "Our Boys and Girls" will be given by William D. Murray.

The following program will also be given by the pupils of the fifth and sixth grades: Two part song, "Thou Only Hast My Heart," Kuchen; recitation "Somebody's Mother," Richard Borden; two part song, "The Call to Arms," Veazie and Miss Harriet Filmer and Charles E. Lewis will sing. Light refreshments will be served. Parents and friends of the school are cordially invited to attend.

One Loiterer Fined $5.

John Reed and Thomas Kline were arrested by Patrolman Birmingham yesterday for loitering in the vicinity of Ivamy's store on West Second street and this morning Judge Runyon suspended sentence on Reed, who promised to beat it for New York, where he belongs, and Kane was fined five dollars or twenty days in the county jail. The men had been previously warned to keep away from the place on two different occasions.

WINNERS AT DOG SHOW

Meadowview, Midlothian, Boreas and Wilmerding Kennels are Lucky.

WEATHER HURT ATTENDANCE.

Great Rivalry for Prizes and a Crack-a-Jack Entry List at the Second Annual Bench Show.

Conditions were anything but ideal for the second annual bench show of the Plainfield Kennel Club, held at the horse show grounds, Saturday. A steady drizzle with an occasional shower put a damper on the whole affair. The officers of the club did their best to make the exhibitors, their dogs, as well as patrons comfortable, but they battled against great odds all day. This was especially true as regards the arrangements for serving dinner on the grounds. One thing is certain, the club will profit by its experience and things will be different another year.

Owing to the weather conditions, judging was not started until nearly noon. All the small dogs were taken into the grand stand, where every precaution was taken to prevent them from getting cold. These classes were judged early. The judging in the big tent of the larger dogs was commenced shortly afterwards and the officials were kept busy until after 6 o'clock.

Last year the club had a three point show, while this year it was but a two point exhibition, based on the number of entries. A. C. Wilmerding exhibited the finest breeds of cocker spaniels, winning three special cups and a couple of dozen ribbons. His dogs won the E. L. MacKensie cup for the best brace of sporting spaniels and the team cup for the best team of sporting spaniels in the show, and the Edmund Rushmore cup for parti-colored cockers.

George H. Parker won the cup for the best brace of Airedales, his entrants being the admiration of all, while he won several ribbons beside. It was a source of great satisfaction that local dogs were worthy competitors of the best entries from all parts of the country in many instances winning over the prize dogs.

The Plainfield dogs, as usual, came off with flying colors, being awarded many rich prizes against a large field of the best dogs in the country. Edmund L. MacKenzie of the Midlothian Kennels was one of the big winners, his brace of deerhounds being judged the best in the show.

Charmion Kennels, George Hooley owner, won both specials with English beagles, his Charmion Lillian winning the special for twelve inch beagles and the one for the best beagle in the show. In the Maltese terrier class, Mrs. Ralph L. Morrow's Snowball was second to Mrs. Koerlin's Dandy Boy, which has never been beaten in a bench show. Mrs. F. S. Moore's Sonney Lad also won high honors, Sonney Boy being its father.

Mrs. Tyler Morse, of New York, received the premier honor with her $10,000 Shepton Hero in the old English sheepdog winner class.

Rich honors were also won by the Meadowview Kennels, Abram G. Hooley, for English setters and pointers; the Boreas Kennels, W. de la R. Anderson, owner, in the winners' classes; while among other local dogs taking prizes were those of C. W. McCutchen, W. J. Buttfield, Charles E. Faber, William Briggs, A. Clinton Wilmerding, Mrs. J. D. Anderson, George H. Parker, Mrs. T. G. Runkle and others. There were many special prizes offered by various clubs throughout the country, and the Plainfield dogs shared generously in the distribution of them. The summaries:

Bloodhounds, bitches. First, Miss Amy L. Bonham's Knox's Kropsie; reserve, Miss Amy L. Bonham's Kennel Witch.

St. Bernards, dogs. First, Elkwood Kennels' Wiccoppe Chieftian; reserve, Mrs. C. W. McCutchen's Bruce; bitches, first, I. B. Hosford's Ch. Alta Moonlight; reserve, I. B. Hosford's Brunhildalta.

FLAG RAISING EXERCISES

Gov. Fort, Bp. Mc Faul and Others to Attend Mt. St. Mary's Ceremony.

THE PROGRAM ANNOUNCED.

Civil War Veterans and Co. K, 2nd Regiment, Have a Part in the Exercises at the College Tomorrow.

An elaborate program has been prepared for the closing exercises at Mt. St. Mary's College tomorrow when the American flag will be blessed by Bishop McFaul, and the flag and college pennant raised. Among the notables to be present are Governor John Franklin Fort, John Green, president of the Board of Education, of New York city; Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city; Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield; Mayor Madden, of Trenton; and Mayor Mravlag, of Elizabeth. Among the others to be present are Mayor Scully, of South Amboy; Brigadier General D. F. Collins, and Company K, of the N. J. National Guard; Mgrs. Fox, of Trenton, Connolly, of Phillipsburg; Brady, of South Amboy, and O'Connor, of Perth Amboy. The music will be furnished by the Janes' band, of Elizabeth.

The program will be as follows:

Blessing of the flag, Right Rev. Bishop James McFaul; presentation of the flag, Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R.; raising the flag, Miss Marie Tobin, of Plainfield; address, John Franklin Fort, Governor of New Jersey; patriotic selection, band; raising college pennant, Miss Annabel Jones; address, John Green, of New York; patriotic selection by the band; pantomime, "The American Flag," undergraduates; recitation, Miss Florence Nolan, of Trenton; selection by the band; address by Bishop McFaul. Following the Bishop's address there will be a salute to the flag and singing by the students.

During the afternoon the visitors will have a chance to examine the annual exhibit of the work done by the students of the college among other things being paintings in water colors, oil and on china; embroidery, plain sewing, raffia work, paper and card board construction, and bookbinding.

The sisters of the college will entertain Mrs. John Green, Mrs. Fort, wife of the Governor, and Miss Fort, Mrs. Walter Madden, Mrs. Edmund Burke, Mrs. Thomas Scully, wife of Mayor Scully, of South Amboy, and Mrs. John J. McGrath, wife of John J. McGrath, city treasurer of Elizabeth.

NEGRO BURGLAR SURPRISED BUTCHER VELINSKI

A surprise awaited Jocob Velinski, a butcher, of 511 West Third street on Saturday night, when he attempted to investigate the presence of a negro whom he noticed in the store while passing the place at 10 o'clock. When he entered the negro sprang at him striking him a knockout blow and made good his escape.

Velinski had closed his place of business early in order to visit some friends and it was while on his way back home an hour later that he discovered the intruder. The negro's action was so quick that Mr. Valinski could give the police but a very meagre description of the man. Nothing was taken from the store.

Athletic Meet Postponed.

The State championship athletic meet of the Y. M. C. A. which was to have been held Saturday was postponed to next Saturday on account of rain. Fortunately this will enable the local association to enter a stronger team, for now Boys' Secretary Bingeman will have a better opportunity to recruit entrants from among the local athletes. The associations entered in the meet are: Newark, Orange, Paterson, Ridgwood, Asbury Park, Elizabeth, Madison, Red Bank, Montclair and Plainfield.

An Excise Arrest.

A driver for Frank Linke, of West Front street, was released in $1,000 bail Saturday to await the action of the grand jury at its next session for selling liquor in the borough without a license. The driver, it is alleged, was delivering the goods when arrested by the borough authorities. He was arraigned before Borough Recorder Charles M. Dolliver.

Petit Jurors Discharged.

Owing to a lack of business the petit jury serving in the Union county courts, was discharged this morning until September. In case anything of importance should come up the jurors will be recalled.

IT WAS CHILDREN'S DAY

Special Exercises in All the Evangelical Churches Yesterday.

MUSIC, SINGING AND SPEAKING.

The Edifices Were Especially Decorated for the Occasion—Large Attendances at all the Services.

The feature in nearly all the church services yesterday was the celebration of "Children's Day" and in spite of the rain all of the exercises were largely attended. Perhaps the largest gathering of all was that in the Park Avenue church in the evening, where even the Sunday school rooms were requisitioned to accommodate the audience.

First Baptist.

The program at the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon was rendered under the direction of Arthur M. Harris, superintendent of the junior department; Mrs. Harold Serrell, Mrs. J. A. Powlison and Frank W. Jones. Superintendent James E. Church, was detained on account of illness in the family.

The church was attractively decorated with flowers, there being a cross of daises and a bee-hive on the platform. The flowers were afterward distributed among the sick of the congregation. A feature was the presence of eight canary birds and they sang constantly throughout the service, it being in the nature of an accompaniment to the singing of the children.

The children marched in as a processional to organ music by Howard Case, atfer which they sang "Festal Day of Beauty." An invocation by H. W. Herrman, preceded responsive reading lead by Harold Serrell. Then followed this program.

Song, "Singing Hosannas," school; recitations, "The Sunday school Hive," Hazel Coddington, Katherine Endress, Dorothy Krewson, Beatrice Overbaugh, Katherine Stevens; recitation, "A Flower Sermon," Ruth Homan; song, "Thank You," primary department; recitation, "A Row of B's," Katherine Herrman, Jean Macnab, Lillie Rollerson, Evelyn Tennyson, Isabel Wilson; soprano solo, Miss Ruth Harris; song, "A Band of Loyal Workers," school; address, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss; song, "Step Out Into the Sunshine," junior department; recitation "Work in the Hive," LeRoy Adams, Harold Gerhold, Horace Fisher, Russell Lee, Benjamin Letson, G. Malcolm Marsh, Preston Smith; recitation, "Did You Ever Hear?" Katherine Armstrong, Emily Pilger, Anna Sherwin; offertory duet, Miss Ruth Harris and George Smith; song, "Lovlier Than All," school; recitation, "Make Glad Your Corner," Genevieve Letson; song, "Open Your Hearts to the Good," school; benediction, Rev. Dr. Chambliss.

In connection with the exercises there was the graduation of children and presentation to the children of small books by Mr. Harris. Those graduated were as follows:

Beginners to primary department, Dorothy Gerhold, Alleyne Macnab, Howard Wayne Mack. Primary to junior department, Eva Jane Ball, Marjorie Grannatt, Galdys Lee, Louise Sill, Benjamin V. Carpenter, John Henry Cose, Randolph Douglas, Kenneth Pierce Fountain, Alexander Milne, Jr., Sanford Roome, Roy Kenneth Spratt, Charles White, Bessie Blair Case, Katheryn Herrman, Lillie Elsie Rollerson, Edward A. Billian, Everett Needham Case, Ralph V. Herman, John T. Endress, Raymond J. Gerhold, Lloyd Mundy, Irving J. Scarborough, Walter Sutphen. Junior to intermediate department, Anna Blume, Wilhelmina Endress, Mae E. Heidloff, LeRoy Elmer Adams, Elmer H. French, Russell K. Lee, Hazel A. Coddington, Isabel May Godown, Dorothy M. Krewson, Russell Cose, Clarence Krausse and G. Malcom Marsh.

Some of the children took up the offering in small seashore pails, and it amounted to about $20. There was no evening service at the church.

First M. E.

At the First M. E. church the exercises took place yesterday morning in connection with the regular morning service, and an attractive program was arranged under the direction of Superintendent James R. Joy, assisted by Miss Edna French and Mrs. Thomas MacDonald. The beginners' department had an informal program of songs and a few recitations, followed with a more extensive program by the primary department under the direction of Mrs. MacDonald.

There was an exercise in which twenty-seven children represented different countries and Hester Steb-

HAMILTON'S ACCIDENT ON HIS RETURN FIGHT

Charles K. Hamilton in his aeroplane made a remarkable flight from New York to Philadelphia this morning, but on his return trip met with an acicdent and early this afternoon he was working on his machine at the mud flats near Perth Amboy, where he alighted to make repairs. Something got wrong with one of his spark plugs and he decided that he had better descend, alighting on the south bank of the Raritan river. As soon as he completes the repairs he will continue his flight.

HERVEY K. DOANE WEDS IN AUGUSTA, KANSAS

Hervey Kinch Doane, the youngest son of Chief and Mrs. T. O. Doane, of West Fifth street, and Miss Elizabeth Cady, daughter of William H. Cady, editor of the Augusta, Kansas, Journal, were married at 8:30 o'clock last night at the home of the bride's father in Augusta, Kansas, in the presence of a large number of friends of the couple. A reception followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Doane have gone to Blackwell, Oklahoma, where the former is engaged in building a large water works, sewer and electric light plant for Burns & McDonald, of Kansas City. This is the fourth large contract of this kind that Mr. Doane has superintended in the past two years. He is a graduate of Rutgers College, Class '06, and has been successful in his chosen profession. His many Eastern friends and relatives gave him a postal shower on Saturday.

HIGH SCHOOL CONCERT A BIG SUCCESS.

The annual concert of the Plainfield High School, held in the High School auditorium on Saturday evening, was an artistic success, but the weather conditions affected the attendance.

The first part of the program consisted of a cantata, "The Wreck of The Hesperus," sung by the pupils with solos by Mrs. Selleck, Clyde Doane and Roy Titsworth. Mrs. Selleck also sang three other solos acceptably.

The hit of the evening was made in the presentation of the second act of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" in which Samuel B. Howe, Jr., Clyde Doane, Charles E. Lewis, Roy Titsworth, Miss Laura Bristol, Miss Bessie Alpaugh and Miss Meta Pennock did remarkably well in their parts. Miss Kathleen Phillips and Mr. Howe did the love scene splendidly.

For Owners of Unlicensed Dogs.

The crusade against the owners of unlicensed dogs begins today and the police are actively pushing the campaign. Lists have been made out to facilitate the work and owners will be notified to take out the licenses or appear in the police court on Thursday morning, where in all likelihood fines will be imposed on the delinquents. In all there are about 1,000 dogs in the city and up to this morning about 450 licenses had been taken out.

Attempted Hold Up.

An attempted hold up was reported to the police on Saturday night at midnight. Rose Sheldon, of 655 West Third street made the complaint. She said that an Italian stopped her at the corner of West Third and Washington street and attempted to steal her pocketbook. An approaching citizen frightened the highwayman away.

Listman at Conference.

George L. Listman, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., left this afternoon for Philadelphia where he will attend a conference of Physical Directors Practical Association work with illustrations will be taken up for discussion. The conference will last several days.

A Piano Recital.

The pupils of Miss Alice Louise Morgan will give a piano recital this evening. Twenty-two members are on the program, including several duets.

LADIES' HOME TRUSTEES

Directors are Selected and Incorporation Articles are Filed.

FUND APPROXIMATELY $60,000.

Lot to Be Puchased by Catharine E. Webster Estate Executor and an Appeal to Be Made for Building Fund.

Articles of incorporation have been filed at County Clerk James C. Calvert's office in Elizabeth for "The Ladies' Home" and the trustees will elect officers on Tuesday night, June 21. According to the records at Elizabeth Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh is made counsel for the proposed home and the directors chosen for the first year are Mrs. Chapman Fisk, Mrs. Pierre Mali, Mrs. Mary Byrd Corlies, Mrs. Mary S. Myers, Miss Belle Tweedy, Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, Percy H. Stewart, William M. Stillman, William J. Buttfield, Charles W. McCutchen, George E. Hallock, Horace G. Phillips, Charles J. Fisk, Clarence B. Vail and Charles E. Vail.

John Van Winkle, executor of the estate of the late Catharine E. Webster, whose will makes possible this much needed institution, will have on hand for the purpose approximately $60,000 for the purposes as named by the testratix. He is directed to purchase a lot on which to erect the building and in all probability he will be guided largely by the wishes of the trustees. When title is obtained to the site, it is proposed to make an appeal for contributions for the worthy cause in order to erect the building and it is reliably reported that one-half of the cost of the structure will be defrayed out of the fund while the public will be asked to make up the other half. Miss Webster directed that the old clock in her homestead and other furniture therein be used in the proposed home which is for aged and infirm women.

MISS JONES TO WED VICTOR S. CLARENDON.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Nina Virginia Gregory Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. W. Jones, formerly of West Fifth stret, but now of Elizabeth, to Victor S. Clarendon, the son of an Episcopal clergyman of Belfast, Ireland. No date has been set for the wedding.

The couple met five years ago, when Miss Jones was visiting relatives in Belfast, and recently Mr. Clarendon came to Elizabeth to secure the consent of Miss Jones' parents to the engagment. He leaves Wednesday on the Lusitania for his home. Mr. Clarendon is a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, and is an heir to what is known as the Ewart title. The family is very wealthy.

Mrs. Francis T. Quinn.

Mrs. Francis T. Quinn, mother of Mrs. J. A. McNally, died this morning at the home of the latter, 403 Spooner avenue, following an illness of three months from complication of diseases. She was born in County Kildare, Ireland. She had lived in Plainfield thirty-two years. She is survived by a husband and one daughter, Mrs. John A. McNally. The funeral will be held from the home of the latter Wednesday morning at 8:15 and from St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. The burial will in St. Mary's cemetery.

Charge and Counter Charge.

In the City court this morning Amerigo Brancatti, appeared against Ralph Tozze charging assault and attempted cutting with a razor. William G. DeMeza appeared for the defendant and at the request of both parties the case was postponed until next Monday morning. It is likely that a counter charge will be made against Brancatti according to lawyer DeMeza.

Entertained Children in Church.

Owing to the rain on Saturday the lawn party which was to have been given to the children of the Crescent avenue church by W. D. Murray, a ventiloquial entertainment was substituted and was held in the parlors of the church. Besides the ventriloquist the children enjoyed games and later were served with refreshments.

Stealing Flowers Cost Tracy $5.

Barney Tracy, who was caught picking flowers in the beds of the Central Railroad at the North avenue station yesterday morning by Patrolman Nolan was fined five dollars in the city court this morning by Judge Runyon with the alternative of spending twenty days in jail.

R. H. Page has returned from Florida, where he spent the last three months, and is staying at the Somerset Hotel.

Philip W. Tunison, Jr., has sold his Grove street property to Miss Bartles, of Flemington.

NEW PROVIDENCE.

A reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. Lyman B. Coddington at their residence in South street Friday afternoon to the ladies and congregation of the Presbyterian church at which to meet Mrs. Reed S. Dickson, the new Presbyterian minister's wife. It was well attended by members of the congregation. Refreshments were served and the company retired at 6 o'clock.

Children's Day was observed yesterday in the Presbtyerian church. The little ones gathered at the chapel and, headed by Edward Miller, who played "Onward, Christian Soldiers," on the cornet, marched to the church, where an appropriate sermon was delivered by the pastor, Rev. Reed S. Dickson.

The regular services were dispensed with at St. Luke's Mission yesterday to give way for the children's celebration of Children's Day. The exercises consisted of recitations and carols suited for the occasion.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The patrons of the Public Service Corporation who happened to be on the 8:15 trolley car from town Saturday night, going west, were obliged to listen to the cursing and vile epithets of a Westfield resident who was carrying a cargo of Jersey lightning. No attempt was made by the conductor to put the man off the car or to have him confine himself to decent language, notwithstanding that there were twelve or fifteen women on the car. The number of the car was 1935.

Judgment for full amount was rendered in Justice Clark's court Saturday morning in the case of Riley vs. Rodewagon. Riley was employed by Rodewagon on his farm near Alton, by the month; a disagreement arose between the two and Riley was discharged without pay. Justice Clark after hearing both sides of the case decided the plaintiff was entitled to a full month's pay.

WILL APPLY TO WATER BOARD.

Paterson, June 13.—At the conference on the water supply question, at Mayor McBride's office Friday afternoon, at which there were present Mayor McBride, Mayor Bird Spencer, of Passaic; Mayor H. W. Crawford, of Montclair; City Counsel Edward Merrey and City Attorney Thomas McCran, of this city, and City Attorney Boyd, of Montclair, together with the members of the board of works of this city, it was decided to ascertain just what the State Water Supply Commission would do for the three cities in securing for them a water supply.

With this end in view the three legal representatives were asked to communicate with the State Water Supply Commission. The three municipalities do not intend to bind themselves in any way in making overtures to the commission, but feel that it is wise to learn just what the plans of the board are in the matter.

MILLINERY GARDENS.

Flowers are lavishly employed, without regard for the caste of the individual posies; orchids find themselves flanked with wood violets, crysanthemums with daisies, lilacs with roses, pansies with field poppies.

The manner in which the flowers are placed on the hat and angle suggested are decidedly novel.

In some cases the flowers stand almost upright, towering above the crown, again they are placed at an angle. Cherry blossoms on tall, slender twigs or sprays are utilized on turbans which lie back against the crown.

Crowns and brims, regardless of shape or size, are frequently massed with flowers; as a rule one or two varities are used.

Leafless wreaths are a feature, and the effect is decidedly clever. They are placed on the hats in any original manner which presents itself to the designer. Over a crown latticed with black velvet, wee pink and yellow roses clambered realistically. Frequently they are formed into festoon effects, also in wreaths. They are employed to outline both crown and brim, but are necessarily small.

HOW TO CLEAN MARBLE.

It is well to have on hand a recipe or two which will help us clean marble. Take two parts of soda, one of pumice stone and one of finely powdered chalk. Sift these through a fine seive and mix them into a paste with water. Rub the mixture all over the marble, and the stains will be removed; now wash it with soap and water, and a beautiful bright polish will be produced.

Another way to remove stains from marble is with a paste made of powdered pipeclay and fuller's earth mixed with strong soap lye. Put a thick coating of the paste on the marble and pass lightly over it a moderately warm flatiron until it is dry. Leave it for a short time, and then wash it off with clean water. Should the first application fail to remove all stains, repeat the process.

Discoloration made by smoke may be removed in the same manner.

HAIRPINS.

How gigantic and beautiful are some of the hairpins! Since most of the hats rely upon the disks that are so well combining utility with beauty, it is not surprising that makers have exerted themselves in the designing of these important accessories.

Some of the enameled ware is extremely ornate. Tortoise-shell carved in flower forms claims your eye. Huge spikes of jewels or large disks of glittering stones are quite as popular as the lace forms that nestle among flowers and tulle.

And—would you believe it?—there are some that are playing a double role, for the tops can be removed and tiny powder puffs brought to light, where they can be put to use before the diminutive mirror of the latest novelty.

GLASS JARS FOR MEAT.

The housekeeper is sometimes at a loss for a convenient way to keep small meats, such as chops, hamburger chopped meat, stew meats or liver, uncooked in the ice chest when the latter is not commodious or there are many demands upon its space.

For keeping any of these or even a small steak over night glass jars of the size required by the quantity of meat at hand, will be found much more easily handled than a plate or bowl. Preserve jars, with well-fitting screw top to keep the meat from the air as well as ward off contact with the other provisions, are excellent. Less space is occupied and the danger of the meat becoming tainted is minimized.

INTERESTING QUESTIONS FOR CHINA PAINTERS.

In china painting absoulte cleanliness and a regard for details is imperative. If you have no kiln of your own and have to send the china out to be fired, always see that it is perfectly dry and that the under sides of things are clean and free from smudges and finger marks before firing, as all such things will fire in and prove unsightly.

When sending china out to be fired wrap it carefully in soft tissue paper or sheet-wadding. If any of the cotton sticks to the china after it is unwrapped it will not matter.

Much of the amateur one sees today is done in a very sloppy, careless way—muddy color, wobbly and inaccurate outlines and gold which has been put on in the most careless manner. Rub out and do over again any work which is not up to the highest standard.

After you have finished the day's painting scrape all messy color from the palatte with your knife, leaving only the good color. Wipe the palette clean with turpentine and then slip on the cover. If you have not the covered palette place your tile, or whatever contains your colors, in a covered box. This will keep the colors free from dust and dirt and in good working condition several days.

Here are few questions and answers of interest to the amateur:

1. Does your pad wet through too quickly? Your silk is doubtless too thin. Use double thickness and only oil the pad very slightly.

2. Does the tinting seem full of tiny bits of fuzz? If so probably the silk is too thin and the cotton works through. Or it may be due to dust or lint from either the room or your dress. Best wipe it all off.

3. Does your tint seem full of little bubbles as you pad it? If it does you have used too much medium in applying the colro. You had best wipe it off and try again. Some-it is due to a very wet pad. Try a fresh one and perhaps that will make it all right.

4. Is the tint streaky and uneven? If you have used the color too dry it is apt to be uneven. It is best to see that any piece you are to tint is perfectly clean before applying the color.

5. In padding does the color seem to come off in spots? This is probably due to having your pad made too hard and tight. It should be loose and springy. And, again, it may be due to having your color too dry.

6. What is the proper consistency of the tinting color when mixed, ready for application? It should be smooth and creamy, and is used quite thin for very light tones. Experience must teach you many of these points, for it is by repeated trials with these problems that you gain any real knowledge.

SOME CHILDREN PETTED TOO HC

It is a problem to decide how far children should be brought into prominence among their elders, as of late years has been the fashion.

Some of them, no doubt, to use their own phraseology, delight in "showing off" any little skill or talent of which they may be possessed. They love to dance, sing, act or recite before their parents' friends, and swallow with avidity all of the flattering remarks made about themselves and their performances by good-natured folk who consider it the correct thing to say.

But it must be confessed that too much publicity for children is a mistake. It is apt to make a child think itself of undue importance, and and to overate its abilities and attractions, and in consequence the little creature becomes vain and self-conscious, thus losing the natural simplicity and unconsciousness of self, which is one of the greatest charms of childhood.

Although it is not good for children to be brought forward too much, it is a mistake not to let them mix with other children of their own age and standing. They ought to go to a certain extent, and also to entertain their little friends in their own home, for the nursery and schoolroom are, as it were, little worlds in which the small inhabitants learn the rudiments of their future behavior.

Every naural, healthy child loves going to a party and "having a party" at home, the latter more especially, and it is the latter that teaches it most. Every child in the family should be taught to consider herself or himself as the hostess and host for the occasion, and in consequence it is his or her duty to study the pleasure and comfort of the little guests, to be courteous to them, to give them the first place in whatever amusement may be the order of the day.

Teach your children also not to show their own likes and dislikes for their guests; not at all an easy or per haps at first a pleasant task for a child to learn, but it is one that will prove of great value all through life.

A spoilt child really never has good manners. How can it, when it has never been taught obedience, self-control, or consideration for others, three things which are the best foundation on which can be built a child's good manners.

The Old-Fashioned Settle.

If you happen to be the lucky possessor of an old-fashioned settle, by all means get it out from your cellar or attic, for they are quite the thing this season. On all the verandas of our exclusive suburbs these old settles are given the place of honor. They have been sand-papered and stained a delightful woody green. Cushions to match make the seat inviting, and when one entertains at tea or at afternoon cards upon the veranda there is the table already for use.

BANG! MAY LOSE HAND.

Dover, June 13.—While on his way to school Friday, Charles Drake, twelve-year-old son of Joseph Drake, of East Blackwell street, found a torpedo lying on the tracks of the New Jersey Central Railroad. He wanted to see how it was made and with a large stone undertook to break it open. He succeeded, and now may lose the use of his right hand, for the torpedo exploded, lacerating the flesh to the bone. Unless blood poisoning sets in, the hand may be saved, was the opinion of the physicians who rendered first aid.

POINTERS FOR THE COOK.

When boiled custard is overcooked it may be brought back to the right consistency if thoroughly beaten with an eggbeater.

A baking powder box with a small hole in the bottom makes a sharp, quick chopper for use when warming over potatoes or vegetables.

The flat taste of boiled water may be removed by pouring the water from one pitcher to another in the open air.

Meats and fish which spatter when cooking may be seared first and then placed in the oven to finish cooking.

Paper bags, which accumulate so fast, may be put to good use in the kitchen.

When frying doughnuts lay in a paper bag and they will lose much of their greasiness.

Within His Gates.

A noted minister in Washington had been urging his flock to give a hearty welcome to the stranger within the gates, not forgetting to maintain a proper interest in their own households. After the service he went to the door, as usual, and began to shake hands with the people passing out.

He was much interested in a well-dressed and intelligent-looking young girl, apparently a stranger, and greeted her heartily.

"I hope we may see you often here," he said. "We always have a warm welcome for new faces."

"Thank you, sir," she replied, modestly.

"Do you live hereabouts?" he went on.

The girl looked at him with a puzzled smile. "Yes, sir; I do."

"Will you kindly leave me your address, and my wife and I will call on you some evening," he said.

"You would not have to go far to find me—I am you cook."—National Magazine.

Precept and Example.

"Stick to the farm," says the president to the wide-eyed farmer boy, then he hies him back to his white house home with its air of rustic joy. "Stick to the farm," says the railroad king to the lad who looks afar, then hikes him back on the double-quick to his rustic private car. "Stick to the farm," says the clergyman to the youth on the worm fence perch, then he lays his ear to the ground to hear a call to the city church. "Stick to the farm," says the doctor wise to those who would break the rut, then hies him where the appendix grows in bountiful crops to cut.

Julie Mack

By GENE BARORD

Conductor Carter stepped into the caboose of the west-bound freight, a slip of yellow paper in his hand. He shook the rain from his cap and sat down. Addressing the red-haired flagman sitting in the opposite side of the caboose he said: "Mulligan, was you intendin' to go up to Magnolia to-night on 1?"

"Sure I was," replied Mulligan. "Why?"

"Oh, nothin', only you ain't goin', for the track is washed out from Mineral Hill clear up to Red Oak. This train won't leave the sidin' to-night, Mulligan."

"Oh, Lord," cried the flagman. "An' I promised my girl I'd be up for sure to-night. Ain't that tough luck, now?"

"Oh, I don't know, Mulligan. Worse things than that might happen. Did I ever tell you fellows about the time when I was telegraph operator back home?"

"You never told me nothin,' Sheridan," said Mulligan, "except to take my flag and get out."

"Well, it's a kind of queer story, but it's on the level, all right. I was night man at Green's Sidin'. It was very lonesome there, and nobody to talk to except the railroad men that came in. About fifteen miles east of our place was Anderson's Sidin'. The operator there was a fellow by the name of Billy Davis, with whom I used sometimes to talk over the wire so I wouldn't get sleepy.

"About half way between Green's and Anderson's there was a small stream called Mill run. The bridge over this creek wasn't much of a bridge, but they ran heavy freights over it, and there had never been any trouble, but at this time of year the March floods made the creek carry on like a young Mississippi.

"Well, one night about nine o'clock, while at my desk I began to feel creepy and nervous. I tried to shake it off, but no use, so I called Billy up. When he answered 'Hello, Sheridan,' I tried to answer him, but couldn't.

"I made one final effort and was going to tell Bill that all was right, but this is what I really said: 'Mill run bridge down. Hold 29.' Somehow I seemed to feel better after saying this, although I had no earthly reason for making such a statement.

"An hour later I received this message from Bill: 'If you had been one minute later, Sheridan, with your message, they'd be fishing dead men out of Mill Run creek.' And he told the truth, too, for the bridge had given way just as 29 was scheduled to pass over it.

"I don't know whether it was a premonition or not, but this is how some of the railroad boys explained it to me:

"It seems that many years before I ever was put on at Green's Sidin', the operator at that place was taken suddenly ill one night, and Julie Mack, daughter of a railroad engineer, fearing accidents, volunteered to take his place.

"Well, there was a rear-end collision just above Green's. The flagman's legs were broken, and he couldn't flag the flyer, which was soon due. He struggled to Julie's office and told her. She grabbed the lantern, ran down the track, stopped the train all right, but stumbled right in front of the engine, and was picked up dead.

"Julie's sweetheart was running the flyer that night, and the thought that his engine had killed her drove him insane.

"And the fellows say that Julie's spirit is with the operators at Green's Sidin' in time of trouble, and that it was she that dictated the message I sent to Billy Davis that night.

"There's my story; believe it or knock it, just as you please, but it's my opinion that Julie Mack saved 29 from going into Mill Creek run."

Singing Teachers of Milan.

Milan is the chief market in the world for human voices and the city boasts of over 200 singing teachers. Competition among them is very keen.

Each teacher has a different method of teaching singing and a special system for developing the voice. For instance one teacher has invented an apparatus of wood shaped like a triangle which he introduces into the pupil's mouth. Another makes the pupil lie flat on the floor and while he is singing places weights on his chest to increase resistance.

Still another teacher walks up and down a corridor while the pupil takes a note which has to be prolonged until the corridor is traversed a certain number of times. A note of three corridors is considered good, a note of six is excellent. Some teachers have secret systems. There is one who makes his pupils swear on the Scripture not to reveal his method, which he considers so good that the pupil can select independently of the nature of his voice what to become, a tenor, barytone or bass.

New Discoveries of Radium.

Valuable deposits of radium-bearing pitchblende are said to have been discovered on the McCloud river in California. Similar discoveries are also reported in the Cripple Creek district in Colorado. Pitchblende is a rock, tons and tons of which must be ground up, treated chemically, washed, precipitated and filtered, over and over again to obtain a few grains of the precious radium-bearing salts.

Freight Rates vs. Commutation Rates

By George L. Record in Jersey Journal.

Every opponent of boss rule and corporation control of our politics must be greatly encouraged at the indications of a wide-spread revolt among the commuters in New Jersey against the proposed increase of passenger rates to New York. The effect of this agitation this summer will at least have the effect of convincing many thousands of Republican voters that the Republican State leaders, in passing the Wakelee bill, acted in the interest of the railroads and against the public interest. With this fact plainly proved, these thousands of commuters will see that their only recourse is to work in the Republican primaries for the nomination of the New Idea Republican candidates, and particularly for Hon. William P. Martin for Governor.

The average commuter, of course, cannot help knowing when he is compelled to pay more for his commutation ticket. What he does not see so plainly, and what the average consumer has hitherto failed to see, is that the increased freight rates which the railroads are planning to put into force will take away from the average man a much greater sum of money annually than will the increase in commutation rates. The passenger rates increase is plain and obvious. The freight rate increase does not anywhere come home to the consumer except that he is conscious of an increasing difficulty in making both ends meet. The freight rates are paid in the first instance by the shipper, or by the consignee of the goods shipped by the producer. The consignee is usually a jobber, and charges up the freight rate plus a profit on the freight rate when he sells the goods in separate lots to the retailer. The retailer in his turn charges up a profit upon the total bill rendered by the jobber, in which bill is the original freight rate and the jobber's profit on the same. The consumer when he buys from the retailer, therefore, pays the freight rate with at least two profits on the freight rate added; all of which is included in the retail price. The consumer being the last man in the line, has nobody upon whom he can transfer this burden, and he foots the whole bill. He has no means of knowing exactly what part of each price that he pays is freight rate, and therefore his indignation is not so strongly aroused against the increase of these rates.

Everything today comes over the railroad, and usually the things which we buy at the store have come over the railroad several times. Take a suit of clothes, for instance. The cotton is grown in the South and the wool in the West, and both are shipped on the railroad as raw material to New York or New England mills, paying the freight rates. These materials are there woven into cloth, which is shipped to the jobber in some large city, paying another freight rate. The jobber splits up these goods into smaller shipments, and sends them to the different distributing points throughout the country, and on this journey they pay a third freight rate. These distributing points send them to the local points of distribution in their neighborhood, and upon this journey they pay a fourth freight rate. Upon all these freight rates each consignee of the goods adds a profit, all of which the consumer pays in the retail prices. When the people learn how their earnings are absorbed by these increased freight rates concealed in the price of goods, we will have a public opinion in America which no combination of machine politicians and corporate managers can withstand, and the demand for the fixing of rates by the government will become irresistible.

AUTOISTS MAY TRY FOR LEGISLATION.

A rumor was current in automobiling circles Saturday, that in the event of Governor Fort calling a special legislative session to act on the question of increased railroad fares, the opportunity would be embraced by some of the legislators to present another automobile bill granting reciprocal touring privileges to automobilists from other States.

Such a measure was advocated by the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey during the last session of the Legislature, but the bill was killed, and a second attempt to have such a measure introduced just before the closing hours of the session was defeated by the alleged opposition of Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen.

SLID OFF HOTEL ROOF, BROKE NOSE AND TEETH.

Lake Hopatcong, June 13.—A narrow escape from probable fatal injuries occurred Friday, when Cornelius Van Dale, of Paterson, fell from the top roof of Allen's Pavilion Hotel to the lower roof.

Mr. Van Dale is in charge of the ice cream and soda water department of the hotel, but that department's business being slack, he offered to help the painters tar the roofs of the buildings. They were working on the top of the main hotel building, which is five and one-half stories above the ground, when Mr. Van Dale's feet slipped from under him, and he started to slide down the steep roof. There being no gutter to the roof, he knew he must slide off, as there was nothing to cling to.

Keeping his presence of mind, he forced his feet out in front of him, and as he fell he tried to land on a roof below, which is over a small extension to the first story. He succeeded in doing so, but as he landed his right knee came in contract with his face, breaking six teeth loose and cracking his nose. He received a bad cut above his eye, and two teeth were forced through his lip.

He received no other injury, except a shaking up. Mr. Van Dale is a member of the United States Volunteer-saving Corps at this resort.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., June 13, 1910.

bins represented "Columbia," the spirit of Children's Day. Each child carried a pennant of red, white and blue and on each one was printed the number of people helped by contributions taken at this time. The children in this drill, which was performed perfectly, and was very impressive, were Amy Lorton, Howard Hall, Carrie Creager, Howard Fisher, Charlotte Carpenter, Margaret Dunavan, Russell Lynn, Bowen Henry, Genevieve Longcor, Thora Vail, Arthur McVoy, Janet Marchant, Frank Rowley, Jessie Randall, Ida Bennett, Elizabeth Hicks, William Ramsey, Lois Beekman, Edwin Mackey, Ella Vail, Myrtle Harrell, Ellsworth Runyon, Russell Huff, Thelma Dawson, Warren Moyer, Robert Cline, Russell Lorton and Harold Seal.

After the drill a collection was taken up by Myra Stebbins, Lucile Ewart, Anna Warnock, Hannah Bingaman, Helen Edgar and Myrtle Darling, after which they marched to the platform, kneeled while Myra Stebbins repeated a simple prayer.

During the service three children and one adult were baptized by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, and Miss Bertha vanNuis Willis sang a solo. The Sunday-school was presented with a handsome American flag by George M. Rittenhouse. The church was attractively decorated with flowers which were afterwards given to the sick of the congregation.

Monroe Avenue.

A large congregation at the Monroe Avenue church enjoyed the services yesterday morning. The platform was extended, and was ararnged so as to represent a large playground with "brick" pillars and a wall on both sides and in front. Inside the decorations were tastefully carried out in greens. A large pathway led up the center into the playground; and it was here that the children made their recitations. These included, "Roses Red and White," by John Morton, Herman Toms, Russell Pound and Lester Symonds. The Misses Edith Mowen, Ruth Kemble and Helen Egel then rendered selections, and Teddy Schwartz gave "Our Heroes" in an able manner. "The Saviour Child" was recited by Miss Constance Durant, and "The Message of the Flowers" by the Misses Ethel Martin and Elsie Vail. Ernice Mowen followed with a recitation and was followed by the Misses Dorothy Durant, Madeline Davis, Alice Spangenberg and Cornelia Lyle, who gave "Sumertime Is Here." This program was completed by the recitations of four youngsters of the kindergarten department: Helen Watton, Beatrice Shreve, Hester Saums and Helen McDonald. Special songs were rendered by the Sunday school under the direction of John Daub and the feature of the exercises was the talk to the children by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Kemble, who took for his topic, "Spreading Sunshine." Six infant baptisms followed the exercises.

Crescent Avenue.

Simple exercises marked the celebration of Children's Day at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon. These consisted of carols by the children and an address appropriate to the occasion by the pastor, Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie. The school was tastefully decorated with daises and greens. At the morning service the primary department choir sang carols.

The Congregational.

At the Congregational church the services of Children's Day were attended by a large number of the members of the church and an almost full attendance of the Sunday school children. The feature of the service was the presentation of Bibles to three children who had been christened in the church and who had attended the age of seven years. This is a custom always observed in this church. Another pretty feature was the graduating exercises in which eight children from the primary department were promoted to the junior grade.

Those who received the Bibles were Harriette C. Morgan, Roberts E. Fuller and Roselyn B. Listman. The graduates, each of whom was given a copy of the New Testament and a diploma, recited selections from various parts of the Scriptures to the satisfaction of their teachers. Their names follow: Marguerite Beck, Katharine Clark, Katharine Martin, Harold Neilsen, Albert Renney, George Rockfellow, Henry Zweifel and Russell Allen.

The primary department sang carols appropriate to the day, and Charles E. Lewis also sang a solo in keeping with the sentiment of the the occasion. Rev. Charles L. Goerich gave the children a nature talk using the olive tree for an illustration. The pastor demonstrated the fineness of the wood with samples taken from a tree at Olivet.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, the altar being literally hidden in fragrant blossoms. Back of the altar were long strings of daises from which hung suspended baskets of roses whose perfumes permeated the entire auditorium. Altogether, in spite of the rain it was one of the best Children's Day held in this church.

First Presbyterian.

An excellent Children's Day program was presented at the First Presbtyerian church yesterday morning, the beginners' department being in charge of Mrs. George A. Ballentyne and the primary department under the direction of Miss Ella Lounsbery. A feature was the presentation of roses to everyone in attendance. These were given for the purpose by William H. Shotwell and there were five hundred roses in all.

Following the organ prelude, the processional, invocation and Lord's Prayer and a carol, "Golden Days are Dawning," by the school, the beginners' department had its part in the program as follows:

Introduction, "The King's Scholars," Miss Pauline Gates; recitation, Miss Helen Almy, Miss Mary VanCleef and Miss Ruth Hammond; concert recitation, Raymond Adams, John Martin, Paul Duttenhofer, Alvin Dunn, Richard Fullerton, and Henrietta Clarkson; carol, "Love Song." This program was presented by the primary department:

Recitation, "Many a Little," four boys; carol, "Little Stars;" recitations, "Sing a Song of Daisies," four girls; "Jesus' Flowers," three girls; carol, "Thank You." The rest of the program follows:

Carol, "Lullaby of the Roses;" offertory, organ, "To a Wild Rose," MacDowell; soprano solo, "The King of Love," Gounod, Master C. Shelton Moora; carol, "Sunbeams Everywhere; presentation of diplomas; anthem, "Seek ye the Lord," with soprano obligato," Roberts; address, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring; carol, "Alleluias Singing;" prayer and benediction, organ postlude.

At Trinity Reformed.

At Trinty Reformed in the morning eleven children were baptized just before the opening of the morning's exercises. These were the eleven: Elsie Mary, Alfred George and Helen Leonora Zepp, children of Mr. and Mrs. George Zepp; Arne Frederick Neilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neilson; Hazel Marie and Dorothy Naomi Van Sickle, daughters of Will Roy Van Sickle; Arthur Embury Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Smith; Eleanor Louise Thorn, daughter of Clarence L. Thorn; George Saums Van Arsdale, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. William Van Arsdale; Beatrice Orton Kline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Kline and Edward Gustavus Andrews, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Andrews.

The exercises which followed were thoroughly enjoyed by a large congregation. Songs, recitations and solos were rendered by the little folks in a manner to make their parents proud. Particularly was this so in the case of Adele Freeman in "A Message of Joy." This young girl sang with much expression and sweetly. Master Charles Todd in Schubert's "Serenade," displayed unusual talent and will some day become a great violinist. "The Seven Sisters" in rainbow costumes were very pretty and ended their exercise with a song entitled, "Shining for Him." There were eight girls in this as follows: Marion Blair, Marion Wooley, Gladys Humbert, Helen Shyarback, Louise Seader, Marjorie Storr, Helen McAfee and Nellie McAfee.

The Junior department were prominent with their singing and reciting and all of them did well. Especially pretty was the song "Just Being Happy." They sang it as if it were so.

Pastor Broek in a short address showed by well chosen illustrations what an arrow the tongue can be made. How it can hit the mark and accomplish much for the Master.

The altar was a mass of beautiful flowers lending a touch of brightness which the weather could not dim.

Processional, song, school; Scripture lesson, prayer, by the pastor; sacrament of infant baptiesm; "address of Welcome," Warren Kellog; song, "Greet the Children's Day," primary department; recitation, "Our Gift," Pauline Davidson; song, "Jesus' Little Ones," beginners' department; exercise, "God is Love," Dorothy Ross, Marjorie Van Emburgh, Hazel Creaveling, Sylvia Givens Francis, Neighbor, Gertrude Rittenhouse, Alva Hansen, Gladys Bye; song, "Nodding in the Sunshine," Edna Smith, Ruth Freeman, Grace Sowden, Dorothy Crane, Helen Hand, Mildred Clarke, Helen Thompson, Esther Kellogg; recitation, "For Today," Carman Trembath; recitation, "Why We Have Children's Day," Ethel Givens; song, "Living for the Master," primary department; recitations, "When Mother Looks in at the Door," Helen Thompson; "The Boy with the Barley Loaves," Margaret Smith; song, "See Them Swing," Dorothy Seader, Alma Allegar, Dorothey Van Winkle, Clara Oberg, Marjorie Dufford, Ruth Gulick; recitation, "The Difference," Clifford Williams; song, "Just Being Happy," junior department; exercise, "The Seven Sisters," Marion Blair, Marion Wooley, Gladys Humbert, Helen Shyarback, Louise Seader, Marjoire Storr, Helen McAfee, Nellie McAfee; violin solo, "Schubert Serenade," Charles Todd; solo, "A Message of Joy," Adele Freeman; address by the pastor; song, "Hear the Merry Birds," primary department; annoucements, offering, song by the school, doxology, benediction.

The Park Avenue.

Pulipt, choirloft and Sunday school room in the Park Avenue Baptist church were beautifully draped with the American flag and flowers bordered the platform on which the pupils of the Bible school gathered last night. The draped flags formed a beautiful back ground for the white attire of the children.

Master Chester Chamberlain, the boy soprano, sang beautifully the two numbers, "A Prayer" and "Hold Thou My Hand." Miss Edith Bechtel, a promising young soprano, rendered "The Holy City," and had applause been permissible this young girl would have had to respond to an encore. Again in "The Beautiful Flag" Miss Bechtel covered herself with glory.

Emily VanWinkle, Irene Moy, Cornelia Smith and Clara Hadley all did well in their rather difficult recitations and the elementary department sang surprisingly a praise song. Mrs. Ada M. Cuming sang "Not Half Has Ever Been Told," the congregation joining heartily in the chorus.

Pastor Maguire interested the adults as well as the children with an exhibition of relics of his sojourn in "Darkest Africa," idols, implements of warfare, fetiches, a snake skin and other things absorbed the attention of everybody and his stories of the various uses of the weapons, the customs of the savages and "eating the peace feast" were amusing and instructive. He said, "Teddy Roosevelt is not the only man who can shoot wild animals in Africa," as he exhibited a pair of gloves made from the skin of a leopard shot by himself.

The exercises came to a close with the singing of "America," the congregation standing, while the children on the platform waved tiny American flags in time with the music, all of which added a patriotic flavor to the proceedings and stirred the blood to quicker action and made everybody glad that they had been present. The singing of the children was especially good and they were admirably assisted by Miss Mary Clark at the piano. William Holmes sang a solo, "I Will Parise Thee," just preceding Mr. Maguire's address. The collection which was for the benefit of the Baby Camp on Johnston's Drive, amounted to $55.33. An ochestra under the leadership of Arthur Mosher played the recessional and for the offertory Whitney Frazee played a cornet solo.

Superintendent George E. Hall presented each one in the audience with a couvenir program and a fan containing the printed aim of the school and how this aim is realized. The program committee was composed of George E. Hall, Mrs. Ada Cuming, Mrs. W. S. Lowry, Miss Mary E. Clark, Miss Elmira C. Runyon and Miss Florence G. Hawkins.

Selection, orchestra; "Onward, Christian Soldiers," chorus choir; opening exercise, school and congregation; prayer, Rev. G. R. Maguire; solo, "A Prayer," Chester Chamberlain; hymn, school and congregation; recitation, "The Birth of Children's Day," Clara Hadley; solo, "Sowing the Seed," Thos. Fitch; "The Flag of the Free," chorus choir; leaf exercise, Joe Bush, Doris Henry, Sarah Johnson, Gladys Hadley, Harold Bush; solo, "The Holy City," Edith Bechtel; offertory, cornet solo, "Face to Face," Whitney Frazee; hymn, school and congregation; carol, "Down in the Blossom Dell," chorus choir; recitation, "'Tis Summer Time," Irene Moy; solo, "Hold Thou My Hand, Dear Lord," Chester Chamberlain; recitation, "'Tis Children's Day Again," Emily Van Winkle; solo, "Not Half Has Ever Been Told" Mrs. Ada Cuming; song, "Happy Are the Meadows," elementary department; solo and chorus, "Beautiful Flag," Edith Bechtel; recitation, "Children's Day," Cornelia Smith; praise song, elementary department; solo, William Holmes; address by the pastor, Gabriel Reid Maguire; "America," school and congregation; benediction, pastor; selection, orchestra.

Grace M. E.

The exercises at Grace M. E. church took place yesterday, when two records— that of attendance and the size of the collection—were broken.

A part of the exercises was the baptism of five infants and one adult. As the babies were brought in they were preceded by children with baskets of flowers singing "God Bless the Babies." The rest of the program was as follows: Greeting song, Helen and Grace Bolen; exercise, "The Reporters," Harold Mantz, Arthur Townley, Kenneth Giddes; recitation, "Smiles," Emma Shoop; solo, Ruth Nichols; exercise, "How Do You Do?" Helen and Grace Bolen, Ruth Conover, Florence Hoagland, Adelaide Jones, Erma Shoop; recitation, "The Rosebuds," Madeline Walker; solo, "The Clock," Florence Hoagland; recitation, "Summertime," Edna Jones very tiny); The Rainy Day Brigade, (children singing under umbrellas), Harold and Bessie Taynor, Ruth Conover, Albert Mimbo, Edna and Adelaide Jones; recitation, "I'll Do My Part," Adelaide Jones; Sunbeam Drill, Helen Nelson, Mildred Harden, Grace Conover, Bessie Taynor, Elizabeth Hoagland, Edna Mantz, Marion Jones, Elizabeth Voorhees; recitation, "Summer's Message," (with telephone), Helen Nelson; recitation, "Your Part," Walter Conover.

Those who were baptized are: Flossie Cordelia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. England; Mary Francis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Shepard, and Miss Madeline Irene Mundy.

Netherwood Reformed.

The exercises at the Netherwood Reformed church were splendidly carried out and being the first service of the kind in the new church made a record for it. Two infants were baptized—Esther Hilda Frumerie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Frumerie, and Jeanette Rusa, dauhgter of Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Rush.

The little church was profusely decorated with flowers and there were over 100 in the audience. The children sang carols and other music was furnished by Miss Maude Berry, Mr. Stevenson and S. O. Rush. The recitations by the children of the Sunday school were remarkably well done and reflected credit on their teachers.

C. W. Krausse, of Vine street, has been detained at home the past week by illness.

Royal Worcester Adjusto Corsets

are making thousands of friends every day. Stout women, average and even those of slender build, are all wearing this tremendously popular corset. The Adjusto is designed to promote symmetry where stoutness prevails; to flatten and reduce abdomen of hips; to subduce prominent curves; to mould all excess flesh and distribute it equally; to effectually support the form and give it proper poise; to form the correct base for the fashionable gowns; to create and preserve the ideal contour. Truly a marvelous corset. Try a pair today. PRICES 3.00.

House Cleaning Time

is here and there will be a lot of work; we can help you by doing it for you. We clean Blankets, Comfortables, Lace Curtains, Portieres, Table Covers, Cushion Covers, Mantle Scarfs, Piano Covers, Doilies, Centerpieces, etc.

Lace Curtains should not lay over Summer with the dust and old starch in, those two combined will rot the fabrics in a short time. Also, don't give the moths a chance to eat the greasy part on your blankets, let us clean them now.

LOVING CUP FOR SUPERINTENDENT

Pennsylvania newspaper editors and managers and their wives were the guests of the New Jersey Central Railroad Saturday, on the company's ninth editorial outing to Wilkes-Barre. The feature of the occasion was the presentation of a handsome silver loving cup to General Superintendent C. W. Huntington, of the railroad, the gift of the newspaper men of both Pennsylvania and New Jersey. The latter, who were entertained by the railroad management at Atlantic City two weeks ago, were represented at Saturday's gathering by the chairman and members of the committee in charge of the presentation of the cup.

The Hotel Pedington was the rallying point, the guests from points below Wilkes-Barre coming by a special train in charge of General Passenger Agent W. C. Hope, which left Easton at 8:25 a. m. and meeting the guests from Scranton and places above at the hotel. A stop of an hour was made by the special at Laurel Run, where a fine view of the automobile hill climbing contest was afforded.

Dinner was served at the Redington, and the presentation of the cup followed a cordial speech of welcome by Mr. Hope, Editor J. P. Correll, of the Easton Sunday Call, chairman of the committee, voicing felicitiously the sentiments of his colleagues. Mr. Huntington responded in characteristic vein, showing his complete surprise and with much feeling expressing his appreciation of the handsome token of good fellowship.

The post prandial program provided for an inspection of the new Luzerne County Courthouse by the newspaper men and a visit to Irene Temple, the home of the Mystic Shrine on Franklin street. The editorial special was scheduled to return to Easton at 3:45 p. m.

Seashore Deliveries Resumed.

L. S. Plaut & Co., operating the "Bee Hive" at Newark, announce the resumption of their free seashore delivery for the summer of 1910. As usual in the past, these deliveries will include practically every coast resort from Spring Lake to Seabright. The main office of this special delivery system is at 403 Monroe avenue, Asbury Park. Mail and telephone orders are promptly filled. In addition to this feature, the "Bee Hive," Newark's big institution for the sale of imported and domestic wearing apparel, dress fabrics, house furnishings, etc., announce a great sale of trunks and travel bags, following the custom for the past fifteen years of sharing great economies with their patrons when they are needed so badly. It is a mighty important sale indeed.

JUST ANSWER THESE IF YOU WOULD WED

There are questions galore to be answered by those who want to marry after July 1, the date on which the new State marriage law goes into effect. The new law means more work for the city clerk, more work for the officiating clergyman or justice of the peace, and more work for the bride and the bridegroom. In the case of a person under age being married the parents or guardians are also put to the test of answering questions.

No license, under the law, can be issued to any person who, at the time of applying for the same, is under the influence of liquor or a narcotic, or is an imbecile, epileptic, or of unsound mind.

The City Clerk has to see that the identifying witnesses answer the following questions:

"Do you know names of contracting parties? How long have you known him or her, and has your knowledge been intimate or is it that of a casual acquaintance? Do you know the names of his or her parents (or if an orphan) or guardians? If so name them. How long has he or she contemplated marriage with ——? Has that fact been known to his or her parents (or guardians) if any?

"Do you know or have you heard of any objection being made by any person or persons to the marriage of —— and ——?

"If so, state who made that objection and the nature and grounds of the objection.

"Do you know of any impediment to the marriage of —— and ——? If so, state the character of that impediment.

"Have either —— or —— been married? If so, where, when, to whom and by whom?

"If either of them was previously married how was the marriage state terminated, if at all, by death or divorce?

"If the marriage state terminated by death, when and where did the deceased spouse die? If it terminated by divorce, when and where was the divorce granted?

"Was it an absolute divorce from the bond of matrimony, a divorce from bed and board, or a mere separation? Produce a copy of the decree of divorce.

"Have you any knowledge as to whether either of the contracting parties to the proposed marriage is an imbecile, epileptic, or of unsound mind, or whether either of said parties has been an inmate of an insane asylum or institution for indigent persons; has such party been discharged from such asylum or institution?"

To the forgoing questions the identifying witnesses have to take an affidavit.

Following are some of the questions the applicant for license has to answer:

"What is your full name; when and where were you born? What is the full name of your father? What is your mother's maiden name? What is your occupation, and how long have you been pursuing your present occupation? Where do you reside, and for how long a time have you been there residing? Have you ever been married before; if so, how often, when, and to whom? Are you now single?

There are other questions relative to divorce, former marriages, etc., practically the same as those asked the identfying witnesses which the applicant has to answer. The marriage certificate differs but little from the marriage certificate under the old law with the exception that there are some extra questions relative to bride and groom's parents. In the case of the marriage of a minor the parents or guardians have to present a certificate or voucher.

BOYS MET DEATH AS THEY CHASED A CAT.

Paterson, June 13.—While chasing a cat along the Erie tracks at Hawthorne late Friday afternoon, John McCarthy, eight years old, and Justers Hermann, seven years old, were hurled against an embankment by the pilot of a locomotive. Both lads died of fractured skulls within ten minutes of the accident.

The boys attended school Friday and returning home went back to the school and secured books from the library. The lads strolled out towards Hawthorne and while on their way home walked along the railroad tracks in front of the oncoming train. The little fellows made an effort to chase the cat off the tracks and in their excitement they failed to notice the eastbound train approaching and they crossed the rails directly in front of this latter train. Their little forms were hurled some distance by the pilot of the locomotive.

An Umbrella Fact.

Do not fold an umbrella when it is wet. Allow it to stand with handle downward so that the water can run off the ends of the ribs instead of running toward the ferrule end and rusting that part of the umbrella.

"My key!" he exclaimed; "broken! Who did that? I can't use it now!"

"You will not need to use it, my lord."

"But I bought it, yesterday! Had I given you all of the Oregon country it would not have been worth £20,000. What I'll have to-night—what I'll take—will be worth twice that. But I bought that key, and what I buy I keep."

I heard a struggle, but she repulsed him once more in some way. Still my time had not come. He seemed now to stoop, grunting, to pick up something from the floor.

"How, now? My memorandum of treaty, and torn in two! Oh, I see—I see," he mused. "You wish to give it back to me—to be wholly free! It means only that you wish to love me for myself, for what I am! You minx!"

"You mistake, my lord," said her calm, cold voice.

"At least, 'twas no mistake that I offered you this damned country at risk of my own head. Are you then with England and Sir Richard Pakenham? Will you give my family a chance for revenge on these accursed heathen—these Americans? Come, do that, and I leave this place with you, and quit diplomacy for good. We'll travel the continent, we'll go the world over, you and I. I'll quit my estates, my family for you. Come, now, why do you delay?"

"Still you misunderstand, my lord."

"Tell me then what you do mean."

"Our old bargain over this is broken, my lord. We must make another."

His anger rose. "What? You want more? You're trying to lead me on with your damned courtezan tricks!"

I heard her voice rise high and shrill, even as I started forward.

"Monsieur," she cried, "back with you!"

Pakenham, angered as he was, seemed half to hear my footsteps, semed half to know the swinging of the draperies, even as I stepped back in obedience to her gesture. Her wit was as quick as ever.

"My lord," she said, "pray close yonder window. The draft is bad, and, moreover, we should have secrecy." He obeyed her, and she led him still further from the thought of investigating his surroundings.

"Now, my lord," she said, "take back what you have just said!"

"Under penalty?" he sneered.

"Of your life, yes."

"So!" he grunted admiringly; "well, now, I like fire in a woman, even a deceiving light-o'-love like you!"

"Monsieur!" her voice cried again; and once more it restrained me in my hiding.

"You devil!" he resumed, sneering now in all his ugliness of wine and rage of disappointment. "What were you? Mistress of the prince of France! Toy of a score of nobles! Slave of that infamous rake, your husband! Much you've got in your life to make you uppish now with me!"

"My lord," she said evenly, "retract that. If you do not, you shall not leave this place alive."

In some way she mastered him, even in his ugly mood.

"Well, well," he growled, "I admit we don't get on very well in our little love affair; but I swear you drive me out of my mind. I'll never find another woman in the world like you. It's Sir Richard Pakenham asks you to begin a new future with himself."

"We begin no future, my lord."

"What do you mean? Have you lied to me? Do you mean to break your word—your promise?"

"It is within the hour that I have learned what the truth is."

"God damn my soul!" I heard his curse, growling.

"Yes, my lord," she answered, "God will damn your soul in so far as it is that of a brute and not that of a gentleman or a statesman."

I heard him drop into a chair. "This from one of your sort!" he half whimpered.

"Stop, now!" she cried. "Not one word more of that! I say within the hour I have learned what is the truth. I am Helena von Ritz, thief on the cross, and at last clean!"

"God A'mighty, madam! How pious!" he sneered. "Something's behind all this. I know your record. What woman of the court of Austria or France comes out with morals? We used you here because you had none. And now, when it comes to the settlement between you and me, you talk like a nun. As though a trifle from virtue such as yours would be missed!"

"Ah, my God!" I heard her murmur. Then again she called to me, as he thought to himself; so that all was as it had been, for the time.

A silence fell before she went on.

"Sir Richard," she said at length, "we do not meet again. I await now your full apology for these things you have said. Such secrets as I have learned of England's, you know will remain safe with me. Also your own secret will be safe. Retract, then, what you have said, of my personal life!"

"Oh, well, then," he grumbled, "I admit I've had a bit of wine to-day. I don't mean much of anything by it. But here now, I have come, and by your own invitation—your own agreement. Being here, I find this treaty regarding Oregon torn in two and you gone nun all a-sudden."

"Yes, my lord, it is torn in two. The consideration moving to it was not valid. But now I wish you to amend that treaty once more, and for a consideration valid in every way. My lord, I promised that which was not mine to give—myself! Did you lay a hand on me now, I should die. If you kissed me, I should kill you and myself! As you say, I took yonder price, the devil's shilling. Did I go on, I would be enlisting for the damnation of my soul; but I will not go on. I recant!"

"But, good God! woman, what are you asking now? Do you want me to let you have this paper anyhow, to show old John Calhoun? I'm no such ass as that. I apologize for what I've said about you. I'll be your friend, because I can't let you go. But as to this paper here, I'll put it in my pocket."

"What Do You Mean? Have You Lied to Me? Do You Mean to Break Your Word—Your Promise?"

"My lord, you will do nothing of the kind. Before you leave this room there shall be two miracles done. You shall admit that one has gone on in me; I shall see that you yourself have done another."

"What guessing game do you propose, madam?" he sneered. He seemed to toss the torn paper on the table, none the less. "The condition is forfeited," he began.

"No, it is not forfeited except by your own word, my lord," rejoined the same even, icy voice. "You shall see now the first miracle!"

"Under duress?" he sneered again.

"Yes, then! Under duress of what has often come to the surface in you, Sir Richard. I ask you to do truth, and not treason, my lord! She who was Helena von Ritz is dead—has passed away. There can be no question of forfeit between you and her. Look, my lord!"

I heard a half sob from him. I heard a faint rustling of silke and laces. Still her even, icy voice went on.

"Rise, now, Sir Richard," she said. "Unfasten my girdle, if you like! Undo my clasps, if you can. You say you know my past. Tell me, do you see me now? Ungird me, Sir Richard! Look at me! Covet me! Take me!"

Apparently he half rose, shuffled toward her and stopped with a stifled sound, half a sob, half a growl.

I dared not picture to myself what he must have seen as she stood fronting him, her hands, as I imagined, at her bosom, tearing back her robes.

Again I heard her voice go on, challenging him. "Strip me now, Sir Richard, if you can! Take now what you bought, if you find it here. You cannot? You do not? Ah, then tell me that miracle has been done! She who was Helena von Ritz, as you knew her, or as you thought you knew her, is not here!"

Now fell long silence. I could hear the breathing of them both, where I stood in the farther corner of my room. I had dropped both the derringers back in my pockets now, because I knew there would be no need for them. Her voice was softer as she went on.

"Tell me, Sir Richard, has not that miracle been done?" she demanded. "Might not in great stress that thief upon the cross have been a woman? Tell me, Sir Richard, am I not clean?"

He flung his body into a seat, his arm across the table. I heard his groan.

"God! Woman! What are you?" he exclaimed. "Clean? By God, yes, as a lily! I wish I were half as white myself."

"Sir Richard, did you ever love a woman?"

"One other, beside yourself, long ago."

"May not we two ask that other miracle of yourself?"

"How do you mean? You have beaten me already."

"Why, then, this! If I could keep my promise, I would. If I could give you myself, I would. Failing that, I may give you gratitude. Sir Richard, I would give you gratitude, did you restore this treaty as it was, for that new consideration. Come, now, these savages here are the same savages who once took that little island for you yonder. Twice they have defeated you. Do you wish a third war? You say England wishes slavery abolished. As you know, Texas is wholly lost to England. The armies of America have swept Texas from your reach forever, even at this hour. But if you give a new state in the north to these same savages, you go so far against oppression, against slavery—you do that much for the doctrine of England and her altruism in the world. Sir Richard, never did I believe in hard bargains and never did any great soul believe in such. I own to you that when I asked you here this afternoon I intended to wheedle from you all of Oregon to 54 degrees, 40 minutes. I find in you done some such miracle as in myself. Neither of us is so bad as the world has thought, as we ourselves have thought. Do, then, that other miracle for me. Let us compose our quarrel, and so part friends."

"How do you mean, madam?"

"Let us divide our dispute and stand on this treaty as you wrote it yesterday. Sir Richard, you are minister with extraordinary powers. Your government ratifies your acts without question. Your signature is binding—and there it is, writ already on the scroll. See, there are wafers there on the table before you. Take them. Patch together this treaty for me. That will be your miracle, Sir Richard, and 'twill be the mending of our quarrel. Sir, I offered you my body and you would not take it. I offer you my hand. Will you have that, my lord? I ask this of a gentleman of England."

It was not my right to hear the sounds of a man's shame and humiliation; or of his rising resolve, of his reformed manhood; but I did hear it all. I think that he took her hand and kissed it. Presently I heard some sort of shuffling and crinkling of paper on the table. I heard him sigh, as though he stood and looked at his work. His heavy footfalls crossed the room as though he sought hat and stick. Her lighter feet, as I heard, followed him, as though she held out both her hands to him. There was a pause, and yet another; and so, with a growling half sob, at last he passed out of the door; and he closed it softly after him.

When I entered, she was standing, her arms spread out across the door, her face pale, her eyes large and dark, her attire still disarrayed. On the table, as I saw, lay a parchment mended with wafers.

Slowly she came and put her two arms across my shoulders. "Monsieur!" she said, "Monsieur!"

Notice of hearing objections to assessments for street improvements in the City of Plainfield.

Joseph Harrigan, Harry B. MacDonald and Andrew J. Gavett, the Commissioners appointed by the Union County Court of Common Pleas, by order entered on the twenty-third day of March, 1910, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent street improvements in the City of Plainfield, under the ordinance of said city specified in said order, (said ordinance being also hereinafter specified) and the character of the work and improvements for which said assessments have been made and a description of the sections of the particular streets and avenues thereof which are included in said assessment, being as follows, viz:

Union Street, from the southwesterly curb line of Arlington Avenue to the southerly side line of Stelle Avenue;

Stelle Avenue, from the easterly curb line of Madison Avenue to the westerly curb line of Union Street;

Madison Avenue, from the southerly curb line of Stelle Avenue to the macadum already constructed on Randolph Road;

Darrow Avenue, from the southeasterly curb line of West Fourth Street to the northwesterly curb line of West Seventh Street;

Compton Avenue, from the northwesterly curb line of West Front Street to the macadam already constructed on Dunellen Avenue;

Ravine Road, from the easterly curb line of Belvidere Avenue to the southerly side line of Dixie Lane;

under the ordinance of said City entitled: "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable Macadam Pavement, and to provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," approved April 12, 1909, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real estate benefited thereby," approved June 13th, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, having made and filed in the office of the clerk of said court, a report in writing of their estimates and assessments, accompanied by surveys and map prepared by the City Surveyor under their direction, showing lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, respectively, the total cost of the whole work upon each of the sections of said streets or avenues improved as aforesaid, under the aforesaid ordinance; the portions assessed upon the City at large, and the names, so far as ascertained, of the owners of the said lots or parcels of land and real estate, and the amount of the assessment to each owner for each of said lots or parcels of land and real estate for the said benefits, and the excess thereof to be paid by the City at large, and raised by general tax, and the other matters required by said acts of the legislature, as by reference to said report and map will more fully and at large appear.

Notice is hereby given, that said Union County Court of Common Pleas has fixed the fifteenth day of June, 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as the Court can attend to the same, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, as the time and place for hearing before said court any objections that may be made to such assessments, when and where all parties may be heard, and has directed the publication of this notice.

JAMES C. CALVERT,
Clerk of the Union County Court of Common Pleas.

BOWLING.

The final series of the two-man tourney at Campbell's alleys will be rolled tonight with Laing and Blatz, Burscher and Schaub and Koons and Willett as the contesting teams.

Kiely and Stout have won the tourney and the Laing-Blatz and Burscher-Schaub combination have a chance to tie Vail and Meyer for second place.

To do this it is necessary, however, for either one of the teams to win all six games tonight. Aside from the fight for second place, interest will be centered on the pinning of Schaub and Blatz for second individual average prize.

The former is now leading by more than a point, but this advantage is slight with six games to be rolled.

All ties, if any, will be rolled off on Wednesday night.

Two Expert Typists.

The students and friends of the Drake Business College witnessed a remarkable demonstration in shorthand and typewriting in the college rooms Friday night. Miss Florence Wilson, amateur champion typist, wrote 200 words in one minute from memorized matter without an error, at the same time carrying on a conversation with a person standing near her desk. On new and difficult matter, she wrote 113 words in one minute with but one error. Miss Salome Tarr, who made a world's record of accuracy at the recent convention in Baltimore, wrote from dictation while blindfolded 180 words in one minute and later wrote 210 words in one minute. She read her notes very readily and was heartily applauded.

Will Debate Women's Suffrage.

The monthly meeting of the trustees of the Temple Baptist church will be held tonight. Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock the monthly meeting of the Baraca, Philathea and Baraca Junior classes of the church will be held in their respetcive class rooms. There will be a debate upon the subject, "Resolved, That Women's Suffrage is Desirable." Charles Gulberg and U. B. Crane will argue the affirmative and Edward Baker and C. J. Utzinger will take the negative side. David Rockefeller, Edward Baker, Sr., and Henry Jaeger will be judges.

Edward Ryno and cousin, Miss Abbie Rouch and Mr. and Mrs. Van-Fleet Ryno, of Dog Corner, spent Sunday in Plainfield with friends.

$45,000 Worth of Trunks, Bags and Suit Cases

The Entire Bankrupt Stock of the T. B. Peddie & Co. Factory

Thousands of TRUNKS, BAGS and CASES To Be Sold at Prices Averaging Half

SALE NOW IN PROGRESS

Imagine half a dozen baggage stations combined in one. Imagine them at a time when traffic on the railroads is heaviest and trunks are piled as high as a man can reach. Imagine a baggage room 75 ft. wide by about 200 ft. long, piled full of trunks, bags and cases, with only narrow aisles between—then you will have some conception of the enormous lot of these traveling requisites that were involved in the T. B. Peddie & Co. failure and which we bought from the receiver, Frederick F Guild.

This was the only house in America that had the courage to bid for the entire stock—fully $45,000 worth—and the receiver was glad to sell it to us rather than parcel it out amongst the dozens of concerns that wanted smaller lots. We knew the good thing and we made the best of our opportunity to bring to the people of New Jersey the greatest trunk and bag bargains ever known, at the very moment when they are most wanted by travelers and vacationists.

In this bankrupt stock are all the trunks, bags and cases that were in the factory completed or in process of manufacture, not a piece going to any but our own store.. Fully 90 per cent. were made for this season's delivery and hundreds of pieces were completed after our purchase. From this you will realize that the stock is up-to-date in every way, and the name and fame of the T. B. Peddie & Co., for over 70 years at trunk making, is sufficient guarantee of the worthiness of every piece that goes into this sale.

There are big trunks and little ones.

Great Wardrobe Trunks for both men and women at from $25 to $50.

Sole Leather Steamer Trunks.....$15.00 to $30.00
Other Steamer Trunks at from.....$2.00 to $25.00
Basket Dress Trunks at from.....$15.00 to $25.00
Canvas Covered Trunks at from.....$2.00 to $8.00
Tray Trunks at from.....$16.50 to $19.50
Dress Trunks at from.....$8.00 to $10.00
Suit Cases from.....75c to $25.00
Hand Bags from.....50c to $20.00

Bags of many other sorts—big and little—for all purposes, $1.00 to $10.00.

The variety is something stupendous! Of many things there are only a few of a kind; of some we have quantities, especially of the choicest things in the stock.

In every instance our selling prices will be considerably lower than the usual Peddie & Co. wholesale prices. Thousands of dollars' worth of the stock will be sold at much less than half price. Thousands of pieces will be sold at exactly half price, and not a piece in the lot will cost you any more than two-thirds its actual value.

There has never been a trunk and bag sale like this in this country, and we expect to do a business the first day and the first week unparalleled in the annals of trade.

It is your opportunity—everybody's opportunity—to buy trunks, suit cases and bags for immediate or future use, even for Christmas gifts. It is an opportunity that cannot readily come again.

If you cannot come here the first day, come the second, or the third. If you cannot come the first week come the second. Remember that there are over 5,000 pieces involved in this sale and that there will likely be plenty of everything to supply all who come from now to the end of the month.

MACHINISTS ENCOURAGED

Officers of International Association Address Local Union Members.

THE SITUATION IS REVIEWED.

Hugh V. Reilly, the Business Agent, J. J. Keppler, the Vice-president, Are the Speakers at the Meeting.

An enthusiastic meeting of the local members of the International Association of Machinists was held at Eagle Hall last night, when addresses were made by Hugh V. Reilly, business agent of District No. 47, of the association, and J. J. Keppler, international vice-president of the association. In view of the recent success of the printing press machinists here in securing an increase in wages, there was renewed interest and a large attendance of the machinists.

After a few words by Mr. Reilly, in which he congratulated the machinists for their united support and co-operation in the recent strike, which brought about a ten per cent. increase in wages, Mr. Keppler addressed the men at some length. He reviewed the present conditions in the trade, telling them of the progress being made in the many departments. He said that at Yonkers, N. Y., machinists are receiving as high as $5.80 a day for an eight-hour day, while the helpers receive as high as $3.40 a day. "This" said Mr. Keppler, "indicates the success being attained by the men in the trade."

Mr. Keppler also touched on the general movement in favor of an eight-hour day throughout the country and the efforts being made to get the tool industry into line. In this connection he referred to the Pond Machine Tool Works in this city, and its allied interests, the Bement, Niles Co., of Hamilton, Ohio, and the Pratt, Whitney Company, of Hartford, Conn., as well as other tool companies throughout the country. Special efforts are now being made to thoroughly organize the men in the tool industry and when this is accomplished they will make a united demand for a substantial increase with an eight-hour day.

Mr. Keppler is constantly in touch with every branch of the machinists trade and he brought the latest information as to conditions in all parts of the country. The key-note of the hour is to thoroughly organize. He said that his experience had taught him that greater concessions were possible from the so-called trusts and combinations than the independent manufacturer, and when a strong organization is effected he had no doubt whatever as to the result of the demands.

After Mr. Keppler's talk a recess was taken during which a number of machinists joined the local branch of the organization, while several were reinstated. They were obligated afterwards at a secret session of the association.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF HUSBAND AND HIS WIFE.

It was a sad procession which wended its slow way to Hillside side cemetery on Sunday afternoon when the bodies of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Boulanger were taken to their last resting place. Mrs. Boulanger died on Thursday night last suddenly and her husband unable to stand the grief of parting soon followed her into eternity.

A service was held at the late home in Hoboken before the bodies were brought to this city and at Hillside. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring conducted the commitment service. Only the immediate families conducted the remains to this city. Floral tributes requiring an entire coach were laid upon the graves of the couple with many a sympathetic tear. The funeral marked the end of a short but completely happy married life.

Flag Day Today.

Today is flag day, and the numerous flags being displayed in this city and the borough from public buildings and private houses gives evidence that it is being observed. In the public schools it is being observed in an informal way with recitations by the pupils. At Mt. St. Mary's College this afternoon special exercises will be held.

DIPLOMAS FOR TWELVE AT DUNELLEN'S SCHOOL

The graduation exercises of the Whittier School, of Dunellen, will be held in that school on Thursday evening when twelve young men and girls will bid goodbye to the school forever. Each one of the graduates has been assigned a part in the program and will read essays, give recitations and render music. An address will be given by Rev. E. R. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church.

All the clear record pupils of the school, of whatever grade will receive a present of a suitable volume of literature, and there will be three five dollar gold pieces, presented by Edward Maurer, awarded to the pupils in grades 6, 7 and 8 whose compositions are considered best by the committee of the board.

On Friday evening the Board of Education will tender a reception to the teachers of the school after which refreshments will be served and dancing indulged in. The public is invited to this reception. Those having tickets for the graduation exercises are requested to present them by 7:45 so that they may be properly seated.

The graduates will be Harold G. Noble, Allen M. Frederick, John T. M. Fadden, Schuyler H. VanderVeer, George H. Martin, John E. Rinehart, Helen M. Swackhamer, Ruth Snyder, Ruth Haver, Ruth Voorhees, Florence V. Gray and Elizabeth B. Hawthorne.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN IN 'P. REGAN'S TROUBLES'

Patrick Regan, a milkman, believes that a valuable Jersey cow belonging to him which died early this morning, met its death from other than natural causes, and for this reason has engaged a veterinarian to perform a post mortem autopsy. If the animal is found to have died from poisoning, Mr. Regan asserts that he will take the matter into court, as he alleges he believes that some of his neighbors with whom he hasn't always been on the friendliest terms, are not above doing such a thing.

Two years ago Mr. Regan says he figured in a shooting incident when two mysterious shots were fired late at night near his home. The bullets grazed a nearby tree beneath which several young people were sitting, and charges of carelessness were preferred against Regan. The case was settled, but since then Regan hasn't been calling on his neighbors for an evening's chat after supper, and some of the neighbors have been equally unhospitable towards each other. Hence when Mr. Regan's cow, which he says was in perfect health last night when he tethered it for the night, was found dead this morning, Mr. Regan began to look for causes. The cause in this case appears to be in pretty much of a mix-up—a sort of needle in the haystack, so to speak, inasmuch as no clues or other satisfactory evidence seems to be available. Still Mr. Regan says he believes that the needle will be found in the haystack of his neighbors' animosity.

PUPILS PIANO RECITAL WAS CHARMING AFFAIR.

A high degree of skill was manifested by the pupils of Miss Alice Louise Morgan in their piano recital last evening. Parents and friends gathered to hear the youngsters play, and the universal verdict was creditable to the instruction of Miss Morgan.

Those who took part were: Dorothy Langford, Estella Force, Evelyn Hillman, Margaret Mortimer, Herbert Hillman, Dorothy Lynn, Kathryn Clarke, Juan Babcock, Harriet Morgan, Kathryn Stevens, Marian Lynn, Katherine Endress, Wilhelmina Endress, Gladys Waring, Evan Stevens, Vivian Dunn, Madelyn Moy.

Music Was a Feature.

Charles Suhr's Imperial Band, which furnished the music at the second annual bench show of the Plainfield Kennel Club, Saturday, received high praise for its work. Although the weather was dismal enough, the popular program by the band went a long way in livening up the affair. The band also played in the tent during the dinner hour.

Funeral of Mrs. McCarthy.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary McCarthy, of Terrill road, was held this morning from the late home. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery. Father Bogan officiated and relatives acted as pall bearers.

JUNK DEALERS' PERMITS

Licenses Issued by the City Are Not Good in the Borough.

THE RECORDER'S DECISION.

Louis Levine Arrested as He Attempted to Make Sale in North Plainfield and He is Adjudged Guilty.

A decision relative to buying and selling in this city and the borough, was handed down by Recorder Charles M. Dolliver in the borough police court this morning. The case involved a peculiar question, as to whether a junk dealer can negotiate a sale in this city and then have it recognized in the borough as a city contract, without impairing it.

A short while ago Louis Levine, a junk dealer, met Eugene M. Laing, of this city, and arranged for the sale of some junk for the silk mill. Levine then went over into the borough, where he got the junk, and received his money—a sum slightly over nine dollars. He was promptly arrested by Chief Weiss for doing junk business in the borough without a license. When the case came up before Recorder Dolliver he put it off for a week. This morning the decision was handed down that Levine was guilty of breaking a borough ordinance and was accordingly fined ten dollars. Samuel S. Swackhamer, counsel for Levine maintained that the deal was completed in this city, and that the delivery only was made in the borough which Levine, carrying a city license had a perfect right to do. To further his claim he submitted the case of the late Tunis Cary vs. the borough of North Plainfield, which was identical in its nature. This case was carried up to the Supreme Court, where a favorable decision to Cary was rendered.

Justice Dolliver, however, showed that another junk dealer had negotiated with Mr. Laing for the sale of the junk, after Levine and that when the delivery was made and the money paid, he was guilty on the ground of executing an agreement to sell in the borough. The previous negotiation in this city was thus shown to be a mere conditional agreement, and fresh negotiations were entered into when the junk was delivered over to Levine.

The decision in the case reads in part:

"The facts shown are that the defendant and Mr. Laing met in the city of Plainfield on two occasions and talked over the matter of selling the junk. Arrangement was made to meet at the mill in North Plainfield and there weigh the junk and complete the sale. The authorities hold that where goods are to be weighed or measured title does not pass until actual delivery unless it is clearly shown that parties intended otherwise. It is the opinion of this court that the meetings in the city of Plainfield in which the contemplated sale was discussed price per 100 pounds agreed upon, and arrangement made when parties would meet and weigh the scrap iron, that these facts simply show an executory agreement to sell, and not a present sale. That the actual sale took place in the borough at the Watchung Silk Mill when the iron was weighed, defendant paid Mr. Laing, and took away his junk. This is sufficient carrying on of the junk business to require a license and defendant is therefore guilty of the violation of the ordinance and for such violation a fine of $10 is imposed."

STRENUOUS COLLECTOR PLACED UNDER ARREST.

Gustav Lavere, of Duer street, who tried to collect a bill for seven dollars from Mrs. Elizabeth Dorm, of Grove street, yesterday morning resorted to strenuous methods, according to the latter who swore out a complaint of disorderly conduct before Recorder Dolliver.

The case came up before Recorder Charles M. Dolliver in the borough court this morning, and on the request of William G. DeMeza, counsel for the defendant, was postponed until Friday morning. Francis J. Blatz is counsel for the plaintiff.

Children's Day at Warren Chapel.

The Children's Day exercises will be held at Warren chapel Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, when an appropriate program will be presented by the children. There will also be two short addresses, one by Rev. J. O. McKelvey and the other by Emerson E. Parvin. There will also be infant baptism and the Junior Christian Endeavor Society prizes will be awarded.

DUNELLEN TO HONOR P. H. S. VALEDICTORIAN

All Dunellen is proud of Meta Pennock, the daughter of Edward Pennock, and so great is their feeling of pride that they will present to this young woman on Thursday a token of their esteem.

Miss Pennock is the valedictorian of the Plainfield High School, Class 1910, and the fact that she has won this honor from her many competitors of Plainfield has made the people of the borough swell with pride.

The gift which will be presented on Thursday evening at the graduation exercises of the Whittier School will carry with it the good wishes of the citizens of Dunellen as it is made up from popular subscription. It is not intended that Miss Pennock shall know what the gift consists of, but the committee having the matter in charge hope that she will not frustrate their plans by being absent on the evening in question.

ANOTHER PETITION FOR VOTE MACHINE ELECTION

Within the next day or two, a new petition for a special election on the abolition of the voting machine will be filed with City Clerk MacMurray. It is expected that the Common Council will take final action on the matter on Monday night and in all probability, it is reported, an election will be ordered.

The original petition, which was returned to the signers after the city fathers declined to take favorable action, has been amended and now includes the names of some forty per cent. of the voters. This was done because the rules of the Common Council require that a petition must be acted upon within fifteen days of its presentation. The increased number of signatures is merely to show that the people demand such an election.

PHOTOGRAPHERS UNITE FOR MUTUAL PROTECTION

P. Frank Stone, the photographer of this city, attended a meeting of the Professional Photographers' Association held in Letson's Hall, Newark, last night. The purpose of the organization is to protect the interests of the profession in general and one of the first things to be taken up will be the plan to secure a reduction in fire insurance rates. At present they are considered exorbitant, owing to what is claimed an idea that photographers use highly combustible materials.

This, it is said by the photographers, is not so, and no unusual risks are maintained in their studios. In New York city the photographers have been successful in getting a reduction of insurance rates and it is believed that as much can be accomplished in this State. The association is growing rapidly and the organization will be completed in the fall when officers will be elected and by-laws and constitution adopted. Thus far only preliminary meetings have been held looking toward the perfection of organization.

STATE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION WANTED

The meeting of the Plainfield Ministers' Association and the superintendents of the various Sunday schools in the city took place last night in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium at which it was decided to invite the State Sunday school convention to this city in November, 1911.

It was the unanimous opinion that the convention ought to come to Plainfield next year, and Rev. Charles L. Goodrich and George E. Hall, superintendent of the Park avenue Sunday school, were appointed a committee to extend the invitation. Mr. Irving and Mr. Hall, both members of the executive committee of the Sunday School Association, presented the matter to the meeting and the above action was taken. These members explained that the action was necessary now in order that the plans for the coming year might be brought before the convention this fall. It is planned to have an elaborate program with several prominent speakers.

—The Playgrounds Commission will hold an important meeting tonight at the Y. M. C. A.

CITY-WATCHUNG SERVICE

Automobile Bus to Run Between Here and Village Beginning Next Week.

BETTER POLICE PROTECTION.

North Plainfield Township Committee Also Arranges to Keep Informed on Doings of Public Bodies.

The Improvement Society of North Plainfield Township at its meeting in Texier's Mill, Watchung, last night, decided to introduce an automobile service between Watchung and Plainfield; also authorized the president, W. de la R. Anderson, to appoint a committee, one or more of which shall attend every meeting of the township committe, the Borough Council and Board of Freeholders, while Dr. M. P. E. Groszmann, Charles E. Neier and Charles C. Wheeler were appointed a committee to regulate the automobile hill climbing contest on Johnston's Drive on July 9.

The meeting was largely attended by members of the society and others interested in the work being undertaken for the betterment of township conditions.

The schedule for the automobile service will be ready the early part of next week. An auto carrying about six pasengers will be used at first and if the conditions warrant it a larger machine will be secured later. Edward Canning, of Watchung, will operate the car.

Regarding the proposed hill climbing contest, the society intends to protect the interest of the residents and those who constantly make use of Johnston's Drive, and regulate the trials and contest.

President Anderson was authorized to appoint a committee of five, one or more members of which shall make it their business to attend all meetings of the town committee, the Borough Council and Board of Freeholders to keep fully informed as to the proceedings of those bodies.

The committee on police recommended that the town committee be instructed to appoint three deputies to act as policemen, one in each section, Watchung, Scotch Plains and Greenbrook.

The committee appointed on the Watchung avenue and Somerset street road matter, reported that the borough authorities had faithfully promised to extend Watchung avenue at once to Johnston's Drive. Other committees reported progress.

After the business of the evening was disposed of those present enjoyed a dance. Among those who joined in the festivities were Mr. and Mrs. Francis DeLacy Hyde, Dr. and Mrs. M. P. E. Groszmann, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Moldenke, Mr. and Mrs. George Mobus, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. C. C.

EXPERT CHAUFFEUR HURT IN ACCIDENT

William Mazzocco, a chauffeur in the employ of F. L. C. Martin, is confined to his home today with a badly lacerated face, and with numerous body bruises as a result of an automobile accident in which he figured early yesterday afternoon on Park avenue near the brook.

He was driving his machine at a moderate pace and tried to pass a vehicle in front of him. In turning out of the way, the front wheels struck a slight obstruction in the road, Mazzocco lost control of the stearing gear, and the machine plunged into a tree at the side of the road.

People in the vicinity rushed to his aid, and he was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital by Dr. Anthony. There he was examined. It was found that he had ssutained no serious injuries, save for a badly lacerated leg and side, and much cut up face. His wounds were dressed and he was later taken home in a cab. Today he is feeling very well and hopes to be able to go to work again within a week.

Mazzocco was alone in the machine at the time of the accident. At the Martin garage it was said that he is an experienced and careful driver. The damage done the machine is slight, considering the force of the impact. It was towed to the garage shortly after the accident and is now undergoing repairs.

BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT RESULTS IN A MARRIAGE

Following a breach of promise suit, Carl Stroke married Miss Cassie Lysick in Justice Snape's court in the borough this morning. Stroke met Miss Lysick several years ago and became infatuated with her. A strong friendship followed and soon ripened into love. Hence when a year ago the engagement of the two was announced it was no surprise to the friends of the pair.

About six months ago the engagement was suddenly broken off. Miss Lysick engaged S. S. Swackhamer to bring action to compel Stroke to marry her. Stroke was defended by Walter Hetfield. After hearing the testimony in the case which was up in the court several times, Stroke consented to marry Miss Lysick. Friends and relatives gathered in the borough court this morning when the marriage ceremony was performed by Judge Snape. The couple departed, apparently happy in the match, despite the recent proceedings.

Friends and relatives of the graduates attended the exercises of the Warren township school Thursday night in large numbers, and the program was one of interest to all. On the platform with the graduates were grouped the members of the school board with Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of the borough. In the rear the pennant, "Climb Tho' the Rocks be Rugged" was suspended, flaunted on each side by a class and a school flag. The two white flags, shown in the picture, are the flags of the Warren Township Circles on the Square, a non-partisan society that is doing much effective work in the township and is greatly interested in the welfare of the schools.

HALL EXPECTS TO FLY IN HIS BIPLANE TODAY

Young Plainfield Inventor Has Great Confidence in His Machine Which is an Original Idea.

Neither the Wrights, Curtis, Paulhan, nor any of the world-famed aviators have anything on George Hall, the twenty-nine-year-old son of George E. Hall, of this city, when it comes to navigating the air. Mr. Hall with a persistence which has astonished not only his parents but all his acquaintances has evolved a machine which not only will fly, he says, but will actually take on the manouvers of a bird in flight. The machine, a biplane, which has consumed months of patient labor will have its first tryout in the vicinity of South Plainfield late this afternoon.

The design for the machine is from plans made by Mr. Hall and the motor which is of a new type designed by Charles F. Fulmer, the Sycamore street machinist, is for its weight the most powerful yet invented. For the same weight the two inventors have evolved a motor which will generate four times the horse power that the motor now in use by other aviators can produce.

The aeroplane is similar in design with those already familiar to the public with the single exception that it differs in the manner of steering and in the use of the front and rear planes with which the machine is made to ascend or descend. It is claimed by the inventor that the machine in no way infringes on the patents of the Wright Brothers' biplane as the principles involved are new.

In the trials late this afternoon the machine, it is expected, will attain a speed of forty-five miles an hour and in the various flights that it will demonstrate that it is almost automatic in its plane finding construction. The attachments to the steering wheel with which perfect control is had are much more simple than the devices on the Curtiss and Wright machines.

The invited guests at the trials late this afternoon are F. L. C. Martin, the pioneer dealer in aeroplanes in this city; a Daily Press reporter and Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, the latter having a personal interest in the young inventor of the machine.

Fred Owens, a 20-year-old aeronaut of Belleville, and his aircraft startled New Yorkers today by flying about the city in a most uncommonplace sort of fashion. So pleased was he with the working of his engine in a trial trip that he decided to make a journey to New York. He had an exciting experience about the city trying to make a landing at City Hall, but finally came down on Gates avenue, Brooklyn. The lad hoped to return home in his airship this afternoon.

Newmiller—Wunderlich.

The announcement of the marriage of Miss Lucy Wunderlich, dauhgter of Mr. and Mrs. Wunderlich, of Leland avenue, to William Newmiller, of Vine street, which took place June 5, has just been made. The marriage took place at Millington and was performed by Rev. Peter Gibb. For the present Mrs. Newmiller is residing with her mother but will go to housekeeping with her husband when the latter returns from Augusta, Maine, where he has gone to put up a press for the Walter Scott Press Company.

Hobbie Goes Some.

A warning was given to William F. Hobbie, Jr., by City Judge William N. Runyon this morning for speeding his car on Watchung avenue yesterday afternoon. Patrolman McCarthy, who stopped Mr. Hobbie, thought the car was going too fast and Mr. Hobbie said he had had trouble tuning it up.

Special Election in Borough.

The special sewerage election in the borough which is being held today called out a rather light poll this morning. The voting will be concluded at 7 o'clock tonight. The purpose of the election is to authorize at $300 000 bond issue for a sewage disposal plant.

SOMERVILLE.

Children's Day was observed in several of the churches Sunday and all the edifices were handsomely decorated with flowers for the event.

At the Second Reformed service in the afternoon, Sunday, Superintendent James L. Griggs presided and reported increases in every department. This school has over 700 members. The music was led by Geoffrey O'Hara, and an orchestra conducted by Mr. Jungmann, and it was very effective. The school marched from the chapel to the church while the orchestra played. Rev. A. A. Pfanstiehl, pastor of the church, made the address.

The services at the First Reformed church were held Sunday evening. Philip Case presided. There were various exercises by the school and an address by Rev. G. H. Payson, D. D., of New Brunswick. Professor Jungmann rendered some violin music and the children's choir and church choir assisted in the music.

Rev. Henry N. Jordan, of Dunellen, made the address at the Children's Day services in the Baptist church in the evening. A special program consisting of exercises by the children was rendered. Ernest Dewold, of New Brunswick, gave a violin solo and assited the organist.

At the Methodist church Rev. M. R. Church made the address and there were exercises by the children.

WESTFIELD.

Farmers of this vicinity are viewing with alarm the continued rainy weather. If it continues potatoes in this part of the State will practically be a failure. Strawberries are just coming into good bearing, but the rains are spoiling them. The hay crop promises to be larger than usual, but unless the rainy weather passes it will be impossible to gather it in good condition.

Four new fire alarm boxes will be set up this week. One at the corner of First street and Osborn avenue, one at the corner of Central avenue and Grove street; the exact location of the other two has not yet been decided on, but one will probably go on Mountain avenue, near the Germantown section, and the other on Clark street, near Dudley avenue.

Miss Ruth Peckham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Peckham, and William Haskell, of Merrimac, Mass., were married at high noon on Saturday at the home of the parents of the bride, Rev. H. C. Rush, of Westfield, officiating. Miss Ruth Tubby was flower girl and Paul Peckham, brother of the bride, was best man.

Owing to the condition of the track on Saturday the matinee meet scheduled for Fair Acres track was postponed until June 25.

JUNE TROPHY PLAY AT COUNTRY CLUB

The first round match play for the June trophy was the chief event of interest at the Plainfield Country Club Saturday, and the competition was close. There was also the weekly competition for the Spring Handicap cups, Classes A and B, which attracted a large field of players. It was a disagreeable day for the ancient game, and the course was more or less soggy owing to recent rain.

The first round for the June trophy resulted as follows:

Class A—R. G. Morse (13) beat E. T. Willson (12) 3 up and 1 to play; C. C. Burke (15) beat L. G. Carman (14), 4 up and 3 to play; Arthur Murphy (8) beat J. E. Erickson (15), by 1 up; H. R. Stockton (10) beat J. Whitney Baker (7), by 3 up and 2 to play.

Class B—E. J. Patterson (20) and W. D. Taylor (20), defaulted; George S. Clay (25) beat W. L. C. Glenney (24), by 2 up; H. F. Fox (18) beat H. S. Brown, by default; A. W. Kleinecke (26) beat A. E. Barclay (21), by 2 up.

The leading scores for the Spring Handicap cups were as follows:

Class A—Arthur Murphy, 86, 8-78; R. G. Morse, 92, 13-79; J. E. Erickson, 94, 15-79; W. T. Glenney, 87, 6-81; Leighton Calkins, 89, 8-81.

Class B—A. E. Barclay, 103, 21-82; A. W. Kleinecke, 108, 26-82; L. R. Hopton, 109, 25-84; H. C. De Forest, 105, 18-87.

SPRING CHAMPIONSHIP AT PARK GOLF CLUB

There was the continuation of play for the Spring Championship cup at the Park Golf Club Saturday, in addition to the weekly competition for the President's, Club and Summer cups. The weather had an effect on the day's play, having a tendency to keep many away from the course.

For the championship cup W. V. Byard beat C. B. Morse, by default; R. B. Titsworth beat Alexander Gilbert, by default; S. St. John McCutchen beat Samuel Townsend by default, and the Rev. C. L. Goodrich beat N. A. Miller, 4 up and 3 to play.

These scores were returned for the President's, Club and Summer cups:

W. V. Byard, 93, 25-68; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 101, 23-78; S. St. John McCutchen, 99, 20-79; N. A. Miller, 109, 30-79; U. G. Tingley, 117, 28-89.

The Most Industrious Store in Newark---The City of Industry

The Whole Town is Talking of Our Great Sale of T. B. Peddie & Co.'s Factory Stock of

Trunks, Bags & Suit Cases

This event—the mightiest of its kind in the history of Newark—has taken the town by storm. Had Peddie & Co. planned to quit business when it would most benefit the public they could not have struck a better time, for this is the month that many thousands get ready for their vacation trips and need trunks, bags and suit cases more than at any other time.

Our purchase of the entire stock left no leg for any competitor to stand on, therefore there could be no competition with this sale.

A purchase of such magnitude could not have been undertaken by any other concern in Newark, our vast resources and our unequalled outlet making it possible for us to do what is impossible to others.

The sale involves $45,000 worth of goods at retail, and we are selling the goods at an average of half price, so that the people of Newark and vicinity will effect thru this movement of ours a saving of in the neighborhood of $22,500, and that means a great deal to the public in these days when there is so much complaint of high prices.

The trunks, bags and suit cases involved are almost without exception entirely new and up-to-date—many of them having been in process of making at the time of the failure and finished under the receiver's orders to be included in our purchase.

There are trunks, bags and cases of every character, from the simplest canvas and oilcloth cases and bags up to the great wardrobe trunks.

Great Wardrobe Trunks for both men and women at from $25 to $50.

Sole Leather Steamer Trunks....$15 to $30.
Other Steamer Trunks at from....$2 to $25
Basket Dress Trunks at from....$15 to $25
Canvas Covered Trunks at from....$2 to $8
Tray Trunks at from.....$16.50 to $19.50
Dress Trunks at from.....$8 to $10
Suit Cases from.....75c to $25
Hand Bags from.....50c to $20

Bags of many other sorts—big and little—for all purposes, $1.00 to $10.00.

The sales yesterday and today were past all precedent, indicating that the public realizes the importance and value of this offering, and had full confidence in the goods and in our announcement of the sale.

In face of the tremendous business done any effort to minimize the magnitude of the event or the character of the stock or the favorable prices at which we were selling would, as a matter of course, fall flat and be a subject for popular ridicule.

This great sale will continue until the entire T. B. Peddie & Co. stock is disposed of, lasting, at least, thruout the next ten days and perhaps until the end of the month.

Proctor's Strong Bill.

Lillian Wright and her Young Boys, recently of Eddie Leonard's minstrels, will appear in a dancing act at Proctor's theatre today. Billy and Lillian Raymond will present a comedy sketch, "The Lone Passenger," with special scenery, engine and observation car going at the rate of sixty miles an hour; The Royal Italian Four, musicians, with Walsh & Redding, Irish comedians, complete the bill.

YOUNG FREEMAN PITCHED IN GAME SATURDAY.

Stuart Freeman, son of Walter Freeman, of South avenue, for a time was in the box for Yale in the game against Princeton Saturday afternoon. Though the contest resulted in a defeat for the bulldog aggregation, Freeman's work during the one inning that he pitched was creditable. No hits were made off his delivery, and he permitted no one to get to base on balls. On the other hand, he didn't strike out any batsman. Freeman is a graduate of the City High School, class of 1906, of which he was the president. While in school he pitched on the team during his senior year, alternating with "Farmer" Philip Smith, who later appeared in the ranks of professional ball. Freeman is now a senior at Yale and has a good chance of making the team next year. The only score card tally that appeared to his credit was one assist. Yale and Princeton have now each won a game in the series. The tie will be fought out next Saturday in New York.

YOUTH BADLY BEATEN; ASSAILANT IN JAIL.

Elizabeth, June 14.—In a fight that took place Sunday night at Marshall and Sixth streets, here, Samuel Philip Salvatore, nineteen years old, was so badly beaten that he had to be removed to the Elizabeth General Hospital to have his wounds dressed. His injuries were chiefly on the head.

The police arrested his assailants, William Neill, aged eighteen, and M. Hallihan, nineteen. In police court yesterday Judge Mahon fined the prisoners $22.85 each. Not having the money, they were committed to the county jail for ninety days.

Miss Gladys Leland, of Somerset street, is detained at home with the scarlet fever and the house is under quarantine.

HOSPITAL'S HEAD AGAIN

William C. Kinney Re-elected President of Muhlenberg Board.

AT THE ANNUAL MEETING.

Dr. Longbotham Succeeds Dr. Anthony as the House Physician —To Establish Dental Clinic.

Officers were elected, reports received and other important business transacted at the annual meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, held at the Mayor's office, last night. The annual reports of officers and committees were read and ordered filed. They will appear in detail in the year book. Dr. Longbothum, of the borough, was appointed house physician at the hospital, succeeding Dr. Anthony. It was decided to establish a dental clinic at the hospital for the coming year.

William C. Kinney.

The bylaws were amended consolidating the managing and the building and grounds committee, to be known in the future as the executive committee. Resolutions appropriate to the retirement of Samuel Huntington, after twenty-nine years of continuous service as a member of the board, were adopted and the printing and press committee was authorized to have the annual reports printed and distributed as usual.

The report of the medical board showed 42 patients remaining on May 1; 59 patients admitted; total number treated, 101; discharged cured, 50; discharged improved, 10; died, 7. There were 48 operations and six contagious cases. The total number of dispensary patients treated was 92; daily visits to dispensary, 197; general hospital days for the month, 1,128.

The first meeting of the new board for the year followed the annual session and the members organized by the election of these officers and committees:

President, William C. Kinney; first vice-president, E. H. Ladd; second vice-president, L. K. Hyde; secretary, J. P. Stevens; treasurer, J. E. Erickson.

Executive committee—William C. Kinney J. E. Erickson, Percy H. Stewart, Frank J. Hubbard, Henry L. Hall, E. H. Booth, H. W. Marshall. Later two women will be added to this committee from the Women's Auxiliary Board. Finance committee—George P. Mellick, William L. Saunders, Samuel Townsend, James DeGraff, J. E. Erickson. Printing and Press committee—Leighton Calkins, S. D. Lounsbery. Auditing committee — Charles J. Fisk, H. W. Beebe. Insurance committee—John M. Whiton.

A JAPANESE FETE AT Y.W.C.A. THURSDAY NIGHT

Preparations for the Japanese Fete to be held Thursday night at the local Y. W. C. A. rooms are being completed by the committee in charge of the affair. From present indications it bids fair to prove one of the most interesting of the early summer attractions. The rooms will be tastefully decorated in greens lanterns and bunting; and the scheme of decoration will be distinctly Japanese. Both men and women will be invited to attend the fete.

Tickets for the affair are being sold by the girls of the association grouped under teams headed by Miss Florence Prior and Miss Ida Englehardt. The losing team will have to wash dishes. At present there is much rivalry to avoid this privilege.

The committee in charge of the affair is composed of the following: Mrs. Elliott T. Barrows, chairman; and the Misses Reba Kline, Olive DeLaney, Maizie Gray, Elizabeth Becker, Mabel Cook, Myrtle Fedderman, Maltie Smith, Marjory Voehl, May Chamberlain, Ida Apgar, Agnes Conway, Edna Swedecke, Minnie Line, Ida Englehardt, Sarah Head, Harriet Mattison, Lois Diman, Marjorie Ackor, Clara Runyon, Clara Smith, Helen Hummel, Augusta Kreitling, Gertrude Mair, Helen Southard, Florence Prior and Fannie Beckwith.

The proceeds of the fete will be devoted towards the defraying of the expenses of the delegates to the Silver Bay Conference which will be held the early part of July.

GOVERNORS CHOSEN FOR THE HUNT CLUB

Governors were elected and reports for the year received at the annual meeting of the Watchung Hunt Club last night. Officers will be chosen at a meeting to be held within a week or ten days. The reports for the year showed the club to be in fine condition, financially and otherwise, and the new board is planning many entertainments for the summer season as well as the early fall, when the hunting will be started.

The grounds are in god condition for out-of-door sports, such as tennis, etc., while the clubhouse is just now a popular place for entertainments of various sorts.

In the election of governors there were several changes, some of the members who have hitherto not figured in the management being chosen. Those elected are as follows:

Three years—Robert A. Fairbairn, Edwin S. Hooley, Henry L. Finch, Arthur L. Otterson. Two years—William J. Buttfield, C. E. S. Bellows, Thomas R. Van Boskerck, Hart S. Farlee. One year—Rufus C. Finch, C. Wesley Holland and Henry E. Butler.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

With the Major Gordon's conclave of Indian chiefs that will be seen here for one week starting Monday, June 20, for the benefit of the Knights of Columbus, will appear one of the Navajo's most expert blanket weavers as part of the Indian industrial exhibit. She is known as Cara Estedda and her part of the exhibition is said to be interesting in the extreme. She has appeared at all of the big expositions and has made blankets for five of the countries' presidents as well as for several European rulers. Not the least interesting part of her exhibit are the letters of praise from these royal personages thanking her for her truly wonderful handiwork.

When finished the real Indian blanket is a thing to be proud of. They last for year's despite the hardest usage and some of them are very valuable, bringing in the open market sometimes as high at two or three hundred dollars, according to the size and the intricacy of the pattern. Thes blankets are thick but very soft and pliable and no matter how much exposed they may be to the weather never fade.

Proctor's Fine Bill.

The sketch, "The Lone Passenger," being presented at Proctor's theatre, is making a bit hit. It represents a train traveling sixty miles an hour; the porter jumps from a cowcatcher, and during a fifteen-minute wait he and the lone passenger, a woman, entertain with singing and good stories. The effect is great. The Italian Four in Italian and English songs and instrumental music, is a big act. Walsh & Redding, Irish comedians, have a good collection of Irish stories and Lillian Wright and her Young Boys are clever dancers.

Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Anderson, of West Fourth street, will leave here Friday afternoon in their automobile for Oxford, Pa., where they will attend the reunion of the former graduates of Lincoln University on Saturday. President Taft is to address a meeting Saturday afternoon.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. T. C. Smith, of Madison avenue left today for Central Islip, L. I., to visit her daughter, Mrs. Burdick.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Petrie, of Jackson avenue, are spending two weeks in Toronto, Canada, visiting Mr. Petrie's mother.

Miss Madeline Debele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Debele, of Pine Grove Farm, is enjoying farm life at Canaserga, N. Y., in the Adirondacks.

Charles F. Debele, Jr., of Pine Grove Farm, Greenbrook, who has been on a sight-seeing tour for the past month, is on his way home and visiting points of interest at Washington.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The entries are open for the several events to be held on the Fourth. Any one desiring to enter the bicycle race or the running races can secure full information from the committee. Several entries have already been received and from the interest shown the several events will be closely contested.

The local ball team play the Bound Brooks the second of the series of games between the two teams Saturday afternoon at Bound Brook. The local team captured the first game of the series after an exciting game, the score being 4-3.

The local Sunday schools observed Children's Day Sunday in an appropriate manner. The class rooms were prettily trimmed in honor of the day and notwithstanding the weather there was a good attendance.

Samuel Johnson, who has been seriously ill with a fever contracted several weeks ago while on a business trip South, is reported as being somewhat improved.

James Lindsley, of Plainfield, has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Demarest, of Front street.

Mrs. Orbie Price, of Forty Forts, Pa., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hull, of Westfield avenue.

Miss Florence Long, of Front street, entertained a party of friends from Plainfield over Sunday.

The Exempt Firemen's Association met last night in the parlors of Excelsior H. & L. Co.

OAK TREE.

An entertainment and dance will be held at the new school house Thursday night for the benefit of the piano fund, it being desirous to raise the balance to pay off the debt on the new piano. Refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Fred Wyckoff, daughter of Postmaster Stover, who resides at Findern, is the mother of a girl.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Van Court and two children went to Summit on Sunday in an automobile and witnessed the christening of the infant child of Mrs. Van Court's sister, Mrs. Jeanette Marclay.

Arthur M. Harris, superintendent of the Junior department of the First Baptist church Sunday school, has presented the school with an American and Bible school flags. They were used on Sunday afternoon for the first, being carried in the processional and afterward placed among the floral decorations.

RUBBER TYPE MADE IN ELIZABETH NOW

The Fulton Rubber Type Company, of 138-142 Fulton street, in Elizabeth, is believed to be the largest rubber type manufacturing concern in the United States, if not in the world. The concern, which employs eighty-five persons when running at full capacity, furnishes large orders of rubber goods to all countries of the globe. The company occupies a four-story brick factory, forty feet deep and 150 feet long, having over 33,000 square feet of floor space.

The factory is excellently equipped for the manufacture of rubber types, inking pads, toys, wood and paper boxes and practically everything used in making and handling the product.

The company came to Elizabeth from New York five years ago and has used the factory which it now occupies ever since removing to that city. The factory formerly was the Munsel stove foundry.

The top or fourth floor of the factory includes the department where rubber and paper toys are made. On this floor also the paper boxes are cut and made.

On the third floor the large rubber type for show card printing is made. The wood cutting and box making departments are also on this floor. The company makes a large number of jewelry and fancy boxes.

The self-inking pad department, which is one of the largest branches of the work, is also on the second floor. There are big kettles where the dyes for the pads are made and a large force of girls is employed making the pads. On this floor also are made the tin boxes enclosing the pads.

The offices of the company are located on the second floor, where also are the stock and shipping rooms.

On the ground floor is the vulcanizing department. In the neighborhood of 500 pounds of rubber is made into rubber type daily when the plant is running at its full capacity. There are a half dozen machines for changing small slabs of rubber into the strips of type which then are cut apart and fastened to stamps. The machine shop, containing a variety of machines used in making tin boxes and other articles, is on the first floor.

The company does all of its own printing, having several large job presses. There is a fine lithographing plant and three-color process in connection with this department. The firm designs its own box covers for the toys and prints all the covers for the boxes.

Besides the four floors and basement there is a good-sized annex at the back of the factory. This building is used for finishing the woodwork and is fitted with planers, a half dozen saws and other machinery. The basement is used for a storeroom.

The company furnishes toys to over 700 5 and 10-cent stores in this country. The busy season will open in a week or two and a large number of orders are being received from all parts of this country as well as from Europe, Africa, Australia and Central and South America.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Colonial Dames of Woodbury held an entertainment at the Country Club in aid of a new drinking fountain fund yesterday afternoon.

Stricken with a hemorrhage, John Miller, forty-five years old, of 885 Florence street, Camden, died before a physician could reach him.

Rev. William J. Fitzgerald, pastor of St. Mary Magdalene church Millville, will sail Saturday next for Europe, where, in company with several other priests, he will make an extended tour.

His hand caught in the chain of a bicycle which he was cleaning, fourteen-year-old Clarence Greer, of Thirty-sixth and Federal streets, East Camden, Sunday submitted to the amputation of one finger, and may possible lose another.

Taking advantage of his liberty as a "trusty," Jack Hoseman, a nervy prisoner, boldly slipped out of the Atlantic City jail Saturday night and disappeared among the crowds leaving the trains at the Pennsylvania station, across from the lock-up. He was traced to Cardiff and captured about midnight.

Jumping the track at Twenty-eighth street and River avenue, Camden, Sunday afternoon a North Cramer Hill trolley car sped diagonally across the street and crashed into a telephone pole. So forceful was the impact that the pole snapped off and the body of the car slid from the trucks. There were no passengers on the car and the motorman saved himself by jumping.

Not Yet.

She—Do you know whose aeroplane it was that hit you?

He—No; it was cloudy and I could not see the number.—Ally Sloper.

Elegance and Comfort

BOTH so desired in shoes, are possible if the stock is complete, and the salesmen are skillful in fitting the foot. Our store speaks for itself; and if you give us a chance, we will mighty soon show you our skill. We know how to fit shoes, getting the foot into the proper size, making them look right. We don't try to build your feet to suit the shoes; but we have shoes built to suit your feet.
